NEW YORK, March 26.—The International Workers' Aid will hold protest meetings thruout the country, demanding the release of Comrade Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist deputy in the Polish diet, who has been sentenced to be hanged. Comrade Lanzutsky's only offense is that he is a Communist, who advocates the seizure of power by the Polish workers, as the only means of stopping the reign of the Polish white terror. Thousands of Polish workers are now languishing in jail because they dared to speak for the workingclass.

One member of the Workers' Aid committee is Rev. David Rhys Williams, brother of the writer and friend of Soviet Russia, Albert Rhys Williams.

Lanzutsky is sentenced because of a speech delivered before the railroad workers' union.

KIRKWOOD, WHO FOUGHT WALES' TRIP, REFUSES PROTECTION OF POLICE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

London, March 26.—Numerous threatening letters have been received by David Kirkwood, labor member of parliament from Scotland, because of his criticism of the journey which the prince of Wales is about to take, it became known today.

Kirkwood reported the letters to the home secretary, Sir Johnson Hicks. Police protection was offered Kirkwood, but he refused it.

INVITE RUSSIA TO ARMS PARLEY, BORAH DEMANDS

World Powers Fight for Spoils

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—Soviet Russia must be invited to the international conference to discuss armaments and other world problems, if the parley is to have any effect on European nations, Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee told President Coolidge.

Borah was called to the White House to confer on the proposed conference of world powers. He told Coolidge that if such a powerful nation as Soviet Russia, exerting such potent influence in the east and on the European countries, were left out of the conference, the European nations might even hesitate to take part.

Borah declared that recognition was not necessary in order to extend an invitation to the Soviet government to attend.

To Divide Spoils.

The so-called disarmament conference will not have reduction of armaments as its most important work. In fact, France like the other nations, is favoring limitation of armaments for every country but itself. France insists that no disarmament program be broached which does not allow her to militarise the German border and the Ruhr.

England, on the other hand, is anxious to see an arms parley because England feels that the French air-fleet and submarines are a menace to her, as is the American maneuver in the Pacific. English imperialism is anxious to curb this growth of foreign navies.

The division of the spoils extracted from Germany under the Dawes' plan is also likely to be taken up, as well as the disputes of the large powers over the division of the colonial countries.

DEMAND NEW ELECTION IN DISTRICT 12

Miners Indignant at Farrington Machine

By ALEX REID.

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., March 26.—The election returns of District 12, United Mine Workers of America (Illinois), published in the latest issue of the Illinois Miner, show a complete repudiation of Farrington leadership.

Of a membership of over 100,000, Farrington received only approximately 30,000 votes, one-fourth of the membership.

Farrington Machine Busy.

Even despite the fact that the machine was busy thruout the district for weeks prior to the election, and during the election, in spite of the crooked elections thruout the district, the Farrington machine could only poll one-fourth vote of the membership.

Only fifty per cent of the membership voted, and it is safe to say that if the disgusted, discouraged unemployed miners had voted, Farrington would have went down to complete and ignominous oblivion.

Opposition Disqualified.

In Zeigler, one local union gave Farrington 144 votes and John Hindmarch 488—but this vote was disqualified because the votes were not tabulated in the required time set by the constitution. The real reason is seen in the disparity of the vote.

At Buckner, the ballots were stolen and other ballots substituted. At a local near Middlefork, officers at the local union counted the ballots who were not even members of that local, and thruout the state the same conditions are reported.

Demand Convention and New Election

Miners are demanding a convention to clean out the daylight burglars. Ballots were thrown out on every hand on "constitutional" grounds, and the tellers in the district, in spite of the constitution, do not report as provided by that document.

Article 11, section 21, provides that the ballots be tabulated and sent to each local union not later than the beginning of February of each election year. But—the Farrington machine says—"to hell with the constitution!"

The miners are also demanding a new election, in order that the disfranchised members may be permitted to vote as constitutionally provided.

Society Pets Soviet Enemies.

The begging choir of "Prince" Sergio Romanovsky, cousin of the late czar of Russia, received a large handout from the parasites of New York society when they "sang for their supper" at a benefit performance in the Plaza Hotel.

LIVING IN STEEL TOWNS

IT is appropriate that in Pittsburgh, the stronghold of the mighty steel trust, there should be organised the first group of Communist worker-correspondents. We hope that this will be the first of many similar groups that will form lines of communication for the Communist press and some day make it unnecessary to depend upon capitalist news services.

The DAILY WORKER will be a real mass organ when all its news is gathered and written by worker-correspondents in every industrial center. This article is the first contribution of the Pittsburg worker-correspondent group. They deal with life and living conditions of the workers.

This is the kind of material that the DAILY WORKER wants. It is not intended that the articles and news stories should do more than conform to a certain readable form so far as style is concerned. It is desirable that each correspondent develop his own inclinations but clearness, reasonable brevity and observation expressed in forceful description should be striven for.—Ed. Note.

By MARGARET YEAGER

In the heart of the greatest steel center of the world, where thousands of workers toil every day to make a mere living lies the noble town of Braddock, the town where such men as Corey. Carnegie, and Schwab started to make their first millions.

Braddock the largest town in this steel center is surrounded by such holes of humanity as Port Perry, Rankin, Bessemer and Brinton, in which towns the majority of actual toilers of the steel mills live while the flunkeys live in the more exclusive towns of North Braddock, and Swissvale.

Steel Mill is Center.

In speaking of holes of humanity, let me explain a little why such a term is not even strong enough to express the rotten living conditions these steel workers endure: All of these towns are built around the steel mills and most of the workers live within ten minutes of their places of work.

Their homes in most cases consisting of two or three rooms, with sanitary conditions that are very commonly being shared by as many as three and four families. The homes

Coolidge Appointed Woodlock for Rail Trust, Farmers Say

WASHINGTON, March 26.—An attack upon Thomas F. Woodlock, New York financial writer, given a recess appointment to the interstate commerce commission by President Coolidge, was made today by farmers' organizations.

"The appointment means a showdown fight and the end of the Coolidge myth in the next session of congress," it is declared.

ZIONISTS TURNING HOLY LAND INTO GORY BATTLEFIELD

Make War on Arabs in Palestine

JERUSALEM, Palestine, March 2—(By Mail).—During the last three months and continuing as this is written the persecution of the Arabian peasants and Communists has reached unheard of proportions.

The zionist organization, a pliant tool of British imperialism, is the leader of this campaign and in December they forced a bloody conflict between the zionist colonists and the Arabian peasants.

The zionists have been joined by the zionist party, calling itself "socialist" and because the Communists have exposed their schemes for zionistic colonization and expulsion of the Arabian peasantry a violent offensive against them has been launched.

Many Communists and peasants have been arrested, beaten and otherwise mistreated.

The self determination policy which is supposed to prevail in Palestine has been converted into a warfare of extermination of the Arabs. The Communists have pointed out that the prosecution of this policy must lead inevitably to a bloody war but Great Britain wants to destroy the Arab centers and is undoubtedly aiding financially in the campaign.

The Communist Party of Palestine has issued an appeal to all its brother parties thru the Communist International calling for agitation against the among the national sections of their persecution campaign of the zionist movement.

Many of the supporters of zionism are entirely unaware of the manner in which the movement has become an appendage of British imperialism. Some of the sections have already made known their opposition to such a prostitution of the national desire for freedom.

Judge English Took Money from Fellow-Crooks in Courtroom

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 26.—Mrs. Grace Thayer, former secretary to Referee in Bankruptcy C. B. Thomas, today resumed her role as witness in the congressional investigation being conducted here into the official conduct of Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis.

She testified that on numerous occasions Thomas appeared in Judge English's office and made division of large rolls of money and even supplied members of his family with money.

That Charles B. Thomas, former referee in bankruptcy, bought an automobile for Judge English, was told the congressional investigation subcommittee by Julius Seifert, automobile salesman.

Seifert declared that Thomas, who recently resigned when his office was subjected to attack, paid for the automobile by check and that Judge English's son called for the car and drove it home.

Thomas, in a statement later declared the money was merely a loan.

Building Strike Still on As Bosses Seek Settlement

NEW YORK, March 26.—The strike of the plasterers, and bricklayers against the large Thompson-Starrett contracting company here continues, with representatives of the contracting employers making unsuccessful efforts to bring about a compromise agreement.

The plasterers and bricklayers dispute has tied up $23,000,000 worth of new construction in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago.

The dispute has been referred to a committee of four building union officials, representing the masons, plasterers, bricklayers and cement finishers, which has greed to meet with the employers' association.

Klan Rioters Are Found Guilty of Niles Disturbance

WARREN, Ohio, March 26.— Ten reputed ku klux klansmen variously indicted on charges of carrying concealed weapons, shooting and assault to kill in a riot at Niles, Ohio, Nov. 1, pleaded guilty today. They will be sentenced.

Vernon Ahue, alleged klansman, also pleaded guilty of carrying concealed weapons and was fined $100 and costs.

About forty more men indicted by a special grand jury are to be tried Thursday.

School Children Join Hunt.

Evanston and Rogers Park police and school children today were called on to aid in a search for Robert Chapin, 8-year-old pupil at the Lincoln school in Evanston, who has been missing from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Chapin, since he left for school, four blocks away.

GOVERNMENT PLANS HARD LABOR FOR WORKERS WHO ARE SENT TO PRISON

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—Eight hours hard labor daily for the 7,000 inmates of federal prisons is the objective of Luther C. White, new superintendent of prisons, to whom Attorney General Sargent has entrusted the task of reorganizing the government penal system. More than 50 per cent of the prison inmates are not now doing eight hours work a day, according to White.

The department of justice, under Attorney General Sargent, will push its recommendation for congressional legislation to diversify industries in the prisons. An iron foundry is planned at Atlanta and several new industries at other prisons. A duck mill at Atlanta is being enlarged and a shoe plant at Leavenworth is nearing completion.

EGYPTIANS IN STRIKE AGAINST WHITE TERROR

British Swing Clubs on Demonstrators

CAIRO, Egypt, March 26.—Demonstrations are taking place thruout Egypt against the British controlled government's dissolution of parliament. University and high school students are on strike here, and lorries filled with police are attempting to drive them back to their classes.

Clashes with the police are reported from Tanta and Mehala Kebir, where British troops drove demonstrators for Zagloul Pasha, the leader of the Egyptians against British domination, from the streets.

The unrest of the Egyptians is growing, following the ruling of the British controlled government that new elections will not be held on May 23, as was ruled when parliament was dissolved.

The British puppet premier dissolved parliament the same day that it met as soon as Zagloul Pasha was elected president, and it was found that his party had a decisive majority in parliament over the British party.

The British officials have decided to change the electoral laws, to make it impossible for Zagloul Pasha to receive the votes cast for him in the next election, if the Egyptian party is finally able to force the British controlled government to take the issue to the polls.

Organize Strong Shop Nucleus of Workers Party at Zeigler

The Workers Party in Zeigler, Ill., District 8 has jumped to the front in the organization of shop nuclei. The comrades there have completely reorganized so that there exists a shop nucleus having 65 members.

This shop nucleus of 65 members has 15 comrades formerly connected directly with the South Slav branch, 24 with the Russian, 23 with Lithuanian. All of these as well as the English comrades now function fully thru the nucleus.

The secretary reports that the shop nucleus is alive and carrying on all of the party functions. This is a very healthy sign and comes well for the further Bolshevization of the party thru one of the mediums—the shop nuclei organization.

Orange Leader May Lose Seat to Labor in Belfast Stronghold

BELFAST, March 26.— Premier Craig is liable to lose some of his majority in the northern parliament to the labor party which is contesting several seats in this city. As was predicted when the Free State treaty was signed and certain counties of Ulster separated from the rest of Ireland, the Belfast workers, hitherto very susceptible to religious bigotry, and easily incited against their catholic fellow workers have now turned on their real enemies, the capitalists.

Jerusalem College Closes When Arabs Strike on Balfour

JERUSALEM, March 26.— The men's training college here was closed down, and the Arab students have returned to their homes, following their strike against the earl of Balfour, who is visciting Jerusalem. Balfour came from England to open the Hebrew university. The Arabs struck as soon as he arrived. England holds a mandate over Palestine.

Five Communists Framed Up.

LECCE, Italy, March 26.—Seven fascisti militiamen were slightly wounded by the explosion of a bomb. Five Communists were arrested.

OPEN SHOP PRESS HITS AT WORKERS PARTY IN STRIKE

Enemy of Unionism and Communism

By WILLIAM SIMONS,

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 23.—(By Mail.)—This morning's Hartford Courant contains at attack upon the Communists, sent special to the Courant by a miserable rat who sends filth to this open shop paper. The dispatch sent yesterday to Hartford is headed: "Thread Strikers Ban Communists!"

The statement is made that the strikers' committee sent to the police station, asking for police protection against a Communist from the Polish Federation of the Workers Party, B. Lewanski from Boston, when they heard that he was coming together with the writer to the meeting arranged by the strikers, at which a Polish organizer from New York was to speak.

Incidentally, it was the first meeting at which a Polish speker appeared, sent by the United Textile Workers' Union of America. For two weeks no Polish speaker had been secured. When the strike committee heard that Comrade Lewanski was coming, they made sure that they obtained a speaker.

Capitalist Press Distortions.

Another statement in the capitalist paper was that "Simons attempted to start an argument with one man, but was quickly squelched by the officers and told to be on his way." The fact is that as Comrade Lewanski was giving out Tribyna Robotnicza, Communist Polish paper, outside of the hall, and telling the workers the Communist position, the reporter for the Willimantic Chronicle asked him his name.

Lewanski gave it, and not knowing his questioner, asked who he was. I replied that the reporter was from the Chronicle which was against the strike. That hireling protested, and the chief of police came to his aid, telling me to cut it out. I told him that the reporter had started it, and that ended the incident.

The Open Shop Courant.

The Hartford Courant, because it is a morning paper and has many pages, is relied upon even by workers for their news. About 400 copies are sold in Willimantic and helped to combat unionism in this mill hell hole.

Every Monday morning this scab paper devotes an entire page to the ads of firms operating on the "American" plan. Included are the Cheney Brothers (silks) of South Manchester, Conn., authorized by the legislature a short while ago to increase their capitalization to $20,000,000; Colt, which recently took a $3,000,000 order from Poland for shooting workers; the International Silver Co. of Meriden; Lockwood and Brainard Co., which prides itself on being "open shop printers since 1836."

An Enemy of the Workers.

At the head of the page, in heavy type, is the line: "Firms Operated on the 'Open Shop' Plan." On the opposite page (12) of the same issue of Monday, March 16, appear two articles against the working class.

One headline is, "Union Hold Gone in West Virginia Mines—Organized Labor Produced Only 1.6 Per Cent Coal in Southern Region," based on figures compiled by the statistician of the Kanawha coal operators' association. The other is a column article headed "Open Shop Aim is Co-Operation," by Willim H. Barr, President of the National Founders' Association.

The "American" Plan of Scab Wages.

It speaks of "organization morale" and the necessity of "emancipating employers and employes from the thralldom of unionism." He prates of the "American plan of free labor and free industryy," of its "necessity to the nation and its patriotic usefulness," and of the open shop carrying "the flag of industrial freedom to a tremendous victory."

There is also a cut of an addition to the Burnside school, under the inscription: "Open Shop Contractor Builds School Addition." This morning the entire list of open shop firms is repeated. It is this detestable labor organ of the open shoppers which is leading the fight against the Communists.

The Communist DAILY WORKER

The DAILY WORKER is the only paper that has pictured the battle now on, as a struggle between labor and capital which will continue until the workers establish a workers' and farmers' government and control the industries of the nation. The other papers simply give as much news as they feel compelled to give.

The Providence News made a splurge in the early days, but now gives little space to the strike. Its object was achieved when their paper got a place on the stands of the city.

The Waterbury Herald, former La Follette backer, takes a whack at the Communists as is its custom. The Willimantic Chronicle simply prints what it must, refraining carefully from attacking the company or exposing its profits.

But the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Party fearlessly combat the American Thread Co. They urge that the fight against the company be more determined.

LABOR UNION FAKERS OF SWEDEN REFUSE TO CALL GENERAL STRIKE

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 26.—The officials of the national federation of trades unions, who met here to consider what to do in regard to the nation-wide lockout which began last week in five important industries, have refused the demand of the rank and file, expressed by the Communist left wing group, that the officials declare a general strike.

The government, meanwhile, is trying to divide the workers by its mediation committee securing separate agreements for some trades, such as the lumber yard workers, cloak makers and coal distributors.

IRISH WORKERS AND PEASANTS DIE OF FAMINE

New York Gets Busy on Relief Work

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 26.—Word has reached here that deaths are occurring in the Irish famine. While the capitalist press denies that there is any famine (altho a few well-informed American papers must admit that the situation is "more serious than the fearful famine of 1881), while the Irish Free State denies that the situation is at all distressing, while Irish-American politicians declare that Ireland can get along without "alms"—while these well-fed people strut about, the Irish workers and peasants are starving and dying.

"Deaths from starvation have occurred and men set upon relief work in the shape of road making have been found too weak from underfeeding to handle the hammers for stone breaking." The relieving officer of a board of guardians reported to his board that "sons of the people in the district are too weak from hunger to give me the information I wanted."

Hungry and Cold.

Children are going about hungry and cold. Their clothing is torn. Their homes are cold, for the peat could not be dried owing to the continued rains. And coal cannot be bought by the poor Irish workers and peasants, since it is totally beyond their means.

The only cure that the London Times offers is the "whole sale transfer of the population." Even if this were feasible what are the workers and peasants to do at the present time? And why should this transfer take place if there is no famine?

The situation is so serious that the American workers must act at once. In 1921 and 1922 they generously responded to the call of the Russian workers and peasants for aid during their fearful famine. In 1923 and 1924, they aided the starving workers in the Ruhr. They will not forget their struggling brothers and sisters in Ireland.

Do not delay! Canvass the shops, trade unions and fraternal organizations. Collect funds. Help! Send contributions to the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, New York Division, Room 32, 108 East 14th St., N. Y. City.

Russian Official Tells How Sinclair Broke Oil Contract

MOSCOW, March 26.—Comrade Piatakoff, chairman of the court concessions committee, explained in a press interview relating to the forfeiture of Sinclair's oil concession that in spite of innumerable warnings, the Sinclair company did not carry out the conditions of the concession contract, nor did they start exploration in the area covered by this contract.

In fact, Comrade Piatakoff remarked, it became clear to the Soviet government as early as at the beginning of last year that Mr. Sinclair was powerless to carry out some of the obligations undertaken by the company, which had apparently over-estimated their influence in the political world and which failed to secure any support from the American administration.

In May, 1924, a further and final delay of another six months was granted to the Sinclair company for the sake of allowing them to make good the defaults in the execution of the contract. However, this proved useless again.

Volunteers Needed

One hundred volunteers needed to be at the Ashland Auditorium at one o'clock Sunday, to prepare for the International Unity Demonstration to be given that afternoon under the auspices of the International Workers' Aid.

Those who are to take part in the Paris Commune pageant are asked to come to the auditorium at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon.

Birth Control Offers No Short Cut to the Emancipation of Labor

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, there is a gathering of no doubt well-meaning people assembled in New York City under the high-sounding title of the International Neo-Malthusian and Birth Control Conference. It is their belief that if birth control information could be generally distributed then many of the world's ills would disappear. It is urged as a cure for wars, advanced as an escape from economic slavery, and lifted to the pinnacle of "the most important social movement of modern times." This is of course an outgrowth of the enthusiasm of the fanatic who misjudges the economic forces at work within the social system under which he lives.

Recently much space was given to the announcement of scientists that they had discovered a serum which inoculates against childbirth. A candidate was sought as the first human being on whom the anti-toxin could be used. Six young women immediately volunteered. Extracts from their letters were made public by Dr. James F. Cooper, medical director of the clinical research department of the American Birth Control League. Here are some of them:

"Can't you help me? MY CIRCUMSTANCES ARE MEAGER and I am unable to pay a large fee for anything like this. I have two living children."

"I am a young mother of 24 years and have four children. At the rate I am going I shall have at least eight children—and WE CAN'T AFFORD THEM."

"If the serum treatment is unsuccessful, you will have to see to it that I won't have to go thru any further child-births, due to the fact that my present circumstances, physical and FINANCIAL, will not permit me to become a mother again."

Dr. Cooper declares that last year 50,000 letters were received from women seeking birth control information. No doubt in the great majority of these cases, as revealed in the extracts above, the necessity advanced grew out of economic conditions. "Financial circumstance" is the whip that drives most mothers to desire limitation of childbirth. But it is the worst kind of a fallacy to believe that the problems of the working class can be solved thru cutting down the size of families.

Capitalism needs wage slaves. It will pay in wages what it needs to get them. And those wages will be no more than is demanded to meet the needs of the present generation of workers and provide for another generation to follow. Birth control will never free the workers from slavery under capitalism.

Wars, also, will be fought just as long as there are rival groups of imperialist nations. Neither birth control propaganda, nor the carrying out of its precepts, will stop soldiers from being forced into the ranks to fight for their respective ruling classes. When the great capitalists need workers to go out on the battlefields they will get them.

If capitalists fail, however, to get workers for their factories, or soldiers for their armies, it will not be because the mothers of the working class control childbirth, but because the workers refuse longer to toil under the capitalist master's whip; because they refuse to fight in capitalist wars.

To teach workers, especially working class women, that birth control offers an escape from wage slavery and that it will abolish wars, is merely blinding them to the necessities of the real struggle that confronts the whole working class. Salvation for the working class, from all the evils that now torment it, can only come thru the abolition of the present capitalist system. That can only be realized thru the overthrow of the capitalist state; thru the creation in its stead of the Soviet Power, that leads the way to the Communist society. It is only when the workers keep their eyes definitely on the goal toward which they must strive, that they will make most rapid progress. Birth control advocates, thru their propaganda, reveal some of the evils that prevail under capitalism. But it comes to very few of them to understand clearly the problems of labor and to help effectively in their solution.

Britain Angry When Egypt Deals Direct with Geneva League

GENEVA, March 26.—The Egyptian ministry of foreign affairs has gone over the head of the British government and sent a note directly to the league of nations here. The communication informed Geneva that King Faud ratified the customs formalities document drawn up by the world powers.

Although the United States claims to take no part in league of nations affairs, America took part in and ratified the agreement of international customs rules.

British imperialism is angered, it is reported, because Egypt did not first consult England on the note to the league. "Egypt is trying to run her own affairs," was the horrified comment of English representatives.

Sinclair to Leave on Private Car As Teapot Trial Ends

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Mrch 26.—Owen J. Roberts, special Coolidge oil counsel reiterated the charges in the government's bill of complaint that the lease was illegal and consummated as a result of fraud and conspiracy between government officers and a promoter of the Mammoth Oil company.

He declared also there was fraudulent use of quit claim deeds in obtaining the lease, naming in this connection John C. Shaffer, Denver and Chicago newspaper publisher.

The hearing was brought to a close. Sinclair will leave soon with his legal staff in his private car, "Sinco."

Cal After Foreign Debts.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Despite the evasiveness of France's attitude and the silence of Italy and Belgium regarding the $7,000,000,000 they collectively owe the United States, definite indications were forthcoming here today that the administration is planning to remind these countries again that this government desires to negotiate some funding arrangements.

The problem presented by these unfunded debts has been discussed in several conferences within the last 48 hours by Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Red Flag Flies on D. of J

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—The red flag seen flying over the department of justice building here startled the government officials until it was learned that the flag was not a Soviet plot, but an auctioneers' flag. The building which is rented by the government on a long term lease is being sold.

Carpenter Killed at Crossing

LITCHFIELD, Ill., March 26.—Charles Overstreet, 42, carpenter of Sorento was found near the C. B. & O. tracks by section workers today, fatally injured, his skull fractured and both legs severed. He had lain beside the track for six hours before found.

King's Lackey Ill.

LONDON, March 26.—Ramsay MacDonald, premier during the labor government of Great Britain, is slightly ill from influenza. He will not be able to attend sessions of the House of Commons for several days, it was said.

TEXTILE WORKERS RALLY TO UNITED FRONT STRUGGLE

Authority and Fakers Oppose Communists

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 26.—A noon mill gate rally was held by the united front committee, Albert Weisbord of the Workers Party, [illegible] Boston, being the speaker. In the evening at a full committee meeting of the united front textile committee it was planned to carry on these noon rallies the next week.

It should be understood that the commissioner of public safety has steadily refused to give permits for us to speak, although it is his duty to do so. He has even told Fred Beal, a committeeman, to get out of his office. This outrageous act on the part of this peanut politician has only aroused the workers on the committee all the more and the noon rallies are being held in spite of him.

Second Lawrence Meeting.

The next rally was held Monday noon, March 23, with Albert Weisbord as the speaker, before the gates of the American Woolen Co. The police were still conspicuous by their absence and at this meeting it was announced that a mass meeting for the American Woolen Co. workers was being called for Tuesday evening, March 24.

The textile workers have always listened very attentively to Communist speakers. The long periods of unemployment have evidently sapped their last resources and left them weakened for the fight. But the activities of the Communists and militants have aroused them and instilled a fighting spirit into them. Perhaps Lawrence shall yet witness another 1912.

MacMahon Praised by Capitalists.

The next step is clear. Already MacMahon, president of the United Textile Workers' Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor has attacked the Communists and is receiving full notice by the capitalist sheets. Already the Workers (Communist) Party is recognized as the sole leader initiating these moves in defense of the workers.

London Clinics for Birth Control Show Issue Their Reports

NEW YORK, March 26.— Among the reports from foreign countries presented to the Sixth International Birth Control conference which opened at the Hotel McAlpin today, the most interesting were those which gave the actual working of birth control in those countries where clinics for the purpose have been established. One of these reports was from the clinic established by Dr. Marie Stopes in London. This clinic opened its doors on March 17, 1921. It is the oldest birth control clinic in any English-speaking country.

The report covered the statistics for five thousand cases—a number which was completed late in 1924. Of these cases, 4,834 came to the clinic for information to prevent the birth of children on account of disease or extremely adverse conditions or for the spacing out of the family. The remaining 166 came for information which would enable the mothers to have children and it was reported that quite a number of these cases had attained their desire, and that in two cases twins had been born to women who had previously been sterile.

The Little Fish May Not Like It, But the Big Fish Are Hungry

RICHMOND, Va., March 26.— Minority stockholders in the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, who are endeavoring to prevent the merger of the road with a number of others under the direction of the Van Sweringen Brothers, received a setback today when Judge William A. Moncure, in chancery court, denied their petition for an injunction to prevent a stockholders meeting scheduled here for March 30.

Rockford Politician Sues After Exposure

ROCKFORD, Ill., March 26.— The publishers of the Rockford Republic have been made defendants in a $1,000,000 libel suit brought by Fred T. Peterson, candidate for mayor, following charges made by the Republic against him that he attempted to "shake down" the Tolmie Bros. Construction company, builders of the national guard barracks at Camp Grant.

Coca Cola Prince Hit.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 26.—Mrs. Clyde Byfield today was granted a new trial by the Georgia supreme court in her suit for $100,000 against Walter Candler, son of the Coca Cola king, for an alleged attack on board the steamship Berengaria.

Three Die In Wreck

MALAGA, Spain.—Three persons were killed here and several seriously injured in the wreck of a Suburban train today.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

COMPANY UNIONS, STOCK SELLING AND Y. M. C. A. USED TO KEEP MEAT PACKERS' SLAVES CONTENT

By TOM MATTHEWS

(Member Amal. Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen.)

The strike of 1921-1922 taught the packers the virtues of class-collaboration. Before that struggle the motto of the meat trust was "treat 'em rough." But not now.

The packer has learned that a little "bunk" and "soft soap" go a long way in keeping a bunch of confused wage slaves unorganized and apparently contented. To the police and stool-pigeons have been added the company union, the Y. M. C. A., employees' insurance, stock-selling, employee's club rooms, and similar schemes of class-collaboration without any trade or industrial unions to do the "collaborating."

Some Gems of the Packers' Press.

A few random excerpts from recent issues of the "Armour Oval, Published by and for Armour Employes," will give some idea of the sweep of these new (to the packers) schemes of enslavement. (The Oval is the company's "bunk-sheet.")

"The difference between a pay check and a dividend check lies in the fact that you work for the pay check." —"Do not sell your stock. Let dividends increase your income."

"With the approach of spring and warm weather, the Y. M. C. A. plant service committee expects to close its activities for the winter season of 1924-1925 with an entertainment for Armour employes and their families to be held . . . "

A Leather Medal for This.

From company union minutes: "Employe representative James ——, of the production division, requested that the lighting switches for the icing dock be moved from the beef loading dock to a more convenient location. He explained that much time was wasted by men going back and forth to turn the light on and off—and that considerable power was wasted because the lights were often burning in the day time." (!)

"The most certain sign of wisdom is a continual cheerfulness. Armour stockholders are continually cheerful."

A "Good Thing" All Right.

"Don't forget that the employes' market is a good thing for the employes." (This is a scheme for wishing unsalable meats onto the slaves at wholesale prices or better.)

"No man ever retired on the money he spent; but money spent for Armour stock brings an income after you have retired."

"In big business like that of the Armour organization, of which we are units, earning power reaps its own reward in larger pay checks and steady promotion to the position of greater responsibility."

The effectiveness of such poison as the samples quoted above is strikingly exhibited in the fact that no insignificant number of workers who were active and even prominent in the strike of 1921-22 are now delegates and officers in the company unions.

"Decreased Labor Turnover."

In so-called prosperous times the young workers in the packing-houses often make a practice of the "weekly turnover." By that, is meant going to work on Monday or Tuesday, quitting on Saturday, drawing pay Monday morning, and taking a job in the same or another plant on the following day.

The packer has learned that this "labor turnover" means an independent spirit in the workmen and less profits. Consequently, the meat barons are showing a new cunning when they apply their class-co-operation schemes under present unemployment conditions when workers are only too anxious to hang onto any jobs to be had.

Combatting Unionism.

Along with this, the packers have developed a very clever policy in combatting any danger of re-organization of the packing-house workers. True, the stool-pigeons are still on the payroll, but a different psychology is used in dealing with the workers.

The worker is now told that the "company is looking out for your interests. We will not allow our men to be intimidated by any outside group, be it a labor union or any other organization."

The militant who slips into a packing plant to advocate unionism is told to "quit intimidating the men or get out." He is fired not for unionism, presumably, but for "intimidation," a new phrase which the packer is using very effectively.

That "Voluntary" Increase.

In the summer of 1922 the packers astounded their workers by announcing a wage increase of five cents an hour, raising the wage-rate of unskilled labor from 37½ to 42½ cents an hour.

Regardless of what packer propaganda may say, the fact remains that this raise was in reality won in the strike of 1921-22. The packer wisely foresaw the coming period of unemployment, and reasoned that a slight wage increase making up only part of the previous cuts would prevent reorganization of the packing-house workers for some time to come. This five-cent raise was nothing more nor less than a bribe to keep the men from re-organizing.

Future articles will deal with organization problems of the packing-house workers. Workers in other food trades, such as hotels and restaurants, canning plants, biscuit factories, bakeries, etc., should write of their experiences for the T. U. E. L. page.

PROGRESSIVE STEEL WORKERS AFTER TIGHE

Demand Organization Be Effective

By WALLACE T. METCALFE

WARREN, Ohio—If every steel and iron worker, organised and unorganised, would read the history of the great steel strike written by William Z. Foster they would understand the problems confronting the membership in the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. This book is entitled The Great Steel Strike and Its Lessons and can be secured by writing to the DAILY WORKER.

On March 31, 1918, shortly before the general organizing campaign amongst the steel and iron workers started the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. had a general treasury balance of $137,879.23 and on March 31st, 1920 shortly after the strike ended, it had a balance of $344,024.58, which makes a profit of some $206,145.35 made out of the big strike. Perhaps nothing can show better the feeble efforts made by the officialdom of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. to win the strike.

Officials Deserted the Strike

The history of this great strike records the fact that at no time was the officialdom of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. whole-heartedly engaged in the struggle. The desertion of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. of the strike when in its critical stage defeated the organization of the steel and iron workers and threw them back into their present unorganised state.

This international union was the pivot of the organizational structure and when it withdrew its support the entire structure collapsed. This is the background of the great strike in so far as the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. is concerned. During the great steel strike the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. enrolled 70,026 members during the campaign which are considered conservative figures yet the outstanding fact is that today this international union has a total membership of around 11,000. It has in its general strike fund less than $60,000 yet it made a profit of over $206,145.35 on the great strike.

When the great steel strike came to an end Wm. Z. Foster as secretary-treasurer of the national committee left in the treasury about $130,000, the remains of the strike fund. Up until June 20th, 1923, no real work worth mentioning of education or organization was carried on. Yet about $55,000 was gotten rid of. Finally, on June 20th, 1923, with a great blare of trumpets, the A. F. of L. announced that with the remaining $75,000 the steel workers would be organized.

The campaign was conducted under the control of M. F. Tighe, president of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. and Wm. Hannon, executive board member of the Int. Ass'n. of Machinists. Neither the A. F. of L. nor the Internationals put any organizers in the field. They let the full burden of the last campaign fall upon the fund left to them from the great steel strike. The organizing staff was loaded up with fossils. They received $250.00 per month, with $7.00 per day expenses, or in other words $460.00 per month for full time organizers.

After a years work the last campaign made by M. F. Tighe and Wm. Hannon resulted in the expenditure of the $75,000 and made the inglorious record of organizing 200 steel workers scattered around in Cleveland, Chicago, Bethlehem and Buffalo.

A New Deal Due

The part played by the officialdom of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. during the great strike and its part during the last fiasco stamp them as incompetent and lacking the ability to perform the gigantic task of organizing the steel and iron industry. A militant rank and file movement has been coming to the front and making pressing demands upon the officialdom, this movement led by sincere and able progressives has made itself a powerful factor in the union and during the recent elections in the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. the progressive ticket served notice upon the reactionary officialdom that a new day is dawning.

The union in order to survive must learn from its past struggles and must not be cajoled by its officialdom into repeating past errors. The progressives realize that the skilled worker is rapidly becoming a thing of the past and that the future of their union depends upon the complete organization of all workers engaged in the steel and iron industry and their amalgamation with other workers engaged in associated industries.

The progressives realize that the gigantic task confronting them demands courage and a clear understanding of the role played by their officialdom during the great steel strike and the part they took in the 1923-24 campaign, which resulted in the most stupendous blunder recorded in the history of the American labor movement. Think of it, steel and iron workers! When 25 organizers organize 200 workers at a cost of $75,000! What greater indictment is needed?

Jack McKeown—Progressive Candidate

John McKeown, president of the progressive Liberty Lodge, Warren, O. is the candidate of the progressives for the office of vice-president of the sheet and tin division. McKeown is receiving the endorsement of the progressive lodges in whose cause he has struggled for years to bring the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. out of its present state of chaos. McKeown is a fearless and able champion of the workers and is considered by the progressives the most capable candidate ruinning for this office.

William J. White, 238 E. Kline St., Girard, Ohio, invites all steel and iron workers interested in the progressive movement to write to him for further information on the struggle now going on to save the last resemblance of organization amongst the steel and iron workers.

Members of A. A. of I. S. & T. W. lodges should instruct their delegates to support the progressive program. They should communicate at once with White and pledge their support. Unorganized workers communicate with White and pledge your support to the progressive cause. With your assistance the foundation for a mighty union of iron and steel workers can be laid at the coming convention of the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. This is your fight.—Engage in it!

LUMBER TRUST PROTECTS ANTI-UNION LYNCHERS

Court Refuses Dacus' Suit for Redress

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 26.—To the long list of crimes committed in the name of the law and of white supremacy against Sol Dacus, a Negro labor leader in Louisiana, another has just been added by the United States federal court here. On grounds which make no pretense of adequacy, Dacus has been denied redress against a group of men who have given him the usual treatment accorded Negro labor organizers in the south.

The story of the Dacus case goes back to November 21, 1919, when Dacus, who was then very active in organizing labor unions among the Negro workers in Bogalusa, joined with white labor leaders in a parade.

Someone raised the cry of "social equality." "Leading citizens" gathered a mob, searched out Dacus, burned his house and ran him out of town, in spite of the defense put up for him by the white union leaders, three of whom lost their lives.

In filing suit for damages, Dacus named as defendant the Great Southern Lumber company, a gigantic trust which holds in the Gulf states something of the power that the steel trust holds over the whole country. It is the Great Southern Lumber company that makes and unmakes legislatures, that appoints governors, that controls the lives and fortune of the workers in these states. Sol Dacus knew, it seems, where lay the blame for mob action against the Negro leaders.

Dacus, sueing the Great Southern Lumber company for $102,000 brought out in court the fact that he had in secret attended a meeting of the white Loyalty League, an association of business men of the city of Bogalusa, and had heard them discuss in detail plans for keeping the laborers in subjection.

The defense offeed, and the ground on which Dacus lost his suit, was that what Dacus had mistaken for a mob was really a group of "officers of the law with a warrant for his arrest." Just what grounds participation in a parade with white labor leaders could give for arrest or how officers of the law, behaving as such, could possibly have been mistaken for a mob or why these "officers of the law" should have thought it part of their duty to burn down the home of the man they were trying to bring to court, are small matters that the federal court did not trouble to explain.

The complete strength of the party must be mobilized at this affair as a fitting answer to the Abramovich attack.

BETHLEHEM, PA., PROFIT-MAKING PARADISE, IS HELL ON EARTH FOR SLAVES OF STEEL TRUST

Bethlehem, not the one in the "Holy Land," but the one in the cossack ruled state of Pennsylvania, is one of the world's largest producers of structural steel. The Bethlehem Steel shops extend over a distance of several miles long and during the war employed more than thirty seven thousand men. At present this number is cut to about ten or eleven thousand. Side by side with the huge and gruesome steel mills there are scattered large textile mills and cigar factories. Here women and children are mainly employed while their husbands and fathers slave in the steel mills.

Starvation Wages.

Bethlehem is known as a starvation wage city. Laborers are being paid by the steel magnate as low a wage as 30 cents an hour. Even experienced workers, who for years have been employed in the steel mills, are unable to make more than $4.50 a day, and only some of the men, those "working tonnage," such as the loaders, are able to make more than $5 a day. The low wage scale applies not only to the numerous recently imported Mexicans, or Hungarians who compose the bulk of the working force, but to the native workers as well. Rumors have it that for some reason or another the native workers are not favored very much by the company and in many cases are being treated worse than "foreigners." In some factories wages are still lower and in many cases do not exceed a dollar a day. This miserable wage is being, for example, paid to girls in some of the shirt factories, located in this city. The low wage scale existing in this paradise of Schwab has encouraged manufacturers of other cities to move their factories here.

Inhuman Long Hours.

During the war the steel barons claimed that the two shift system was imperative because of the then alleged labor shortage. Less than a third of the working force is employed at this time. Yet, the two-shift system is still kept in most of the departments, the men being compelled to labor 12 hours a day, seven days a week. Most of the men "voluntarily choose" the 12-hour day, being otherwise unable to make ends meet on the meagre wages paid by the company. The 12-hour day is the best means of killing the thinking capacity of almost anyone. The company knows this very well and will not shorten the hours unless compelled to do so by the awakening slaves themselves.

Worse Than Slavery.

The gruesome sight of the factories, the antiquated, filthy shanties, called homes, the small signs attached to the lamp or telephone posts bearing the laconic inscriptions such as "speeders arrested," "obey the law"—all this speaks of misery, starvation and cossack rule. "It is worse than slavery" is the usual remark one hears from the workers when assured that no company spy is around. As a rule no labor meetings of any kind are permitted, even when arranged by a purely fraternal or benefit society. So browbeaten and intimidated are the workers that no one dares even to murmur about the horrible conditions under which he lives, lest he will be overheard by a company stool pigeon. The shops are combed with these company spies who are prompt in reporting every little move made by the workers. Any little "offense" quickly meets with a proper punishment—transfer to a lower-paid and more dangerous job or complete discharge. One newspaper stand ventured to order a bundle of the DAILY WORKER for which it found a demand. It did not take very long before the matter was reported to the company, and the paper was immediately ordered stopped.

Attached to Land Like Slaves.

Most of the workers employed in the Bethlehem Steel shops are burdened with large families—the single men and those with small families as a rule do not stay for any considerable length of time in this paradise of Schwab. Poverty, family ties compels the others to stick to their jobs no matter how hard this may be. Most of these men are in addition tied up with the little property they own which they were at one time or another compelled to acquire from the company agents "on the installment plan." Company agents boast that at least eight per cent of the men are thus tied up and compelled to remain at their jobs or lose the little property for which they spent their last pennies.

Recently the company discovered a new way of enslaving their workers still further. "The men are forced "into partnership with Mr. Schwab" by being compelled to buy company stocks at $100 apiece, also on the installment plan. The men claim that the same stocks can be secured by them from any broker at $47-48. Refusal to buy stocks from the company means blacklist, transfer to a lower and far dangerous job or complete discharge.

Prosperity for Whom?

As is usually the case in towns of low wages and despotic rule so it is in this steel center that the church and bootleggers prosper. Churches of all the fifty-seven varieties grow fatter and fatter on the flecks of the backward masses. The work of the preachers is usually being followed up by the bootleggers who, too, prosper at the expense of the same hard working steel slaves.

At the same time comes the announcement in the press that Mr. Schwab, the steel king, recently returned from a European trip and is ready to invest another $75,000,000 for modern improvements in several of his plants in the Eastern part of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

A Ray of Hope.

Amidst his condition of slavery and barbarism the Communists, few as they are in this Schwab controlled city, are the only ones here who realize the true conditions in which the workers find themselves and are the only ones trying to overcome unheard of difficulties in order to spread among their fellow workers the message of Communism and of revolt against the existing system. Their efforts are bound to bear fruit in the not distant future.

TWO HUNDRED WEAVERS WIN STRIKE AGAINST SPEED UP SYSTEM

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I.—Strike of two hundred weavers and loomfixers of the Klotz Throwing company ends as the management abandons its three-shift system without lunch time. The two-shift system, with regular lunch hours, is resumed.

Local 1296 Endorses Progressive Program and Its Candidates

OLD FORGE, Pa., Mar. 26.—United Mine Workers Local 1296 has unanimously endorsed the program and the candidates of the progressive miners' committee in District 1.

This action is significant in view of the fact that the local press attacked the progressive program as being "indelibly stamped with Communism."

The membership discussed the program thoroughly and agreed to support the candidates running on this program.

The election campaign for district president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer is in full swing in the anthracite region and the membership is being smothered with an avalanche of glib election speeches that glitter with promises and make the unwary believe that the politicians are suddenly becoming angels and are ready to wipe out all the wrongs they committed during the long history of their betrayals.

Thru all this hurricane of speeches not a single constructive proposition is being advanced to better the conditions of the miners. The progressive alone have a prgoram that holds out hope to the miners of District 1.

Protest Meeting for Sacco - Vanzetti in Thayer's Hometown

By DAVID JOHANSSON.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

WORCESTER, Mass., March 26.—The workers of Worcester are waking up. On Sunday, March 29, at 3 p. m., a monster protest meeting will take place at A. O. H. Hall, Trumbull street, demanding the release of Sacco and Vanzetti. Worcester is the hometown of the infamous Judge Webster Thayer, a servile tool of the capitalist class. There will be speakers in English and Italian. Comrade Alfred Weisboard from Boston will speak in English. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Workers Party, Young Workers League, Bakers and Confectionary Workers' Union, Independent Workman Circle, International Order of Good Templars, Lithuanian Women's Progressive Alliance, Lithuanian Literary Workers' Association, Finnish Co-operative Society and Finnish Building Association.

Hoover and Weeks to Aid Electrical Trust Get Shoals

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Presi- Coolidge has determined upon a commission of six members to investigate Muscle Shoals and report recommendations for its disposal to congress in December, it was learned at the White House today.

Definite announcement of the commission's personnel is expected shortly.

Secretaries Hoover and Weeks, two engineers and two men representing "agricultural interests" will compose the commission, it was said. Muscle Shoals will be turned over the electrical trust, it is planned.

democratic party together with its president of the reich, its ministers, members of parliament, police chiefs, etc., in the service of a profiteer.

But the lawsuit against Barmat is not only a judgement on Ebert and Bauer, Heilmann and Richter, Troelstra and Huysmans. This lawsuit shows you, working men and women, where the policy of the social democratic leaders, the policy of coalition and class truce with the bourgeisie leads to.

The same social democratic leaders who were the bloodhounds of the German revolution, who mowed down thousands and thousands of German workers and drowned the German revolution in a sea of blood are now publicly defending the capitalist interests of a large profiteering concern.

Ebert Boasted of Treachery

The same Ebert who boasted in Magdeburg of having strangled the first heroic fight of the German workers during the war, the German munition workers' strike, stands now exposed as an agent of a capitalist profiteer! This is what democracy under whose banner you have been misled many years leads to.

Social democratic workers of Germany!

Into what have your leaders, your Ebert and Bauer, Heilmann and Weis converted August Bebel's glorious party? In their hands proletarian honor became an object of barter, and socialism a source for personal enrichment and a jumpting off ground for capitalist profiteers.

The Communist International has never tired of telling you:

The social democratic leaders are the paid agents of capitalism.

You were in doubt, you would not believe it. How is it now? Were we justified in our accusations against them or not? Of course we were, the social democratic leaders are paid agents of capitalism. They are the deadly enemies of the working class, there is not a vestige of socialist spirit in them. It has gone under in the morass of capitalist corruption which is the substance of their democracy and parliamentarism.

Working men and women! The social democratic leaders are hopelessly entangled in the snares of the bourgeoisie. There is no longer any way out for them. The process of decay within bourgeois society, which is coming so vividly to light in the present German corruption affairs, has testified to their own corruption and downfall.

But For You There Is A Way Out!

Come out into the fight against the coalition policy and for the revolutionary proletarian united front. Make common cause in industrial enterprises and trade unions with your Communist and non-party fellow-workers.

Purge the labor movement of corruption and treachery!

Bear in mind that these are the same leaders who are the most enemies of trade union unity, who are always ready to betray and sabotage working class unity, just as they are always ready to serve unreservedly the interests of the capitalists.

Destroy the enemies of working class unity!

Open your eyes to the deceit of capitalist democracy!

SOVIETS SHOULD BE RECOGNIZED SAYS EMPLOYER

Industry and Farms Are Thriving, Is Report

WORCESTER, Mass., March 26—James Massel, of the Norton Manufacturing Co., in an address here, told business men of his recent trip to Russia.

"Russia should be recognised by the United States," Massel stated. "I saw many new peasant houses, cultivated fields, healthy and well dressed peasants, and unusual industry and activity in Moscow.

"I made several trips to Leningrad, Charkoff, Rostoff and Odessa, and other centers, and I make the following statement without any qualifications whatever, that in my opinion the railroad accommodations were the best I have had in any country, and I have traveled in nearly every country of the world."

Mr. Massel said that during his stay in Russia he came and went freely as he pleased and was unmolested by anyone.

"Regarding industry," Massel said "There is considerable activity at the present time in the manufacture of machinery, particularly agricultural machinery, locomotives, pumps, generators and industrial trucks.

"As regards import of machinery the policy is to buy only goods on the basis of resources that are available for meeting payments when due. So far as I have been able to determine, all payments have been made promptly when due, and government banks will not endorse notes unless they are satisfied that such notes can be paid."

About 65 representatives of the factories of the city were present.

Lanzutsky States His Position

with the self-evident exception of my fraction comrades. (Voice: and Dombal).

"I am prosecuted for a speech delivered at a meeting arranged by the officials of a local railroad workers' union in Przempl on Nov. 11, 1923.

"I was speaking almost immediately after the affair of Nov. 6, when an avalanche of strikes covered the whole country. The government of Mr. Wites proclaimed a regular lynch law against the strikers. In answer to this, the Central Trade Union Commission called a general strike. That strike, really general as you know, was liquidated very quickly, for the affair at Cracow startled everyone in the country beginning with the right groups and ending with the left.

"Being in Przempl shortly after this I came to the aforementioned meeting of railroad workers, and thought it proper to speak on this matter to tell the assembled workers of the result of these struggles, to consider with them the mistakes in order that the working class should not make the same blunders in the future. I pointed out that when the capital of the whole country marches in battle formation and attacks with a homogeneous front, the working class cannot counter attack with individual groups, but must enter the battle with a united homogeneous front, with all industrial and transport workers in all parts of the country. Then the chances of victory would be absolutely on the side of the working masses. That is the way I discussed things at the meeting. I also mentioned something else and on this my indictment is based.

"I am accused of capital treason of Article 58 Austrian criminal code, which foresees the penalty of death. This indictment was prepared on a very curious basis, namely this: while speaking I attacked all groups of compromisers and quoted a part of an article published originally in Droga (The Way), a belvedere organ, and written by Mr. Holowko, alderman of the city of Warsaw and member of the Polish Socialist party. This very characteristic article, entitled "The Fear of Power," reads in part as follows:

"Never, never yet was the time for seizing the power of government so opportune as now. The left should desire it more now than ever before... The possessing class should really be forced to pay taxes... The governing power now should be representative of those classes in whose interest it is to keep the mark in place, to lower the cost of living, to fill the treasury; this is desired by the whole working class world in Poland. If we want life not to pass over our heads, we must get rid of the fear of power, we must desire it with our whole soul and use all means to achieve it."

Communists Will Seize Power

"And finally a warning: 'And who knows whether our aversion to power will not prolong our present fatal state to an end that will be a catastrophe. We forget that not all the left parties in Poland are afraid of power; there is one that is ready to assume it any moment, having in readiness already prepared methods and patterns of governing. Everyone knows that I have the Communists in mind; and, what is worse, looking at Russia we cannot deny that they know how to rule. We must admit that they are fine administrators and psychologists. Everyone sees that political and economical conditions in Russia are steadily improving. Who assumes power under difficult conditions, he wins.'

Surrounded by Police

"For the second time I quoted here in the diet the same article that I cited at the railroad workers' meeting in Przempl. This quotation, supported by witnesses of course is the basis of my indictment! I do not in the least intend to defend myself here and I know that ultimately this question will not be settled by the diet. I see this very clearly. I know that this is class vengeance pure and simple. I have no illusions and know perfectly how much worse we Communists will be persecuted.

"I know perfectly that my immunity will be waived in favor of the courts. All the details are clear to me: the diet building is surrounded by police agents since Tuesday (Voice: They are waiting!) Exactly, they are waiting! I understand that you gentlemen fighting us think, that with the aid of repression and force you will be able to strangle the Communist movement in Poland. (Voice on the right: That's impudence. Vice-chairman Osieki rings). You say that this is impudence: In reply I will say that these thousands of workers and peasants of all nationalities in Poland; Poles, Ukrainians, White Russians, Jews, Germans, who for years are rotting without investigation in jails (Tumult) will yet give you the answer to what you call impudence.

"When for the first time in 1921 I spoke in this chamber as a Communists on the question of amnesty for political prisoners, I said in concluding my speech: Communism will defeat you, and today I repeat with all emphasis: The Communist idea is growing stronger and stronger. You have nothing to oppose this great idea. You cannot remove all the sores resulting from the capitalist system. You cannot jail hunger, you cannot jail unemployment, you cannot satisfy the needs of all the workers of Poland.

"You cannot do this and that will be your burial pit. I am speaking here today probably for the last time. I am not deceiving myself on this point and therefore I repeat with the same might, with the same force, that Communism will defeat you and in the meantime (further words lost in noise) I cry Long Live Communism! (Yells, banging on desks, Voice: Impudence! Scandal!)

Croatian Deputy Dies in Fight on Pachitch Terror

VIENNA, Austria, March 26.—The protest of the Croatian deputies against the throwing out of sixty of their number, in addition to two Macedonians, and ten Slovenes from the Jugo-Savia parliament will again be discussed before that body.

During the discussion of the expulsions from the Jugo-Slav parliaments of the Croats and Slovenes by the Serbs, Deputy Vujitch showed that the Serbs have arranged the election districts so that the Croatian peasants have one deputy for every 20,000 electors, as compared to one Serb deputy for every 4,000 electors.

Another Croatian peasant party delegate has been mysteriously killed. Deputy Marinkovitch was mortally wounded when he either fell or was thrown out of a hotél window.

The Croatian peasants' party was defeated in the recent Jugo-Slav election only by the terrorist tactics of the fascist-Serb premier, Pachitch.

Kahn Would Exploit Moroccans

PARIS, March 26.—Otto H. Kahn, American capitalist, expressed a desire to invest capital in French Morocco, in an article printed in a French paper here. Kahn hinted that American bankers desirous of exploiting the Moroccan peoples, as a way of settling the French war debt, occasioned his visit to the colonial possession.

Death Claims 6th Firetrap Victim

NEW YORK, March 26.—A sixth victim of the tenement blaze which destroyed the firetrap at 320 East 47 St., was claimed by death when Dorothy Otte, six years old, died of her burns in Bellevue Hospital. Dorothy's mother and sister were burned to death in the blaze.

BRITISH FIRMS GIVE JOBS TO GERMAN YARDS

Dawes Plan Hammered Down Wage Scale

(By the Federated Press.)

LONDON—British labor is flicked with the whip of foreign competition just when the leaders of the largest unions are working for a united front in the struggle for higher wages. A contract for building five 10,000 ton cargo boats goes to a German concern on the ground that the work can be done more cheaply in Hamburg. Many British shipyard workers are out of a job and the anti-union forces find the contract a made-to-order argument for reducing wages and abolishing trade union conditions.

The ability of the German firm to underbid British yards by from $290,000 to $480,000 per boat is still a mystery. There is evidence of collusion on the part of the British employers who are bent on undermining the wage movement and substituting a downward one. Secretary John Hill of the Boilermakers' Union points out that the winning German bid was considerably above the normal British price per ton and that the lowest British bid was inexcusably high. Hill says, "It is all part of some capitalist design which is now being applied not only to shipbuilding but to shipping."

International Situation.

Foreign competition underlies the deadlock in the British metal trades negotiations. The employers' federation refuses to discuss wage increases unless the Amalgamated Union agrees to consider lowering the standard of working conditions. Among the points the employers want considered are the lower wages and longer week of competing countries, ability of continental countries to undersell owing to the depreciation of their currencies, abnormal credits given to foreign competitors in their efforts to capture world markets, engineering imports increasing and exports decreasing in value per ton, great unemployment in the metal trades.

The Bosses Threaten.

Cheap foreign competition is also the bugbear of the British miners in their attempt to win a bare subsistence wage. The average cost price of hard coal is $2.60 in Germany compared with $2.83 in England, the wage cost amounting to 42 per cent of the price in Germany and 65 per cent in England. German mine workers put in 8 to 11 hours a day compared with a 7-hour day in British mines. Lord Rothermere, head of the capitalist press combine, has given the miners an ultimatum about as follows: "If you don't stop your talk about getting decent conditions we'll get our coal from Germany and then where will you miners be?"

Final decision on the miners' program awaits the fate of a bill sponsored by their representatives in parliament to amend the coal mines' minimum wage act. The miner officials are meeting the executives of the other big unions in an attempt at common action.

New York Comrades Welcome Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra

By EDWARD SWARTZ

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 26.—An audience of over 2,500 greeted the initial concert of the Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra in New York City. From the very beginning when the orchestra soared forth with the "International" following it up with with selections like "March Militare" by Shubert, the "Lark" by Clinko, "Serenade" by Drigo and many others, till the very end when the orchestra concluded with the "International" the admiration and appreciation of the audience was in evidence.

During the intermissions comrades exchanged congratulations at our new field of achievement. That workers who toil in the shops should have reached such heights of perfection in music was acclaimed by all present.

Comrade Schachno Epstein, managing editor of the Freiheit greeted the orchestra in the name of the Freiheit and the Communist movement.

Comrade Saltzman, acting chairman, gave a brief review of the Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra activities and its struggles with the general office of the Workmen's Circle and its finally breaking away from the leadership of this organization and joining as a body the Workers (Communist) Party.

Comrade N. L. Zaslavsky, conductor of the orchestra, to whose labor the success of the orchestra is due chiefly deserves honorable mention at this time. Comrade Zaslavsky has achieved marvelous results in only a short period of time thru his devotion to the orchestra.

Ohio Schools to Bar Reds

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 26.—A joint resolution providing for the expulsion of professors of Ohio universities having connection with "any Communist socialist, atheist, or other organinzation of revolutionists," will be brought before the state legislature it was announced here. The bill will be based on the report of the old New York Lusk committee, which named several Ohio universities as having radical professor on their faculties.

BUILDERS AT WORK

PHILADELPHIA, OMAHA AND KANSAS YESTERDAY'S BEST

Omaha Turns in 20 Per Cent of Quota

YESTERDAY'S mail brought in a better response than any since the opening of the Second Annual Sub Campaign.

From Tom Mathews in Omaha, Nebraska, we received 11 NEW subs with a promise that this is only a part of many more to follow. Twenty per cent of their quota is already filled with one blow in the second week of the campaign which means that local Milwaukee who have been leading until today, have a real competitor on their hands.

From Philadelphia, where DAILY WORKER Agent Comrade Rosenberg is making things hum, we have received 8 NEW subs to add to the number which is growing daily and which the Philadelphia comrades assure us will soon reach the quota.

From Pittsburgh, Kansas, in the unorganized territory, where Comrade J. E. Snyder is now organizing that field, he sends us 6 NEW subs and advice that new branches of the party are being formed in the midst of the rebellious Kansas coal fields.

These three cities are the outstanding ones of many others who have sent in NEW subs to "Build The DAILY WORKER" as you will see by the list below.

In the instance of both Omaha, Nebraska, and Pittsburgh, Kansas, together with the subs comes news of organization and new members. In other words (that we have often repeated) whenever you build the DAILY WORKER you are doing work that will bring new members and new branches to build the Communist movement in this country.

Have you sent in YOUR two new subs as has been done by these BUILDERS who have sent in their subs on

Three of the Largest Corporations Report Last Year's Business

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 26.—Reports of the 1924 operations and earnings submitted today by three of the largest American corporations, United States Steel, General Motors and Bethlehem Steel, confirmed what has already been known about the general decline of business in this country last year.

These three representative corporations suffered in the first place by a shrinkage of total volume of business as compared with 1923, placing the first handicap on their ability to show as large profits as in the preceding year. Heavy operating expenses scaled down the net incomes and profits were considerably smaller.

The following comparisons are significant:

United States Steel
Gross income	$1,263,711,000.00	$1,571,414,000.00
Net income	104,221,974.00	128,176,519.00
Earned per share common	11.77	1.42
General Motors
Gross income	568,007,459.00	698,038,947.00
Net income	45,330,287.00	62,067,525.00
Earned per share	7.37	10.69
Bethlehem Steel
Gross income	243,904,265.00	275,212,152.00
Net income	8,936,181.00	14,374,152.00
Earned per share	2.56	5.56

The summaries of last year's operations by Chairman Schwab of Bethlehem, Gary of United States Steel, and Dupont of the General Motors point unanimously to the fact that after opening the year auspiciously, business last year ran into a slump in the spring and summer and made a good recovery in the last quarter. Thus United States Steel opened the year operating at 86 per cent of capacity and declined gradually to 55 per cent of capacity in the third, recovering to 69 per cent in the fourth. Bethlehem opened year at 74 per cent of capacity, dropped to 31 per cent and recovered to 80 per cent.

Notwithstanding the decline in earnings these corporations were able materially to strengthen their financial position, the chairman of General Motors announcing that that corporation ended the year with its financial condition the best in its history. This will put them in a position to take advantage of any general increase in demand for their respective commodities this year, in which matter they are fairly optimistic.

Twenty-Nine States Prohibit Marriage of Whites by Negro

The northern states Michigan and Ohio have introduced into their legislatures bills which, if passed, would make legal marriage between a white and a black person an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment.

The bill introduced into the Michigan legislature provides a $100 fine and thirty days in jail for the white and black couple who have married. It is understood that the bills, besides making inter-racial marriages punishable, render these marriages null and void in that state.

There are at present twenty-nine states in the union which make intermarriage between whites and Negroes illegal. Of these states, seven also make marriage between a white person and a person of any other race punishable. In nearly all cases, a Negro is defined as a person having one-eight or more colored blood.

Garvey Appeal Fails

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—The supreme court declined to re-open the case of Marcus Garvey, Negro head of the Universal Negro Improvement association, now a prisoner at Atlanta penitentiary charged with unlawful use of the mails.

Garvey was alleged to have sold worthless stock in the Black Star Line, with which he proposed to transport Negroes to Africa.

CZARIST COLONEL TRIES TO EXPLOIT SOVIET RUSSIAN ART

How a counter-revolutionary colonel is trying to exploit Bolshevism is shown by an exhibition of Russian posters collected by him which is now being shown in Chicago. The posters are being shown at the Art Club.

The same czarists who are exploiting the Bolshevist pictures tried to make a little loose change by showing counter-revolutionary movies, but nobody came to see them, and the attempt ended in failure.

The colonel doesn't like to go to work in the shops and he needs money to live, so he is now displaying the Soviet posters and finds that the American workers are much more interested in Bolshevism than counter-revolutionary movies. The colonel takes the same attitude as his capitalist friends, "profits before principle."

Labor Bureaucrats Scent Profits

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor will meet some time this spring or summer to hear the report of the special committee on life insurance authorized by the El Paso convention.

The organization of life insurance companies by the officialdom of the labor unions is simply an extension of the banking schemes that have made union officials and a considerable section of the labor movement guardians of capitalism instead of its enemies.

The B. and O. company union plan is the expression in industry of the business enterprises of union officials.

There are immense profits in the life insurance business and with their appetite whetted by the venture into banking the labor fakers have been eyeing hungrily the premiums paid by workers on their policies. The "labor" life insurance companies are intended to divert a large portion of these sums into the hands of fakerdom.

The Federated Press dispatch, announcing the coming meeting of the executive council, says:

"Vice-President Woll and Chairman Perkins of the special committee will bring forward a detailed plan of action, based on the need to keep in labor's hands the profits on this vast business and to keep the control of billions of investments out of hands that are hostile to every aspiration of the labor movement."

Just how labor unions are going to keep control for labor when the machinery of the labor unions becomes a vast investment concern is something that requires a little clarification. The best example of how control of the funds of labor union banks are kept in the hands of "labor" is the partnership of the bank of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the Empire Trust company—a Wall Street concern of which Schwab of steel trust fame is a director.

Life insurance, labor banking, the B. and O. plan—surely a trio of measures that show conclusively the fact of the surrender of labor officialdom to capitalism; complete proof that "trust-busting" of the LaFollette brand as a protection to the middle-class investor is the extent to which radicalism ravaged the businessmen at the head of the American trade union movement.

Imperialism impoverishes the masses, but it can afford to and does encourage the labor aristocracy to build fortunes for itself. Except for a vested interest in the dues payments made by the members the labor bureaucrats have no interest in the organized labor movement.

Barring this fact they are of the same social category as the rotarians, kiwanises and members of the commercial clubs.

It is no wonder that they use the same tactics as the capitalists proper towards the Communists who are performing a great service to the American working class in exposing the alliance of trade union officials and capitalists for castrating the labor movement.

One of these days the American working class will hear of great scandals in "labor" life insurance and banking concerns similar to those that have discredited the trade union fakers in Germany and the Scandinavian countries.

The trade union bureaucracy is going to drown in the cesspool of corruption that is already forming inside their financial institutions.

British Hokum for the Babbittry

British imperialism is the greatest propaganda machine in the world.

Thru the Federation of British Industries, with its close connection with the foreign office, goes out the message of empire in many forms.

Every middle-class and capitalist Briton is an agent of British imperialism. They can talk about the friendship of the two great Anglo-Saxon nations without batting an eye, while American and British business interests cut one anothers throats in every quarter of the globe where there is loot to be had.

These remarks are called forth by the speech of Sir Charles Higham, English advertising expert, made at a luncheon given in his honor in the La Salle Hotel yesterday.

Sir Charles predicted a new war within ten years but not, of course, between America and Great Britain. Japan will attack America and Germany will attack France. Japan will descend upon the Panama Canal and the Pacific coast with a swarm of airplanes. She wants to capture the United States because it is so rich.

Having scared the babbittry present with this terrible picture, Sir Charles proceeded to get down to business. The business of the imperialist Briton is to take a crack at the most dangerous immediate enemy to British supremacy whenever there are a bunch of numbskulls around with their mouths and ears open. The noble advertising expert devoted a few words to the German reparation question and then hastened to the real work of the afternoon as follows:

> France also ought to be made to pay. What is she doing with the money that belongs to your country at the moment? She is equipping a gigantic army and air fleet that could wipe out London in twenty-four hours. Japan is organizing Russia and anyone with half an eye could see that.

Japan, Russia and enemy airplanes—not Great Britain and her navy as the point for the eye of the 100 per centers present to focus on. France should be made to pay her debt to America thereby ruining her and relieving Great Britain of a rival by a process perfectly painless to the dear old empire.

All of which is all right with us, Charley, but we are not advertising experts. We are Communists and know that no world war can start that does not drag in Great Britain as a potential if not active rival of American imperialism. The middle class elements who gasped at your utterances may also swallow your suggestion that Great Britain and America should unite to crush Soviet Russia but the working class of both countries have a different opinion.

If you have any doubt as to the attitude of the British workers you can get, for five shillings, the official report of the British trade union delegation to Soviet Russia upon your return home—a return which we hope you will not delay on our account.

Protecting Womanhood

American capitalism and its middle-class agencies like the ku klux klan, rotary clubs and other collections of hangers-on exhibit always a wordy concern over the sanctity of the home, protection of womanhood, etc. A mob can always be gathered to beat up or lynch some unfortunate migratory worker fresh from the construction camps who has made the pardonable mistake of approaching some enameled beauty in the age old fashion.

But at the state capital of Illinois the chivalrous character of the babbittry is being tested by the agitation for legislation limiting the hours for female labor to eight. Loud outcries come from the white slavers. Long hours are good for women, they say. The head stool-pigeon of Wrigley, the millionaire chewing gum manufacturer, is on the job and tells of the moral influence of long hours. The poor working girls become pleasantly fatigued by long hours of labor, says this madame, and are not inclined to trifle with the dangerous male of the species.

Nor is this cleavage between bourgeois ethics and practice confined to the capitalist proper. The southern land-holding aristocracy exhibits the high regard for the morals of working class women and disregard for their persons. The rulers of Mississippi or Alabama—we forget which just at the moment—not long ago lowered the age of consent from 17 to 14, but they courageously continue to lynch Negroes for merely looking at a white woman.

Shorter hours for women and men, abolition of child labor, all improvements in the conditions of the working class designed to give the workers more leisure and control over their lives, meet with the bitter opposition of the capitalists disguised by solemn ethical slogans which capitalist society is so ingenious in inventing. When propaganda fails force is used.

The outer citadels of capitalism are staunchly defended. Will the master class stop at anything to defend its inner arsenals?

The lessons of the last eight years say no in clarion tones, but the Communist parties alone have learned these lessons and alone teach them to the working class.

Strike Relief and the Party

The Hartford local of the Workers (Communist) Party of America has collected $171.05 for the Willimantic textile strikers—the largest sum yet turned in by any one groupp for this purpose.

The money was collected by a house canvass and this is the most important thing in connection with it. There is a thousand times more propaganda value in money given from sources of this kind than in donations made out of the treasury.

Not only the striking workers who receive the very welcome strike relief are made acquainted with the role of the party, but workers who are not involved in the strike are told of the struggle, the demands of the strikers and themselves brought in contact with Communist activity.

They see the Communists at work doing one of the thousand and one necessary daily tasks of the working class movement—tasks to which no particular glory is attached and on which the limelight does not shine, but which do not escape the attention of intelligent workers.

This is one of the ways in which the party acquires a mass character.

Imperialisms Clash in Mexico

President Calles has settled a street-car strike in favor of the workers and the American capitalist press gives him much publiciy—not unfavorable as one might expect.

The answer is that this particular street-car system in Mexico City is British-owned.

Wall Street is going to drive British capital out of Mexico with the aid of the Calles government. In this contest between two imperialisms the workers are only pawns until they understand the issues involved.

Contrast this action of Calles against British capital with his destruction of the Railwaymen's Union, the discharge of 40,000 of its members and the preparations for the return of the roads to Wall Street.

Watch the imperialist labor press and the yellow socialist sheets laud the Calles government and pat themselves on the back for the great favor they have done the Mexican workers by giving them a tool of American imperialism instead of a lackey of Great Britain.

LETTER TELLS OF LIFE IN HEART OF STEEL CENTER

Pittsburgh Has Group of Worker-Correspondents

are hardly worthy of being called homes but since that is the term in common use, we will apply it here. Most of these homes are ramshackle, humble dwellings, with walls unplastered, containing no gas or electricity, usually water is carried in from the outside from wells contaminated with the sewage that runs directly past the wells. The poor worker in some instances is allowed a small yard for his children to play in, but in addition to probably ten children the yard contains a cess-pool, well, and probably a gutter where the sewage from the house runs thru.

In the summer it certainly must be very enjoyable to be playing in such a dump, where they can have the companionship of mosquitoes, flies, and other sorts of vermin. Quite often the landlords of these homes deliberately neglect to make repairs on the houses, merely to increase their profits and tell them that if they desire anything better they should move, which of course, the worker is not in a position to do.

The Negro Colony.

Not far from the steel mills is a colony of Negro workers imported from the south. This is the worst hole imaginable to be inhabited by any living creature. The streets are unpaved, no lights at night, but of course, the question of lights does not concern the steel barons since they can easily say that the illumination from our blast furnaces is sufficient light for anyone to see his way. The steel kings did have built a number of barracks to house these Negro workers consisting of one story, wooden, one-roomed cages, in which from the outside can be seen bunks arranged in rows on which the workers are expected to rest.

The ventilation is very poor, and on summer evenings these Negroes can be seen sitting outside to cool off after a long day's laboring at the hot beds of the steel mills, at night only to return to a packed room, vermin considered, to try to recuperate for the next day's work.

Not Fit For Stables.

Where the Negro workers have families they are housed in old, tumble down shacks which are not even fit to serve as stables. While living in these shacks the children of the exploited workers are told that they can some day become president of the United States, if they are only ambitious enough to try.

These children are also soft soaped with the stories of how Carnegie, Schwab, and Corey made their millions. But between starvation, and plenty of worry, they have very little time to consider whether or not these stories told them contain in any way, shape, manner and form any truth. They accept them as a matter of course and look upon them as a myth.

The Flunkeys Live Better.

Comparing the homes of the flunkeys with the homes of these workers the difference is as between day and night. On one hand one sees how the actual producer of the steel mills live while on the other hand one sees the luxury and wealth of the parasites living from the toil of these workers. The parasites have their cars and live far enough from the steel mills that they do not have to have illumination from the blast furnaces light their way. Going past the offices of the steel mills their cars stand in rows all set and ready to take the bosses away from that miserable neighborhood, while the poor worker starts on his weary drudge homeward and cannot even then escape the tortures of the mills, having all the smoke and noise still to contend with after he is once home from his long day's drudge in the steel mills.

Workers Demand New Election As Fascisti Quarrel

ROME, Italy, March 26.—The clamor for new elections is growing here, as month follows month with Premier Mussolini still absent from public activity and the division in the ranks of the fascisti growing sharper every day.

Mussolini's appearance in public did not have the effect of reassuring his followers that he is returning to health. He looks but the shadow of his former self, uncensored dispatches state, and spoke but three minutes from an open window, most of his body being hidden from sight.

Luigi Federzoni, minister of the interor, and representatve of the "right wing" of the fascisti who has been carrying on the violence against the workers inaugurated by Mussolini, is hampered in his work by secretary general of the fascist party, Farinacci, who is endeavoring to grasp leadership of the blackshirts.

locally, to struggle. They look for peaceful path, instead of class struggle and workers solidarity. We hear slogans: "No fight for the next ten years!" That means that the union officialdom is co-operating with the bosses to enforce wage cuts and to speed up production.

Conditions in the shop are becoming intolerable and impossible to earn a decent livelihood. Brothers and sisters! Yet us not allow the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to disintegrate into a second United Garment Workers! You can prevent that!

The new agreement is about to be signed. Don't wait till it is too late. Let your voice be heard at the next meeting of your local union against a policy of collusion with the bosses.

We, the left wing, in the Amalgamated workers make the following recommendations for the new agreement.

1. Direct Negotiations With Bosses

We oppose the present method of secret diplomacy with the bosses, in wage negotiations. The successful way to carry on such negotiations to win the demands of the workers is thru a committee composed of representatives elected from the local unions. With the members kept in touch with every development, a determined struggle for the demands of the workers is assured.

2. Forty-Hour Week.

Development of machinery, while bringing bigger profits to the bosses, is throwing hundreds and thousands into the unemployed ranks. The forty-hour week, with pay for forty-four, giving more employment to the workers, would also aid in relieving the unemployment situation.

3. Week Work as Against Piece Work

Piece work speeds up production; breaks down the standard of wages and health of the workers; divides the workers against one another and plays into the bosses' hands. Hence, demand week work with a maximum standard of production and minimum scale of wages!

4. Demand Genuine Unemployment Wages!

Capitalist industry lives and prospers on the exploitation of the workers. We demand that at all times, in and out of work, that the workers are adequately maintained. The present scheme of unemployment insurance of our officials is totally insufficient for our needs. Demand full maintenance of the unemployed at the expense of the bosses, with distribution thru the union and shop committees.

5. No Suspensions by the Manufacturers.

The present system of the bosses suspending members without first preferring charges against them, makes the worker a slave in the hands of the boss. Our demand is: No suspensions without charges first and a fair trial!

6. Abolition of the Two Weeks' Probation Clause.

7. Organize the Industry.

We demand complete organization of all workers in the industry.

8. Shop Committee Control of the Union.

Militant policies can only build and strengthen the union. Shop committees, as the basic units of the union, must be introduced thruout the organization. Shop committees make it possible for all the workers to have a direct hand in running the affairs of the union. Demand that the establishment of shop committee be written into the new agreement! Demand that the bosses recognize the shop committees as the union representatives, empowered to conduct all negotiations for the workers!

To gain these needed demands of the workers in the needle trades requires the organized efforts of all the militant workers. The expulsion of the militants, the supporters of the Trade Union Educational League, by the administration serves the interest of the manufacturers and evidences an unhealthy co-operation of the union officials with the bosses. The membership must prevent the attempt of the officials of our union to get rid of the vital elements, the militants and left wingers in the Amalgamated. Fight against the expulsions of the militants!

Fight for the reinstatement of the expelled.

Members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers! Rally round the left wing. Let your voices be heard for a militant and anti-capitalist policy that will stop our retreat before the bosses and will make new gains in the conditions of the workers in the men's clothing industry!

Help Organize the Left Wing.

Join the Trade Union Educational League in a struggle for these demands!

Cleaners' Strike Put Off on Plea of Bosses for Time

The strike authorized Sunday night by the cleaners, dyers and pressers in more than 300 Chicago cleaning and dying shops was again postponed by the union officials yesterday when the Master Dyers' and Cleaners' Association asked the Cleaners' and Dyers' Union to enter into further negotiations looking to a settlement.

The executive committee of the union had been authorized by a meeting of the union to carry on negotiations with the bosses and if settlement efforts failed, to call a strike on Monday. Monday, Tuesday and part of Wednesday the executive committee conferred with the bosses representatives but did not arrive at a settlement.

Wednesday afternoon they issued another call for a strike to begin Thursday morning. But late Wednesday evening they received a letter from the employers offering to go on with the conferences if the strike call was cancelled. After considerable debate the strike was postponed pending the outcome of the conferences.

Yesterday the settlement talk went on all day. At the close neither side would say anything further than that the conference would continue today. Ben Abrams, manager of the union, said: "I don't know; there may or there may not be a strike. We have arrived at no settlement with the bosses."

Rich Rob Millions from Treasury, Is Tax Disclosure

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26.—A "complete revision" of the "million dollar" class of federal state taxes will be proposed in the next congress as a result of the Couzens' senatorial investigation of the internal revenue bureau, it was learned today. It is known, however, that Coolidge will protect his millionaire friends and fight the bill.

Evasion of existing taxes by millionaires and near billionaires, thru the distribution of their wealth before death, Couzens said, has made a "joke" out of the present statute.

Evidence revealed by the Couzens investigation, it was said, has shown that the government lost millions of dollars in uncollected taxes from the estates of millionaires, who made elaborate gifts before death. The gifts were covered by so great a litter of technicalities that all efforts of the government to enforce the supposedly safeguarding gift taxes failed. The tax dodging will continue, it is said, as long as Andrew Mellon, multi-millionaire, is treasury head.

PARIS COMMUNE HAS HISTORIC LESSON FOR US

O'Flaherty Enumerates Some of Them

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 26.—An enthusiastic meeting of workers commemorated in Milwaukee the 54th anniversary of the Paris Commune. The meeting was addressed by Thomas O'Flaherty who pointed out the historic lesson of the Paris Commune in addition to paying a splendid tribute to the heroic Communards.

Lessons in Paris Commune.

The greatest lessons we must learn from the Paris Commune, said O'Flaherty, is that we must build the Communist Party. The proletariat cannot win without the leadership of the Communist Party. Another great lesson, said O'Flaherty, is that the proletarian dictatorship must crush without mercy the resistance of the bourgeoisie to the rising proletarian power.

The following resolution was adopted at the meeting:

Resolution on the White Terror and the International Workers' Aid.

WHEREAS, Thousands of workers are imprisoned thruout the world by the capitalist governments in their efforts to suppress the movement which aims to overthrow the capitalist system, and

WHEREAS, The most useful tools of the capitalist class are the yellow socialists of the Second International, the typical example of which is the spy Abramovich who is now ineffectually trying to slander Soviet Russia before the American working class and

WHEREAS, The International Workers' Aid is organized to defend the victims of capitalist oppression in all lands, therefore, be It

RESOLVED, That this gathering of workers in the meeting assembled on the 54th anniversary of the Paris Commune express our solidarity with our comrades in all countries who are now in the toils of the bourgeoisie and be it further,

RESOLVED, That we indorse the International Workers' Aid, and pledge ourselves to give it our hearty support.

and who imagine that any labor union can prosper and appeal to workers upon a policy which sneers at the Russian revolution and opposes the program of the Red International of Labor Unions.

The Lumber Workers' Industrial Union, which last year had 10,000 members, now has 4,000 paying dues to general headquarters and only a handful to Rowan's split lumber union. The General Construction Workers' Industrial Union 310, which last year had about 4,000 members now has 800 paying dues to general headquarters, and about 1,500 to Rowan's split construction union run by P. D. Ryan. These unions are the worst affected by the split. Between these two the Rowan split has about $3,500 on hand. The general headquarters has approximately $5,100 on hand. There are two I. W. W.'s

Only Communists Are Concerned

No one is trying to remedy this tragic condition of the once proudly united I. W. W.—except the Communists and the Red Internationalists. A general executive board member is on the Pacific coast, but may as well be in China for all he does.

Only the members of the Workers (Communist) Party fight for the real interests of the I. W. W. by carrying on an ideological struggle against all splits and disintegration, preaching unity of the rank and file against all factional officials as the first requisite of organization life and growth.

Wise Fools Exchange Absurdities.

Stupid officials of both factions think they are making great hits with false accusations against each other of being Communists. Meanwhile, the members of the I. W. W. who wish to struggle against capitalism are joining the Workers Party in every city of any size from coast to coast.

They, as good union men, should continue to carry their I. W. W. union card, but they recognize that the Communists are the clearly intelligent force of the revolutionary working class.

Busy Splitting—Not Organizing.

The injunctionite faction has established its center at Portland, Oregon, and with the I. U. 120 and 310 bulletins and active propagandists, carries on vigorous efforts to deepen the split. But it wants a general newspaper.

The Industrial Worker, after months of defying headquarters, capitulated (with a tongue in its cheek, as seen by the letter to headquarters by C. E. Payne in the general office bulletin for February), and immediately applied for financial support.

Busy With Grab Bag Dualism.

The general executive board might give real aid to the Industrial Worker, if it did not contemplate turning over its treasury to "Kid" Howard Hogan, a discredited labor faker of Atlantic City and "Whitey" Lindstrom, a gas-bag "organizer" of Construction Workers I. U. 330, who are planning wild schemes of breaking up the Structural Iron Workers' Union and organizing the pieces in the I. W. W., Howard to get $100 a week and Lindstrom bidding for $66 a week while so engaged.

But the general headquarters can spare only "moral support" to the Industrial Worker, and limits its activity to an appeal to members to remit fifty cents each to the paper. This is no support at all.

Give Some Real Help—No Tricks.

The Red International Affiliation Committee appeals to the members of the whole I. W. W., both factions alike to demand that each faction supports the Industrial Worker with $1,000 each—$2,000 between them, to be booked either as a loan or a donation, as may be arranged. The vouchers for expenditure of this fund to be checked by both factions. And the policy of the paper, for once, to be really non-political and not anti-political.

The Industrial Worker must not be sacrificed to factionalism and the counter-revolutionary stupidities of those who have shaped its policies in recent years. Neither must any conspiracy, on the part of the injunctionite split, which having lost control of the Industrial Worker now tries to destroy it in order to set up a new publication in Portland, this conspiracy must be defeated also.

Let Help to Worker Prove Sincere Motive.

Let the Rowan split which has $3,500 in cash, and the general headquarters, which has $5,000, give $1,000 each to the Industrial Worker, as a pledge by each to the whole I. W. W., that they really care to save the Industrial Worker and have no mental reservation or factional conspiracies in mind.

And let the membership remind the officials of both factions that there must be unity, and that they recognize the Red International of Labor Unions as the organized center of the world's revolutionary unions to which the I. W. W. should affiliate.

SEATTLE L[illegible] COUNCIL VOTES AGAINST UN[illegible]ING COMMUNISTS; MACHINE DE[illegible] COUNCIL RULES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SEATTLE, Wash., March 27.—(By Wire.)—The Communist delegates to the Central Labor Council have won a splendid victory over the coterie of reactionaries. The council refused to unseat the Communists.

In spite of the vicious tactics of the president who acted as leading tool of the reactionaries, the council by a vote of 78 favoring expulsion to 71 against it—a two-thirds majority being required to expel—decided that the local unions had the right to say who their delegates should be.

Machine Defies Rules.

As the vote counting finished at the exact hour of adjournment, President John Jepsen arbitrarily and in violation of the rules of the council, declared that the expulsion was effective, but the delegates vigorously challenged his decision.

Fearing the resentment of the large number of local unions and delegates to the council. Secretary Doyle and President Jepsen wired to William Green, president of the A. F. of L., asking for "confirmation" of the arbitrary violation of the council's rules.

The Communist delegates will pay no attention to Jepsen's ruling and will continue to attend the council as usual. To say that the office of president was raped by Jepsen is to put it mildly. He overruled the decision of the council last week, when that body decided to allow the defendants unlimited time to defend their position on

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

ONE of those fake labor sheets—there are hundreds of them—supported by the employers recently carried a long story on the Communist movement in the United States and did not miss the Workers Party school which today terminates its two weeks' session at the Workers' Lyceum in this city. The story began with the arrest of three members of the Young Workers' League in New York who were rehearsing for the Paris Commune pageant, with old guns that would be turned down with scorn by Don Quixote and his ally, Sancho Panza; it ended with a sermon on the menace to the present social system of the instructions given to the students in the Workers Party school.

IF the capitalist papers and the fake labor journals are interested in this Communist school, why should not the readers of the DAILY WORKER get a little pen picture of its sessions? No sooner thot than acted on. William F. Dunne was delivering a lecture on Trade Union History and Tactics to thirty attentive students from [illegible] Michigan, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Illinois, when I reached the lecture room. One of the students acted as chairman. Do capitalist colleges have chairmen while the professor is performing? Let some hod carrier who toted a load of bricks thru some goose step university answer.

WHEN Comrade Dunne got thru with his lecture, he produced a cigarette and one of the students offered him a light. After "Bill" began to puff at the weed, the chairman asked if there were any questions. There were. Half a dozen students were on their feet. Take it from me, the professor had to be sure of his "p's" and "q's." These were not ordinary students who go to school in order to learn how to behave in a tea room, or bend the knee at the proper angle when the boss approaches. They were after knowledge, because knowledge in the hands of revolutionists means power.

THE students came from the mines. They came from the clothing factories. They came from the mills. There were even a few stenographers there, a most precious but rare industrial classification—in the revolutionary movement. They were studying, and studying how to study. On their return, to their homes, they do not intend to sit arount the village stove, and tell wondrous tales of what they say in the big, windy, smoky and wicked city. Of the Abramovich meetings in which they fought, of the struggles in which they participated, struggles between militant trage unionists and the reactionaries. They will use the knowledge they acquired to organize the workers teach the latter to become organizers in turn.

AFTER all that is the real object of education. It must be purposeful. One of the principal points of difference between the Workers (Communist) Party and its decrepit rivals, is the fact that the former looks on knowledge as the light which will guide the feet of the working-class along the road to their emancipation. But this knowledge must not be left to its own resources like a raisin in a bootlegger's bottle. It becomes a harmless thing unless it is harnessed to the class struggle, made a liv-

OUT-OF-WORK MINER COMMITS SUICIDE; WIFE SENT TO JAIL

BELLAIRE, Ohio, March 27.—Because her husband, an unemployed coal miner, commited suicide Mary Sciandi is in the county jail at St. Clairsville. Sciadani, who had been out of work ever since the shut down of the Lorain Coal and Dock company mines 18 months ago, became despondent over his growing debts and slashed his throat with a razor. He had attempted to commit suicide about a year ago but his wife prevented. After the first attempt he was in the hospital for several weeks.

When his wife found him in the basement of their home yesterday she was so overcome that it was feared that she would become insane.

In a stupid but economical attempt to take care of her the county officials had her taken to the jail. There her condition is reported as considerably worse.

ANSWER YELLOW WAR ON SOVIETS AT SUNDAY MEET

Big Program for the Unity Demonstration

The thousands of workers who were excluded from the abortive "mass" meetings addressed by Raphael Abramovich and other enemies of Soviet Russia will give their answer at the Ashland Auditorium this Sunday afternoon, March 29.

It will be an International Unity Demonstration in the truest sense of the name. Workers of every nationality will be represented in the audience and on the program.

They will listen to inspiring speakers of two races delivering the same message of the need and practise of international solidarity of the workers. The financial proceeds will benefit equally the relief funds for the Irish worker and peasant victims of the famine, and for the defense of those facing jail sentences under the Michigan criminal syndicalist laws.

TENT DWELLING STORM VICTIMS IN GREAT AGONY

Four More Die of Injuries

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., March 27.—The misery of the miners of this storm ridden town, who have been living in small refuge tents, was further increased when an electrical storm descended upon the city, killing one worker and wounding others. The tent village was drenched, and stores of food and furniture exposed in the wreckage were spoiled.

Granville Whitelaw, a Negro, was killed by the storm. Some of the tents were blown away.

E. G. Dunning who was injured at De Soto, when the storm destroyed his dwelling, died in Herrin today of lockjaw.

The death toll at West Frankfort was increased to 136 when Mrs. Virgil Bell died there of her injuries. Asa Cremer, another West Frankfort worker injured in the storm, died last night. The total dead in Franklin county is now 178.

COMMUNISTS TO GET LARGE VOTE IN GERMAN POLL

Country Torn by Foreign Intrigue

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, March 27.—The Communist Party of Germany charges that the social-democrats are using the money of the Stinnes industrial group to campaign for their presidential candidate. Otto Braun.

The German elections take place Sunday, with Ernst Thaelmann, the Communist candidate expected to poll well over two million votes.

The war-lord Gen. Ludendorf has split the right bloc, which was endeavoring to consolidate the reactionery forces behind Jarres, by insisting on running for president with the backing of the right extremists.

Germany faces many vital issues in this election. One reaction to the British foreign minister Chamberlain's speech in the house of commons, stating Germany's conditions of entrance to the league of nations, is that

SOUTHWEST COAL BARONS IN WAR ON MINE UNIONS

Entire Section Goes on Open Shop Basis

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TULSA, Okla., March 27. — Ten large mines in the Henryetta-Okmulgee coal fields have broken their contracts with the miners' union and began operations on a non-union basis.

In addition the largest mines of the southwest have given the miners the ultimatum—"either come to work as non-union men or the mines close down."

The MacAlester, Wilburton, Hartshorne and Tulsa fields have already taken this step, and now the stronghold of the miners' union of the southwest, weakened by the disruption of the ku klux klan, has been invaded by the coal operators.

A wholesale shut down of mines, preparatory to the drive to reduce wages and destroy the miners' union, was begun in the Henryetta fields, on Feb. 15. On that date five mines were closed down, and none of these mines has yet been re-opened. When they do, the operators announce, it will be on the non-union wage scale.

Last week the Whitehead Mine No. 3, which has mined 400 tons a day for the Frisco railroad, closed down. This was the last of the six mines of the Crow Coal company, the largest coal company in the southwest, to close.

The Wise-Buchanan, the B and A at Schulter, the Pittsburgh and Midway, and the Son Coal company's mines will all be shut down, to reopen on an "open shop" basis. The Atlas Star and Consolidated is to close down this week.

Henryetta depends on coal as its chief source of income, and the already destitute miners are expected to suffer keenly.

FASCISTI PUT BAN ON STRIKES AND AID BOSSES

Constitution to Be Changed

ROME, Italy, March 27—The fascist party is revising the constitution of Italy, in an attempt to use the government and the fascist party to directly break strikes.

Following the recent strike of the fascist metal workers, the fascist leaders, who from the beginning of their rule have been allied with the capitalists, are taking steps to break future strikes.

The revision of the constitution according to the fascist leaders' plans, compels the labor unions to renounce the right to strike, and submit to the arbitration of a "national wage tribunal," which would be dominated by the employers.

The change in the constitution also makes the ruling that one-third of the members of the chamber of deputies shall be elected from unions' and employers' associations. As all non-fascist unions are outlawed, only fascist workers will be allowed to run for the chamber.

Write us a letter—tell us how you work, what are your wages and shop conditions—and then order a bundle for distribution in your shop.

COMMUNISTS LEAD COKE MINERS STRIKE AGAINST CUT; ORGANIZE UNIONS AGAIN IN U. M. W. OF A.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 27.—Mass meetings of the striking miners of the coke region, arranged by the Workers Party and the Progressive Miners Committee of the Trade Union Educational League, are being held everywhere, and are attended by great crowds of enthusiastic strikers. They are determined to resist the wage cut, and under the lead of the Communists, to win not only the strike, but a re-organization of their local unions in the United Mine Workers of America.

Back Into the U. M. W. of A.

On Wednesday afternoon a mass meeting was held here in Franklin Hall, and a motion approved to organize in the United Mine Workers of America and to fight with the rank and file of that union by asking for a charter.

The Communist speakers pointed out that the miners must re-organize in the United Mine Workers of America for a better struggle because it is not a local fight, but an entire district strike.

Charter To Be Asked.

A committee will be chosen and a local established at each mining camp. Then, after the election of the miners' own officers, a charter will be asked from the U. M. W. of A. Day by day the miners are leaving the workings, spreading the fight against the wage cut.

Three additional coke mines owned by the Oliver-Snyder Steel Company near Uniontown, Fayette county, Pennsylvania, have been struck by the men in protest against the proposed wage cut. Eight hundred more men came out from the pits, swelling the ranks of strikers in this unorganized territory. All men are standing solid, refusing to accept a cut which in reality will amount to $4.00 a day.

The wage cut which the operators are attempting to put over would reduce the wages for day work $2.50 per day; on tonnage work 55 cents for a 3½ to 4 ton car. For digging and loading such a car in these pick mines the former tonnage price was $1.60 and is now being cut to $1.05. Simultaneously the companies have increased the price on powder 4 cents per pound; the stores owned by the company have increased the price on flour to $12.00 per barrel, and on meat, for steak 60 cents per pound and for pork chops 45 cents per pound. In this manner the real wages would be reduced about $4.00 a day.

A Command to Buy.

Just prior to the strike the company stores issued to the miners what appeared to them to be a credit slip for a certain amount of money. Later, however, these slips turned out to be a command to buy that much in the store or lose their jobs. This shows how complete the companies own the territory and determines not only working conditions but economic and social conditions as well. No wonder the rebellion has become so complete.

Of course the company has its agents amongst the strikers. Fake meetings are being called from time to time, poorly attended, at which someone proposes to go back to work, and in some instances thru lies and misrepresentations, succeed in putting it across. Thus, stories are being spread continually of the striking mines again resuming operation.

Holding the Picket Line.

However, no sooner do any such misled miners get to the picket line and become fully informed than they return and stand solid with the rest. The coal and iron police are also doing effective work for the bosses continually harassing and chasing the pickets.

With the new tonnage price which the men refused to accept digging and loading of one ton would be paid from 25 cents and 35 cents. Twelve tons of coal brought to the coke ovens will produce about four tons of coke and with the present retail price of coke $4.64 at the ovens, a raise of 20 cents since December, the profit made by the mine owners can easily be estimated.

In the three camps near Uniontown,

TEXTILE STRIKE WINNING FIGHT IN UTICA MILLS

A Few Bruised Scabs Weave No Cloth

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., March 27.—The textile barons' attempt to cut wages in this city is meeting with utter defeat. The signs of this are their failure to get the workers to break ranks and scab, their failure to provoke the strikers by a few armed thugs and their latest announcement according to the mill owners' usual line of bunk, that they are going to "close down the mills." The strikers beat them to that.

Professionals in Provocation.

The Utica Steam Cotton mill brought in fourteen professional scabs from New York City. About 600 or 700 strikers were around the mill. The scabs began to shake their fists at the strikers and put their thumbs to their noses—looking for a fight. The strikers waited.

These strike breakers carry guns against the law, but the mill owners are the law. The mill owners had no success in provoking a massacre, with all their scabs calling names at the strikers.

Another Trick.

Then they tried another trick. They got one of the scab gunmen in a covered wagon, and they left it in the street for some time. The scab peeked out of the wagon. Nothing happened. Then the wagon was driven to a lunch room to get some food for the other scabs in the mill. The superintendent then took three scabs in his car to the lunch room and left them there.

Why Scabbing Isn't Popular.

The strikers waited. When the scabs came out they insulted the strikers. Then the fight started. The scabs were beaten with sticks and stones and ran into the mill where they stayed all night.

Advertisements don't seem to make anybody want to come to work in this mill. There are 2,000 strikers in the two mills. The company advertised for loom fixers and weavers. None showed up. That's funny, isn't it?

Beware of Arbitration Betrayal!

The mayor of Utica, like all capitalist politicians, is trying to help betray the strikers into arbitration. He has appointed a special committee. And who do you think they are?

The committee consists of two lawyers and a preacher. One is Attorney Moses G. Hubbard, Jr., prominent in the strike breaking American legion; William Lee Ross, a former prosecuting attorney; and a presbyterian preacher, Philip S. Bird, who is a bird that everybody knows is on the side of the company. But the strikers have their strike committee, which has no need for any aid. It can handle all the arbitration, and must do it.

WALES LEAVES TODAY TO BUILD EMPIRE'S FENCES

Egyptian Workers Disfranchised

LONDON, England, March 27.—The prince of Wales starts tomorrow on a twenty-thousand mile cruise to England's South African and West African colonial possessions, in an attempt to build the decaying fences of the British empire.

At the same time it was announced that Egypt will be forced to accept a new electoral law, patterned after Mussolini's Italian law, which denies the right of the workers and peasants of Egypt to an equal franchise.

The Egyptian law requires both electors and candidates to own a certain sum of money or property and have a certain number of years' education. The law disfranchises most of the followers of Zagloul Pasha, who is fighting British imperialism in Egypt, and who gained a majority in the parliament which was hastily dissolved by the British puppet king.

After S. A. Trade.

The prince of Wales will also visit the South American countries, where the United States capitalists and British imperialism have been staging a life and death struggle for South American trade. The American business interests have recently secured more trade than the English, and hence Wales' visit.

King George is now cruising in the Mediterranean, evidently meditating on the North African and Asia Minor colonial troubles, and Prince George will sail for France next week. Only Prince Henry will be left of the degenerate family to keep the home fires burning.

Account of the Hearing.

SEATTLE, Mash., March 23.—(By Mail.)—The report of the strike and grievance committee, acting as the trial board, presented to the council recommended the unseating of H. Price of the Machinists, W. H. Jones of the Painters and Joe Havel of the Bookkeepers, and exonerated Paul Mohr of the Bakers, M. Hansen of the Painters and J. Carlson of the Shipwrights.

The recommendations for unseating the three was based on their names having appeared as electors on the ballot for the Workers Party presidenttial ticket last November. O, "democracy" where are your protecting wings!

The pervading atmosphere of the council reminded one of the good old fighting days when that body was in the forefront ranks of the labor movement of America, tolerance and genuine interest predominating. The gallery, closed ever since, was ordered by special motion opened to the visitors.

Days of Old Back Again.

The fighting spirit of true and tried trade unionists who year after year have been tearing themselves away from the bosom of their families night after night giving the last ounce of energy left within them after the day's hard toil for their masters to the upbuilding of the local labor movement, reverberated again in the hall of the Labor Temple.

When the set hour of nine o'clock arrived the report of the strike and grievance committee was read by Chairman David Levine, petty shopkeeper. It was a jewel as genuine as fake jewels sold in his shop, redeemed, however, by extracts from the writings of the world's greatest labor leader, Lenin, in which he urges Communists to remain within the unions, thrown in to prove the defendants "guilty as charged."

"The labor movement in taking any action against the Communists must do so for self-protection only. We are not concerned with the political or religious belief of any member of organized labor, but we are vitally concerned with any group of men or women outside of the organized labor movement associate themselves to put over a program which concerns the inner workings of that movement.

Quotes Lenin.

"The founder of modern Communism and its greatest exponent Nicolai Lenin, in advising his followers while promoting Communism in the ranks of organized labor said: 'We must be able to withstand their opposition to be ready for any and every sacrifice and even if necessary to practice trickery to employ cunning and to resort to illegal practices, to sometimes even overlook and conceal the truth, all for the sake of penetrating into the trade unions to stay there and by every means carry on the work of Communism.'" He paused, turned to the audience, but was disappointed. It fell flat, no approval and no applause.

The above constitutes the crimes of the Communist delegates and upon which ground the committee recommended to the council that the three of the six delegates be unseated.

Ovation For Communist Statement.

As soon as the motion for adoption was seconded and put by the presiding officer, Joe Havel, obtaining the floor, declared that he was a Communist and believed in the principles of Communism and branded as lies the statements made at the previous meetings by some delegates, that Communists disrupt the labor movement. He pointed to Soviet Russia, where previous to the revolution there were one hundred thousand trade unionists while at present there are more than seven millions of trade union members.

By special motion the defendants and members of the strike and grievance committee and the accusers were given unlimited time. Havel then continued his speech stating the program of the Communist and pointed out that it was the delegates who made the charges who are consciously and unconsciously tearing down the labor movement and then read the statement made by the six Communists. When he finished reading, it was greeted by a tremendous ovation.

A Former Wobbly Opposes Industrial Unionism.

John N. Belanger, business agent of the steamfitters, and former I. W. W., one of the accusers, said that he was once a revolutionist, but is not now and does not want any strikes. He read a page in the Workers Monthly and then pointed to a cartoon in this magazine about the El Paso A. F. of L. convention and stated that the Communists are criticizing the officials and that such was disloyalty. He then stated that it is better to be divided when the masters are strongly organized.

"The trade unions are like little dogs who bite and run away." While if they were organized into industrial organizations the employers would destroy them. As it is they are crushed one at a time. He then read a statement made by Gompers in 1912 in order to prove that Gompers was opposed to free political opinions in the trade union movement.

Bailey Attacks Painters' Union.

Wm. Bailey, business agent of the patetrnmakers and another of the accusers, said that in the painters' local the Communists have obtained control by a nucleus and alluded to the members of that local as a bunch of dogs. Immediately a delegate from the painters vigorously objected to the calling of their members dogs.

Bailey then continued to state that the painters' local had elected a set of new progressive officers. At this juncture the former president of the council, "Tex" Philips, whose administration was marked by fairness and impartiality, arose to a point of order and made a denial and repudiation of all the statements made by Bailey in connection with the painters' local, and stated the change was made because of the desire on the part of the members to make the change.

Reactionaries Support Mussclini

Bailey then stated that he was not opposed to Communism but to its tactics. "They the Communists" he shouted, "Are calling oll our leaders traitors. They call McDonald a traitor, Debs a traitor, Gompers a traitor, Herriot a traitor, Spargo a traitor, Victor Berger a traitor, Hillquit a traitor and they call Mussolini a traitor." The name of Mussolini brough about an exploision of roaring laughter from every delegate and visitor present.

James Duncan Fights for Unity

James Duncan, former secretary of the council, in a fighting speech said "It is time for the labor movement to watch its step. Whenever a labor movement starts expelling members that movement is on shaky grounds."

"I am not a Communist" said Duncan forcefully, "but I am honestly convinced that the Workers Party is going to take the place of the socialist party. I would be a traitor if I would not be opposed to the expulsion of Communists. When the Communists are expelled the A. F. of L. will be weakene

Phil Pearl declared that the strike and grievance committee had failed in not bringing a report against all of the defendants and that it was clear to him that the committee has picked out the defendants against whom it had a personal grudge. He likened the report of the committee to the Mooney-Billings affair and stated that he could not see where an overt act has been committed by the defendants.

Vincent Brown of the machinists, stated that "I admire men like Price who stand up and fight under brutal capitalism." The machinists stand upon the class struggle and if their delegate is expelled they will send him back into the council.

Open Shoppers Behind Expulsion

"Tex" Philips, former president of the council, said that the open shoppers were fighting in the outside but now they are fighting in the inside of the trade union movement. "If we expel trade unionists because of their criticism, then the federal government would be as much justified to expel us from the country for criticism." He urged against such an action of expulsion and pointed to the danger confronting the labor movement by such action. "I am not a Communist," he declared, "but I am in favor of amalgamation."

After a brief debate as to whether to prolong the session or continue the case it was decided by unanimous vote to continue it so that careful consideration be given the matter and an opportunity afforded all to express themselves.

ing part of the workers' fight for emancipation. Therefore, instead of merely learning about evolution, historical materialism and the law of surplus value, and waiting patiently until socialism crawls out of the womb of capitalism, the Communists, armed with theoretical knowledge proceed to organize the workers for the fight. And in the fight the masses learn more than they will ever learn in the colleges or schools. Colleges and schools under capitalism are not for the masses.

IF the Communists intended to use their knowledge in aimless discussions about the "wherefore of the what is not" or whether a red light is really red or may be it is blue, or whether a straight line gets you anywhere, the capitalists and their press would not bother their heads about them. The students of the Workers Party college do not intend to waste their time trying to prove, like a petrified "educationalist" of the S. L. P. type—that an American farmer is not a peasant, and that therefore, it is pure folly to attempt to get him to fight against the big capitalists, on the ground that his robber intentions are just as bad as those of the master burglars, therefore, he should be left to his fate until the steam roller of evolution flattens him out.

BUT this pedagogue loses sight of the possibility that the worker may be only a little less flattened by the big capitalist's steam roller when benevolent evolution has done its duty. Our students intend to become Communist leaders. Nothing modest about this. But then blushing virgins and shrinking human violets may ornament a boudoir, but they are rather out of place in the class struggle. As Tomsky (leader of the Russian trade unions) said at the British Trade Union Congress when a faker remarked that the Russian workers were not angels: "Angels don't make revolutions."

THE art of speaking effectively in public is invaluable in any cause and in none more so than in the working class movement. Therefore, a class in public speaking was on the curriculum of the Workers Party school Thurber Lewis, who was almost born on a soap box, was the teacher. Other people trace their ancestry to kings, pirates or celibate saints, but on Thurber Lewis' family tree the orators and the agitators have all his other progenitors hanging on to the twigs. Comrade Lewis is a plain, blunt man and when one of his pupils looked agonizingly at the lone fly on the ceiling, or took out a laundry check instead of his or her notes the teacher spared not his words. He would excuse them for being embarrassed at facing an audience, or speaking too fast or saying "Now in conclusion" for the sixteenth time, but there was no excuse for not being prepared. The school will supply the Workers Party with a small army of speakers, unless all signs fail.

COMRADE BITTELMAN lectured on the history of the Communist movement in the United States. By this time he had arrived at the period when the Communist Party and United Communist Party united only to split again over the question of forming a "legal" political party. That was in the year 1921. Bittelman read from a monthly official organ issued by the central executive committee of the party. A contrast between the strength of the party then and now, would be interesting, not merely in numbers, but in effectiveness. What a difficult job the C. E. C. had to dig up enough money to pay the printing bill for the publication of a sixteen page monthly? Then the socialists had a daily paper. Today they have only a struggling weekly, struggling not against the capitalists, but for a bare existence. On the other hand the Workers (Communist) Party has one daily published in the English language and ten or more in other languages, besides several weeklies and monthlies.

AFTER hearing Bittelman reciting the history of the inner party struggles, one would be justified in asking the question: Why this perpetual wrangling? The history of the party seems to be one darn faction fight after another. But such is the history of all revolutionary parties. There are always two struggles going on, more or less intense, according to the importance of the issues involved. There is first of all, the struggle of the party against the capitalists and perhaps no less important, the struggle inside the party to keep it on the right track. One of the objections raised against Marx by some of his "historians" is that he was bitter and dogmatic. The same could be said against Lenin. But they were dogmatic only in the sense that they hewed to the correct revolutionary line and had no patience, either with the anarchists who flew off into the rarified atmosphere of isolation or with the reformers who flew into the arms of the bourgeoisie.

THE Workers (Communist) Party of America, has grown in numbers strength and power. It thrashes out its problems vigorously, within its own ranks until it decides on the right course to follow. Once having decided on that course, it presents a united front to the enemy and no matter what reservations some of its individual members may have as to the wisdom of the course adopted, "discipline begins where conviction ends." Those who fail to understand this cardinal principle of Communism have a lot to learn.

THE Workers Party school is an interesting innovation in revolutionary activities in this country. Its brief session is over, but it is not unlikely that before long a more ambitious scheme will be involved to turn out trained Communist propagandists for service in the work of organizing the exploited masses for their own emancipation. The lectures on Communist organization by Comrade Abern, on Leninism by Gomez, and on Marxism by Bedacht in addition to those already mentioned should prove of inestimable value to the students in preparing themselves for the most worthy career that a worker could possibly select: That of being a leader in the movement to abolish the last form of slavery and free the last subject class in human history.

FASCISTI SPIES IN MOSCOW POSE AS COMMUNISTS

Big German Firms Are Implicated in Plot

MOSCOW, March 27—The arrest is reported in Moscow of three German students, Kindermann, Wolszt, Count Ditmarinen, about whom it has been established on the strength of irrefutable documentary evidence in the possession of the authorities and also their personal examination, that they had been sent to Moscow by the German fascisti of Erhardt, whose members they are, for espionage and with a view to organizing terrorist acts against prominent Soviet and Communist statesmen and leaders.

The arrested were in possession of forged tickets of the Communist Party and, besides, had managed to get references and recommendations from liberal German professors and learned men addressed to the latter's Russian colleagues with a request to assist the students in their would-be scientific "expedition." At the same time, certain big German firms had undertaken to supply funds to finance this "expedition" in return for economic espionage by the mentioned students.

Confess Came to Murder.

MOSCOW, March 27. — The papers here report that the recently arrested German students Kindermann, Wolszt and Count Ditmarinen have stated during their judicial examination that their concrete object in coming to Moscow was to murder Stalin and Trotzky.

The students when arrested were found in possession of various poisons and revolvers.

Anthracite to Work All Summer, Bosses Prepare to Cut Pay

POTTSVILE, Pa.—It was announced by operators that the anthracite mines of the Schuykill region would work every day during the aprpoaching summer.

This statement caused some astonishment because many of the collieries are now working only half-time. The explanation doubtless is that the wage scale of the miners expires in September and the operators are preparing to reduce the wage scale and try to force the union to give way to the "open shop."

It is expected that joint sessions of miners and operators will be held at Atlantic City this summer. Both sides declare that intervention of Governor Pinchot will not be considered this year.

The governor forced thru a settlement two years ago which has been declared unsatisfactory to both sides.

Slam at British Fascisti

LONDON,—British army officers and soldiers of other ranks, as well, are forbidden to join the British fascisti, according to an order of the army council promulgated today.

Would Export to America

MADRID,—Exportations to America will be encouraged, the assembly of Spanish canners was told today by the under-secretary of labor.

Girl Admits Killing Babies

Wodmont, Md., March 27.—Elizabeth King, 18, was arrested today on charges of murdering two infants whose bodies were found hidden here last night. Under a gruelling examination, Miss King admited to police that the babies had been born to her.

Communist Idea Grows As Lanzutsky Stands at Foot of the Gallows

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the workers of the whole world are hearing the name Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist member of the Polish diet, condemned to death by "the terror" of this tottering capitalist outpost erected by the Versailles peace against Soviet Russia.

Workers in many lands are also getting more of the truth about the First Workers' Republic, because Lanzutsky is not only a Polish Communist. He is a soldier of the Communist International, fighting for the world revolution. He is condemned because of a speech made on Nov. 11, 1923, to railroad workers on strike at Przempl, but the sentence of death passed upon him has given power to his voice so that it is now heard on all the continents.

Przempl appeared prominently on the bloody map of the world-war as one of the strategic points for the possession of which the contending armies of capitalism struggled on the eastern front.

It now appears on another map,—the map of the developing class war. Instead of the thunder of great guns; Przempl heard the voice of the Communist, Lanzutsky, proclaiming that "The Communist idea is growing stronger and stronger!" and fear numbed the kept statesman not only in Warsaw, but in Paris and London. For if Polish capitalism falls into the hands of the workers and peasants of Poland, then the foundation rots still more under the capitalist structure in France and in Great Britain. It is the Communist idea before which the capitalist world stands helpless.

It is well to point out that one of the crimes charged against Lanzutsky is that he quoted, for his own purposes, extracts from an article written by Holowko, member of the Polish socialist party, entitled "The Fear of Power," and one paragraph from this article is well worth repeating. It is as follows:

> "We forget that not all the left parties is Poland are afraid of power; there is one that is ready to assume it any moment, having in readiness already prepared methods and patterns of governing. Everyone knows that I have the Communists in mind; and, what is worse, looking at Russia, we cannot deny that they know how to rule. We must admit that they are fine administrators and psychologists. EVERYONE SEES THAT POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA ARE STEADILY IMPROVING. Who assumes power under difficult conditions, he wins."

There you have it. But Holowko, the socialist, tool of that other Polish Second International socialist, General Pilsudski, murderer of workers, did not urge that the workers seize power. He was urging the socialists and the petty bourgeois, in the days when the extreme Polish reaction seemed to be tottering, to seize power and erect their dictatorship, which would have been a dictatorship against the workers and poor peasants, as it proved in Germany. The Polish socialists today are in the united front against the Communists. They are part of the present capitalist dictatorship. Lanzutsky's crime is that he used Holowko's article as an argument for the unity of the workers, everywhere thruout Poland, against their oppressors, pointing out that this was the open way to complete triumph.

It is easy to see in which direction the Polish workers, in the grip of hunger, unemployment and low wages when they do work, will turn as they continue to behold the Workers' Republic on their eastern frontier, in which political and economic conditions are steadily improving.

• • • •

The American ruling class, hand in glove with the slayers of labor in Poland, and elsewhere, like the upholders of capitalism in all Western Europe, know that conditions in Soviet Russia are improving. Western European capitalism tries to save itself thru recognizing Soviet Rule. The United States, so far, is trying to save capitalism here thru refusing to recognize the Soviet Republic. A demonstration that the capitalists really do not know which way to turn. In their bloody frenzy, in which the socialists join hands with them, they take the lives of the most active Communists, hoping this will save them.

Nothing, however, can ward off their final defeat. Lanzutsky, at the foot of the gallows, truly says, "The Communist idea grows stronger and stronger," leading the oppressed of the world to their victory.

Banks Bribed Judge English Who Stole Bankrupts' Money

ST. LOUIS, March 27.—The Union Trust company of East St. Louis has been paying Faris English three per cent interest on all bankruptcy money deposited by his father, Judge George English, in their bank, Paul Schlafly, vice president of the institution, told the congressional investigating committee today. The committee is here investigating alleged frauds and corruption of Judge English, who used his position as bankruptcy judge to steal money from creditors coming before him.

Judge English designated as federal depositories five banks, in all of which he had a personal interest, or from which he received a rake-off.

God Makes More Trouble

OROVILLE, California, March 27.—With Mrs Edwards Rhodes, "Roaring Lion of the House of Judah," and her husband, Edward arrested under charges of assault with "an instrument capable of doing great boily harm," residents of Butte county today demanded of District Attorney William Rothe an immediate investigation of activities of the "Assembly of God" church, known as the "Branding Cult."

Another Rickshaman Killed.

SHANGHAI, March 27. — Strong anti-imperialistic agitation is reported from Hankow, occasioned by the murder of a ricksha man by a policeman in the British concession there. A big number of proclamations were issued, containing attacks against imperialism.

Government Has Its "Conciliators" Busy Stopping 60 Strikes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The building trades generally are working out their new wage agreements peacebly, and except in a few isolated cases no trouble in anticipated, according to reports to the department of labor.

Conciliators of the department are using their good offices in sixty strikes, threatened strikes and lockouts which have been brought to the department's attention. One encouraging feature for the bosses, is the fact that in most instances work continues during the negotiations for settlement.

RED DEPUTIES SPOIL OVATION FOR MUSSOLINI

Sing 'The International' in Chamber

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ROME, Italy, March 27.—Communist deputies arose and sang the International as a counter demonstration when Premier Mussolini paid a brief visit to the Italian chamber of deputies.

Mussolini's fascist deputies, outnumbering the Communists by about ten to one, attempted to cheer Mussolini when he entered. But thru the cheers for the dictator, could be heard the shouts of the Communist deputies, "Long live Communism," following which the Communists sang the International.

One hundred fascisti, led by the general secretary of the fascist party, Deputy Farinacci, who has an even more murderous record than Mussolini, attacked the Communist deputies, and created a riot.

Farinacci tried to choke the Communist Deputy Damen to death while others held his hands. The demonstration for Mussolini was completely destroyed.

Burton K. Wheeler Is Re-indicted in District of Columbia

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat of Montana, candidate for vice-president on the LaFollette ticket last fall, was re-indicted here today by a federal grand jury on charges that he used his influence as a senator in appearing before the department of the interior as a paid attorney for Montana clients.

Indicted with Wheeler were Edwin S. Booth, former solicitor of the interior department, and Gordon Campbell, a Montana oil prospector, whom Wheeler is accused of representing.

The indictment charges Wheeler and his associates entered into a conspiracy in the District of Columbia "to defraud the United States out of the use and possession" on 10,000 acres of land in Toole County, Montana, which lands were subjected to permits to prospect for oil and gas.

Dever Sells Out Straphangers in Deal with Bankers

Mayor Dever has already selected the three members of the board of control who are to represent the "public," in taking charge of the traction lines under his ordinance, and the line-up will be three trustees representing the straphangers and six representing the traction bankers, according to reports.

Dever is accused of having reached an agreement with the traction bankers to "sell out" the workers of Chicago to them.

The ordinance which gives the bankers a long term franchise on the transportation system of the city, provides that nine men shall completely control the system.

The franchise provides for no method of impeachment of these nine men when once appointed.

Stresemann has completely sold out to the American and British capitalists and even agrees to the Versailles treaty, the instrument used to plunder the German people.

German industrialists and militarists seek the evacuation of Cologne and the Ruhr by the French and the change of the eastern frontier to the detriment of Poland.

The chiefs of the general staffs of the Finnish, Estonian, Latvian and Polish armies are to meet in April to discuss co-operation against the German aim of pushing back her eastern frontier. This group fears that France will no longer be able to support their white guard goverments if the British form an alliance with Germany.

WORKERS PARTY GETS ON BALLOT IN MICHIGAN

Candidates for State and County Offices

DETROIT, Mich., March 27.—For the first time the Workers (Communist) Party's name, the sickle and hammer of the party's vignette and a full slate of Workers Party candidates for state and county offices will be on the ballots in the Michigan election to be held Monday, April 6.

For the first time in Michigan, April 6 we industrial and office workers and exploited agricultural toilers will be able to use our franchise exclusively for our class, the working class. The Workers Party is America's working class party.

The republican party that is in power in Michigan and all the United States is the strongest capitalist class party in the world today. The Workers Party is not yet a mass party. But in the coming contest at the polls we must show whatever political and moral strength we can.

Members of trade unions should be the first to support openly the only American party recognized by the Third International as a revolutionary party.

Let us not forget in the face of our reduced economic condition common to those who work for wages that the Workers Party and all of us of the working class have history inevitably on our side.

Forward to the polls then, workingmen and women, and let us boldly mark our ballots for our class, party and candidates.

Ramsay MacDonald Helps Labor Haters Bury Tyrant Curzon

LONDON, England, March 27.—Ramsay MacDonald, former "labor" prime minister, acted as pallbearer at the funeral of Marquis Curzon, one of England's most tyrannical suppressors of the colonial peoples.

MacDonald acted with Prime Minister Baldwin, Winston Churchill, representatives of the king and queen and the prince of Wales and other enemies of the working class.

Special Commission Is Appointed to Probe Fate of Muscle Shoals

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27.—The special commission which will investigate Muscle Shoals and draft recommendations for its disposal by the government was announced by President Coolidge.

It follows: Former Representative John C. McKenzie, Illinois; former Senator Nathaniel B. Dial, South Carolina; Professor Harry A. Curtis, Yale; William McClellan, New York City; Russell F. Bower, farm bureau federation.

NEGRO KILLER IS LET OFF BY LILY WHITE SOUTHERN JURY

CROSS CITY, Fla., March 27.—The first trial growing out of the alleged whipping, shooting and burning of Lewis Barker, a Negro lumber worker and clothing salesman, resulted today in the acquittal of G. W. McCrane, a construction foreman for the Putnam Lumber company, the first of six defendants scheduled to be tried under an indictment charging first degree murder.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in Judge Mallory F. Horne's circuit court. The jury was out more than fifteen hours before returning a verdict.

Government Steals Many Millions from Indians, Is Charge

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Demand that Chas. H. Burke, former South Dakota congressman, resign his office of commissioner of Indian affairs, in the interior department, is made by Joseph W. Latimer, writer and propagandist in favor of liberation of the Indians from bureaucratic dependence.

Latimer calls attention, in a circular letter, to the Oklahoma land cases investigated by the house committee on Indian ffairs, resulting in a whitewash report by the majority and a scathing denunciation of the bureau and of the Oklahoma probate courts by the minority.

In one instance an estate of $1,000,000, left by an imbecile Indian, Jackson Barnett, 70 years old, was divided in half by Burke. To the "widow" Burke allowed $550,000; the other half of the estate became an endowment to institutions of the baptist church.

The Indian bureau handles $50,000,000 a year, the income of property owned by the Indians worth $1,000,000,000. Instead of giving education to the young Indians, the bureau control has devoted most of its energies to employing lawyers outside the bureau, at high fees payable by the Indians, to quarrel over individual estates.

Broken Bow Escapes Fire.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 27.—Telephone reports from lumber companies' officials at Broken Bow at 9:30 o'clock this morning said that the wind had shifted and danger to the town from prairie fires had passed. No loss of life has been reported. The fires are believed, according to reports, to be under control.

SIXTH YEAR OF JAIL FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI

Delay Brings Torture to Framed-up Men

BOSTON, Mass., March 27.—Long months more of imprisonment for Sacco and Vanzetti, before the Massachusetts supreme court passes on their appeal for a new trial are inevitable from the expected refusal of the prosecution to go ahead with their side of the case.

The excuse given for the delay, which is so torturous to Sacco and Vanzetti, is that Judge Thayer has been dangerously ill and convalescing from a critical operation; and that District Attorney Wilbar who succeeded Williams, when the latter was appointed to a federal district attorneyship, has not had time to study the case.

William G. Thompson, defense attorney, in a letter to the Sacco and Vanzetti committee, says he has been unable to elicit any information from Wilbar as to whether he will consent to the allowance of certain supplementary bills of exceptions that are part of the appeal. For weeks before Williams was promoted he was equally unsuccessful with him.

Meanwhile Vanzetti, his nervous system upset by the sustained suspense, is still marking time in the Bridgewater state hospital. Sacco, likewise, is chafing at the delay, as he sits behind the bars in his little cell at Dedham jail.

Knowledge of Birth Control Chiefly for Women, Says Doctor

NEW YORK, March 27.—One of the most picturesque figures of the English birth control movement is Dr. Alice Drysdale Vickery, one of the speakers at the birth control conference now in session at the Hotel McAlpin in New York. Dr. Vickery is the veteran of the movement. She has seen public opinion change from hatred and contempt of the scientists and sociologists, and today she addressed an attentive and respectful audience when she spoke to the conference on what birth control will mean to mankind.

Birth control in Dr. Vickery's opinion, is chiefly a question for the women to whom belongs naturally the peopling of the world. In the past woman has been helpless on account of her ignorance of everything that pertains to her biological function, an ignorance which has been preserved by men and by the church. Not knowing how to control reproduction, and naturally desiring to mate early, she fell into a state of dependence. Knowledge of birth control methods can now assure to her the possibility of early marriage along with the preservation for a few years of her economic independence.

Assembly Opens Way to Longer Hours for Women and Children

ALBANY, N. Y., March 27.—After killing in committee the genuine 48-hour bill for women and minors, the republican assembly passed by one vote the fake 48-hour Joiner bill which allows hours for women and minors to be extended beyond 48 hours at the discretion of the industrial commission. This opens the way, especially in the cannery industry, to a continuation of the present long hour regime.

Graft charges were freely passed in the corridors and even found expression on the floor, Assemblyman John Boyle, Jr., bolting republican, saying: "I understand that the lobby for the (Joiner) bill was worth $20,000 last year.

Minority leader Block declared that in the name of reform conditions would actually be made worse, pointing out that the latitude given the industrial commission in the Joiner bill would permit hours to be extended even beyond the 54 set as the limit by the present law.

School Year Grows Longer.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Bureau of education statistics show that the average school year in the public schools in the United States has grown from 158 days in 1912 to 164 days in 1922, due to consolidation of schools. Rural schools averaged, in 1912, a year of 134 days. In 1922 they averaged 145 days. Five states still have one-room schools whose average is 120 days or less; 14 states have them open 140 to 160 days, and 8 states 120 to 140 days.

Springfield Comrades Call Conference to Help Textile Workers

(Special to the DAILY WORKER)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 27—A special meeting for the purpose of helping the textile workers on strike in Williamantic, Conn., was held here by the Workers Party to which the Russian and Jewish branches and the Young Workers' League sent representatives. A motion was carried instructing the C. C. C. to send out a call for a conference inviting sympathetic organizations to participate. The object of the conference will be to devise ways and means for assisting the textile workers and their families. At this conference attended by thirty comrades a collection was taken which brot $42.87. This was immediately sent to Comrade William Simons who is at Williamantic, Conn. assisting in the fight.

AN EX-ARMENIAN MENSHEVIK HEAD NOW FOR SOVIETS

MOSCOW, March 27—The former president of the Dashnak (menshevist nationalistic) Armenian government, Mr. Katshasnuni, author of the book on Armenia entitled "There Is Nothing More to Do for the Dashnak Party," which has drawn general attention among emigrant and broad foreign circles; has returned to Erivan, capital of Soviet Armenia, to take an active part as a civil engineer in the reconstruction of his country.

In conversation with press representatives Mr. Katchasnuni declared that he had more than a year and a half ago broken with the Dashnaks The situation of Transcaucasia as he actually found it, he said, was excellent.

Mr. Katshasnun said that the attitude of the Armenian peoples abroad towars Soviet Armenia was very sympathetic, and that there were no more vestiges of the former anti-Soviet feeling among them except the emigrant "tops" who by a certain inertia were still hostile to the Union of Sovet Socialist Republics.

Arab Strike Makes Balfour "Seasick" on Jerusalem Visit

LONDON, England, March 27—Reports here state that Lord Balfour is ill of "seasickness," in Jerusalem and will probably be unable to make all the visits he had planned.

The Arbas in Palastine have gone on strike against the English, the strike beginning the moment Balfour stepped off the boat.

Fishermen Congress in Russia.

Five hundred fishing unions were represented at the first all-Union congress held in Russia the magnitude of which shows the startling progress which Russia is making toward economic strength by use of co-operative business methods. The congress considered further extension of credit facilities to constituent unions and urged the creation of a central wholesale society to gather all of Russia's fish production for unified marketing.

Separatist Leader Dies.

COLOGNE, Germany, March 27.—Joseph Smeets, the separatist leader, died here today.

"THE OFFICIAL OPPOSITION"

IN the past year, the labor movement in this country has undergone sharp changes.

NO longer does the membership of organized labor look to "progressives," "socialists" and "independents" to question the leadership of the reactionary bureaucracy in power.

THE clear-cut program and militant policy of the Left Wing, guided by the Trade Union Educational League—with Communists as the motive power—has driven from the field all fake "progressives," every pseudo "socialist"—every obstacle that beclouded the issues and prevented the progress of labor in this country.

TODAY there remain only two definite groupings:

ONE the old bureaucratic machine:—the seat of reaction, the hand-maiden of Capitalism, the reason for the fact that organized American labor has become the most backward body of labor in the world.

THE other group is the Left Wing: Commmunist-led, militant, with a program that leads to working class power.

THE DAILY WORKER has been the spokesman of the Left Wing in its crystalization; has pictured its daily struggles, has taught its principles and practice, has helped to make it "The Official Opposition" to the reactionary lords of organized labor in this country.

AT this moment and until June 15 The DAILY WORKER is conducting its Second Annual Sub Campaign for 15,000 new subscribers. It asks every militant in this country to get at least two subs:—one from your shop-mate or member of your union, and another that you will pay for (if you can): a "propaganda sub" to extend the influence of the paper expressing the new force and growing power in American labor.

WILL you—as a militant worker—do your share? These sub "bricks" to build The DAILY WORKER are for your convenience. Clip them, attach your remittance and send them to

Secret Deportations

Foreign-born members of the Marine Transport Workers' Union in New York are being secretly deported.

They disappear and their friends and fellow workers have no knowledge of their whereabouts until a letter with a foreign postmark arrives.

We question if such despotic methods were ever used by any other government in the last hundred years with the possible exception of the czarist regime of pre-revolutionary Russia.

The unions are the principal objects of attack as we Communists told the workers they would be if the war on the foreign-born workers was not halted by militant action.

The New York cases are by no means exceptional. It is gradually becoming known to the workers that no foreign-born toiler has any rights which he can insist the government agencies respect. The co-operation of the labor union officials with the department of immigration and the secret service is an established fact. It was not so very long ago that presidents of labor unions sent out to the locals instructions or requests to deliver to the authorities any worker suspected of illegal entry into the United States—a nattempt to make of every union member a stoolpigeon. Open support of vicious legislation against the foreign-born workers has been given by labor officialdom.

The chickens begin to come home to roost. Deportations, secret and otherwise, can and will break union after union in the United States unless labor demands the repeal of all legislation upon which deportations are based, secures the annulment of these laws or else renders them ineffective by mass protest.

Revolt Grows in Egypt

The puppet government of Egypt set up under King Fuad by Great Britain was repudiated in the elections held recently. Zaghloul Pasha, leader of the Egyptian independence movement, deposed by the British, was returned to parliament and headed teh cabinet.

King Fuad has dissolved the parliament rather than allow the national cabinet to function and the Egyptian independence problem, considered settled by the slaughter of the sympathetic Sudanese and the ousting of Zaghloul, presents itself again in an acute form to British imperialism.

The days when national liberation movements among the colonial peoples could be wiped out entirely are past. They have a solid organizational character and no longer depend upon sentimental appeals alone. Revolts appear in all of imperialism's sweated zones of influence, mandated territories and colonies proper. They constitute a great force making for the weakening of world capitalism.

The Communist International, guided by Lenin's teachings recognizes the colonial masses as the allies of the working class of the imperialist nations, as a powerful force for the conquest of capitalism.

The Communist press therefore pays particular attention to all the struggles for liberation of the colonial peoples and oppressed national and racial minorities.

A "Labor" Article

Under the head of "Communists Still Bore From Within" the last number of the Federation News, the weakly (correct) organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, the policy of the local officialdom is set forth.

Many workers who remember the early militant record of the Chicago labor movement will be surprised to know the article mentioned is a blanket endorsement of William Johnston and the B. and O. company union plan, the union-smashing tactics of Lewis and Farrington as well as a boost for Czar Hutcheson, president of the carpanters' union—whose name, by the way, this well-informed editor spells "Hutchinson."

This is what we call a good job in one short article. It would be hardly possible to get more reaction into the same number of words. The job is accomplished by attacking the Communists.

The only way the Communists can be attacked is by boosting the betrayers and oppressors of the working class. Every enemy of the Communist Party is therefore a friend of capitalism.

It is so easy to prove this by articles like that in the Federation News that it is hardly worth the trouble.

Soviet Russia would be welcomed at disarmament conferences if the workers' and peasants' government did not actually insist on taking the conferences seriously

Dawes, Death and Disaster

Fifty miners are killed outright and thirty more probably will die in a coal mine disaster in French Alsace, say dispatches.

But a short time ago a horrible explosion, afterwards proven to have been the direct result of ignoring safety for speed in order to produce "reparation coal" under the Dawes plan, took a toll of 138 German miners at Dortmund.

This coal is put on the world market in competition with French, English and American coal, and from the profit comes "reparation" to the bondholders and financiers of the Paris bourse, Threadneedle street in London and Wall Street in New York. To the German miners comes death and disaster—or 10 and 12 hours of labor for from $7 to $9 a week.

These are the fruits of the Dawes plan. And the same day's dispatches tell of the shutting down of more American mines, in an attempt to cut wages. The English miners are driven to the edge of desperation and will soon enter a great struggle to maintain their present pittance of wages and scale of hours.

The miners are feeling the Dawes plan first and more forcefully than any other great industry. The American miners have need to look to their fighting forces. They have need to make common cause with the miners of all the world, especially with the enslaved German miners, to break the world-wide open shop drive that is being made upon their unions and free themselves from danger and starvation combined.

To accomplish this unity, they must inevitably overthrow the incubus of Lewisism and fight under the banner of the Red International of Labor Unions for world unity.

The Fascist's Foes

The real opposition to Mussolini and fascism is working class, led by the Communist Party. This statement, made by us many times, is proved once more by the scenes in the chamber of deputies yesterday.

Only the Communist deputies denounced Mussolini and staged a demonstration against him. The liberal and constitutional opposition distinguished itself by remaining silent and passive when the combined forces of fascist deputies and guards ejected the Communists.

It requires some courage merely to criticize the fascist government as even the liberals do occasionally—and mildly—but it takes men of iron to openly denounce it and call for its overthrow. Such men have been produced by the ceaseless struggle against Italian capitalism.

They are Communists—at one and the same time the shock troops and general staff of the revolution.

The Kentucy state authorities have banned poor old Darwin. If you live in the original moonshine state you must either believe in Adam and his rib or keep your mouth shut.

Hawaii

There is something else in Hawaii besides ukeleles, hula choruses and pineapple plantations.

There are huge fortifications equipped with the most modern machinery of destruction. In the peaceful waters of the Pacific near Hawaii the navy of the United States is conducting the most elaborate maneuvers in its history.

Two soldiers are in jail in Honolulu because they wrote to a local newspaper correcting mis-statements about Soviet Russia. Hostility towards the Japanese plantation laborers is rampant. The Hawaiian chamber of commerce is as militantly patriotic as any similar body in continental America.

During the war for which the naval maneuvers are a preliminary exercise, Hawaii will be often in the headlines.

The close relations of nation and nation under world capitalism are already shown by the feverish interest of the imperialist press in the German elections.

School Days

In another column is a resolution adopted unanimously by the students of the Chicago Workers (Communist) Party Intensive Training School. Its fourteenth session ended today.

The resolution could very well have been matched by one by the instructors expersing their appreciation of the interest and intelligence displayed by the students.

When the school began we remarked that it was one institution where the instructors would learn just as the pupils and we see no reason to alter this in anyway.

It has been a fine thing for the students, the teachers, the district and the whole party. The returns from the investment in time and energy required will begin to come as soon as the students return to their homes with the added knowledge and experience they have acquired in as busy a two-week period as they have ever spent.

Exposing Poland's Murder Regime

The Workers (Communist) Party is responding splendidly to the call for aid in saving the life of Comrade Stanislav Lanzutsky, now in the murderous clutches of the Polish hangmen.

News of demonstrations and mass meetings already held or in preparation is pouring in. Before huge crowds of Polish workers the anti-working class character of the Polish government is exposed.

The landlords and capitalists of Poland may retaliate by increasing the persecution of the Polish Communists, but thousands of workers will know why they murder and jail the advance guard of working class.

IRISH PRIEST BLAMES FAMINE ON ITS VICTIMS

Resents Interference from Outside

The attack of a sleek and comfortable catholic priest on the work done by the Workers International Relief among the famine-stricken peasants of Donegal in the west of Ireland is vigorously resented by a reader of the Daily Herald. The Rev. E. Maguire resents the intrusion of outsiders into what he considers his private domain.

It does not look so very good to have non-catholics and indeed people having no connection with any religious organization, feeding the hungry and looking after the needy peasants, so sadly neglected by the priests who fleece them of every penny they can lay hands on.

Following Mrs. Helen Crawford's report on the scenes of misery witnessed by her in Donegal, Rev. Maguire sent a letter to the London Daily Herald; protesting against her discription of the condition of a certain Donaghey family. The letter reads:

"This family receive 10s. a week; the children get a warm meal in school whenever their not over-strenuous mother sends them out; and donations of various kinds have been forwarded them from time to time.

"Fortunately, this is not a typical household, embracing, as it does, three ablebodied men, disinclined to do any sort of work except fishing, and so unthrifty as never to treasure up any part of their earnings. Having no experience of the 'lives of rats,' I can only point out that the dwelling, if fairly well kept, would be most comfortable and salubrious.

"We can struggle thru this mild crisis without hysterical appeals."

It will be noted that the holy father blamed the misery on the poor peasant fisherman and on the "not over-strenuous mother" of the children. But a Mr. P. B. MacMorrough, of London has something to say to the priest in an interview to the Herald in that paper's issue of March 6. It is given here in full:

"Must the bones of these infants and adults protrude thru the skin... before the hierarch and politician give the famine workers official sanction?"

This striking question is asked by Mr. P. B. MacMorrough, who, in a letter to the Daily Herald, makes a vigorous reply to the Rev. E. Maguire's statement concerning the famine distress in Western Ireland, published in our columns recently.

Drying Up Sympathy

"This," says Mr. MacMorrough, who conducts from an office in Fleet street, London, a scheme run on co-operative lines for disposing of Donegal tweeds, "is a questionable attempt to dry up the springs of sympathy and good will of the Workers' International Relief. It is a form of meanness identified with the well-to-do in village life.

"Biddy Donaghey's mud-wall cabin," he goes on, "with its five infants and four adults; with its bare cupboard and empty grate; cold, dark, drap, creepy, windswept interior, compares favourably for lowliness with the manger!

"This hard-working woman," continues Mr. MacMorrough, "shows an extraordinary skill at knitting. The men? For them there is no work available in the summer, much less the winter. Fishing is more of a tragic recreation than remunerative. There is no cash available for replacements to keep their crazy little craft worthy for fishing.

A Contrast

"These daring workers venture far out to sea for fish, insufficient after the share-out to make a day's meals. The petty tradesman impose on this cash scarcity and buy salmon for as little as 6d. per lb., and sell it in England for 2s to 3s. per lb.

"There are hundreds of families like the Donagheys scattered over the hills of Donegal—that the Irish sing so feelingly about—and elsewhere, some even worse off because of greater isolation.

"To decry, whether by design or partisanship, this working class effort of the W. I. R., or to minimize the tragedy of want, is" concludes Mr. MacMorrough, "senseless ferocity."

"No Help from Me," Cal's Secretary Tells the Farmers

WASHINTGON, D. C., March 27.—Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, newly appointed by President Coolidge, declared in outlining his policies that "the farmers must help themselves."

Jardine admitted the farm crisis had been severe. "Due to a complexity of conditions, the price of farm products during this period has been low," Jardine said. "While the farmer has had to pay high taxes and relatively high prices for the things he had to buy. Many a farmer has been saddled with debt and has had difficulty in meeting expenses."

The Workers Party in Action

COMINTERN CALLS FOR UNITY!

The following cable was received from Moscow dated March 25, 1925:

AMERICAN commission will soon render political decision based on which both factions can and must work together and thru which party unity will be secured. Minority must absolutely submit to discipline and decisions of central executive committee. At same time C. E. C. must so practice discipline that it should not sharpen struggles within party thru measures which could be regarded factional. On the contrary C. E. C. must already now do everything to advance harmonious co-operation of both groups. American commission will take steps necessary to review and settle disciplinary cases in connection with party fight.

Majority Delegation.
Minority Delegation.
American Commission:
HUMBERT-DROZ.

A Call for Unity and Action

By the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party and the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE PARTY AND THE LEAGUE.

Comrades: The Communist International will very soon render a decision on the questions before the party. The decision will be based upon thoro consideration of the matter in consultation with the delegates from our party representing both points of view on the farmer-labor party issue. The matter is in the hands of the C. I. It is not an issue before the party.

We now call upon every member of the party and the league, irrespective of the position taken by him in the discussion, to rally around the practical tasks confronting the party, and give the C. E. C. and the N. E. C. their utmost support in carrying on this work.

We Call for Unity and Action.

During the past four months the party and the league have been making great progress. The left wing in the trade union movement has consolidated and extended its strength. On every political issue that has arisen in the life of the American workers, the party took the initiative in educating and organizing the workers for struggle against capitalism. Communist ideology and influence are steadily making their way into the minds of the toiling masses of the United States.

We must, however, not rest content with our achievements. We must redouble our efforts to strengthen and extend our campaigns against wage cuts and the "open shop" drive, against child labor, against Negro discriminations, against the Dawes' plan, for recognition of Soviet Russia, for amalgamation of the craft unions and for shop committees, for International Red Aid, for unity of the world trade union movement, instilling into all these activities the idea of class political action of the workers under the leadership of a revolutionary political party.

It is the duty of our party to become the real mass party of the American working class. The Workers (Communist) Party must develop into the actual leader of struggles of the masses against capitalism. Our party must root itself more deeply into the daily struggles of the toiling masses. This means still more effort, loyalty, devotion, and discipline, on the part of every member and every unit of the party.

At this moment when the Comintern is passing judgment on all differences within the party, there can be no justification for neglect of party duty. We must point out the fact that quite a number of comrades that disagreed with the central executive committee on the farmer labor party issue have permitted themselves to be swayed by these differences to such an extent as to neglect party work and in several instances to even sabotage party decisions and activities. Such an attitude is absolutely not permissable in a Communist Party.

Within a few days the decision of the Comintern will have settled all controversial points. All factionalism and fractional divison within the party must be immediately liquidated. The entire party organization must be fused into one organic unity for organized and disciplined work.

Forward to unity and struggle!

Central Executive Committee,
Workers (Communist) Party of America.

National Executive Committee,
Young Workers' League of America.

THE TERROR IN PALESTINE

(Statement of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America to the American working class.)

The Zionists, assisted energetically by the Zionist socialist party, have imperialism, is carrying out horrible persecutions of the Arabian peasantry and the members of the Communist Party of Palestine, the staunchest defender of the workers and peasants of Palestine.

The Zionists, assisted energetically by the Zionist socialist party, have started a deliberate campaign with the object of exterminating the Arabs and colonizing the ancient homes of these people with members of their organization.

In this they carry out the policy of the British government which fears the rise of a movement for Arabian independence and encourages and finances the Zionist organization in their war on the Arabian peasantry.

Last December the Zionists precipitated a bloody conflict with the peasantry and since that time have arrested and beaten many peasants and the Communists who exposed the encounter as part of a deliberate plot to provoke insurrection that was to be put down mercilessly by British troops.

The Zionists have instituted a blacklist of Communists and driven them from their jobs and small farm holdings.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America calls the attention of the American working class to these outrages occurring in the name of self-determination of small nations.

It reminds them that the same persecutions have been carried under British imperialist auspices in Ireland, India, Egypt and other British colonies.

It calls to the attention of Jewish masses in America particularly the crimes committed against the poor peasants of Arabia and the Communist Party of Palestine in the name of Jewish liberation.

It calls upon them to repudiate these instruments of British imperialist tyranny, to denounce the criminals in the most emphatic manner and rally to the aid of the workers and poor peasants of Palastine, to hold mass meetings and protest the outrages against the revolutionary section of the workers of Palastine, the Communists, to put a stop to the cruel and inhuman practices of those who speak in the name of Zionism.

Signed: Central Executive Committee, Workers (Communist) Party of America.

ANSWER YELLOW ATTACK AGAINST SOVIETS SUNDAY

dedicated to international unity of the working class, commemorating as it does the effort of the workers of Paris to establish their own government in the Commune of 1871. This effort failed for lack of unity of the workers thruout France and the rest of Europe—the celebration year after year of this red letter day in proletarian history is a pledge that this must never happen again.

The immediate political effect of this International Unity Demonstration is to wipe out the puny efforts of the straggling foes of Russian recognition by showing the world that the working class of America, regardless of race, creed, or politics, stands squarely by its Russian comrades in their struggles.

Will There Be Movies?

At the time of going to press efforts are still being made to lift the outrageous ban on the motion picture "Prisoners for Progress" in time for this show. Whether the mayor and chief of police can be moved to action in this short time remains to be seen. If it were a capitalist picture to foster race hatred the story would be different. But the pictured information contained in this film can and will be shown, and the audience will have a chance to judge for itself the reasons why the censors object to the film.

The rest of the program includes the Finnish and Bohemian gymnasts, the Jugo-Slav Tamburitza band, the Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra and Chorus appearing together the first time on an English stage, and the South Slav chorus. There will be a song and Red Army drill by a large group of Lithuanian children, and a wonderful dance pageant "The Paris Commune" with the Red Revel dancers and a cast of 100. A one-act Irish play, "The Tinker's Wedding," is also in preparation by the Studio Players.

Lettish Singer and Russian Dancer

F. George Laubert, noted Lettish baritone, will give three songs in Italian, Lettish and English.

Art Comiacov, formerly of the Petrograd Imperial Opera ballet, will give a series of four short dances, assisted by two of his advanced pupils, the Misses Lutkus and Muzuka. A. [illegible] Hambro will accompany at the piano.

Three Speeches.

Earl R. Browder, acting secretary of the Workers Party, will replace Wm. F. Dunne, on the subject, "The World's Workers Answer the Irish Famine."

Robert Minor, about to go on trial in Michigan, and just returned from a supremely successful eastern tour of "Answer Abramovitch Meetings," has for his subject: "Fight Back the White Terorr."

Lovett Fort-Whiteman, one of the foremost Negro writers and orators, just returned from an eight months' tour thru Russia and among the eastern peoples', will speak on "The Oppressed People's Rise Against Capitalism."

Early Start Expected.

The length and richness of the program makes it necessary to start on time. Doors will open at 1:30, and all volunteers for committee work should get to the hall by 12:30.

Volunteers Needed

One hundred volunteers needed to be at the Ashland Auditorium at one o'clock Sunday, to prepare for the International Unity Demonstration to be given that afternoon under the auspices of the International Workers' Aid.

Communists Lead Coke Miners

Fayette county, the wage cut took place already on March 15tn. The miners being entirely unorganized did not know how to meet it until the Communists got busy urging resistance. The camps were completely covered with Workers Party leaflets "Strike Against Wage Cuts." The miners got ready and these three camps were among the first to come out. The Communists are now strongly taking the initiative in urging the miners to stand solid to organize the strike and to make common cause with the rank and file workers in the United Mine Workers of America.

Altho they recognize as well as anybody that the miners in this whole territory were deliberately sold out by the officials in 1922, still they point out effectively the need of re-establishing the local unions of the mine workers which formerly existed in that county.

Communists Organizing for the U. M. W. of A.

Even those miners who at that time were victimized and had to seek work elsewhere are following this lead and also recognize that there must be only one union of the American coal miners. Despite the action of John L. Lewis and his lieutenants in 1922 which is so well remembered by these unorganized miners they are gradually becoming convinced of the correctness of the leadership given by the Communists.

Fight to the finish is the slogan of the militants, recognizing that this is only a beginning of a general drive for wage cuts thruout every mining district of the country. Already mine bosses inform the men that every company in Fayette county will make similar wage cuts on April 1st.

The Old Battle Renewed.

At a mass meeting in Uniontown on Labor Day, 1922, attended by 40,000 Fayette county local miners, these miners demanded to know from the union officials what support they would give to the strikers. The coke miners proposed that in case the union was not ready to give the necessary support to continue the strike that it would be better to go back organized and maintain the organization intact. Finally in February the following year the betrayal was complete.

The miners were compelled to go back unorganized. Now steps are being taken to re-establish the union and the fighting spirit of the miners is today of as high a quality as ever.

Middle Western Feudalism

By DAVID COUTTS.

MUSCATINE, IOWA.

THIS town is the graveyard of craft unions and hopes of the workers. Following the button wokers' strike fourteen years ago the spirit of Muscatine died. At that time little business started in friendly to the strikers, but as soon as the factory owners brot in gunmen and militia little business changed front.

They wanted law and order, peace and harmony; so the strike was lost after twelve months of battling. The workers were defeated in a decisive battle and reduced to a state of serfdom. Little business has had to give up its "independence" and become the vassal of the millionarie owner of Muscatine.

THE button workers defeated the first attempt to use gunmen to protect strikebreakers. The thugs were driven into a hotel and surrounded, and only the pleadings of the "best citizens" saved them. They were allowed to depart, only to return later with three times the force. This aroused the entire town and the national guard was called out to protect "law and order."

Apparently the spirit of the strikers could not be broken from without. They then resorted to the tactic of the French socialist, Briand, they called the strikers to the colors in the national guard to break the spirit of their own strike. Most of the guardsmen were button workers.

Since the strike there has been no organization whatever in the button factories.

Lumber Baron's Empire.

THERE are six button finishing and about twenty button cutting plants in Muscatine. Some of the finishing plants also have cutting departments Button cutting plants are being placed in the little hamlets in the country and the farmer and his boys are doing the cutting when he is not working sixteen hours a day on his rented acres.

In the early days of Muscatine, old man Musser owned a lumber yard and prospered. He soon blossomed out into a lumber baron, owning forest tracts and saw mills, and during the war got mixed up in some deal to grab forests and was "investigated", by the government. Old man Musser left his son a lot of millions and the baronetcy of Muscatine.

TODAY young Musser is said to be worth a hundred million. He owns two or three button factories, two large sash and door factories, a number of banks and forty per cent of the business men have got to "see" him to do business.

Old man Musser was "good" to the town and gave a library, public park and other trinkets to decorate his domain. Needless to say that panels bear his name in big letters to show the "beneficence" of the departed master.

"Sweating System" for Slaves.

THE men and women employed in sash and door factories work nine hours per day, 5½ days per week, for from $12.40 to $19.25. In the button factories the average wage for a week of fifty hours is $14.50. Beginners get $2.50 per day.

About two weeks ago an expert button cutter, who has been following this work for over twenty years, got $12.85 for fifty hours work. Another good button cutter got $18.00 for a full week and had a family of four to support. A very few of the younger men, by maintaining terrific speed, make up to $25.00 for a full week.

This is all piece work and prices are cut every time orders fall off, which appears to be often now. A gross of buttons in Muscatine is 168 at the factory and all breakages count against the worker.

Women make as much as some of the men. They, too, work piece work, sewing buttons on cards at two cents a gross.

AS soon as children get big enough they are forced into the factories to add to the family wage. With the cost of necessities high in Muscatine the slaves cannot even afford a ten-cent movie.

"American Peasants" Cut Wages.

There are many small farmers around Muscatine. They come to "town" every Saturday and stand around on "Main Street" visiting. They also come in during the winter to cut buttons, or to cut ice, ten hours a day at $2.25 to $2.50.

In order to reduce the workers and farmers still further these small plants are being placed out in the country, where the farmer can cut buttons for the boss two or three days and then work on his rented or mortgaged acres the other part of the week. Or he may work full time during the winter months in the factory. In this way the wages are kept down to the lowest, the farmer having his house and much of his own food, will work cheap.

TO understand the small farmer's situation: He is a relic of the individualistic, "land and liberty" age. He knows nothing of hours, wages, organization or working conditions. The only money he ever sees is the few dollars he gets for butter or eggs. His other products are mortgaged and transferred by check to the banker. Even $2.00 for ten hours looks big to him with his simple needs supplied in great part from his land. So the slave drivers in Muscatine are using the peasant to beat down the proletariat in the city.

Kluxers, Socialists and Rubber Tired Farmers.

IN spite of the small wages depriving them of the movies, hundreds of the slaves and small business men joined the klan. The organizer got from three to four thousand dollars for membership fees at $10.00 each. The klan is now on the decline and will soon be history in Muscatine. Mr. Gladstine, a Jewish gentleman who owns one of the largest dry goods stores in town, is trying to collect for a lot of material sold to the klan during its days of prosperity.

A number of the socialists, who could not afford to pay twenty-five cents a month dues to the party, out of their small wages dug up $10.00 to help the klan save the country. The present mayor was elected on the republican ticket, which was the klan ticket. He was formerly a member of the socialist party, then flirted with the democrats before joining the klan ~~and the~~ republicans.

THE socialists have had a local in South Muscatine for many years. This suburb is about two miles out, a working class section to which no attention is ever paid. There is no side-money in the job of alderman. The socialists have wanted a sewer system there for the past twenty years. They got it all "fixed" once, but a petition was circulated which was signed generally and shelved the proposition. They have elected their socialist alderman regularly and this goes to show the outside world that Kaiser Musser of Muscatine loves his socialists.

There are many retired farmers, "Rubber Tired," Dad Walker calls them, living in Muscatine. The residential section has the appearance of prosperity, with good houses on paved streets. Bond issues for paving or sewage in the working class districts are generally defeated by the self-satisfied, retired farmer.

Labor Union "Ghosts."

THERE is a carpenters', bricklayers' and street carmen's local in Muscatine. The Typographical Union, electrical workers and barbers also have a few members. A member of the Typographical Union writes about two columns a week for the local capitalist daily, which, although it is apparently honest, lacks even a semblance of inspiration. There is an atmosphere of hopelessness among the workers which gives these little locals the appearance of ghosts. They are the symbol of the vanishing spirt of what was once the scene of a decisive battle.

Throughout Iowa, and especially in towns like Muscatine and Marshall town, there is a big task before the Workers Party and the trade union movement. First to revive the hope of a small militant minority and organize them into the party. Then follow this up with an intensive organization drive for the labor unions, making it a concerted, united campaign to sweep every worker into the union. To overcome the power of the feudal baron this movement must take on the apperance, it must actually be a revolt, a rebellion against the intolerable conditions now being imposed upon the workers.

THESE small towns are a vast reservoir for scabs and strikebreakers. They must be educated and organized, or their 100 per cent psychology will be used to crush the rising spirit of the city workers everywhere. A united front for an attack on ignorance is needed.

The Farmer---A Victim of Conspiracy

By H. T. AHRENS.

AN analysis of the farmers' present economic position gives proof that he is the victim of a conspiracy by those who are the beneficiaries of the capitalist system and who wish to perpetuate same at all hazards.

The present system has served its purpose and outlived it usefulness.

The greatest danger of a collapse lies in the inability to keep the workers employed.

The country which has a judiciously organized industrialism and cheap transportation, flanked by a working class which is able and willing to exist cheaply and is willing to slave during long hours, will be the successful competitor on the international market.

America is not in this position. The industries are waterlogged with fictitious values. The working class makes more demands on life than other nationals. The products both raw and finished in most cases have to be transported over long distances,

IT is admitted that America stands before a crisis. There must be greater and more successful competition on an ever narrowing world's market or the industrial worker will only find work during a part of the year.

In order to compete on the international market the worker must have a lower cost of living. The farmer now appears as an actor in the great drama. The farmer was deflated for more than one purpose. When the financial czars refused the financing of the grain trade, which financing was only then resumed when cereals had been reduced to one-half of the former price, then was enacted the first act of the great drama. Bread was cheapened to the breaking point, the wheat grower became a bankrupted pariah. Under the guise of benevolence the emissaries of the master class were loosed upon him, they counseled that he engage in other branches of farming along with growing cereals. Bread had been cheapened to the lowest point, it was intended that the price of milk, butter, eggs, vegetables, meats, wool, etc., should follow the same course. Then living cost would have been reduced and a reduction of wages would have taken place.

THE wheat growers found it impossible to follow this advice, partly on account of inadaptability of the soil and partly because the work of raising wheat left him no time to enter other branches. Aside from bread, living expenses are not reduced and the wheat farmer is of all wealth producers the greatest victim, a veritable pariah. Relief and the end is not in sight under the present regime.

The deflation of the cereal farmer meant the bankruptcy of over a million within his ranks. Thousands became renters of their former possessions while multi-thousands migrated to the cities becoming competitiors on an already crowded slave market. The influence of the industrial workers' new competitor will be felt at the proper time, for a starving human will do anything to relieve hunger. If the drive for the open shop is successful, the unemployed ex-farmer will, more than any other factor be the cause of its inauguration.

THE third act of the farmers' drama is about to begin. If a certain nation or individuals are enslaved all nations and all individuals will feel the influence of the unjust burdens. The farmers of America are bound to descend to the level occupied by farmers of other countries. The American workers will gravitate to the level occupied by the lowest paid and the worst enslaved since all must compete on the world's market.

WE are living in a period of transition, the capitalist system is breaking down under burdens never carried by the workers of the past ages. The figures representing the exactions have astronomical proportions, they can not be borne. If the producers of wealth choose to stagger along under these burdens then we will enter upon another dark age with the light of progress extinguished.

PALLIATIVES solve nothing, there must be change of the system.. The question of the day is: Shall humanity be enslaved by the machine owned by the few? or shall the producers enslave the machine by entering upon an era of the dictatorship of the proletariat?

OPEN LETTER TO BANKRUPT AND MORTGAGED FARMERS

By JARAW.

COMMUNISTS have been telling you that the way to security and happiness lies in Communism. They say that the foundation of happiness is economic security, and that economic security can be secured only by well organized co-operation in the farming industry. Communists tell you that they advocate a class government of wage earners and dispossessed farmers, and that you will have to cast in your lot with them and their program to attain this goal of well-organized co-operation. They say that to reach this goal the farmers must not only be freed from the powerful opposition of judges, newspapers and legislatures, and the banking class which controls them, but that they must have the active and consciencious support of a class government of wage workers and dispossessed farmers. Now at last the falsity of the Communist viewpoint has been ably shown by Mr. Arthur Brisbane, writing for Hearst newspapers in the large cities of the country.

MR. BRISBANE says: "Are there opportunities left for young Americans in the far west or are the opportunities all gone? . . . Under the homestead act and the desert land act, the two brothers (Hodge) took up about 500 acres here, on the Mohave desert. . . . The Hodge ranch shows what work can produce in the desert. . . Seventeen acres of alfalfa yield each season 127 tons, which sells at the railroad siding a mile and a half away for $27 a ton—$3,429 worth of alfalfa from seventeen acres. The desert land, plus courage, hard work and water, yields $184 to the acre. . . Given enough young men of courage to develop the unlimited resource of the nation, including crops that the deserts can produce, and there is no need to worry about the future of the United States."

THUS we see how untenable the Communist program for farmers becomes, in the light of intelligence, compared with the program of the well trained and critical mind of Mr. Arthur Brisbane. The cure for the economic ills of the farmers of this country is not in co-operative effort, with the sustained and wholehearted support of a class government of dispossessed farmers and wage workers, but rather in this: Leave your wheat, oats and corn lands, which you hold by grace of the banker who has the mortgage on them, and which you plant and reap by grace of the seed company; leave your dairy and chicken ranches, to which you and your whole family are now enslaved; go west near Barstow, Arizona, and take up a desert claim and raise alfalfa.

The solution is this, not Communism.

HUGHES SEES RED AND FADES OUT

By M. RASGON.

WHEN ex-secretary of state, Charles Evans Hughes, was a boy and had just performed the patriotic feat of cutting down a cherry tree, his mother took him to a gypsy and asked her to gaze into the future of her prodigy son.

The little Hughes did not wear whiskers yet, nevertheless he was considered a very bright child. His faith in Santa Claus was so great that he made a vow not to use any razors at any time of his life and that accounts for his curly whiskers.

On entering the destiny shop Mrs. Hughes announced that she wished to purchase $5.00 worth of future for her son. The future teller caressed the then smooth face of little Hughsie and said: "I can see in your innocent eyes that you will be a great man. When you grow into manhood you will run for president but tho you will run hard the only thing it will bring you will be short breath. Another man Wilson will beat you. But don't get discouraged. You will be a great man. Men of wealth and position will come to you for favors and you will be paid handsomely. You are destined to be a leader of men. You will lead them thru the wilderness of Washington to the oily land of Mexico and you will not lead empty handed.

"But there is one warning I make to you: Beware of the color of red. The color of red will play a dominant part in your life. Whenever you see red—run."

Well, many years have passed since that memorable day but the fear of red and the warning of the gypsy never left the field of Hughsie's consciousness. He even forbids his wife the use or rouge and his children never wear red ribbons or ties. But as the saying goes you cannot escape your fate.

It happened that in a distant country a peasant woman by the name of Russia gave birth to a red giant. The giant, his name was Revolution, from a tiny infant grew to such proportions that soon his head reached the shores of America. His red rays penetrated the marble stone of the White House laboratory where Mr. Hughes was busy on a new anti-red experiment. And for the first time in his life Mr. Hughes saw RED!

He was found uncoscious. They called Professor Coolidge, an expert on that particular disease. After futile effort to bring the prostrated Hughes to life the professor pronounced him politically dead. The funeral was held on the 4th of March. His resting place is Bermuda.

BUILDERS AT WORK

We Have an Agent in the Lehigh Valley

He Uses Bolshevik Methods

IN Russia, Pravda, the great official organ of the Russian Communist Party has been built up by many methods. But one method has been particularly effective in building the Communist Press in the world's first workers'-republic. This method we have often pointed out to our BUILDERS and agents as a means by which we can build "our daily" in this country.

Many of our active Communists, especially since the addition of the T. U. E. L. page have been doing this with splendid results. The method is to write a story on the conditions prevailing in your shop, trade or union and to order a bundle for sale and distribution at the place written about.

The latest agent to follow this sure method to success in this particular Communist activity is City Agent A. Hoffman of Easton, Pa., who covers that city, Phillipsburgh, N. J. and his end of the Lehigh Valley section. He has sent in stories written by himself and by others and orders to follow. We point out this comrade so that others may follow his splendid example. You will hear more from this active Communist BUILDER who has for a long time been giving efficient work to building up the Communist press in this country.

The Transformation of the French C. P.

By G. MARRANE.

GREAT efforts have already been made since the Fifth Congress to re-organize the French party on the basis of nuclei.

In the Paris district the old sectional organization has already disappeared and the members in the factories and establishments have been distributed among nuclei.

There was some hesitation at first among the workers. The chief cause was the fear of being sacked and of not finding employment owing to the solidarity of the employers against the Communists.

A proof of this was the example of the factory nucleus of the Delage Workers, where the seven members were sacked in a few days.

THAT experience was an excellent lesson to the workers, who thereupon became prudent and constituted their nuclei illegally. They thus learned that it was very easy to escape the vigilance of the factory police. At the N. works, as a result of curtailment of work, 2,000 workers were discharged.

Of the 50 members of the enucleus, only three comrades were discharged. This was obviously mere chance and proved that the management do not know who the members of the nucleus are.

Sometimes a nucleus secretary was marked and discharged. The next day, thanks to the connections between the nuclei a job was found for him in a neighboring factory and he became a member of a nucleus in the same district. Such examples are not isolated. The constitution of the nuclei permits the placing of our members in employment thru Communists who are not known, or thru sympathizers.

THE hesitation which at first existed has given way to great enthusiasm.

One of the difficulties in forming nuclei is the small number of members in the little factories.

To fulfil the duties demanded of them our comrades felt that recruiting ought to be undertaken. They have shown ingenuity in organizing propaganda and have brought into the party the comrades in whom they have confidence. In a small factory in the District of X, employing about 150 workers there was only one Communist who was attached to a neighboring nucleus.

With the help of that nucleus he made 17 new members in three months, which has since made it possible to organize a nucleus in that factory. This case is apparently exceptional, but since the Fifth Congress the Federation of the Paris Region has made 3,000 new members with the help of the nuclei.

THE nucleus has a bureau consisting of 3, 5, or 7 members, according to the size of its membership. A member of the Young Communist nucleus is a member of the nucleus bureau, and vice versa. The bureaus meet frequently. In the large nuclei such as that of the M. works, the bureaus meets almost daily.

Each member of the bureau is responsible for a special piece of work. In the M. nucleus, the bureau of which consists of nine members, there are eight commissions; political, organization, newspaper, women's trade union, foreign affairs, contact with the factory and documentary committees.

Each member of the bureau is secretary of one of the commissions and therefore responsible for its work.

Propaganda in the factory is organized in a secret manner. The factory paper is distributed before the arrival of the workers, on a day and at a time fixed by the bureau. The same is the case with leaflets.

IN all the factory offices, as for instance, the washing rooms, the cloak rooms, the lavatories, etc., the factory newspaper is stuck up together with the quotations from Lenin which are printed daily in Humanite, side by side with the title.

The factory management has taken measures and is having the offices especially watched. As soon a a paper is noticed it is torn up. Our comrades then organize "posting." Every nucleus member has a fixed time for posting with the result that the newspapers and tracts follow each other in succession every quarter of an hour, and in spite of the vigilance this form of propaganda reaches the whole staff.

THE nucleus meets once a week after work, and once a month on Sunday mornings in the case of factories which have several shifts.

At these meetings there is always a report on the agenda, usually by a member of the bureau.

The secretary or the delegate reports on political questions to the conference organized once a week by the federation. The same with the delegates on the district committee. The bureau then reports on the work of the commissions and the work for the week is determined. Discussion is then opened and a vote taken on the political questions under consideration.

ALTHO our comrades on the whole have not had a theoretical training, the discussion are even more interesting then they used to be in the sections. With this new organization the workers understand that the Communist Party is their party. This is one of the essential reasons for the increase of our influence in the Paris Region. The workers are not alone in understanding this, it is understood by the employers too. They are conducting a furious campaign against the Communist Party which no doubt will end in making it illegal in the near future. This is proof that it is proceeding along the right lines.

Thoughts in a Cell

A GROUP of striking men and women of the ladies' garment industry started their march courageously, full of hope and inspiration on the picket line .in front of the shop on strike.

It was a beautiful morning, the sun was shining brightly and a mild wind was like a message of the coming spring. However that lovely breeze of an early spring morning did not reach the group of strikers, because before they had a chance to look about, they were arrested at the behest of the boss for walking peacefully in front of their place of work.

THE aim of the wily boss was to break their spirit as bosses usually try to do. The police were well paid and consequently had to make a good job, and keep them as long as possible under arrest. Therefore each of the strikers was placed in a separate cell, or as it is called the "lonesome cell."

One of the girls, a born rebel, whose resistance is strengthened when confronted with greater difficulty, was laughing sarcastically when she was led into the lonesome cell. She thought of the folly of the foolish servants and slaves of the capitalist machine who expected to discourage them by using such methods. In her mind she read thru once more the article written by Shachno Epstein, editor of the Freiheit, which appeared in Sunday's issue of March the 8th, "International Women's Day." While she was reading this article in her imagination, she forgot all about where she was, why she was placed in the cell etc. Her mind was busily engaged. "Shachno Epstein," she said to herself "in his article on the new woman wonders why an artist of the new generation such as David Bergelson does not picture the woman who leads, the woman who fights in her self-defense." There is only one answer to this question: that it takes a Communist to observe the actions and motives of the new woman. For most of the other artists picture only the women of the past.

THE woman who lived in a narrow little world, whose chief aim in life was love and whose main interest was to attract men. She paid attention more to her appearance, in order to attract men. The more she was used for the physical satisfaction of man the more she specialized in the pursuit of his love. She did almost everything in her power to please her master, his orders were law to her, her personality was submerged in his. Consequently there was no reason on earth for her to develop her own individuality.

The artists of the new generation do not see the woman of today who is gradually breaking away from her dependence on the love relation alone. The new woman besides love demands respect for her personality, consideration of her as a human being, recognition of her own self, and freedom for complete independence and self development, so that she can become a useful factor in society.

THE woman of today can no longer find refuge in the matrimonial field as did the woman of the past, because married life today in her opinion only enslaves the partners to each other. To preserve happiness in married life the two must be united in passion, love, respect, comradership and must consider each other as free human beings. To achieve the above conditions, economic independence is the prerequisite, or else marriage can never be a success.

Thus the rebellious girl in her cold and dark cell turned to Communist writers for consolation, saying to herself: "It is you who see the 'new woman,' for whom it is not only longer important merely to be on an equal social plane as man. The new woman strives equally with the man for the emancipation of all the oppressed, that is, the entire working class. The new woman tries to free herself from all the bourgeois prejudices and stands alongside the men revolutionists. For she finds that the battlefield of the revolutionary army invites them; and that the struggle is but one!"

THE keeper who opened the door of the prison cell interrupted her reverie. She, as well as the rest, were set free and went back to the picket line.

Result of Intervention in Ukraine.

MOSCOW, March 27.—The Ukrainian commission for the relief of the victims of foreign intervention has computed at 65 million gold rubles the total sum of claims, which number about 38,500 Over 4,350 were killed, 2,030 have been registered as wounded, and about 10,000 as crippled, during the intervention incidents.

Write us a letter—tell us how you work, what are your wages and shop conditions—and then order a bundle for distribution in your shop.

LIVING IN STEEL TOWNS

IT is appropriate that in Pittsburgh, the stronghold of the mighty steel trust, there should be organized the first group of Communist worker-correspondents. We hope that this will be the first of many similar groups that will form lines of communication for the Communist press and some day make it unnecessary to depend upon capitalist news services.

The DAILY WORKER will be a real mass organ when all its news is gathered and written by worker-correspondents in every industrial center. This article is the second contribution of the Pittsburgh worker-correspondent group. It deals with life and living conditions of the workers.

This is the kind of material that the DAILY WORKER wants. It is not intended that the articles and news stories should do more than conform to a certain readable form so far as style is concerned. It is desirable that each correspondent develop his own inclinations but clearness, reasonable brevity and observation expressed in forceful description should be striven for.—Ed. Note.

A TYPICAL SWEAT SHOP

By LABORISTO.

It would afford any ambitious worker pleasure to get acquainted with one of the most copmlete sweat shops here in the "Iron City," the E. J. Thompson Automobile Factory, at Lexington Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. Let me introduce the place to the readers of the DAILY WORKER. When I applied for a job the manager, Mr. Pillsbury, promised me the day rate of 75c but later I learned that most of the work was piece work.

Of course the rates are so low that even men with 10 years' experience in the trade can hardly make more than ordinary day wages therefore in order to make a little extra after they have toiled for 8 hours and 45 minutes at piece work speed these poor devils in the shop still keep on working two to four hours overtime. Few workers can stand this strain and there is a continual hiring and firing or quitting in the place.

Only the most trained and most willing to work an average of 11 hours a day at the enormous speed required can stay.

Mean Boss Hard on Beginners.

The foreman in the metal trades department of this sweat shop himself a worker but intrusted with looking after the rest is of the typical kind grouchy, mean and bullying. It is hard enough to start a new job expecially in a new trade even when the boss is reasonable but when he is mean, hollering, and swearing and tries to discourage you instead of giving helpful criticism, your job becomes a real hell, particularly when you know that work is hard to find elsewhere.

The company seems to have a great many orders and is putting on men in the metal department. Three of us, who started the same week could not claim to be experienced, and got a lower rate, 55 to 75c, while an experienced man's day rate may be 80 to 90 cents. We were also put on piece work the third day, but never given a chance. We were given only two or three pieces of the same kind making it impossible to get used to the job. The work can easily be learned, if you get a chance to stay at it some time, but after a week they got two more experienced men, and we three were "canned" the morning they started.

Short Pay Checks.

When I received my pay check I objected that it was about $6.00 short according to the rate the manager had promised me. I was told, however, that my rate was only 65 cents as not experienced. Pillsbury had said nothing about cutting on my rate. One of the other fellows, a young boy, told me, that his rate was cut from 55 cents to 45 cents. The company had given us no written agreement so what could we do about it?

Thanks to the DAILY WORKER, we can at least expose this factory, its management, and their damned methods.

Letters From Soviet Russia

The letters from our Russian comrades are being read with interest, but most of the value of them will be lost if they arouse no desire to build the Communist press in America by similar methods—contributions from worker-correspondents, news of the life and struggles of the masses written by those who are part of them.

These letters from Russia should receive replies. They can be sent to the DAILY WORKER and will be forwarded promptly to the proper address. There is no better way than this of binding the workers of both countries with a comradely bond.

LIFE IN RUSSIAN RED ARMY.

I DO not know whether our comrades abroad know how we live. Anyhow I think it is worth while to tell them about the life of the young Sivash Artillerists.

Sivash is a bay, a very swampy place where Wrangel had one of his main strongholds. Our division drove Wrangel out by attacking him from the rear and thus settled his fate. Hence our division is called the Sivash Artillerymen.

Discipline is very strict, but it is secured by continually and at every opportune moment explaining to the Red Army men their rights as well as their obligations, their role as the defenders of the Soviet Union. For this purpose we have, in addition to military training, political education classes two hours daily. During these classes Red Army men study the Soviet constitution, the history of the Soviet power and the history of the Red Army and the civil war. The Red Army men are also taught geography reading and writing, arithmetic and agriculture. In our artillery regiment we have no illiterates, but there are illiterate people in the infantry regiments. They are formed into separate groups or squads and are taught to read and write being set free from drill and other work.

Definite hours are given to general physical training and to the study of sanitation and physics.

On the whole six hours a day are given to study and the rest of the time they have at their own disposal and may spend it just as they like if they inform their immediate relief.

For their recreation there is a club with a number of circles, a school for political education, a dramatic circle, a circle for general education, etc. The club has a library and reading room, it publishes a wall newspaper which does not even spare the commander of the regiment if he has been at fault in any way. There is also a mililtary correspendence circle to which all Red Army men who contribute to the paper belong. In this circle they learn how to write for the newspapers, etc. Once a week there is a dramatic performance in the club, and we also have "youth" socials, "military" socials, etc. The club works for the whole regiment. We must admit that the club of our regiment is not as efficient as the clubs of other regiments.

In addition to all this we have a Lenin "corner" with various sections in every battalion of the regiment. In these "corners" there are small libraries and about eight different newspapers. Readings and informal talks take place in these "corners," as well as party, young Communist and Red Army meetings. Similar meetings are held once a month for the whole regiment.

Very frequently (every week) we are taken to the cinema. We also visit the workers in the factory which is our patron. We also visit museums and aquariums (there is a very good one in Nikolaev). This is just the general outline of our army life. Altho we are taken away from our homes we do not feel isolated.

The Red Army which is a proletarian army is a school, and young peasants are right when they say:

"We must study otherwise we will come back to our villages just as we left them, and what would be the use of that?"

And we get a military training and education and become more efficient as we go on. Thus your bourgeoisie will never be able to take us and our Union unawares.

There is still much to write about—our economic situation, our shortcomings, the link between the workers and peasants, etc. But I will leave all this for my next letter, that is to say if you are interested in it and if I receive a reply from you.

Today I want to describe just one more fact. Not so long ago we had in the regiment the trial of the commander of the platoon. He was charged with having compelled a Red Army man to run about 15 minutes wearing an anti-gas mask as a punishment for some misdemeanor. The revolutionary military tribunal sentenced him for exceeding his powers to 12 months solitary confinement. Does it happen in your army that commanders are tried in this fashion?—G Koten, Red Army man of the 15th Artillery regiment. Nikolaev, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic.

FROM A TEXTILE WORKER.

DEAR Foreign Comrades: As I know that your bourgeois press is not only giving you a wrong idea of the life of Russian workers, but is even distorting facts, I, who am myself a worker, will endeavor to describe in this letter our factory life to help to give you a right idea of it.

OUR factory where I work and about which I am going to write is in the center of the textile industry, in the Ivanovo-Voznesensk District. It is a cotton mill which employs eleven and a half thousand men and women. This is what happened here: After the October revolution our workers took the factory into their own hands and kept it going. The workers chose from amongst themselves capable people from the bench, and these elected persons became the head of the management. Our workers were not long in realizing that they themselves were the true masters of this gigantic enterprise.

ONCE workers have assumed power they begin to improve the conditions under which they have to work and live, and they improve production at the same time. This also happened here. They formed a protection of labor department which looks after the needs of the workers; provides them with suitable clothes and footwear, fats (if necessary for the kind of work they perform), etc. We have special rest homes where those whose health has suffered can spend from a fortnight to one month with full pay. Workers who are tubercular are sent to sanitoria and health resorts for longer periods, and they also receive their full pay. In 1924 over 600 of our workers spent some time in rest homes, sanatoria, and health resorts.

WORKING women—the mothers—are well looked after, and perhaps their privileges are greater than those of men. For instance during pregnancy they are given two months' leave of absence and two months after the birth of the child. During these four months they receive full pay and their places are kept open for them.

During the 9 months when she is nursing the child, a working woman works only 6 hours instead of 8 while receving full pay. During this period she receives a special monthly grant.

WE have children's homes and creches where mothers can leave their children and can be certain that they are better looked after there than at home. All this is provided free of charge. Our working women have been given equal rights with men and are drawn everywhere into social work. In our factory there is not a single organization without its quota of women. They are on the factory committee, in the club, in the co-operatives, etc.

THERE are women who occupy responsible posts such as chairman of factory committees, factory managers, etc. In our factory engineers are only employed as experts. Relations between them and the workers have undergone a complete change. Our workers have no longer to submit to rough treatment by the engineers, as the latter are aware that they will be dismissed for such behavior. And the time is not far distant when we shall have our own engineers, technicians, chemists, mechanics, etc., who have sprung from the working class.

FOR young workers there is in our factory an apprenticeship school where they get a thoro training and from where they can enter higher educational establishments. Their labor is also protected.

The factory has a club where the workers can increase their knowledge. It has a well-stocked library and a reading room, and all sorts of circles and sections are organized by the workers themselves. The former masters would not have given all this to the workers, and neither will yours.

FOR adult men and women there is a higher grade school. The attendance there is not very numerous—about 300 people a day. Our workers have a great desire to learn and to improve their minds. On leaving this school they will go to higher educational establishments, as the doors of universities and technical colleges are opened wide to our workers.

THE adult and young workers of our factory publish wall newspapers. Thru this press many shortcomings are remedied, production is improved and old customs and habits are fought against—the achievements of these wall newspapers are very great indeed. Production is growing from month to month:

Our workers are anxious in all their doings to carry out the injunctions of the leader of the world proletariat, Comrade Lenin.

DEAR foreign comrades, should this letter be reprinted in your press, I will write to you regularly every month in more detail and will describe the life of our peasantry.

My comrades and I await your reply, and shall be particularly glad to receive a letter from the textile workers in your country.

With Comradely Greetings, Malyshev, Workers' Correspondent of the Wall Newspaper Rodnikovsky Rabotchy.

A Worker Hails Soviet Russia

Hail to you, Soviet Russia
Where the red flag is unfurled.
Between its folds are letters of gold,
Calling Workers of the World
To unite in one big union; you have a world to gain.
And so come along and join the throng
You have nothing to lose but your chain.
CHORUS:
Hurrah for the boys of the Red Army,
They are Russia's fighting sons,
With all their might they fight for the right
And they know how to use their guns.
Out of the oil fields of Baku
Wrangel is running yet
Hurrah for the boys of the Red Army
And long live the Soviet.

Hail to you, Soviet Russia
Hail to you once again
I'm writing to you, tho the lines are few
From this land of greed and gain.
In tones of the bells of Moscow
I can hear revolution ring.
Hail to you, Soviet Russia
This song to you I'll sing.

(Steve Green, Garrison, N. D. 5-2-25.)

OUR ARMY IS GROWING

By NADIEJDA KRUPSKAYA.

FOR a long time, for many centuries, Russia was an economically, and culturally backward country. When, thirty years ago, a revolutionary workers' party arose, our working class was a down-trodden, enslaved and dumb mass. Only he who saw not only the present, but also the the future, and was able to view the movement from an international standpoint could believe that this class would one day become a staunch upright and disciplined fighter, and would be absolutely victorious.

And for this reason the Russian labor movement never for a moment forgot its blood relationship with the international labor movement, and it never will forget it. For the proletarians of our Soviet Union, such days as May 1, and March 8, are days of international brotherhood, days of the greatest importance.

In the Union of Soviet Republics in the last years there has been expressed with enormous force the urge of the masses for independent activity. The movement has spread rapidly, fresh thousands of working women of our Union—working women and peasant women—awoke to a conscious life. They flocked to the ranks of those to whom the cause of the victory of the international proletariat is dear, who passionately long for the emancipation of all workers and devote their whole lives to this aim.

"Our army has grown greater" can be said today by the class-conscious proletarian women of all countries. Every year the army of class conscious, closely-knit proletarian men and women, who are fighting shoulder to shoulder, will become greater.

And no power in the world will be able to resist this army.

Give your shopmate this copy of the DAILY WORKER—but be sure to see him the next day to get his subscription.

Русская Вечеринка

Yes, that's what we mean: Russian Vecherinka, which will be given this Saturday night, March 28, at the House of the Worker (formerly Soviet School), 1902 W. Division St. A short play in Russian and dancing will follow. A good time is promised to those who will attend.

Abramovich's Honor -

By Moissaye J. Olgin

RAPHAEL ABRAMOVICH, the agent of the Second International, is not satisfied with the American Communists. We do not blame him for it. We have unmasked him. We have compelled him to make clear to the American workers in general and to the Jewish workers in particular, where he stands. In an open letter published by him in several papers in the Yiddish and English language, he speaks about "the energetic self-defense of our comrades." He forgets, however, to point out that this "self defense" operated with the aid of police, detectives, and sluggers. The blot of this "self defense" will glow forever on the forehead of this "socialist" counter revolutionary.

Abramovich is not happy over the reception accorded to him by the workers. Yet he would not admit that that it is his political platform the workers are protesting against. He is out to convince himself and others that a special conspiracy against him is on foot, that the Communists have "embarked upon a course of vituperation and vilification," that the present writer is "the very initiator of the dirtiest and meanest personal calumnies" spread against him. (Quoted from the Yiddish text published in The Freie Arbeiter Stimme, which seems to be the original.)

It would hardly be necessary to reply to this new sally of a despairing menshevik. We have conducted our campaign in the open before the eyes of all the workers. Those who frequented our meetings or read our publications know that we conduct a political campaign, not a campaign of personal vilification. We expose Abramovich as a traitor because he betrayed the great proletarian revolution in Russia and because he kept on betraying the very principles which he asserted to be his sincere convictions at one time or another. I personally heard from the mouth of Abramovich in 1920, when he still lived in Moscow, that he stood on a Soviet platform, that he accepted the entire Soviet constitution and that he was only angry with the Communist government for not adhering to "its own revolutionary laws." A few months later Abramovich was engaged in a vicious campaign against the Soviet republic as a whole. I personally heard Abramovich advocating something akin to the new economic policy when this policy was yet impossible. When, however, the N. E. P. was inaugurated by order of the Soviets, Abramovich only intensified his struggle against the Soviets. In personal conversations Abramovich, in 1920, assured me that he stood nearer to the Soviet system than to the right wing socialists. Later, however, Abramovich found his haven of rest in the arms of the Scheidemanns and Noskes. This is treason, and it proves that Abramovich is not in earnest about his "principles," that he uses them as weapons against the Soviet republic. This is what we assert at our meetings and in our press, and it is not necessary to dwell upon it in the present connection.

But Abramovich brought in a new element into his desperate struggle. He informs us that "the man who lent him the money and made it possible for him to leave Russia was Moissaye Olgin who was at that time in Russia." Abramovich, who is so displeased with what he calls personal fights, resorts here to a personal means of attack. He wishes to create the impression that I was in accord with him in 1920, that I was then an opponent of the Soviets, and that it was therefore that I helped him leave Russia. It is, certainly, unnecessary to refute those allegations. The American workers still remember the articles written by myself in 1920, immediately after my return from Russia. They will not have forgotten my description of the mensheviki as "barking at the moon." They will recall that even before 1921, beginning from 1918, I conducted a campaign in favor of Soviet Russia both in the press and in lecture halls in the English and Yiddish languages. My visit to Russia in 1920-21 only intensified my devotion to the proletarian revolution and gave me a clearer conception of Communism and the Communist International. These are facts on public record, and it is unnecessary to repeat them. Abramovich's insinuation will not mislead even his backward readers. His present letter, however, throws a lurid light on his own personality, and it is therefore that I am compelled to say a few words about it.

It appears from this open letter that Abramovich deceived me in 1920. I didn't wish to tell about it openly, because I maintained that personal affairs should not be brought into political struggles when we have enough material to expose our enemies. I was an intimate friend of Abramovich in the course of 15 years, between 1905 and 1920, and I wished to keep buried the things that happened under the cloak of old friendship, even if subsequently we became political enemies. I therefore, refrained from bringing up the money incident. But since Abramovich started this story, it is necessary to make the facts known.

Here are the facts. When I came to Moscow in 1920, Abramovich characterized himself as a left winger, almost a Communist. He told me he was even in favor of his party members joining the Red army in order to combat the counter revolution. When I asked him why he would not do Soviet work under the leadership of the Soviet government, as did, for instance, the famous philosopher and economist Bogdanoff, who was not a member of the Communist Party, he explained to me that he would not be accepted. For this he blamed the Communists, who, he said, had political grudges against him. He personally made believe he was a friend. At the time of my arrival in Moscow, the Bundist Liber-Goldman was in jail. Abramovich told me he disagreed with Liber. Later when Liber was freed, I met him in Abramovich's house. Liber sensed in me a friend of the Soviet system, and therefore looked daggers at me. When he left the house, Abramovich told me that he was nearer to the Communists than to Liber, and that Liber accused him of being a Bolshevik. In short, Abramovich made the impression that he was a loyal opponent, not an enemy of the workers and peasants' republic. He lived then on a payok (food ration) given to him by the Soviet government. He told me he worked in some kind of Soviet institution and therefore received a professor's payok—a privilege enjoyed by very few in Moscow. Immediately after my arrival in Moscow, in the very first few days, he began telling me that he was going to Germany to do work for the Soviet government. He had worked in Vienna in 1913-14 in a patent bureau, and considered himself a specialist in patent questions. We did not discuss the specific kind of work he was to carry out for the Soviet government, but that he was being sent abroad and that he was to do work for the Soviet government in Germany. He reiterated several times both alone with me and in the presence of his wife. More than once he made calculations showing that he was short of funds. True, he said, there would be no railroad expenses between Moscow and the frontier of Esthonia or Latvia, as this would be cared for by the government; true, part of the expenses would be covered by the government; but, the man had a wife and two children, he would have to buy clothes and to rent a house in Berlin, which would entail an expense of several hundred dollars. It was on the strength of these assertions and calculations that I loaned him $200.00. I loaned them to a friend of the Soviet regime. Not by one word did Abramovich betray the fact that he was going abroad to participate in socialist conferences, that he was going with the intention of starting a broad campaign against Soviet Russia. Plainly speaking, he deceived me. He knew I was friendly towards the Soviet government. He saw me leaning more and more towards Communism. He never said a word about his counter revolutionary plans.

When, after an extensive trip over Soviet Russia, I came to Germany in March, 1921, and visited Abramovich's house there, I became aware of my error. By this time Abramovich had published two or three copies of his notorious "Sozialistichesky Vestnik." He had returned from a congress in Vienna. He was engaged in counter revolutionary work. When he read an article of mine in a pro-Soviet Russian paper in Berlin, he was displeased with its friendly tone towards Soviet Russia; he considered it "sentimental" and "exaggerated." Everything friendly towards the new regime in Russia was for him both sentimental and false. Already at that time I saw Abramovich in his true colors. I must confess, I was sorry I had loaned him money. I said to myself that had I known how he would behave abroad I would not have helped him. But the loan was an accomplished fact. I did not wish to demand the money returned. "What's over is over" I thought to myself. I would not have unearthed this incident even at present had not Abramovich resorted to it in his difficult situation.

In his open letter Abramovich says "It goes without saying that I accepted no commission either from the Communist Party or from the Soviet government, and that I could not have accepted any." However, in 1920, he told me he was going to Germany to carry out a commission by the Soviet government. Abramovich says, "I never received and could not have received any money either from the Soviet government or from the Communist Party." However, in 1920, the money to be received from the government entered as an item into his calculations made in my presence. The question is when was Abramovich lying; in 1920 when he borrowed money from me, or in 1925 when he wrote his open letter? (The money has not been returned up to now.)

Once more: We did not want to unearth the whole story, but let Abramovich reap what he sowed. I have followed Abramovich's activities thruout these years, but I have never believed he could fall so low. He should have refrained from such an ugly step, as is his present letter, even if it be for the sake of past friendship. It seems, however, that when a man begins to fall, there is no limit to his degradation.

International Notes

Russia.

Heavy Industry Grows.

MOSCOW.—The "Bolshevik" works have produced the first specimen tramway switches and siding rails. Hitherto these articles were imported from abroad.

Rest for Working Men's Wives.

KEIV.—The commission for better working class conditions has acquired five rest homes for workers with families. These houses can accomodate up to 100 families per month. In the summer season the people's food department will open in all summer resort dining hall where meals will be served at popular prices. This will enable workingmen's wives to rest from their household duties.

Poland.

WARSAW—Two brothers of Karl Radek, Afanasy and Vassili, have been sentenced by the Polish authorities to six months in jail apiece without any charges being brought against them.

The two Radeks had been discharged from the sugar plant in Revno where they had been working and were on their way back to their home village, when they were halted and arrested by the government authorities. The government had nothing against them—besides the fact that they were Karl Radek's brothers, of course—beyond the vague suspicion that they might be intending to cross the border to Soviet Russia. The first sentence was three months and a fine of 500 zloti, but since the brothers could not pay the fine the sentence was changed to six months.

Comrade Josef Skrzypa, Communist deputy in the Polish parliament, speaking in the name of the Communist fraction, demanded the release of the Radeks, and the prosecution of the authorities responsible for their arrest.

Letters From Our Readers

Daily Worker Makes Converts.

To the DAILY WORKER:— How doth Communism grow! Especially with the DAILY WORKER in the house. I have supplied a neighbor of mine for nearly a year with my copy —a very bright and conscientious young man, but who is crippled physically from disease. He soon developed an appetite for Karl Marx, and not long ago read for the first time a copy of the Communist Manifesto.

It is now of textbook importance to him. He said recently to me: "I do not see how it is possible for the people to remain long in darkness with such a work in circulation. It is a beacon for the hand and a guide for the feet."

I told him the socialist party had been boosting it for years and he was still further mystified. He said they could not have read it understandingly.

Soon afterward he read Marx's "Revolution of 1848" and "Civil War in France," which were like amental bath, and followed with great delight, Vols. I and II of "Capital." Beginning when I first met him with a religious complex, he now revels in the full and glorious light of Communism and is super-grateful to me for having introduced it to him.

The comrades here do not know of him because he walks slowly and painfully. They may soon learn because he is improving.

The glow of the new light has animated his spirit. A renewed desire to live induced him to go to the hospital and the treatments he is receiving, are gradually restoring elasticity to his partially ossified joints, and he wants to join the growing army of Communist workers. In his ward he met a bright young Italian of revolutionary tendencies and now he wants to give him a copy of the DAILY WORKER containing a good article on Sacco and Vanzetti with the object of inducing him to join the Italian branch of the Workers Party here.

Of course, he is not yet a member of the party. He will further use copies of the DAILY WORKER to give to a radical but uninformed physician and other individuals who would be benefitted by a knowledge of our great movement and who, in turn, would benefit others. Verily, how doth Communism grow!

I am enclosing you $2 on the second call for insurance policies. I at first only sent you $1, and your kind acknowledgement made me uneasy in conscience. You said I had done my full duty as a Communist. Oh, how short I am from performing that duty. I should send you at least $10, nay, ten times as much so long as the wolf is not actually barking at my door.

But I will content myself for the time by doubling my former subscription, and will hold myself in readiness to answer future calls whenever you may make them.—Milton Harlan, San Francisco.

False Leaders Divide Workers

To the DAILY WORKER:—My heart burns within one, as I meditate in silence over the greatest question that confronts the world today, more especially America. It is the organization of the working class. I am colored. You don't know what it means to be black. My brothers you don't realize these curtains of hell. I see thru a glass darkly. I have never known liberty or freedom. I have often cherished the hope that some day I might be able to exercise those greatest gifts to man. I have travelled from the Atlantic to the Pacific and across the Pacific and the stormy Atlantic. This flame of hate, I met on every land. There is a task ahead. A gigantic one. That is to organize the ignorant colored and white men. Ignorance and superstition seem to reign in the working class. I never saw such hate manifested toward colored people by white men. It seems to have been born after the world war. I can only say, there are certain leaders of organizations in this country, I mean in America, who are wrecking and dividing the workers. These union leaders seem to be on their last legs. There will be but a few of these unions left in this open shop drive which is now on. The United Mine Workers Union is nearly gone. I am from the coal fields of West Virginia. Such conditions! Such suffering!

These ignorant white men and dumb, superstitious colored men are such slaves, and so helpless. The white workers is building a wall of hate against his fellow workers. Here in Baltimore, Md., because of this hate, colored people live five and six families in a 4-room house, tho there are thousands of empty houses. A colored person is afraid to try to rent one of them or even ask about a house. If he does, he and his family are liable to be beaten to death by a white mob, while the police look on. East, West, North and South, they are all the same. This flame of hate is from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and wherever the American white man has put his foot. Even to foreign countries he has carried this slogan: "The Negro is no good," or "Anybody that carries a black face is an inferior." That is his religion and his god. —James Ford.

"Socialists" Now Free.

The DAILY WORKER—In their last deliverance the socialists say that in their collaboration with certain capitalistic labor and liberal elements, in an effort to put their brand of capitalism to the front, the party "demonstrated to the American workers that it is entirely free from dogmatism and sectarianism."

Granted. An open confession is good for the soul.

But what is "dogmatism?" It is to put emphasis on an idea as fundamental. For examples:

Christian dogma—Immaculate conception, atonement, etc.

Catholic dogma—Saint Peterism, etc.

Materia-Medica dogma—Disease is caused by nerve impingement.

Osteopathic dogma— Disease is caused by want of proper nerve and blood circulation.

Another dogma—Disease is caused by wrong proportions of blood elements.

Republican dogma—Unshackle big business.

Democratic dogma—"Me too."

Socialist former dogma—Class division caused by capitalism, to be cured by socialism; the class struggle, class consciousness, etc.

To be "free from dogmatism" is to cease emphasizing any particular idea.

What then becomes of the other statement that the party's "banner is still unsullied?"

"Free from sectarianism." What is sectarianism? It is devotion to an organization as an important or necessary instrument in carrying forward certain purposes, such organization being an embodiment of certain ideas. From all which it follows that to be "free from dogmatism and sectarianism" is to be all things to all men, and emphasize nothing.— L. D. Ratliff.

Let the Traitors Go.

To the DAILY WORKER: Altho not a member of the Communist Party I am heart and soul with you, comrades. I understand your sacrifices and admire your courage. I have faith in you because I feel that you are sincere.

Years ago I trusted the Abe Cahans and the Abramoviches, but today these poor weaklings have turned against the workers. Today they suddenly discovered that Karl Marx and class consciousness are "bunk." Today they are fighting for wealth, for agrandizement, like the rest of the present day politicians. Today they kiss the hands of kings and wear knee breeches at regal receptions. Today they are hob-nobbing in "best society." But let them go.

The leadership of the proletariat must be in the safe keeping of men and women devoted to the cause of labor to their last drop of blood and the sooner the weaklings drop out the better. I am sure I voice the sentiment of many millions of workers all over the world when I say:

Long live every man and woman who remains faithful to the cause of the working class. Long live Soviet Russia, the inspiration of every worker in every land. Long live Leninism, the spiritual embodiment of every workers' hope. S. P. Slavin, Stamford, Conn.

Editor DAILY WORKER:
Dear Comrade:

I have read the apology appearing in this Saturday's issue of the DAILY WORKER, and I want to say how proud I am to belong to a movement which has the courage and the confidence to correct its mistakes, and to make the fullest amends so freely and frankly. It shows the difference in our spirit. I have just shown it to a non-Communist friend who is very much prejudiced against us, and it has had a most favorable effect on him. I'm showing it around to others. It is a practical demonstration of our honesty and our candor, and will vastly increase our prestige among thinking people.

Let us take the opportunity of suggesting to our readers that on the occasions when we ride in taxis we may just as well make a point of supporting Premier Cabs, for altho as you say the Premier company is a collection of capitalists with the usual characteristics of their kind we should do what we can to show our solidarity with the union by supporting the "only concern of its kind that is unionized to any extent."

Sincerely yours,
Andrew Shelley

Dear Joe: I take the time and pleasure to answer your most welcome letter that I received today. I am not going away from here. There is good hunting and fishing. There is fox, bear, deer and everything you want so if you come over you will have lost of fun hunting.

It is the way they told us in the U. S. it would be, at least it is to me. I can speak the language and I get along fine.

Food is not high here. You can get a large goose here for 12 cents in U. S. money, weight 10 to 15 pounds. You can buy 40 pounds of beef for 30 cents.

Your friend,

JUST PITY THE POOR

JUST when the capitalist press is showing how the workers and the "public" alike have robbed the poor corporations and coupon clippers there comes the discouraging announcement of profits that run only into the millions when they should run into billions, according to every rime and reason.

Lets Take Up a Collection.

Here comes the Columbia Gas and Electric company in New York, with a net profit of only $6,707,273 during the year.

Gross revenues of the company and its subsidiaries for the twelve months amounted to $26,727,581, against $21,002, 999 a year ago, and net operating earnings, after depreciation, were $11,332,529, against $9,464,330 in the twelve months of 1923. For the month of December the gross totaled $2,500,386, and net available for dividends $962,290. The latter compares with $785,735 a year ago.

Then crawls the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company out of its poor shack to tell us that it got in clear profit only $2,598,517.

The continued growth of gross monthly revenue and in surplus after charges which characterized the first twelve months following reorganization has continued, the report shows, in the current fiscal year, and the six months gross of $21,448,951 compares with $19,576,897 for the corresponding period of the preceding yead. Net after charges amounted to $2,598,517, against $1,836,712 a year ago. At the close of the first year's operations under the reorganization plan, June 30, 1924, the system's net after charges was $4,022,065, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $3.37 a common share.

Another pauper hobbles humbly to the arena of the sympathizing "public."

The annual report of the Commercial investment Trust corporation for the year 1924, published yesterday, shows net profits applicable to dividends on the company's stock of $2,275,146, which compares with $1,858 506 in the preceding year. After dividends on the preferred stock there was a balance for the common equivalent to $5.37 a share.

Enough to Move a Stone.

Even more deplorable conditions are confronted in some of the larger companies. For instance:

Detroit Edison company, including all constituent concerns, for year ended Dec. 31, shows that gross revenues increased 7.6 per cent to $34,163,286 from $31,724,184, while earnings available for interest charges inagainstcreased 9.6 per cent to $10,265,562 from $9,359,726. Net income was 18.5 per cent over 1923, or $6,.01,858, against $5,147,551.

It is said that Standard Oil and United States Steel are running on a much narrower margin, bordering on dividends that shiver along the hundred million dollar precipice.

The Load Line.

It is quite a time since the late Samuel Plimsoll started his campaign to arouse the people of England to the shocking danger to which "laisser faire" subjected the British seaman. After a life struggle, Plimsoll succeeded in moving the British parliament to enact a law which compelled the shipowners to mark on the side of their ships a line below which they were not permitted to load their vessels. In 1906, Mr. Lloyd George, then president of the board of trade, obliged the shipping interest by LIFTING this load-line up, and thereby allowed more cargoes to be carried at the risk of the seamen's lives. Thousands of seamen have been sent to watery graves owing to that action of Mr. Lloyd George's. We expected that when the labor government reached office in England, one of its first acts would be to lower the load-line in the interests of those who go to sea. We have mentioned this matter before. We mention it again, to intimate that the Snowdens, Thomases, Shinwells and other labor ministers are too busy attending the king and his missus at the court functions to trouble much about the load-line, the P. C. 5, and other matters of importance to the seamen.—Australian Seaman's Journal.

Special Arrangements for Parties on Short Notice

MUSIC • LITERATURE • DRAMA

HANS KINDLER, the Dutch cellist, until recently first cellist of the Philadelphia orchestra, was soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra on the twenty-third regular program of the season at Orchestra all. He played a work new to Chicago, a cello concerto by Frederick Boyle, an Australian composer at present living in Philadelphia. Kindler is one of the great cellists of the day. But Boyle's concerto, which was written for Kindler, is not one of the great works of the instrument's literature. Boyle did the conventional thing, a long concerto, rather strict on form, with some melodic bits buried under a lot of bombastic finger exercises. Such works are unnecessary, for there are too many such concerti as it is.

The program opened with a symphonic "tableau," "The Spring," by Alexander Glazunov. This is really nice spring stuff, suggestive of the flowers that bloom in March, tra-la, and of the songs of the little birdies that sing in the trees. But if the songs of the birdies did not sound so much like the forest music in "Siegfried" one could give Glazunov more credit.

Glazunov's work is based on apoem of the Russian author Tutchev. It more than interesting to note that in discussing Tutchev the ultra-respectable gentleman who writes the program notes for the orchestra, and who insists upon calling the prewar capital of Russia "Petrograd," quotes from none other than Moissaye J. Olgin, member of the central executive committee of the Workers Party of America.

A far more important Russian work; the "Manfred" symphony of Chaykovski, opened the second half of the program. "Manfred" is my favorite among the composer's seven symphonies. Its title signifies that it is based on Lord Byron's drama of thesame name. A quotation from Chaykovski will give the flift both of the symphony and of Byron's play:

"Manfred wanders in the Alps. Tormented by the fatal anguish of doubt, torn by remorse and despair, his soul is the prey of sufferings without name. Neither the occult sciences, whose mysterioes he has fathomed, and by means of which the powers of darkness are subject to his will, nor anything in the world can bring to him the forgetfulness which alone he covets. The memory of the beautiful Astarte, whom he has loved and lost, gnaws at his heart. Nothing can lift the curse which lies heavily on Manfred's soul, and which unceasingly and without truce delivers him to the tortures of the most grievous despair."

Operatic stuff, this, and the symphony is operatic too. It has the grip and the thrill and the passion of Claykovski at his best.

Another glorious old timer, that grows better with every hearing, the Irish rhapsody of Victor Herbert, closed the program.

Popular Priced Opera.

Popular priced opera is to have its season in Chicago just before Easter, when Fortune Gallo's two San Carlo grand opera companies arrive at the Auditorium on March 30, for an engagement that includes seven evening performances and two matinees.

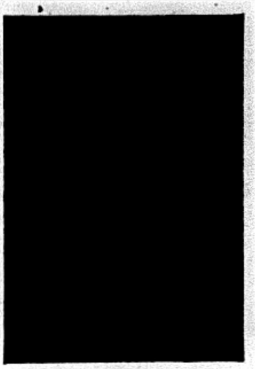
DRAMA AND DANCE GIVEN BY KENOSHA RUSSIAN BR. SUNDAY

A performance and dance will be given by the Russian branch, Workers Party, of Kenosha, Wis., this Sunday, March 29, 2:30 p. m., at Tatra Hall, 17 North Main street, Kenosha, Wis. Actors from Chicago will perform. The proceeds will go for the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir. Come and have a good time!

TAMAKI MIURA



As Madame Butterfly.

San Carlo Opera

FORTUNE GALLO, manager of the San Carlo opera companies, will merge his two organizations into one for a week's run at the Auditorium theater starting next Monday night. The San Carlo is probaly the best travelling opera company in America today. Some of its members, like Tamaki Miura, are considered the authentic interpreters of certain roles.

The week's repertory for Chicago is made up of old timers, the battle scarred warriors of a thousand opera seasons. The schedule follows:

Mondays, March 30, AIDA—with Roselle, Tommasini, Cervi.

Tuesday, March 31, MADAME BUTTERFLY—Miura, Onofrei, Valle.

Wednesday, April 1, (Matinee)—CARMEN—Jackson, Hart, Interrante.

Wednesday April 1, (Evening)—TRAVIATA—Lucchese, Onofrei, Basiola.

Thursday April 2, CAVALLERIA AND PAGLIACCI—Axman, Salazar, Saro, Tommasini, Basiola.

Friday April 3, BOHEME—Roselle, Onofrei, Kargau.

Saturday April 4, (Matinee)—MARTHA—Lucchese, Kent, Onofrei, Interrante.

Saturday, April 4, (Evening)—IL TROVATORE—Saroya, Salazar, Basiola, De Mette.

Sunday, April 5, FAUST—Onofrei, De Biasi, Roselle.

The Carmen performance will be done in English with a Chicago cast, using the translation of Charles Henry Meltzer of New York.

The ballet will be done by the Pavley and Oukrainski company.

Mine "Super" Kills Marianna Movie Show

A committee representing the International Workers' Aid, in Marianna, Pa., after waiting for months for an available open date, hired a theater for the showing of the Russian feature film, and started to advertise. A couple of days later the theater manager cancelled the date and was very uneasy in the face of damage suits staring him in the face. But the threat of a few dollars in damages was not as heavy as the threat of the mine superintent, so the coal diggers will have to work out same other plan of seeing this Russian feature film—that has delighted a hundred thousand American workers.

Art Exhibit

NEW YORK, (By Mail)—A clothing cutter who creates cubist conceptions of a shoemaker in oil colors on canvas, an Italian decorator and housepainter who paints bright landscapes in off time, and a Scandinavian carpenter who makes decorative wood cabinets and carves bone or sculptures marble are some of the workers—union men—exhibiting their artistic spare-time productions with the Independent Artists Society, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York.

For the ninth year this organization, which democratically admits all exhibitors without jury or prize awards upon payment of a nominal sum, is holding its exhibition. John Sloan and the recently deceased Geo. Bellows, early contributors to the radical artistic magazine, The Masses, were largely responsible for the formation of the Independent Society to give young and unknown artists a showing.

Maurice Becker, labor cartoonist, has two beautiful paintings from his Mexican experience in the exhibition: Women of Tehuantepec and El Camino, the latter a woman with worklined features.

The Japanese Communist, Eitaro Ishigaki, has a modern painting in sombre tones of a Man With the Whip, the horseman driving hordes of cowering workers into towering factories.

Comparatively few of the pictures deal with the rich, strong, dramatic life of workers. The wealth of material in that field is ignored except for a few drawings and a water-color of six o'clock factory closing. Rose Pastor Stokes has two drawings, one of Anna.

Peter Vroldsen, the Scandinavian carpenter, is a bachelor who studied sculpture in his spare time. He has a marble bust of Svea, a Norwegian working woman, among his works. Inlaid in his cabinet he has tried to portray artistically the equality of man and woman and part of Norse mythology.

Prosper Invernizzi is the Italian landscapist who paints houses for a living and paints pictures for his pleasure. Morris Kantor is the clothing cutter whose gaily colored conical and cubical forms express the shoemaker.

'BEAUTY AND BOLSHEVIK' AT THE WICKER PARK THEATER IN CHICAGO

The famous movie "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" which has drawn a gathering of 7,000 people when it was shown in Chicago sometime ago, is coming back to town for one evening only. It will be shown on the Northwest side, at Wicker Park Theater, 1139 Milwaukee Ave., on Wednesday, April 15, from 6:30 to 11 p. m. continually. The proceeds will go to the International Workers' Aid, the Russian Communist daily Novy Mir, and the Polish Communist paper Tribuna Rabotnicza.

The S. P.— In Memoriam

(Lines addressed to the recent convention of the socialist party, held after an injection of LaFolletteism had failed to rejuvenate its shrivelled carcass).

A feeble old Party an Ape once addressed.
"How much I admire you, I've often confessed.
The source of your vigour, as I understand,
Is found in a small but most powerful gland.

"Now, I'm an old Party, as everyone sees,
Very deaf, very blind, very stiff in the knees,
Very weak in the back, weaker still in the head—
For practical purposes folk say I'm dead!

"I'm not! It's a rumour! It's worse—it's a lie!
O I would do anything rather than die.
My business with you, Mister Monkey, to start with,
Is to ask if your gland you'd be willing to part with.

"I'm a yellow old Party, but I'd give my lot
For one-half of the vigor you seem to have got.
I'm here with my forceps your secret to win,
Agree—sniff this bottle, and let me begin."

"What ho!" said the Monkey, in manner most rude,
"You don't dream that glands would do you any good!
You're a shrivelled old Mummy, sans heart, guts and brains,
For Parties so circumstanced nothing remains.

"You final decease would leave ev'ryone grateful.
Gland wouldn't help if you ate a whole plateful.
Go, seek out a solitude fit to pop off in—
The workers feel happy to stand you your coffin!"

The Sure Cure For Those Yankee Blues

By MICHAEL GOLD.

FOR years I suffered from the Yankee blues. Do you know what this disease is dear reader? It is the state of being in chronic rebellion against your environment. You walk down Broadway, for instance, on a fine windy March morning. The sun and keen blue sky and the magnificent skyscrapers give you no thrill, however. You are watching the faces of the people going by. They are dull, pasty, narrow-minded faces—young and old faces behind which you know you will find only one thought—the thought of money. So you do not enjoy the fine morning.

The intelligent revolutionist in American inevitably gets feeling sad; for on every hand he is surrounded by greed and stupidity. If he is sensitive, he is always fighting the things he meets; the result is the disease I have named the Yankee blues.

ONE day I found a few hundred dollars and decided to go to Europe, like other "young intellectuals," to find a cure for these Yankee blues.

I spent six weeks in England, but England failed to cure my Yankee blues. In England one finds conservative old and young men who live in the past as an escape from capitalism; scholars who write like the Elizabethans, and statesmen who think like bloody Castlereagh, whom Shelley denounced as a murderer. I did not like the classic Oxford literature of England, with his effeminate ways and talk, and his silly scholarship. Neither did I like the new commercialism that is sweeping England—American salesmanship, advertising, and other capitalist innovations. The labor government of Ramsay MacDonald depressed me, even more than does the American government of Coolidge. I hate liars, hypocrites, labor imperialists and such people; men who preach christian pacifism while out of office, and then bomb native villages in Mesopotamia while in office, as did MacDonald.

SO I left London and went to Paris. A beautiful city Paris, but capitalism has conquered there, also. The American bourgeois has made of Paris his luxury shop and barroom and house of prostitution. Paris is disgusting to a man who hates commercialism. One sees so many beautiful young girls on the streets and in the dance halls, lovely daughters of the working class who have been trained to regard their bodies as machines for the making of money. The gayety of Paris that American business men rave about is the gayety of a whorehouse; it is tainted with American dollarism. The intellectual life of Paris is dead—most of the young artists and writers have fallen into a sterile, superficially brilliant cynicism outside of a few men like Barbusse and Rolland, there is no literary work of any value being done in France.

SO I went to Berlin. This city was the worst horror of all. The streets filled with gross, overfed bourgeois bodies of men and women; the theaters stinking with them. In every little stationery store pictures of the kaizer and von Hindenburg and other royalties are for sale. Sad, ragged workers on the street cars; servant girls who work for nothing, just the few tips they get, defeated, ignorant paupers and bloated war profiteers dwelling side by side. Chaos, and the only thrill of hope was the occasional sight of some young Communist on the streets; a young man, bare headed, his shirt open to the cold winds at the throat; dressed in corduroy coat and breeches. the uniform of the young Communists; a bold fearless stern youth in rough clothes, walking like a silent threat among the jewelled, silken bourgeoisie on the streets.

NO cure there for the Yankee blues. Capitalism at its last gasp, but capitalism still. I decided to go to Russia. One day I got on a boat at a London pier. The red flag flying from the masthead; the ship belonged to the Russian co-operatives. It is a six-day trip from London to Leningrad. The second day out I learned that our boat was loaded with sixty tons of T. N. T. for the Russian army, besides several million dollars in silver coined at the British mint, and other interesting cargo. An exciting trip; once we had to pass with our T. N. T. thru five miles of floating, uncharted mines in the Baltic Sea; the captain did not sleep that night. Exciting, but not as exciting as coming into Kronstadt harbor, and seeing the whole Russian Soviet navy at maneuvers, thousands of young lads crowding the decks and saluting our dipping flag as we sailed by.

My Yankee blues began to leave me in the week I spent in Leningrad. They left me entirely during the three months I spent in Moscow. I now regard a trip to Russia as the only sure cure for those capitalistic Yankee blues.

RUSSIA is no Utopia; it is still about a hundred years off from Utopia; but it is on the way to it, while western capitalism is on its way to new wars and a new hell. In Russia you get the feeling of a great mass of social-minded human beings, all working and thinking and planning and fighting and dying for a common great end, and not for petty individual ends. A plan, an ideal; no cynicism or discouragement, but a vision; that is one feeling I got from Russia that helped cure my Yankee blues.

In Russia working men may be as poor and poorer than American working men; but they are all learning something; they are using their minds. They have faith in the future. They hope. They know no doors are closed to them; that if they show any intelligence they can rise to the top where that intelligence will be used. They know their sons can go to college; they know their daughters will not become prostitutes. They feel and act like free men; they march thru the streets singing in their rough factory clothes; they work in the shops like freemen, knowing that if a superior officer becomes arogant or tyrannical, they can have a voice in dismissing him. They know that if they are sick or out of work, they will be taken care of. They don't worry over finding a job; they don't try to save money for their old age; there's no need for it. There is much poverty in Russia, but there are no wage-slaves; and all this was another thing that helped cure my Yankee blues.

IN Russia, too, youth is supreme. The old have died off; the average age of the country today must be around twenty-seven. Youth surrounds one everywhere, hopeful, strong youth. One sees procession of boy and girl pioneers, from seven to twelve years old, marching proudly behind drums and bugles, under the red flag. One sees young men and young women walking the streets; leather coats, caps, rough clothes, boots, blouses, the girls with bare legs, the boys with shirts open at the throat; swaggering, arrogant, brave, working youth, Communist youth, full of energy and hope as they build the future. The consciousness of their power is on every face; and intelligence is there, too, and a love of humanity. I have never seen youth like this before; it does not yet exist anywhere else in the world. Young normal-minded athletes they are; interested in football and the theater and Communism; interested in life, and in society. They are the pride and hope of Russia, this new youth. They too, cured my Yankee blues.

AND then there was the friendship one found in Russia. I came expecting to find nothing but grim politics, but I found warm friendship too. The Russian have the temperament of a primitive people; they are hospitable, warm, emotional, loyal and brave; but they have, also, the intelligence of a civilized people—they are mature men and delightful simple children at the same time. They do things for one; they surround one with warmth and laughter. One learns to love the Russians to distraction. They never talk money, they do not judge anyone by his position or his salary; they appreciate the differences of each natioin; they have no prejudices; they open their houses to the whole world. They are so eager to learn about the things you know; over the samovar they talk the night thru, and it is more stimulating than Coney Island, or a Broadway cabaret, or the Hippodrome, or any of the colossal things people buy with huge sums of money in America in a frantic search for amusement.

IN all my time in Russia I met hundreds of people, but not one of them told me some scheme he had for getting rich quick in a hurry. What a relief from the Yankee blues! And not one of them tried to use me in any way, or tried to make me feel he was superior. Not one did I meet who did not feel the necessity of humanity working together toward some common end; not one did I find who would not go out simply and quietly to defend the revolution; no heroics, no bombast, it was just in their bones.

After the hurry and ambitions of America the nervous American finds the slow, steady, cheerful and constructive Russia of today the surest cure for those miserable Yankee blues.

FLOWER MAKERS LOBBY ON CHILD SLAVERY BILL

Offer Solons Bribe to Kill Measure

ALBANY, New York, March 29.—Manufacturers of artificial flowers and feathers, who sub-contract their work to tenement dwellers in New York city, have lobbied at the New York assembly here so successfully that a bill to prohibit tenement house work will probably be killed.

Charges that the bill was recommitted to the assembly committee on industry after Jacob de Jong, president of the American Association of Flower and Feather manufacturers, had approached assemblymen with threats and bribes were made in the senate. The bill, which has been killed at every session of the legislature for the past few years, would prohibit the manufacture of artificial flowers, feathers powder puffs and other articles for toilet and attire in tement houses.

Altho the lobbyists blocked the bill in the assembly, it was passed in the senate, after one senator charged that "children of tender age are being employed in tenement house manufacture in unsanitary and unhygenic conditions."

"These articles," he added, "are being sold in Fifth avenue shops."

Although at a public hearing on the bill no one spoke in opposition to it, several senators declared they had been offered bribes to kill the bill.

DETROIT POLICE SUPPORT THE POLISH HANGMEN OF LANZUTSKY IN ASSAULTS ON COMMUNISTS

By EDGAR OWENS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., March 29.—A demonstration of Detroit workers before the Polish consulate, 80 E. Garfield, protesting against the proposed hanging of Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist member of the Polish parliament, was brutally attacked by the police Saturday morning, March 28. But the attack failed of its purpose even tho nine of the demonstrators were taken to police headquarters where uniformed plug-uglies made a vain attempt to frighten them.

Several hundred men and women gathered before the Polish consulate at ten o'clock and marched back and forth. Banners were displayed, carrying such slogans as, "Down with the Polish democracy which hangs its worker members of parliament," "Polish democracy maintains itself with the aid of the hangman, save Lanzutsky," "Hail to the Communist Party of Poland," and others of a like nature.

Wants to Tell Him Their Opinion.

A committee of four of the demonstrators went into the consulate and demanded to see the august representative of Poland, but this worthy sent an understudy to be interviewed. The committee presented the protest of Detroit's workers against the proposed execution of Comrade Lanzutsky, and demanded that the sentiments of these workers be cabled to the white guard vassal of French imperialism in Poland.

This the lackey promised to do and the committee came out of the consulate with Al Goetz, spokesman, at their head. While Goetz was announcing the results of the conference to the crowd, a bull-dozing cop stepped forward and demanded to know if Goetz belonged to the consulate. Goetz was quick to deny this foul slander and the cop informed him that he was standing on private property and would have to move himself hence. Goefz stepped off the lot on to the sidewalk and continued his announcement. "The inspector wants to see ye," yelled the bull. "And I want to see him," replied Goetz. And they wended their way to the hoosegow. Then the fun began.

Bulls, Beef and Bolsheviks.

A couple of auto loads of bulls reenforced by a gang of plain clothes dicks and department of justice stoolpigeons, arrived by this time and attempted to rush the crowd. But the crowd refused to be rushed. One of them bumped against Phil. Raymond and Phil made a most noisy obpection. "Come along," bellowed the bull. Phil surrendered before a superior weight of beef, and was taken to keep Goetz company.

Jack Reynolds, who loves a policeman like a cinder in the eye, likened these official disturbers of the peace to the hangman of Poland which made the gentle guardian of the law so indignant that he insisted that Jack take a walk to the bastile, which was but a block away from the consulate.

Nok began the police onslaught to gain possession of the banners. A pretty skirmish ensued in which the entire police department of the Canfield district was required to capture the banners from the women. The crowd continued to walk back and forth and absolutely refused to disperse. A display of sawed-off riot guns failed completely to awe the crowd.

Second add Detroit Police

An Inquiry of Police.

Edgar Owens then went to the police station and demanded to know what charge had been preferred against the arrested demonstrators. This was a sad mistake, as Owen immediately discovered when he found himself cast in the midst of the other culprits.

Next came John Rushton on the arm of a cop. "What did you do," we asked. "I disobeyed the bull," replied the indignant John wrathfully.

Were Walking Toward Soviet Russia.

A few moments passed and Bud Reynolds and Ruth Fern were brot in. "We were walking east towards Soviet Russia and a cop insisted that we walk west. We refused. We insisted on our constitutional rights to walk east. He informed us that the constitution was suspended. And here we are."

The party was growing. Arnold Zekit and Arvid Owens came to the jail in quest of information. "Get Morey Sugar on the phone and tell him to come down at once," said old Owens to Young Owens. Being a dutiful son he made a mad dash for the door, but a cop grabbed him and our party increased by one. Zekit made a side line drive but another cop tackled him before he could make a getaway. There were now nine "enjoying" the hospitality of the police, who make common cause with the hangmen of Poland.

The Inspector Offended.

In the course of an hour the inspector came in and began a browbeating harangue which seems to be universal with police guys. "Get a soap box," advised Bud Reynolds which threw the inspector off his line of argument and after a bit more blustering he took names and addresses and told the prisoners that they could go. They announced that they were returning to hold forth before the Polish consulate, which they did.

The demonstration continued until the consulate closed about 1:00 p. m. It was a pronounced success in every way. The attempted disruption by the police merely served to acentutate the fact that Comrade Lanzutsky rests in the shadow of the scaffold.

Another demonstration will take place before the Polish consulate on Saturday, April 4 at 10:30 a. m. This demonstration will be given adequate publicity and will bring out great hosts of Detroit workers.

EIGHT SPEAKERS AND A PARADE DEMONSTRATE IN NEW YORK'S PROTEST

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 29.—Demonstration was staged against Lanzutsky execution before Polish consulate at Fifty-sixth street and Third avenue, under the auspices of the Workers Party, Young Workers' League and International Workers' Aid.

Speakers were Gitlow, Manley, Chernenko, Weinstone, Amter, Poyntz, Brahdy and Fox.

Resolutions were adopted. One thousand in a parade with banners followed, ending up at district headquarters. There was no interference.—Charles Krumbein.

Crowds Demonstrate In New York

NEW YORK CITY, March 29.—A crowd of 2,000 workers appeared before the Polish consulate here yesterday afternoon, and with banners and in speeches demanded the release by the government of Poland, of Stanislav Lanzutsky, a railroad worker and Communist member of the Polish parliament, from a death sentence imposed for leading the railway workers' strike of 1923.

The demonstration was led by members of the Workers (Communist) Party, and the Young Workers League, Police were summoned by the frightened consul, for the purpose of guarding the timorous agent of the Polish capitalists and landlords.

Six Arrested In Detroit

DETROIT, Mich., March 29.—Gordon Owens, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, William Reynolds, president of the carpenters' district council, and four other members of the Workers Party were arrested yesterday afternoon when they led a demonstration of several hundred workers before the Polish consulate in protest against the imminent execution of Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist member of the Polish parliament, sentenced to death for making a speech.

Chicago Workers Challenge White Guardism

An imposing demonstration against the murder by Poland of Stanislav Lanzutsky, was staged yesterday before the Polish consulate in Chicago, at 1155 North Robey St., by crowds of workers led by the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers League.

A thousand workers cheered the many speakers who, voicing the protests of American workers against the murderous capitalist dictatorship of Poland, demanded the release of Lanzutsky and pointed out the hypocrisy of the "democracies" which pretend to represent all classes, yet which always surpress with violence workers' organization.

The Fake of "Democracy"

It was shown that even in the "democratic" parliament the right of workers to raise their voices are choked by the hangman, Lanzutsky's repetition in the house of parliament of Poland on Dec. 18, last year of his speech to the railway workers made at Przempl in the railway strike of 1923, having led directly to the demand for his death by the Polish capitalist dictatorship.

Leaflets were distributed calling all workers to the great mass meeting of protest arranged to take place Sunday afternoon at the Ashland Auditorium.

The Polish counsel, George Barthel Weydenthal, called the police, but these did not interfere with the demonstration to the extent of making Demonstrators Gather Eearly.

The demonstrators gathered early in large numbers at the Soviet School, 1902 West Division street. They included not only the members but also the sympathizers of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers' League.

Arrayed with huge placards, carrying the slogans of the day's demonstration, the workers proceeded up West division street and then south, on Robey street to the Polish consulate at 1115 N. Robey street. Hhere the demonstrators for Lanzutsky, singing "The Red Flag" and "The International' flaunted their banners in the face of the local representatives of the Polish reaction. These banners declared that, "American workers protest against the murder of Polish workers by the Polish white terror;" "Long live the Communist Party of Poland—Long live the Workers (Communist) Party of America;" "Down with the Polish bourgeoisie and their white terror;" "Long live the Communist International;" "Save the life of Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist member of the Polish parliament," and many other similar appeals . Then there was one inviting all workers to Sunday's demonstration at the Ashland Auditorium, called to demonstrate for the release of the political prisoners of the working class.

Hold Open Air Meeting.

While the paraders carried the banners with these slogans up and down before the Polish consulate, a large open air meeting was started by Martin Abern, local organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party in such close proximity that the Polish consul, Weydenthal and his associates could easily hear the voices of the speakers denouncing the government that they represented.

Among the speakers were Jack Johnstone, acting secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, J. Louis Engdahl, editor of the DAILY WORKER, and M. Marck, co-editor of the Polish weekly, Trabuna Robotniza, and member of the bureau of the Polish section of the Workers Party.

Not the First Murder.

"We are here assembled before the Polish consulate," declared Marck, "not in order to petition the consulate to save the life of Comrade Lanzutsky. We are here to protest against this dastardly outrage of the Polish bourgeoisie.

"This is not the first murder of the Polish capitalists against the workers and peasants of Poland. But never before did the Polish ruling class so openly tear to pieces the so-called immunity of a member of the diet as in the case of Comrade Lanzutsky.

"Comrade Lanzutsky was the first one in the Polish diet to defend the rights of the workers and peasants of Poland. At every opportunity he tore down the mask of hypocrisy from the representatives of the middle class, bourgeoisie, and yellow socialists who combined to keep the workers of Poland in subjection.

"The ruling class of Poland cannot destroy the Communist movement in Poland. The historical words which Lanzutsky uttered in his last speech in the Polish diet are still ringing in the ears of the Polish bourgeoisie, that 'Communism will defeat you.'"

Into Polish Business District.

When the gathering had swelled to thousands, a parade was started thru the Polish working class district. It took the marchers down West Division street, to Milwaukee Ave., where are to be found the local Polish capitalist dailies, the great banks headed by Polish capitalists, and other business institutions of the district, especially those of John Smulski, the Polish millionaire, grown rich thru the exploitation of the Polish workers.

Thousands of leaflets were given out along the line of march and great interest was manifested everywhere by the Saturday afternoon throngs. The marchers went up Milwaukee avenue and then circled back to Division street and to the Soviet school. There the marchers were addressed by Local Organizer Abern, after which they dispersed.

REVOLT LOOMS IN IRELAND AS FAMINE SPREADS

Cattle Are Dying in Thousands

BELFAST, March 29—That the Irish workers and peasants who are suffering from hunger owing to the famine situation that exists thruout the western part of the country, may revolt, was the prediction of Col. George O'Callaghan Westropp, wealthy former from the County Clare who is attending a conference here.

Cattle are dying at a tremendous rate and practically all the sheep in many townlands are already dead and in other localities 80 per cent of the live stock perished. A traveler could not journey along any road without meeting two or three funerals every day.

That the famine situation in reland is growing more serious is now admitted by impartial observers. In a cable to the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee a few days ago, Helen Crawford, who is supervising relief activities of the Workers' International Relief in Ireland, urged immediate financial aid from the workers of this country to their brothers and sisters in Ireland.

Free State Lies.

The Irish Free State officials, tho obliged to make an appropriation for the famine stricken, still deny that there is a famine. The Free State government wants a foreign loan and a famine is not good for its credit. The Irish republican party of Ireland under the leadership of DeValera and the reactionary Mary MacSwiney in the United States, declared the famine is British propaganda, tho the Irish republican party has been collecting money in this country for several years "for the relief of republicans." DeValera's cure for the misery of the Irish is to teach them to speak Gaelic and say their prayers in the native tongue, a language which he has not time to learn. But the famine has been principally confined to the Gaelic speaking west.

The Workers' International Relief has organized a branch in Ireland under the leadership of Robert Stewart, a Communist, which has already established relief stations in Donegal. The only organization in the United States which is making a serious attempt to collect money for Irish relief is the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee with headquarters at 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago.

appearance of Mussolini, show that after the Communist deputies, outnumbered ten to one, had been thrown from the chamber by the fascist cut throats, they returned and stayed until the end of the session. The Communists had spoiled the fascist demonstration for Mussolini by singing the International and shouting, "Long live Communism."

Mussolini, who looked seriously ill, did not seem to be aware of what was going on around him. During the Communist demonstration Mussolini sat, pale and thin, staring straight in front of him with apparently sightless eyes.

The doctors attending Mussolini refuse to make any statement with regard to his condition.

Mussolini made his appearance, his friends say, in a desperate effort to halt the growing friction between the "moderates" and "extremists" who have threatened to split the ranks of the fascisti.

Judge Robbed Miners.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., March 29.—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley, testifying against his associate in the eastern district of Illinois, Judge George English, who is charged with graft, corruption, tyranny and incompetence, declared that Judge English sought to have him appoint his son, George English, Jr., as attorney in a bankruptcy case. It was generally understood thruout the district that English was appointing his referee in bankruptcy, C. B. Thomas, to numerous lucrative receiverships.

Thomas was appointed receiver for the Gem Coal company, which cheated the miners of Sessor and Pinckneyville out of thousands of dollars in wages.

Workers Must Reject Crumbs in the Struggle For the Whole Loaf

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, another sob writer, so-called, turns loose his silly stuff in one of the local yellow capitalist sheets, to the effect that court bailiffs in Chicago are organizing themselves into a relief body to befriend poor workers, unable to pay their rent, whom they are forced to evict from their homes.

It is to be doubted whether this fiction has any existence outside the brain of the kept press hack who wrote it. Yet it is typical of the kind of material that prostitute editors dote on.

• • • •

If workers went out on strike for wages enabling them to pay their rent, then the mad dog press would turn upon them, as they always do, in bitter rage. Or if they sought unemployment relief, under the slogan of "Work or Wages!" then they would be charged with being Bolshevists.

But to have the bailiffs of a capitalist court throw a few pennies into a hat, to relieve for a few moments some extreme case of poverty,—that makes a good story—that's god-sent charity. It is the kind of charity that is peddled once a year, around Christmas time, in the form of a basket of stale food, by churches of all creeds, by the salvation army, the volunteers of America, and other organizations that thrive and grow rich off the agony of the poor. These are the profiteers in poverty.

It were better if the Chicago court bailiffs, little cogs in some old party political machine, organized as workers and, among other demands, put up a fight for an increase in wages themselves. Some of them receive as low as $166 per month to do the dirty work that is thrust upon them. If they organized as workers, which is not to be expected of them, they might realize their solidarity with the rest of the working class and refuse to evict workers unable to pay their rent. William Rooney, chief clerk of the municipal court, for instance, rids himself of this apologetic philosophy:

> "Just because we're bailiffs, we're not the worst people in the world. There is nothing we hate to do more than evict worthy people just because of sickness or unemployment, or some temporary disability they have gotten behind in their rent."

That is the bleating of a human slave in an ass's skin. It is a cheap effort at excusing his own degradation. He confesses himself worse than the profiteering landlord, whose tool he is. The landlord at least gets the benefit. A terror is created. The poor renter pays the landlord first; even if his children must go hungry and without clothes. But the bullying bailiff, usually picked because of his soft head and hard heart, like any police cossack, gets a mere pittance in wages that may stop after the next election, when he must make way at the political pie counter for the lackeys of some rival capitalist political master.

Any self-respecting worker will spit in the face of the bailiff that offers his family a meal and at the same time kicks his broken furniture out on the sidewalk, usually in the rain, often in the cold of winter. Every worker, with pride in his class, will reject all forms of charity as an effort of the great employing class to keep the rising working class contented with its lowly lot.

In those revolutionary days in Russia between March and November, 1917, the world capitalists were willing to give the workers and poor peasants, with their heels upon the fallen czardom, all the crumbs they wanted. But there was one thing they would not give; THE WHOLE LOAF. That was just what Russia's workers and poor peasants demanded, "ALL POWER"; and that is what they got in the Bolshevik revolution, because they refused to accept the crumbs thrown to them by their masters.

Let the workers and poor farmers of the United States reject the crumbs of American capitalism, whether they come in the form of pennies from bailiffs, or cloroforming legislation from the capitalist lawmaking bodies—congress or the state legislatures. Let them organize, carefully and deliberately, for the seizure of all power, for the whole loaf; for the Soviet rule of America's workers and poor farmers, leading the way to Communism.

CAL SLAPS AT CHINA AS FLEET PRACTICES WAR

American Forces Out to Intimidate Pacific

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29.—American imperialism, thru the Coolidge government, is making an active bid to dominate and exploit the government and people of China. The Coolidge government has filed a protest with the Chinese foreign office at Pekin, claiming that the Chinese violated "American sovereignty," when they arrested Capt. Hawley.

Killed Chinese.

The Coolidge administration is protesting Hawley's arrest despite the fact that the way in which he steered of Chinese who were being unloaded his boat, the Chichuen, was responsible for the drowning of a number from the boat. Hawley started his steamer too soon, and the waves upset the Chinese sampan, drowning at least three Chinese.

At the same time, it is announced that nearly 200 American battleships, almost the entire navy of the United States, will steam to Hawaii for extensive battle maneuvers, following which the battle fleet will go to Australia and New Zealand, not returning until Sept. 27.

Beat War Drums.

Wall Street is accustoming the workers of the United States to the roar of guns and the smoke of battle. War maneuvers are being concentrated in Pacific waters, where American capitalists are competing with Japan and Great Britain for control of Pacific markets.

The big guns of the dreadnoughts of the battle fleet were fired again in the Los Angeles harbor yesterday, when the fleet for a second time engaged in battle practice.

The administration congressmen are to use Gen. Mitchell's "exposure" of the alleged small size of the United States air forces, to conduct an extensive campaign during the next session of congress to speed up war preparations, it was announced today. The house naval and military affairs committee will "investigate" the air forces and no doubt, will recommend a larger air force.

Military Bunk Here.

In line with the nation-wide campaign of the capitalists of this country to drum up a war spirit, the 65th cavalry division association will stage a "military show" in Chicago on May 22, 23, 24. The announced purpose of the military demonstration is to "stir up interest in the army, and stimulate enrollment in the citizens' military training camp."

In Belleville, Ill., work is being rushed on the RS-1, the largest dirigible attached to the United States army air corps.

Wood Controls Manila Courts.

MANILA, P. I., March 29.—Manuel Quezon is making a sensational campaign in the elections, largely against the American dictator, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood. Quezon has attacked the supreme court, claiming it is in the hands of American imperialists. The courts recently ruled against the independents with regards to election inspectors.

COAL BARONS IN SECRET MEET AT CLEVELAND

Intend to Break with Miners' Union

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, March 29—The coal operators of the states of Ohio and Pennsylvania are quietly holding sessions here with a view to evolving plans that will enable them to modify in their own favor the terms of the Jacksonville agreement or else break completely with the union and run their mines open shop.

The Jacksonville agreement has two years to run, but the operators are not squeamish about breaking agreements. Only John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America considers it a mortal sin, for the miners to seek modification of wage contracts in their favor.

Waited for Opportunity.

The conference of coal operators of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois set for March 17, was indefinitely postpone owing to disagrement as to the methods to be used. John L. Lewis speaking for the mine workers stated that a conference between the officers of the International Union and the coal operators for a revision of the Jacksonville pact was out of the question. The Indiana and Illinois operators thot it was better to wait awhile and let the policy of attrition wear down the strength of the miners' union before opening the grand attack.

The DAILY WORKER representative learned that the postponement of the March 17 conference did not mean the abandonment of the effort to break the Jacksonville agreement. The operators in the south western territory had also signed a contract with the union on the terms of the pact, but they decided to shut down their mines and open them non-union on April 1.

Came Unheralded.

The latest conference of coal operators was not heralded by advance publicity as the two previous ones were. It met quietly and was in session two days before the news leaked out. Among those in attendance is William G. Warden, chairman of the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Coal company. Warden admitted when interviewed that he expected the representatives of the Indiana and Illinois operators to appear before the conference was over.

The operators claim that the low wage scale paid by the non-union mines in West Virginia and Kentucky are making it impossible for them to hold their own in the market. On the other hand Lewis and his crooked reactionary machine refuses to organize the non-union fields, but uses up most of his energy driving the progressives out of the union.

Open Shop Glass Firm Gets an Injunction Against Glaziers

An injunction to restrain Glaziers' Union, Local 27, and its business agent, George H. Meyers, from interfering with or conspiring to injure the business of the Ravenswood Glass company, 900 Eastman street, was asked in a bill filed in the superior court by Jacob I. Goldman, president of the company.

Goldman charges that when he tried to work on an open shop basis glaziers told him they could work for no one unless Meyer permitted them to do so.

Later, the bill sets forth, Meyer organized an association for the fixing of prices and required contractors to pay him 1¼ per cent of their gross receipts. Afterward, the bill states, Meyer changed the charge to $25 a month for each glazier employed by the contractor.

Hunger Strike of Red Prisoners in Hamburg at an End

HAMBURG, Germany, March 29.—The two-week hunger strike of the 72 German Communists, serving long prison terms charged with taking part in last year's revolt, has ended. The hunger strike stirred up a bitter discussion in the Hamburg city council on the persecution of the Communists.

Three of the Communists were so weak they had to be taken to the prison hospital.

Kerensky's Wife Stays in Russia and Gets Divorce

LENINGRAD, Russia, March 29—Mme. Kerensky, the wife of Alexander Kerensky, enemy of the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia, secured a divorce from her counter-revolutionary husband in October, 1923, it was revealed here.

Kerensky is editing an anti-Soviet newspaper in Prague, and his wife, rather than betray the Russian people, elected to remain here and secure a divorce.

LANDLORD CURSE MAKES FARMERS RED, BOOK SAYS

Bankers Control Poor Tenantry

"The danger is that it is already too late to find a remedy short of revolution," writes Herbert Quick in his book The Real Trouble With the Farmers. He sees a class conscious farm proletariat coming into existence as a result of the increase in land values due to the complete occupation of all good farm land.

"Most writers," he says, "are ignoring the fact that farm tenantry has increased until it is the controlling factor in the condition of the farmer. When to the proportion of farms under tenantry is added the other farm areas which are mortgaged and the owners of which are in fact if not in law merely tenants, it embraces a vast majority of the farms in the United States.

"Farm tenantry increases with such rapidity because land grows so valuable that a poor man cannot buy it and pay for it. Farms in good farming regions are not for people in even moderate circumstances, as working people go. Lands which sold for $5 an acre in my boyhood have been sold in recent years for $500 an acre. Rich people in towns and cities bid with unvarying success against the dirt farmer for the ownership of farms."

Rich Get Land

Quick points out that this passing of the land into the hands of the rich is increasing the average size of farms. The 40-acre and 80-acre farms of yesterday have been combined into 320-acre farms worth $100,000 to $150,000. Once young men could buy and equip a farm with the savings of a number of years labor. Now that is impossible where land is good.

The curse of landlordism, he says, settles on a region wherever the land is value.

The farm rental system in the United States is described as the worst in the world. To find one as bad we must go to prewar Russia. It is rackrenting, a system in which the landlord has the legal right to get as much out of his land as he can. It is filling the land with people on a peon scale of living.

"But," he predicts, "class consciousness is coming. It is, in fact, here. When it has its threatened increase, look out for bitter attacks on existing institutions."

NOBLE "MOUNTIES" OF STATE POLICE STRONG FOR ROMANCE OF BREAKING WAGE STRIKES

ARTICLE V.

By MANUEL GOMEZ.

Facts and figures brought out in these articles prove conclusively that state police are not "rural police" but industrial police for use against the workers in industrial disputes.

But the police have their secondary rural purpose too—and in rural communities it is the poor farmers who suffer from their depredations. The bankers and big business elements are the ones who profit. That is why the La Salle street financial district is such a unit behind the Dunlap bill for a state constabulary in Illinois. It is why Wall Street is behind similar police bills in various states thruout the country.

The Romance of Strike Breaking

To see what a military police force will mean for the poor farmers and rural workers one need only study past experiences. In this article I propose to tell some of the history of the Royal Northwest Mounted police of Canada which is singularly not revealed in the magazine stories and movie reels dealing with these famous troopers which play such a role in the inspired "mammonart" dished out to American flappers and schoolboys.

The stories of romance and adventure which have been written around the Royal Northwest Mounted police have built up a legend among the unsuspecting that this force is an ideal organization established for the sole pupose of protecting the sanctity of home and fireside. The cold pages of history tell a different story.

It Runs Something Like This:

During the early sixties the Hudson Bay company, which then owned "by grant" a considerable slice of northern and western Canada, had become engaged in bitter competition with its rival, the Northwest company. Both concerns flagrantly violated the rights of the poor squatters scattered thru the region. In 1867 the Hudson Bay company sold great tracts of its land to the Dominion government. Less than two years afterward, the inhabitants of the northwest territory were actually forced into open rebellion, as a protest against the new land regulations which the prostitute politicians and landgrabbers at Ottawa sought to enforce upon them—regulations which meant nothing more nor less than the break-up of their homes. The rebellion was suppressed by the military forces of the crown.

Permanent Martial Law

The commanders of the troops advised that permanent military details be stationed in the territory. Sir John MacDonald, head of the Canadian government then conceived the idea of a military police force, and upon his recommendation, a law was enacted establishing the Royal Northwest Mounted police, which began the performance of its unenviable duties in 1873—being sent immediately to the disaffected district of the northwest for use against the poor farmers.

But industry reaches out even into the farmlands and into the unploughed wilderness. Strikebreaking became a feature of the activities of the Northwest Mounted police from the very beginning.

In The Canadian Pacific Strike

At this time the work of surveying for the building of the Canadian Pacific railway was started. The workers were poorly paid and poorly treated in every respect. Their only protection—as is everywhere the case under capitalism—was in their own organized resistence. And the Northwest Mounted police was on hand to prevent that if it could. Strike after strike among the construction workers was broken by these mock heroes of story and screen, who acted as out-and-out agents of the profit-hungry railroad magnates.

Reporting to the inspector-in-chief, Captain R. B. Deane (appointed to command part of the force) wrote:

> "I instructed the men in charge of the detachments to use the severest measures to prevent a cessation of the work of construction."

A year later, 1886, found the police active in suppressing another land law rebellion among the poor farmers. When it was all over Louis Riel, leader of the rebellion, was taken to a police barracks and executed there.

Since that time, the history of the Royal Northwest Mounted police has been replete with stories of strikebreaking activities at the behest of the big capitalists who hold Canada in their grasp. Every miner, lumberjack and railroad worker in the Dominion has learned to fear and hate the mounted police. And the farmers have learned this lesson too.

Workers and poor farmers are united against the oppressive power of capitalism. In the United States as in Canada, these two elements must be brought closer and closer together. Every extension of the police power, every attempt of the financial interests to get more clubs and more bayonets in their service, constitutes a new menace. Its purposes may be camouflaged by pretenses of "protection of life and liberty," "safety for rural communities," "road policing," etc., but the plain facts of history cannot be swept aside.

MAY RE-OPEN FOSTER'S CASE

more of those indicted under the criminal syndicalist law of the state of Michigan.

The event that led up to this was the holding of a peaceful convention in Bridgeman, Michigan. The department of justice had succeeded in getting a stool pigeon in to this convention, who, together with the department of justice agents working on the outside, helped to stage a raid which initiated the famous Michigan Communist cases.

Thru the trials of W. Z. Foster, whose trial came first, and that of C. E. Ruthenberg, it never was once proven by the state or any one else that these Communists performed any overt act. Ruthenberg was convicted only upon the basis of "assembling with" other Communists, discussing matters coming up before this convention.

Proved No Overt Act

William Z. Foster, who was the first tried, was not convicted as the jury disagreed in his case. This doesn't mean that the case has been abandoned, but that at any time the state may re-open the case and attempt to secure conviction whenever the situation is favorable to them.

Where Money Came From

It is interesting to note in this case that the prosecution peculiarly enuf has been financed from other than local sources. This has been proven by an affidavit made by Fred C. Franz, sheriff of Berrien country at the time of the Bridgeman raid and now a member of the board of supervisors of Berrien county, who said: "Berrien county will be put to no expense for what has happened here or what will happen in these cases. The money will come; from what source I cannot say, but it will come. It has come in other cases and it will come in this case."

After 16 had been arrested on the ground, and six later apprehended, ten Communists involved in this affair voluntairily surrendered themselves to show that it was in the case of all the defendants involved primarily a matter of fight against the criminal syndicalist laws and the railroading of workers to prison, instead of the mere defense of individuals.

Red Baiting Stories.

Out of the Bridgman raid and the Michigan cases have grown a series of red-baiting stories from various sources which sought to picture the Communists and other sections of the working class in the most lurid light. Some of those red-baiting stories went even further and took in every conceivable person that might have had the slightest liberal conception. The Boston Transcript published one of these lurid stories, and was forced later because of libel suits against it to apologise to various of these individuals.

While much propaganda was made by the capitalist press against the Communists and the rest of the labor movement on the basis of this famous raid, nevertheless the persecution in these cases succeeded in accomplishing an unification of the various elements of the labor movement who saw the menace of the criminal syndicalist laws and possible persecution that might be kept up under them. Out of the criminal syndicalist cases of the state of Michigan rose the Labor Defense Council, and a tremendous surge of protest all over the country against the Michigan and similar prosecutions.

Fifty to be Tried.

There are still 30 Communists to be tried under the criminal syndicalist law of the state of Michigan, the cases connected with this Bridgeman raid. It was announced that Robert Minor will be the next case to be taken. Then this case will come up or whether another case will be taken instead of Minor's, or whether William Z. Foster will not be tried over again shortly, is a matter of conjecture, the solution of which is up to the authorities of Michigan. Whatever they decide to do, it is certain that the criminal syndicalist law in the state of Michigan is there as a club to be used against the 32 individuals involved on the Michigan cases and against every other individual in the state of Michigan who dares to disagree with the authorities. And it is further certain that all possible preparations must be made to fight the criminal syndicalist law and the attempt to imprison any one under it. It is to this end that the Labor Defense Council is directing all of its energy in the fight against the criminal syndicalist laws in the state of Michigan and in every other state where they exist.

314,308 RAILWAY WORKERS GETTING BUT $900 YEARLY

"Living Wage" Scorned By Railway Board

By LELAND OLDS.

Certain members of the U. S. rail labor board must chuckle at the forty-eleventh presentation of the argument for a living wage when they know from interstate commerce commission figures that they have already awarded 314,308 adult male workers an average of less than $75 a month or $900 for the full year 1924. It must be better fun than a cross word puzzle to figure how a man can support a family on that basis.

The figures are from the commission's summary of wage statistics for 1924. If we raise the maximum to $100 a month or $1,200 for the year, we find over half a million workers grouped below this figure which represents the minimum subsistence wage for a normal family.

200,000 Get $876 a Year.

The 202,967 section men averaged $73 a month or $876 for the year; 56,406 extra-gang and work-train laborers averaged $75 a month or $900 for the year. There were also 8,120 other maintenance of way laborers and 23,007 crossing and bridge watchmen whose yearly average came to an even $900.

In the shops there are two big classes of low-paid common labor, one of 59,842 workers with an average of $80 a month or $960 for the year, the other of 45,994 with average yearly earnings of $1,140. And 13,004 coach cleaners average $1,092. Over 38,500 freight handlers average $92 a month or $1,104 for the year.

The average wage of all hourly paid rail workers in 1924 was $1,544 marking a decline of $12 from 1923. By groups the comparison is shown as follows:

Railroader's Yearly Wage	1924.	1925
Clerical	$1,487	$1,463
Maintenance of way	1,068	1,085
Shop forces	1,470	1,513
Station, including dispatchers, agents, telegraphers, freight and baggage handlers, etc	1,479	1,451
Yard, switch and hostlers	1,805	1,764
Train and engine	2,294	2,283
Yearly Average	$1,544	$1,556

Pile Layoffs on Wage Cuts.

Thus the shop crafts suffered the largest reduction in average earnings. Over half of all the layoffs also fell to this group. The average number of shopmen employed through the year was 54,898 less than in 1923. The total number by which the entire railroad force was reduced was 102,379.

The train and engine service employes show a slight gain in average earnings but their numbers were reduced by 22,003 compared with 1923.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT DISCOVERS PRICELESS RELICS OF ORIENTAL MONARCHS AND RARE TARTAR COINS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29.—Recent bulletins received from the joint information bureau in Moscow by the Russian information bureau here give the news of discoveries of remarkable interest to archaeologists, made by scientists who have been making a survey of great quantities of material packed away and forgotten for many years in the store rooms and vaults of Russian museums.

One notable find is the seal of the Persian monarch, King Artaxerxes, presumably either Artaxerxes I, who reigned 465-424 B. C., or Artaxerxes III, who reigned 359-383 B. C.

The seal is carved on a cylinder of fine chalcedony. It depicts the king, in warlike raiment, with a halo over his head, holding in one hand a sceptre with the point resting on the ground. With the other hand he is leading three fettered prisoners in foreign dress, wearing turbans on their heads. The whole composition, executed with delicate artistry, is framed with the branches of a date palm. The space between the palm and the scene depicted is filled with a Persian cuneiform inscription reading: "I am Artaxerxes, the Great King."

Goes to Moscow Art Museum.

It is being studied by specialists, and will be exhibited in the Oriental section of the Fine Arts Museum in Moscow.

Another discovery is a treasury of oriental coins consisting chiefly of coins of the Golden Horde, the name given to the Tartars under Batu Kahn, the grandson of Jenghiz Kahn, who established a Tartar dynasty in Russia in the thirteenth century. The coins include issues of various kahnates of the Golden Horde for upwards of a century.

State Museum Shows Coins.

Some of the coins were contained in a jug standing at the bottom of the glazed vessel. This was two-thirds full of coins of one of the later Tartar dynasties. They were covered with a piece of felting over which wax had been poured, and above this covering the jug was filled to the top with earlier coins.

Twelve hundred of the coins, those best preserved, have been placed among the collections in the State Historical Museum in Moscow.

URGED RUSSO-CHINESE UNITY

which showed his appreciation of the heritage of Lenin, follows:

"Dear Comrades—On my death bed I should like to express my thoughts on the fate of my country and my party. You are at the head of a union of free republics, which immortal Lenin left as a heritage to all oppressed nationalities of the world. With the aid of this heritage the victims of imperialism will inevitably emancipate themselves from a system of society which has always been based on slavery, war, and all sorts of injustice.

"I leave to the nation a party which, as I ardently hope, will share with you in the historic mission of emancipating China and other oppressed nationalities from the imperialist yoke. My statement to the Kuomingtang Party consists, in the first place, of the demand for the continuation of the cause of the national revolutionary movement for freeing China, which has been degraded to a semi-colonial country by the imperialist powers.

"Therefore I call upon my party to remain in uninterrupted contact with you. I firmly believe that you will always support my country. In taking leave from you, dear comrades, I give expression to my hope that the day is not far, when the U. S. S. R. will find in a free China a strong friend and ally, who will work together in the great struggle for the emancipation of the oppressed of the whole world.

"With fraternal greetings,

"SUN YAT SEN."

At the same time Sun Yat Sen addressed his political testament to the Kuomingtang Party, of which he was the leader. Sun wrote:

"The forty years' work for the national revolution aiming at winning liberty and equal rights for China have filled me with the conviction that that aim could only be achieved thru mobilizing the masses and thru the closest connection with nations who trust us on a footing of equality. The struggle for the success of this revolution must be programmatically fixed. There shall be called together a national assembly which should demand the repeal of all treaties and agreements, in which China is not dealt with on a footing of equality. I call for the speedy realization of that object."

Following Sun Yat Sen's death, the central executive committee of the Russian Communist Party sent the following telegram, signed by Stalin, to the central committee of the Kuomingtang Party, which expressed the faith that the cause of Sun Yat Sen has not died but that the workers and peasants of China will emancipate themselves from foreign imperialism.

The message stated: "The central committee of the R. K. P. (Russian Communist Party) mourns with you the loss you have sustained thru the death of the leader of the Kuomingtang Party, and the organizer of the national struggle of the workers and peasants of China for the liberty and independence of the Chinese people, for the unity and independence of the Chinese state.

"The central committee of the R. K. P. has no doubt that the great cause of Sun Yat Sen will not die with his death, but will continue to live in the hearts of the Chinese workers and peasants, in spite of all their enemies, and that the Kuomingtang Party will carry aloft the banner of Sun Yat Sen in the great fight for emancipation from imperialism and will march to the final victory over all imperialist agents in China. Sun Yat Sen is dead! Long live the work of Sun Yat Sen, long live and prosper his testament!"

LABOR DEMANDS STATE ADMIT IT FAULT IN MURD

Hammer and Sickle But No Crucifix or Bible for Communist

PARIS, March 29—In compariso with M. Galliard, who recently refuse to testify in the parliamentary cam paign funds inquiry unless a crucifi were provided for taking the oath,
Deputy Raffin Dugens, a Communist, today brot a hammer and sickle before the committee for the same purpose.

Questioned concerning a check fo
5,000 francs alleged to have come from union economic interets, the deputy said he certainly had received such a check with an illegible signature.

"I was unaware of the origin of the check. All funds are good for the support of party purposes," he said.

all organizations looking to the emancipation of the proletariat. It is such a brutal piece of legislation that we have not seen the like even in our 50 years of corrupt constitutional history.

The passing of the bill is imminent, since it has already been approved at the cabinet meeting and is now referred to a committee in the diet for approval.

Of all the proletariat of the world, there is no group of people so miserable as we, who have not even the right to vote. And the movement to gain that right is also absolutely forbidden even under the so-called rights of a constitutional regime. The examples of how the proletariat of our country is oppressed are too many to enumerate.

Deny Right to Strike.

Not only the organization of labor unions and the system of collective bargaining are not legally recognized, but even the right to strike on the part of laborers is totally denied.

And if we are forced to resort to direct action, the only action granted us under the capitalist regime, we are to be trampled on by the hoofs of the authorities thru the application of the cruel peace ordinance, and to be driven out of work by the employers.

The words and phrases in the stipulation of various regulation are being left for the free interpretations of the authorities concerned, and as a result they are being distorted by the capitalists according to their own objects.

While our constitution grants freedom of assembly and organization of societies, and the right of publishing, to all citizens of the nation, the proletariat of our country is deprived of all these privileges. The history of our movement, therefore, is colored with the blood of our comrades.

Denied Right of Assemblage.

The application of the existing peace ordinance, which forbids the assemblage of more than two persons without the permission of the police, interferes and makes it impossible for us to assemble together. And by the judgment of one ignorant policeman our assemblies can be interrupted or dispersed, and the comrades participating in the assemblies are, more often than not, arrested and put into prison.

By the working of this peculiar piece of legislation, the citizens of our country, and especially our comrades face imprisonment at the whim of the police, for no offense at all. For instance, comrades residing in a home can be arrested and be put into custody of the police under the name of loafers who do no good to the society.

Our legislation in regard to the publishing of books and newspapers are so prohibitive that we, the proletariat, can hardly hope to have our own papers. Our newspapers and magazines, which survive in spite of this pressure, are frequently placed under bar and confiscated by the police for no particular offense. Moreover, we are compelled to pay heavy punishment or, worse than that, to be put into prison for publishing the magazines intended for the oppressed class. And if we were to be brought into a court of justice, we are not even allowed a chance to say one word for our defense.

So we, the oppressed of Japan, have come to realize the fact that without the fundamental reform in our existing legislation, which fetters and prohibits our actions in every direction, the rightful course of development of our emancipation movement can not be achieved, and that it is the imperative necessity for the realization of our end that we should strive to get the existing legislation altered to our benefit by political action.

We, the proletariat of Japan, are now in a position to form a solid united front to advance one step forward toward the goal of victory. Out of the hardship and misery of the past years, we stepped into the new era with the advent of 1925, firstly by the successful conclusion of an agreement between Russia and Japan, and, secondly with the approaching realization of the franchise.

At this important moment, the bourgeois government of Japan, one of the monsters of imperialism in the whole world, under pressure of its privy council, is going to set up a piece of legislation, intended to threaten us with the regime of white terror, namely the peace maintenance law, in exchange for the granting of the franchise and the recognition of Soviet Russia.

Not satisfied with oppression by means of various brutal existing laws, such as the peace ordinance, publishing law and similar laws proclaimed by various provinces, the reigning capitalist class, with the aid of the authorities in power which are nothing more than feudal bureaucrats, is going to establish the law designed to cripple the movements of the proletariat in order to insure the last hurried gain out of their capitals.

The bill is now being laid before the joint committee of the three government parties to be investigated and it will shortly be introduced into the diet for final approval.

It is not difficult to foresee that the bill, if passed, will enable the government to carry out its policy, much more brutal than the policies of the regime of czarist Russia, or that of fascist Italy.

We are threatened with a regime of white terror!

We are challenged by the imperialism of Japan as to the rights of the proletariat!

We swear before the working men of the world that we will fight it out with the reigning class of Japan for the destruction of imperialism with all our might and in spite of all sacrifices and oppression!

We swear that we will fight it out with the imperialists in Japan until the last!

We, the proletariat of Japan, appeal to the working class of all the countries!

Let all join hands with us and help us in our fight against the oppression of the ruling class of Japan!

Let all of you encourage us in our determination in the struggle with the threatening white terror!

Long live the proletariat of the world!

Down with the regime of white terror!

WORKERS CHEER FIGHT TO SAVE POLISH COMRADE

NEW YORK, March 29—An enthusiastic meeting took place March 26, at the Central Opera House under the slogan "Hands Off Comrade Lanzutsky." Each mention of the name of Stanislav Lanzutsky brought forth a storm of applause. The heroism of this comrade, who has defied the entire Polish bourgeoisie, knowing that death might be the penalty, command the admiration of the working class of the world.

Comrade Weinstone, who opened the meeting as chairman, spoke about the importance of the meeting. "This meeting has been called by the Workers Party, the Young Workers League and the International Workers' Aid to take up three important matters: the threatened execution of Stanislav Lanzutsky, the oppression and persecution of the masses of revolutionary workers thruout the world, and the appearance in the field of relief for political prisoners of a new committee called the "International Committee for Political Prisoners."

Benny And The Lion

"When Mussolini left his sick bed," said Comrade Lore, "his first visit was to the zoological garden, where he petted his favorite lion cub. In sweet tones he said to the young lion, 'You and I have won.' Yes, Mussolini has won—sham capitalist democracy has given way to fascism in many countries of Europe." Comrade Lore then traced the actions of fascism thru the various countries of Europe, where destruction of the working class movement is its only goal.

"We have our Mussolini also in America," said Comrade Manley. "The chief Mussloini is John L. Lewis, czar of the miner's union. And then we have the minor Mussolinis—such as Hutcheson, the tyrant of the carpenters' union, and 'Comrade' Sigman of the needle trades. We have trade union government just as we have capitalist government, and we find that the trade union government is an adjunct of the capitalist government." Comrade Manley demonstrated what the Communists have to fight in the trade union movement—persecution, expulsion and intimidation. "But the Communists will not rest until they have swept all capitalist government out of the way and have established a government of the workers, as our brothers have done in Soviet Russia."

Orgy of Blood

"Since the world war, the imperialists have staged an orgy of blood against the workers and poor peasants of the world," said Comrade Amter. "They have attempted to shift the burdens of the war on to the shoulders of the workers and peasants. Rebellion has resulted—and the imperialists and their vassals have stopped at nothing to crush the organized movement of the workers."

"Those who are in jail in capitalist countries are there for a specific reason," said Comrade Bentall. "They have gone there because they have dared to fight for a principle. They could get free, every one of them, if they would desert their principles. But they stand fast—and we must show them that we stand by them. What horrors do they suffer in the prisons? Straight jackets are the garb in which they are placed when they refuse to accept the harsh prison regime. But they stick—and the workers of this country will support them." Comrade Bentall then made an appeal for the International Workers' Aid. The comrades were carried away by the appeal, and $169 was collected.

Youth In The Vanguard

"Youth is in the front in all struggles of the revolutionary movement," said Comrade Stachel. "Wherever the fight is hardest, the young revolutionary workers bear the brunt."

"There are class war prisoners in Soviet Russia," said Comrade Olgin. "Class war prisoners who have militantly fought against the government of the workers and peasants. They are the 'socialists,' who in 1919, 1920 and 1921, when the Soviet government was beset on all sides and was fighting a fearful struggle, went among the printers and told them not to do their work."

Two resolutions were adopted with a resounding aye by the meeting, one demanding the release of Comrade Lanzutsky, and the other protesting against the persecution of revolutionary workers and peasants in the capitalist prisons of the world, and pledging the energetic support of the workers of New York to the International Workers' Aid.

The Workers Party in Action

TWELVE SHOP NUCLEI ORGANIZED IN NEW YORK CITY; REORGANIZATION WORK IS MAKING BIG PROGRESS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, March 29.—Action speaks louder than words. Two months ago comrades in New York City maintained that it was impossible to reorganize the party on the basis of shop nuclei. However the success so far had in the organization of Communist nuclei in the shops proves that their contention was wrong. In a short period of time twelve shop nuclei have been organized and many more are in the process of organization.

Other comrades in New York held the view that the territorial branch form of organization was in the United States due to the numerical weakness of the party superior to the shop nuclei form. The activities of the shop nuclei that have been organized disprove this view.

The shop nuclei weld all our comrades in the factories into a compact organization that daily concerns itself with the workers' struggles and continually fights in their interest.

It gives us an organization working class in character that functions on the field of the class struggle in the factories where the workers are exploited.

From a loose organization the party is transformed into an organization of action with actual contacts with the masses in the factories. Such an organization in the degree that it can win influence among the workers can be more easily mobilized to lead the workers out of the factories in mass action when the party so desires.

The shop nuclei form of organization because it includes all the Communists who work in the factories transforms the party membership into a homogeneous mass in the various shops instead of into separate entities according to language and territorial divisions as we have today.

New York Spur to Nation.

Shop nuclei organization will make centralization and real unity of action possible. The New York experiences in this field should spur the party organizations in other districts to do likewise.

Last week I reported in the DAILY WORKER about six shop nuclei that were organized. In this article I will briefly give an account of the five additional nuclei that have since come into existence.

Five More Nuclei Organized.

Shop nuclei No. 8 was organized March 3rd in a shoe factory in Brooklyn employing 40 workers. The secretary of the nucleus is chairman of the joint council of all the locals of the union he belongs to.

Shop Nucleus No. 9 organized March March 15 in a dress shop that employs 225 workers. The shop chairman is a member of the nucleus. Besides the party nucleus a very active Young Workers' League nucleus has been organized in this shop. On shop matters the two nuclei meet and act together.

Shop Nucleus No. 10 organized March 19 in a men's clothing factory in Long Island City. A meeting of the workers who sympathize with the party will be called soon and the nucleus expects to enroll 15 new members in the nucleus. This factory is organized and its workers belong to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers. The boss, together with the reactionary officials of the union control this shop. The nucleus is going to make an effort to change all this. Their activity will be well worth watching.

Shop Nucleus No. 11 was organized March 23 in a nonunion machine shop that employs 40 workers. The nucleus expects to unionize this shop in the very near future.

Shop Nucleus No. 12 was organized March 27 in a unionized dress shop that employes 45 workers. The shop chairman is the secretary of this nucleus and the nucleus has two of its members on the shop committee that consists of four workers.

On Saturday afternoon, March 21, a very successful shop nuclei organization meeting was held in this district of all the party members who work between 14th and 42nd streets. As a result of this meeting plans were laid for the organization in this district in the coming two weeks of about 10 new nuclei.

This Saturday a nucleus will be organized in one of the biggest factories in the district. We expect to start the nucleus with a membership of at least 25 comrades.

Urge Party Based on Nuclei.

Shop Nucleus No. 1 which increased its membership from 3 to 15 in less than two months' time expects in the next week to issue the first shop paper ever written by workers in the United States.

Comrades watch the nuclei that are functioning in New York. They will demonstrate what a Communist party based on shop nuclei can do.

Communist Municipal Campaign Meeting in St. Louis on Thursday

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 29.—The mayorality election campaign meeting in St. Louis will be addressed by J. Louis Engdahl, John Braun, Communist candidate for mayor of St. Louis and John Mihelic, sub-district organizer, Workers Party, District No. 8 Thursday, April 2, at The Hall, 2412 North 14th St.

Our comrades in St. Louis made a gallant effort to place Comrade Braun officially on the ballot but the legal requirements were too difficult.

Five hundred and sixty signatures were obtained by the St. Louis comrades in a short space of time, but the legal requirements were 1,000.

Further the election commissioners put additional difficulties in the way of getting Communist candidates on the ballot by declaring that everyone of the signors to a petition, that is a thousand of them individually or personally had to appear before a notary public and declare that they wanted the name of John Braun as candidate ticket. In addition the election commissioners demanded $250.00 filing fee.

These capitalistic demands could not, of course, be met by our working class group at this time. More experience will be needed. However, the comrades will go ahead with the campaign holding the meeting on April 2. Will distribute the party program and other literature and try to hold street meetings.

NEW DEPORTATION LAW THREATENS FOREIGN BORN

Protest Meeting on Next Friday

NEW YORK CITY, March 29—The foreign-born workers of this country face a new campaign of persecution. The government is now enacting a new bill that puts the fate of every foreign-born worker in the United States in the hand of a petty official. Any personal enemy of the worker may denounce him to the police—he is dragged before the immigration officer, and ordered to be deported. He cannot have counsel, he cannot take the matter to court even if he has been in this country for a generation, he must pack his belongings and get out of this "democratic" country.

This is a direct attack on the foreign-born workers. It is an attack on the militant trade union movement of the country, for a large part of the militants, radicals and revolutionaries in the trade unions are foreign-born workers.

Attack Secretly.

It is most significant that the capitalists smuggled this bill into congress without anybody knowing anything about it. It is also significant that the capitalist press has remained silent on the proposal. The workers are to be faced with the accomplished fact and be forced to accept the consequences.

The bill has been passed by the house of representatives and will come before the senate. The workers of the United States must awake to the seriousness of the situation. The capitalists are again trying to divide the native from the foreign-born workers. They are doing this with the intention of exploiting all of them more intensely.

Demonstration Rally Next Friday.

This must not be allowed. The workers of New York will demonstrate that they will not tolerate thir new step of the capitalists and the capitalist government against them. On Friday, April 3, at 8 p. m. they will assemble at the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th street, and let the government of the United States know in definite terms that the "New deportation law must go!"

The meeting has been arranged by the Labor Defense Council, and all workers must attend. Bring the workers from your shops and unions. Kill this new attack on the working class of this country.

TEXTILE WORKERS OF AMSTERDAM, N. Y., ON STRIKE FOR PAY RAISE

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., March 29—Announcement was made at the plant of Stephen Sanford & Sons, Inc., carpet and rug manufacturers, of a reduction of working hours to a basis of four days a week. This was followed immediately by a cessation of work by a large force of weavers who had presented a demand for an increase in pay

GREAT PROFITS FOR CAPITAL IN MONOPOLY

Dividends for Bosses While Workers Starve

Cash dividends totalling 647 per cent in 10 years is the record achieved by Utah Copper Co. with its 1924 report. Its mine, mill and smelter workers are sweating for wages less than 50 per cent above 1914 in the face of a cost of living which has increased more than 70 per cent. At times during the 10 years their wages represented only about one-fifth of the price paid by consumers while the owners were taking one-half in rents, royalties and profits. For 1924 Utah reports a profit of $9,090,109, giving common stockholders a return of 64.4 per cent on their investment.

The National Tea Co., known to most housewives, turns in the highest profit in its history. A net profit of $1,472,993 after all deductions means $27,66 a share on the no-par common stock. But as each share stands for an investment of about $20 this profit is a return of 138 per cent for a single year's business. After generous dividends this company retains undivided profits more than 5½ times the common stock.

The American Radiator Co. reports a 1924 profit of $11,153,728 after all taxes and interest charges have been paid. This means more than 34 per cent on the present par value of the common stock. But within less than 10 years there have been three 50 per cent stock dividends increasing the stockholders' investment by nearly 240 per cent without their risking an additional cent in the business. So the 1924 earnings mean a return of about 115 per cent.

The Otis Elevator Co. is another concern which has helped jack up the cost of building. Its 1924 profit of $4,161,510 means over 23 per cent on the common stock and if recent stock dividends are taken into account it appears that stockholders have a profit of over 38 per cent.

The Fleischmann Co., with its toll on a large part of the country's breadstuffs, shows net incomes after taxes and interest charges amounting to $9,843,233, about 29 per cent for the owners of common stock.

The North American Co., a holding company owning public utilities serving over 7,000,000 customers, reported a profit of $10,582,764, equivalent to 31½ per cent on the stockholder's investment.

But for return on investment the Orpheum Circuit Corp. is in a class by itself. The 1924 net income of $2,897,314 means a return of $4.29 on each $1 invested by common stockholders or 42 9 peecrtn. Cash dividends are running at the annual rate of 150 per cent. Evidently amusement is one of the aspects of life which communities could provide much more reasonably on a co-operative basis.

Workers Party Wars on Fakers

meal ticket and a bright future at the expense of the exploited.

Save The Movement

The statement calls on the workers and poor farmers of Minnesota to save the Farmer-Labor Federation, from the political harpies who are now trying to destroy it. These vultures have organised a fake "farmer-labor organization" instead. The Workers (Communist) Party circular lays bare the treachery of the disrupters of the Farmer-Labor Federation, and calls on the workers to support the Communists in their fight to defeat the reactionaries. 75,000 copies of a leaflet already published in the DAILY WORKER, dealing with the fake unity convention have been distributed and 10,000 copies of the following circular are being distributed thruout the state:

Appeal to Workers.

"To all local unions, farmers' organizations, co-operatives, workers and farmers. Brothers:—

"A farmer-labor party, under the control of actual workers and farmers, giving expression to your economic and political needs, is a real asset to the workers and farmers of Minnesota. But—a farmer-labor party, under the control of a group of lawyers, editors, and self-seeking politicians, giving expression to a purely middle class program, a program satisfactory to the merchants and small-town bankers, is the greatest obstacle that the workers and poor farmers must face in their road to a workers' and farmers' government.

"In Minnesota you are faced with the latter situation. You are faced with the problem of regaining control of the organization which was brought into existence and developed into a political power by you—the rank and file of the farmer-labor party.

Fake Organization

"At the convention held in St. Paul on March 20, (a convention called and attended almost exclusively by business and professional men, reactionary labor union officials, office holders and office seekers) a so-called 'farmer-labor association' was formed. The group dominating this convention first gained 'capitalist respectability' by declaring that no Communist would be permitted to remain in this convention, nor would they be permitted to become members of the association. The raising of the issue of Communism was not actuated by sincere motives, but was merely a smoke screen thrown around the convention to cover up the betrayal of the farmers and workers and the turning of the leadership of the party over to a group of middle class politicians. As is usual when a group sets out to do a job such as was done in St. Paul, they stooped to the most contemptable misrepresentation of the Workers (Communist) Party, its program, and its members.

"In answer to their charges, we wish to state emphatically that the Workers (Communist) Party is today and always has been whole-heartedly in favor of the unity of all workers and poor farmers in a farmer-labor party on the basis of a program representing only the class interests of the workers and farmers. Furthermore, we will in the future always fight for such unity and for such a program—even though it becomes necessary to offend some of the present leaders who do not and never did represent your interests. The Workers (Communist) Party, as a party composed exclusively of workers and farmers, has pledged itself to the struggle against exploitation by the capitalist class and for the establishment of a government controlled exclusively by workers and farmers. We will continue to drive forward until we reach that goal and we call upon the workers and farmers to unite with us, to join our party and support us in that struggle. As a party serving only the interests of the workers and farmers, we support all moves made by them to strengthen and unify their forces. For that reason, we have always supported the farmer-labor party in Minnesota in all its campaigns. We have, however, just as consistently refused to support the leaders of the party in their compromises with the old capitalist parties and in their efforts to turn the party over to a group of office seekers who were interested—not in fighting for your interests—but rather for their own political advancement.

The Reactionary Menace

"The curse of any working class political movement is—not the radical, as they would have you believe—but the ambitious office seeker who is willing to sell out the party to capitalist elements in return for a political job for himself.

"The Workers (Communist) Party pledges its aid to the rank and file of the farmer-labor party in the crisis with which your party is faced as a result of the organization of the 'farmer-labor association' at the convention held in St. Paul on March 20. This association does not now and never will fight for your interests. It is completely under the control of middle class elements and if permitted to continue its usurpation of power, it will absolutely destroy the farmer-labor party as a weapon with which to carry on your struggle.

"The Farmer-Labor Federation (which they are trying to destroy) is the only organization in Minnesota, outside of the Workers (Communist) Party, that can be made into a fighting weapon to carry on the struggle of the workers and farmers against the capitalist class. We call upon you to save the Federation—to built it into a powerful organization—to refuse to be misled into turning it over to a group that will only use it as a club against you in the fight.

"Take this question up in your union—in your farmers' organization—in your co-operative—or—in your ward or township club. Ask them to support the Workers (Communist) Party on the basis of the following demands:

"Down with the leadership of middle class politicians!

"Support the Farmer-Labor Federation!

"Demand a special Farmer-Labor Federation convention at once!

"Forward to a Workers' and Farmers' government!

Fraternally yours,
Dist. Exec. Com., District No. 9,
Workers Party of America.
C. A. HATHAWAY, Dist. Org."

P. S. The truth as to the program of the Workers (Communist) Party may be had by subscribing to the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill., or by writing or calling at the District Office of the party, Rooms No. 2 and 4, 617 Fourth Ave., South, Minneapolis, Minn.

Soviets-Poles Exchange Prisoners.

MOSCOW, March 29—Two political prisoners held by the Polish white guard government are to be exchanged by the Soviet government for two Polish prisoners condemned to death by the Soviets, it is reported here. The two prisoners, victims of Poland's white terror, Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz, were sentenced to death last year, charged with being concerned in the Warsaw citadel explosion of October, 1923.

FIRST LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS TO IRISH FAMINE RELIEF FUND

It was a touching incident and powerful evidence of the rapid growth of the spirit of international solidarity when the poverty stricken workers of Saxony, in Dawesized Germany sent the sum of $300.00 to their brothers and sisters on the west coast of Ireland.

A little return for what the British and Irish workers did for them during the dark days of 1924, was the way the workers of Saxony expressed themselves. From workers to workers! That is the sentiment that is forging a bond of steel between the proletariat, that is girdling the globe and will in the near future prove powerful enough to end the system that inflicts periodic famines on the workers when plenty is available.

The workers of the United States have barely started to aid their stricken comrades in Ireland. Below we publish the first list of those who have responded to our appeal. This money was received at the headquarters of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, 19 South Lincoln Street, Chicago, Ill.

"Because We Have Not Protested Enough" 100 Men Are in Prison

SAN FRANCISCO—(FP)—The release of the hundred workers confined in California prisons for their opinions and union membership in the I. W. W. lies in labor's hands, declares a leaflet distributed by the California branch of the General Defense committee. "The bosses are not to blame for the members of the I. W. W. being in prison," the leaflet reads. "Because we have not protested sufficiently 100 men are serving from one to 14 years in hell."

Since the passing of the criminal syndicalism law in 1919 over 150 members of the I. W. W. have been sent to prison under it. Membership is regarded as sufficient to convict, under a state supreme court ruling.

EUREKA, Cal.—(FP)—Appeal has been denied in the case of nine men arrested in Eureka and Trinidad for criminal syndicalism, and tried twice. During the first trial the court reporter refused to take down the testimony of professional witness Coutts, as being too disgusting. All the men except one are in San Quentin; this one, Jack Beavert, has been too ill and has been in the Humboldt county jail since the arrests in Octobes, 1923.

JAPANESE WOMEN SLAVE IN MILLS 12 HOURS A DAY

Guarded to Cut Off Escape

OITA, Japan, March 29.—One million Japanese women and girls are kept virtual prisoners in Japan's silk and cotton factories, where they are forced to labor 12 hours a day for 40 cents a day.

One such factory here, owned by a foreign corporation which owns 42 such factories, is typical. The factory is enclosed by an eight foot wall to prevent the escape of the 15,000 girls who are housed within its walls. Sentries stand guard over the gates. The girls live in cramped quarters provided by the factory. They work from 7:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. with no Sunday rest.

Overseers stationed thruout the factory keep the girls working at top speed. Girls as young as 9 and 10 years of age are made to labor in these textile mills.

Union Officials of Sweden Compromise to End Big Lockout

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 29—The lockout in Sweden of the workers in five industries, affecting 130,000 employes, was called off yesteday after a compromise agreement between the officials of the general labor federation and the association of employers. The union officials had previously refused to call a national general strike to assist the locked out workers, as demanded by the rank and file.

FRENCH MINERS FELL 1,000 FEET IN CAGE TO DEATH AT BOTTOM

NANCY, March 29.—Ninety minners leaving a shaft in the Sarre and Moselle mines at Merlebach, Lorraine, Thursday, were precipitated from a height of 1,000 feet when the elevator cable broke near the surface.

The miners were traveling up from work on a three-deck elevator when the cable gave way. In spite of immediate rescue measures the miners have not yet been reached.

Altho cries were heard at the pit's mouth these are believed to have come from miners in the galleries below who witnessed the tragedy, in which all are believed to have perished.

Production Declining But Still Higher Now Than It Was in 1924

WASHINGTON, March 29. — Reports from the federal reserve districts summarizing general business and financial conditions, show that production in basic industries declined in February and the early part of March from the high output of January, but continued above the level of a year ago.

Despite a decline in the prices of agricultural commodities, the average of wholesale prices rose slightly. The index of production in twenty-two basic industries, which is adjusted to allow for differences in the number of working days and for seasonal variations, declined 3 per cent in February, but continued to be higher than at any time since the peak reached in May, 1923.

About This Book

"Lenin-- The Great Strategist of the Class War"

by A. Lozovsky.

In a splendid introduction Alexander Bittelman, member of the central executive committee of the Workers Party, says:

"What must you do? What can YOU Do?

"Turn to Lenin, he'll tell you. He has built a party and led a movement which already conquered for the toiling masses one-sixth of the earth's surface. He ought to know how you do those things. Ask him and he'll tell you."

We have received a new stock of this splendid pamphlet by the secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

BIG BUSINESS 'DEFLATES' THE WHEAT FARMER

Knocks 55 Cents Off in Two Months

Will the recent break of 25½ cents a bushel in wheat in three days and the steady decline to a level 55c below the middle of January wake the farmers up to the fact that they were duped by a fictitious price situation into electing Coolidge? According to Griswold in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, "the oldest trader on the exchange has no recollection of a situation that is comparable to this."

"In a normal market," says Griswold, "no exaggeration of opinion, no distortion of market news could drive a single wheat option close to the pre-war level and then chop 55c off the price," before the option expires. Of course this market had been rigged to take the wind out of the farmer-labor combination.

A month ago the New York Times pointed out that the term world shortage of wheat had been somewhat loosely used. It said that, excluding Russia, production would be about 3,100,000,000 bushels which compares very well with 3,742,000,000 in 1922 and 3,106,000,000 in 1921. The estimated yield never reached 3,000,000,000 in any other postwar year.

The department of agriculture now says that there is enough wheat on hand in the country "to meet domestic requirements for feed, seed and flour, allow for exports equal to those from March 1 to June 30 last year and leave a carryover of about 51,000,000 bushels." It points out that in the first eight weeks of 1925 Australia and Argentine furnished the world market 50 per cent more wheat than a year ago and that the world's commercial stocks Feb. 1 were 375,000,000 bushels, the largest since the war except 1924 and only 5,000,000 under that year. Also three percent more acreage has been sown to winter wheat than in 1924.

The high prices around election did not go to the farmer. He delivered his wheat between July and Feb. 1 at an average of $1.24 a bushel, most of it having been sold far in advance of the boom.

Wheat headed for over $2 was only an election promise. It fooled many into believing that it would hold until the next crop. But the hope gave Coolidge the west.

Children Born After Revolution Make High Comparative Showing

MOSCOW—(FP)—Tests made by the state research institute of the children born of employes of the Peter Alexiev textile factory, show that the average physical condition of Russian infants is higher than before the revolution. Three month old babies show sounder and greater physical development than six month old babies in pre-revolutionary days. The tests included chest and head measurements, height and general power of resistance.

The anxiety generally felt in Russia for the health of the generation born immediately after the revolution when the whole nation had been physically and nervously sapped, is diminishing. Tests, made throughout Russia prove that the weakened condition of mothers after the revolution was no greater than their constantly weakened condition in pre-revolutionary days, caused by the permanent strain of poverty and insecurity. The experts making these tests do not ascribe the improvement to improved physical conditions of life, for these have not bettered sufficiently as yet to cause so great an effect, but to the improvement in the outlook on life of the parents, ther greater security, their relief from constant anxiety, and the generally wholesome mental life which the workers are leading.

Ohio Bill, to Dope Children of Public Schools, Is Killed

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 29.—Advocates of the Buchanan bible bill, which would force public school children of Ohio to read ten verses of the bible every day in the public schools, were defeated in the senate. The senate calendar committee, by a vote of four to one, refused to place the bill, aimed to dope the minds of the children, on the calendar for action during the closing hours of the present session of the senate.

The bill is said to be dead so far as this session of the legislature is concerned, altho it has already passed the house.

BUILDERS AT WORK

A MINING TOWN LEADS!

Communist Organizer Shows How.

IT is quite appropriate that a town in the rebellious Kansas coal fields should lead the campaign to "Build the DAILY WORKER." Pittsburg, Kansas, home of militant miners who are supporting Alex Howatt, in the still unorganized Communist territory turns in 70 per cent if its quota with one blow in the second week of the Second Annual Sub Campaign.

Comrade J. E. Snyder, organizer working in this territory sends in the subs that are a response to his message of what the DAILY WORKER means to militant miners. We look for even greater support from here before the campaign is ended.

New Orleans, where Communism is still unheard of, one lone Red turns in four subs to fill 40 per cent of his quota and we look to this militant, J. C. Das, to finish a brilliant beginning.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin, is doing nobly with 22.4 per cent of its quota already filled and Comrade Shkler, local secretary and DAILY WORKER agent threatens that Milwaukee will lead again as it did in the first week.

Tom Mathews, who is greatly the reason for so much Communist activity on "main street," with a batch of subs filled 22 per cent of the quota for Omaha, Nebraska.

Most cities have not begun to stir yet. New York, which has turned in a couple thousand short term subs thru a special campaign, will soon be busy thruout the branches on the present campaign and like Chicago and Philadelphia will soon be racing for leadership.

• • • •

These locals and individuals are building for Communism. Are you? Perform the simple task of getting at least two NEW subs before June 15 and your local will be among the leaders. The quotas set give equal opportunity for all locals—GET IN THE CAMPAIGN.

LOOSE BUSINESS DEALS OF SCHOOL BOARD EXPOSED

As the time nears for a showdown between the organized teachers of Chicago and the proposed company union backers in the superintendent's office and the board, charges and evidence of administrative inefficiency and loose business dealings pile up.

Instead of meeting the congestion of children in the schools, the school authorities have allowed the seating shortage to become over 3,000 greater than last year when 76,619 pupils had no proper accommodation. This is certified to the board's finance committee by its firm of accountants which urges the board to get down to business in the following words:

"This condition, the great seriousness of which is exemplified by the fact that the board will actually lose ground during 1925 in the matter of overtaking the seating shortage, calls for an early consideration of the whole problem of organisation."

The Chicago Teachers' Federation graphically points out why children must do without seats in school. It runs a full page advertisement showing that the taxable property in Chicago is valued at $40,000,000,000 but that $36,000,000,000 of this illegally escapes taxation.

The board of education says, platoon the school; the teachers say, stop tax-fixing and tax-dodging.

The company union of Supt. McAndrew, who wants to replace the teacher councils by planting himself, a couple of his assistants, some principals and assistant principals among the rank and file meetings, is still awaiting a favorable time to put it over.

Doctor Tells Birth Control Conference We Need More Babies

NEW YORK, March 29.—The sixth international neo-Malthusian and birth control conference in session at the Hotel McAlpin received quite a jolt when Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company told them that the figures presented in their arguments in which they contend that all our economic troubles are due to over population were incorrect.

He then made a long speech to prove that what the country needed to cure its economic and social ills was more babies.

"I cannot consider the underlying causes for the decline in the birth rate except to point to the very obvious influence of the widespread knowledge of contraceptive methods. Every doctor, every nurse, every druggist, and every social worker will, I believe, admit that such knowledge is widespread. Contraception is more widely practiced here than in any country in the world except Germany and Austria."

Mrs. Sanger replied briefly to Dr. Dublin's criticism.

"Every objection brought forward," she said, "is an old story. If he will stay with us he will find every objection answered before the conference is over."

Want State Board of Education for Illinois Schools

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 29—The creation of a state board of education to consist of seven members and to have supervision of public school matters, is before the state legislature. The proposal was in the form of a recommendation coming from the educational commission.

Under the plan members of the state board of education would be appointed by the governor from each of the seven supreme court districts.

"It is the intent of the commission that this board shall be the policy making body for public education in Illinois," the commission says in recommending the bill.

"It will be without administrative powers over school districts. Matters of public education are now distributed among various officials, boards, and departments. The commission holds that these scattered functions should be combined and placed in charge of a state board."

Senator Wheeler Stumbles

Senator Wheeler of Montana has been indicted together with Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator, and one Edward S. Booth, known more familiarly as "Eddie" Booth, for conspiracy to defraud the United States government of oil lands.

Of the legal merits of the case we know little, but whether Senator Wheeler is guilty of conspiracy or not, there are large numbers of Montana people who would cheerfully vote for conviction because of the mere fact of his association with the Booth person.

The indictment of Wheeler is such an enlightening event in the evolution of a middle class politician that we feel some space can be devoted to it. Any one familiar with Montana politics knows that Eddie Booth has been for years the chief stool-pigeon and political fixer for the Anaconda Copper Mining company in the eastern agricultural districts of the state. It was his task to distribute the slush fund where it would do most good and line up the sons of the soil for the republican or democrat slate—which ever the company had chosen to put over its program in Helena, the state capital.

Eddie is quite a character. For many years he was a state senator from the cow counties, but he got his start in life, so the story goes, by splitting with a fille de joie a roll of a couple of thousand dollars that she had lifted from a drunken prospector. Eddie was city attorney of Butte at the time and in a strategic position in these matters, so to speak. The prospector tried to kill Eddie, when he sobered up, but Eddie had the law on his side, was able to prove that the hard rock miner had never possessed such a sum and if he had that he had no right to it.

Such assiduous practice of thrift and display of adroitness never went long unrewarded in Montana in those days. The big bosses smiled on Eddie and he flourished like the well-known green bay tree in spite of the arid eastern Montana soil.

Came the war and Eddie was a leading patriot. He kept the kaiser out of Wibaux and Powder River county by seeing to it that the cowhands ran the non-partisan leaguers and other emissaries of the enemy out beyond the skyline.

He was most assiduous in assisting in the denunciation of Wheeler by the state council of defense, but with the rise of Wheeler's political star Eddie seems to have patched things up. Money has no odor and business, like politics, makes strange bedfellows.

Wheeler and Booth, once deadly enemies, are now friendly enough to be jointly indicted for an alleged attempt to gather to themselves some 10,000 acres of oil land.

The lesson?

That middle-class politicians are businessmen first, last and all the time, that any measures they may favor which the workers are demanding are favored simply to gather support for their own careers and the welfare of their class. The Wheelers and LaFollettes work well inside the orbit of capitalism and their thoughts never stray beyond it.

In Montana the title of government to land is not regarded very highly and attempts to defraud the state are not considered as indicating great moral turpitude. But if Wheeler can be tried for associating with Eddie Booth, the jury will convict and the twelve good men and true whose privilege it will be to render the verdict, will receive substantial testimonials of approval from a grateful citizenry.

Polish Terror—American Courts

As this is written many members of the Workers (Communist) Party of America have been arrested in Detroit and Seattle for taking part in a demonstration before the Polish consulate against railroading Stanislav Lanzutsky, Polish Communist, to the gallows.

He is to be tried, under a law providing the death penalty for urging the railway workers to continue and extend their strike. His immunity as a member of the Polish diet has been taken from him so that the terrorist government can send him to his death.

Is it a crime to protest against the murder of spokesmen of the workers in other countries?

American capitalism evidently so considers it. Poland is the pet of the imperialist robbers and it is not well that the Polish masses in America should know of the crimes committed in the name of "democracy."

In a few hours there will be more workers arrested in connection with the Lanzutsky protest. Secret service men have been watching the headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party all day.

Capitalism is international. So is the counter-revolution. Capitalism protects its own whether they are American or Polish. The working class must do the same and turn these defensive struggles into a struggle for power.

World capitalism surrenders its working class victims only when it has been soundly thrashed.

Germany's Elections

The social structure of German capitalism is in process of dissolution and that process has been greatly accelerated in the last few days.

The measure marking rapid advance in the complete ruin of great masses of the population, the middle-class holders of government bonds and other securities, is one providing for the liquidation of these obligations at from 5 to 25 per cent of their pre-war value.

The political effect of this on the middle class is understood when we recall that the great industrialists, the Stinnes and Thyssen crowd, paid off their debts to the government at a small fraction of their previous value thru settlements made with depreciated paper currency.

The middle-class investors are therefore required to make good out of their pockets the losses sustained by the government in extending favors to oppressors and exploiters of the German masses.

The result of this one action of the German regime is almost indescribable. It has created a sort of hysterical hopelessness among some of the middle class and driven others to the side of the revolution.

Dispatches published in the capitalist press show political affairs in Germany as chaotic. We can be certain that the American press, the mouthpiece of the finance-capitalists who desire stability in Germany, does not exaggerate.

Some 300,000 of the German petty bourgeoisie have pledged themselves to take no part in the coming elections. They have lost faith in German capitalist democracy. There are other millions to whom the government decree means absolute ruin, but who exhibit the characteristic inability of the middle-class elements, caught between the working class and the big capitalists, to adopt and support a militant program of their own.

The description of the reaction of the unorganized and vacillating middle-class elements is illuminating:

> Many others are awakening with republican ambitions and are rushing to election headquarters at the last minute to propose friends or themselves as future presidents of Germany. The population realized only this week that every man in Germany can become a presidential candidate if he has enough friends. When this dawned on the former 'kaiser's subjects the election headquarters were stormed.
> A Breslau tailor who has a clientele that thinks he is a wizard, a Berlin postman whose colleagues pat him on the back, a Hanover clerk who has invented a perpetual motion machine, and hundreds of others have found their way to election headquarters, convinced that their day has come.
> All these freak candidates will have to be considered seriously on Sunday night by the election statisticians, since the German law provides that if twenty voting slips show the same name a record of the count must be kept. Berlin actors and movie stars have entered and are making bets as to who will obtain the most ballots.

The middle class has always been the great champion of parliamentarism. It has found in the election machinery of the capitalist state and in the bureaus of government a method of securing recognition and places for its members. Vociferous but planless, the middle class are born parliamentarians. What happens when the fetish of parliament and democratic procedure loses its power to charm?

One of two things occur.

Either the capitalist class with its mercenaries and the more resolute of the middle-class hangers-on resorts to armed force and establishes an open dictatorship in the interests of a minority, or the working class, led by its most resolute section, the Communist Party, conquers the forces of capitalism and establishes a dictatorship based on the interests of the workers and peasants—the majority of the population.

That this conclusion is correct is shown by the following in the news from Germany:

> The serious side of the campaign is beginning tonight. Squads of Communists and representatives of militaristic organizations are patrolling the streets, tearing down posters of their enemies. All are provided with weapons, from revolvers to daggers and clubs, and a score were injured in the first skirmishes tonight.

The German elections have already produced the beginning of an armed struggle for power between the working class and the determined defenders of German capitalism.

The election itself will settle nothing. It will indicate only in a general way the relation and strength of the forces in German society. These forces—the capitalist class and certain upper sections of the middle class, the Communists, the most advanced sections of the working class and peasantry together with the most impoverished portion of the middle class—will decide in open conflict whether Germany is to be ruled by the capitalist dictatorship or the dictatorship of the working class and peasantry.

We do not know if the conflict will be precipitated by the election campaign and the deliberate bankrupting of the middle-class investors, nor do we know that such a conflict now will result in victory for the working class.

We can from this distance judge only tendencies, not concrete results expressed in terms of power. We know, however, that the German Communist Party has made great strides in reaching and mobilizing the masses for struggle.

Perhaps only in actual armed combat will it be shown whether the balance of power is on the side of the German revolution. It is the organized workers that are the decisive force in Germany and if the Communist Party has won the important sections of the working class the outcome will not remain doubtful for long.

One thing is certain. If the German working class is not yet ready for revolution it soon will be, for social-democracy, the chief obstacle in the path of the workers' drive for power, is no longer an insurmountable obstruction. Capitalism itself has neutralized its middle-class following.

HUTCHESON IN MOVE TO BURN DETROIT HERETIC

Monkish Inquisitors Do Not Awe Carpenters

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Mich., March 29.—When the carpenters' district council opened its meeting Thursday, March 26, a group of solemn-faced unfrocked monks of the order of Indianapolis marched silently in and planted themselves in the front row. Lay members of the brotherhood sensing the presence of an awful authority whispered one to another and looked apprehensively towards Wimmiam Reynolds, the heretic who was to be burned, on whom in the words of the poet Scott "they might ne'er look again!"

The first move of the higher hierarchy was to ask that all lay members of the order be dismissed by the executive session formula. They were decisively defeated in the first skirmish. Next they asked that the district council vote to co-operate in the "investigation." During the discussion on this motion the head ecclesiastic, Cosggove, let slip the information that co-operation meant exclusion of Reynolds from the meeting, as, although he was functioning as vice-president of the district council he was not recognized by the pope in Indianapolis.

Reynolds stated that he had been convicted in Indianapolis by these gentry and that he would insist on being present at any sittings of the inquisition in Detroit, unless they were arranged for privately in the Hotel Statler as had become the established method when dirty work was afoot.

Got An Ear Full

Seeing that their brand of co-operation was not forthcoming the heresy hunters decided to sit back and listen, and they heard much. Brother Botterill, the senile old rascal whose fancies still turn to thoughts of love, was graphically described as the fountain from which most of the difficulties of this district flow. It was stated times without number that he must go. One delegate stated that while the general executive board fulminated against Bolshevism and Communism that they the G. E. B. had made more Bolsheviks in two months that Reynolds could make in a life time, that hard conditions of life and autocracy created radicalism and that the responsibility for the radicalism of Detroit carpenters laid with the G. E. B.

Chief Devil-Catcher Duffy rehashed the contents of his lying and insinuating letter to the local unions in which he connects the T. U. E. L. with past and present dual unions leading to the ridiculous conclusion that the T. U. E. L. is a dual union trying to take members from the Brotherhood. When asked to mention a single instance where the T. U. E. L. had taken or attempted to take a member of group of members from the Brotherhood he admitted he could not do so. When asked whether or not he considered the action of the G. E. B. in expelling Reynolds without hearing accorded with the elementary conceptions of justice and fair play, he answered, "We obeyed the instructions of the general convention."

The Praying Organizer

One of the intellectual eunuchs constituting this inquisitorial board stated that he had "prayed" that Detroit might be organized. General Organizer Botterill has preached at the carpenters in Detroit for three years and has ended up by "praying" for police protection and an injunction against one lone expelled member. His piety has been characterized by one member of L. U. 2140 as follows: "Brother Botterill, I have heard the scriptural text come thru your lying lips while the truth stuck in your teeth, and I have been ashamed and disgusted." Whether this preying aggregation preachers or prays they grow sleek and fat by high living from the per capita tax paid by members whose most fundamental constitutional rights they do not respect and on whose shoulders, along with the rest of the toiling masses, rest the edifice of class society which these parasites seek to perpetuate.

The T. U. E. L. in its work of educating the workers to intelligent class understanding and action finds able though unconscious allies in these hide-bound bigots. Their actions are animated object lessons easily explained to the workers. Botterill has convinced them that he is their enemy and he must go. The G. E. B. has convinced them that they are a group of purblind autocratic enemies of the rank and file, and that the constitution is a scrap of paper in their hands. They have relieved the T. U. E. L. of much arduous toil. May their stupidities increase and multiply.

The inquisition signalized the last desperate efforts of organized bigotry to maintain its absolute control. The heresy hunts of organized political bigotry in the carpenters' union signalizes the fall of the regime based upon abuses and maintained by fraud.

Profit Vultures Hover Over Storm Area

way or another by profit from the disaster in which the workers are the sole victims. Bankers, lawyers, real estate men and lumber dealers predominate. In Franklin county the committee of from 35 to 40 has only about five union men on it.

This condition prevails thruout the whole five affected states, reports say, and in Southern Illinois deep resentment is being shown by the union miners. When two miners were chosen by the miners' camp at Orient, they went to West Frankfort, to work with the "citizens' committee," but when they saw the complexion of the committee they were filled with anger and suspicion.

Union Miners to Check Up Accounts.

Reporting back to Local 303, Orient, Ill., these two miners wished to resign and have nothing to do with a committee whose material interest is so in conflict with the needs of the relief given to the victims of the storm. But the local union instructed them to remain in the committee and contest all observable profiteering and corruption.

The Red Cross, says Hewlett, has not given a dime to relieve the situation so far. It has loaned a few tents, with the strict injunction that they must be returned. It is assuming charge solely of the business end, and giving that into control of gouging local capitalists.

The Usual "Unexpended Funds."

And "after the reconstruction is ended," so Hewlett quotes the local committee, "if any funds remain unexpended, they will be turned over to the Red Cross."

Hewlett says that the union miners have no trust in the Red Cross, the selection secretly of profit-taking capitalists and few workers on the committee is enough. But in addition he declares that the record of the Red Cross in the Cherry, Illinois, mine disaster of Nov. 13, 1909, where 289 miners were blown to pieces or burned to death was bad.

The Red Cross' Past Record.

At that time the Red Cross made a similar appeal for funds as the present one—"for relief." Among others who sent in relief was James Waite, who ran a benefit show and for about fourteen weeks sent in weekly, and large remittances to the Red Cross. But he never could get any receipt for these funds, nor did they appear in the report of receipts later issued by the Red Cross.

The miners want no more of such "relief." From their own union locals they are donating and sending out soliciting committees to gather necessaries for the victims. They were cheered to see that the International Workers' Aid was trying to gather funds for the same purpose. And they have only scorn for the despicable Farrington machine, which is using the storm victims as another excute to milk the treasury.

Farrington Has Hand in Treasury.

According to the Illinois Miner and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Farrington is quoted as saying that the Illinois District of the U. M. W. A. has appointed a union relief committee which "Has orders to go the limit and turn in the bills to the district organization." The miners sometimes see one of this fake relief committee on the streets, but have yet to get a dime of relief from them. The Farrington machine is again finding reason to "turn in the bills to the district organization," but the miners are getting nothing but the experience.

None of the members of the Workers (Communist) Party lost their lives at West Frankfort, according to Comrade Hewlett, altho some lost their little children, killed in the schools, and some lost all their meager possessions.

Workers' Children Killed to Save Taxpayers' Cash.

Again, in the case of the school children, the cloven hoof of capital is seen. The mine companies and wealthy taxpayers were so "saving" that not enough adequate and safe brick structures were built, and the workers' children were herded into "second-hand" houses, moved from other properties as uninhabitable. They were nothing but shells of wooden beams and planks, and it was in these death traps and not in the few and inadequate brick school buildings that the children were mangled and killed by the tornado.

Send Funds to the Workers' Aid.

Even those workers not struck directly by the storm are in need. They opened up their homes and shared their little savings with their fellow workers in distress. They either have been unemployed, or in some cases such as the Peabody Mine 18, will be unemployed for months because the upper structures of the mines are destroyed. All funds for workers' relief should be sent to the International Workers' Aid, 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Ill.

Government Printer Wars on Union

Berry's Cohorts Play Part.

No union-wrecking conspiracy in the printing industry is complete without the support of the George L. Berry gang in control of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistant's Union. With the first evidences of discrimination against union men, a committee from Columbia Typographical Union called on Harding to lay their grievances before him and demand the discharge of Carter. Moses and Smoot contested this demand and Carter, the public printer, brought committees from both the pressmen's and bookbinders' unions. The bookbinders' rank and file were infuriated at this act of treachery on the part of their committee and withdrew them with a stern rebuke, but the Berry supporters persist to this day in support of Carter.

Echoes of Howard.

Another labor faker, expresident Charles P. Howard of the International Typographical Union, refused to step into the situation and support the fight of Columbia Union No. 101. Howard was later rewarded by Carter who openly campaigned for his election as head of the Typographical Union in the last campaign and who instituted a reign of terror against the critics of Howard in the government printing office. Carter even went so far in support of Howard to boost this consummate faker before a convention of the Typothetae held at Atlantic City shortly before the elections in the Typographical Union. For his treachery to Columbia Union, the compositors of the District of Columbia overwhelmingly rebuked Howard at the polls. The refusal of Howard and Berry to inaugurate a fight for unionism in the government printing office paved the way for the drive that is now being waged.

Members of Columbia Typographical Union openly declare that they are convinced Carter plans the extermination of their union thru wholesale discharge of union men, and is accomplishing it with the assistance of George L. Berry's associates here.

Old Employes Get the Ax.

Many old employes who in a few years will be eligible to government pensions for thirty years' service are being eliminated because they have the manhood to place the union ahead of their jobs. They were told, as other government employes are told, that Uncle Sam always takes care of his loyal servants. This fairy tale has been exploded by the terrorism waged by Carter and thruout all government departments the Washington "white collar" slaves are coming to realise that the government itself is the most vicious labor exploiter extant.

Veterans are Aroused.

During three years this drive has been confined exclusively to trade union members, but in waging warfare against unions Carter also found himself confronted with some of the active members of war veterans' organizations, some of whom were also union men. Pursuing his policy of exterminating all who dared to fight against the stool pigeon system that prevailed, Carter summarily discharged a group of world war veterans of years standing in the government printing office.

Yesterday, under the leadership of some of the prominent members of the Typographical Union and some prominent veterans, 62 discharged employes sent a protest to Coolidge and followed it up with a declaration of war against Carter.

The statement says in part:

"In our 25 to 40 years' experience, the mental state and general efficiency of the government printing office workers was never worse.

"Deep-seated and justifiable discontent and disorganization exists and has existed for some time, independent of the methods persued in recent dismissals, which were made immediately following a country-wide search for printers under the guise of permanent employment. These injustices simply augmented the dissatisfaction already existing."

The 62 signers of the protest told Coolidge that they were acting "without fear of punishment or hope of reward."

No reply has emanated from the White House, and those familiar with the contemptible record of Coolidge knew that he will confer with the Mermon, Smoot, and Senator Moses, regarding the course he is to pursue.

Carter May Go Anyway.

Despite the fact that there is no hope of Coolidge eliminating Carter in response to the protest of the discharged employes, there is a possibility that criminal action may be taken against him for summarily discharging war veterans. Eight veterans were discharged without excuse and in violation of an act of August 4, 1912, which declares that any public official who discharges or demotes an honorably discharged veteran of the army, navy or marine corps, is subject to a year's imprisonment or a fine of $1,000, or both.

Mass meetings of government employes are to be held to expose the true character of the government as the central strike breaking and union smashing agency in the nation. Prominent veterans of wars, trades unionists and militants will address these meetings, thereby causing sparks from the forge of the class struggle to fly under the noses of the lackeys of capitalism in the senate and in the White House.

WORLD POWERS CAN NO LONGER IGNORE SOVIETS

Russia Looms Over Proposed Parley

By LAURENCE TODD,
(Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 29—Surrounded by aides who took part in the Washington conference of 1921-22 on limitation of naval armament, Secretary Kellogg is carrying out the instruction given him by President Coolidge—that he study the history of that meeting.

If the staff diplomats cannot furnish enough light on the intrigues of that "attempt to make militarism less expensive" while keeping up the military predominance of the chief empires, Kellogg can call upon Root, Hughes and Underwood. These three were members, with Lodge, of the American delegation that worked so smoothly under the leadership of the four.

Then there are the written records of debate that took place behind closed doors. Elihu Root is old, but not too old to tell Kellogg the whole story in a few hours.

If he makes a fair report Kellogg will inform Coolidge that the British proposed a preliminary and secret meeting in London to agree on what was to be publicly done in Washington; that Hughes balked, knowing the political glory to be gained by surprising everyone from Washington with an American program of reduction of naval armament; that the British talked privately with Root, and agreed to let Hughes have the glory.

Then he will follow the intrigue of the French and Japanese based on the particular hostility of Tokio and Paris to Soviet Russia at that time. How the French refused to permit limitation of the use of submarines, and how the Japanese adroitly seconded them in this refusal. How the British, fearing a French attack on their merchant marine, wanted submarines outlawed. How the French won the contest, and how regulation of aircraft was abandoned.

Russia's Power Grows.

There will be a special chapter on the "settlement" of the future of China and the Russian Far East in the resolutions of this conference. How the Anglo-American combine generously proposed to let China have a few more of the rights of independent nations, and how the French have never permitted that treaty to go into effect. How China has dissolved into a political jelly since 1921, entailing heavy losses on American and other investors and lenders. How China and Japan have recognised Soviet Russia, which is steadily gaining prestige in the Far East.

Richard. So the Arabs go on strike. Listen to what a New York Times reporter has to say of the welcome given by the people of Jerusalem to Lord Balfour. "The shop strike certainly was quite effective and the sight of the principal streets of old Jerusalem without a soul in them and all shops shuttered by a long line of bars and padlocks was most depressing and converted the place into a veritable deserted city. On the other hand the cab strike failed and those who had to circulate had difficulty in getting transport." This does not look as if the strike was a failure by any means.

WHEN the crusaders were brawling and drinking over the Holy Land they did not bother about gasoline. They worried about the supply of holy liquor. Oil is one of the big bones of contention between the capitalist powers today. Wherever it is discovered there is bound to be trouble. Palestine is situated along a strip of coast on the Eastern Mediterranean Sea from Asia Minor to the Suez Canal. It would make a nice road for an army bent on invading Egypt. England will fined a good excuse for holding on to it.

Anti-Strike Law to Punish Picketing

HARTFORD, Conn.—Strikes in the textile and rubber industries are being used by chamber of commerce lobbyists in pushing anti-strike legislation. One bill, aimed at "unwarranted" strikes, could be construed to mean most strikes, and would find militant labor leaders guilty of misdemeanors. Another, aimed at picketing, provides 60 days to two years imprisonment and $1,000 to $3,000 fines for interference with strikebreakers.

Besides the American Thread Co. strike at Williamantic, there are walkouts of girl workers at the Hygienic Fiber Co., Shelton Looms, L. Candee branch of U. S. Rubber Co., and the Goodyear Rubber Glove Co.

THE Prince of Wales is off on a 25,000 mile jaunt to boost the wares of the British empire. He touches at South Africa first and then leaves for South America to undo the dirty work started by General Pershing, the Wall Street tout who has just returned from a trip in behalf of American capitalism. The king and queen recently left for a healtn crtuse in the Meditearranean Sea. They are lucky to have a place to go to.

BEFORE the prince boarded the royal train, he had to listen to Stanely Baldwin for fifteen minutes giving him instructions. Not about the latest dance craze, it is safe to say. It is more likely that the premier advised the royal heir on how to comport himself in South Africa where the collar of empire is worn with irritation, and how to speak in South America where the British pound is engaged in a losing fight with the dollars of Wall Street. The prince must do what he is told or his head will come off. Not in a physical sense, but economically. The royal family is very useful to the British ruling class. It makes good cement.

AS the London correspondent of the DAILY WORKER cabled a few days ago, the public appearance of Mussolini was 99 per cent bluff. The latest reports confirm the skepticism that prevailed in England regarding the dictator's health. The enemies of fascism are mobilizing and Mussolini is in no physical condition to stand the gaff. As the Communists so often predicted, on the first indication of a weakening of fascisti leadership the storm will break. The clouds have already gathered.

IT is reported that even big business is about to drop the black shirts. The capitalist press now openly admits that it was heavy industry that originally paid the fascist bills. The recent strike in Milan convinced the big plutes that the class-collaboration schemes of the fascisti, backed by the dagger, are no longer able to hold the workers in leash. So big business begins to look around for new servants. Its eyes rest on the liberals. They will be the next agents of capitalism, which will try to function in the guise of democracy. But this democracy will be as much of a fake as the spurious brand we have in the United States.

THE long night of terror thru which the Italian workers have passed is not yet over. To use a common phrase: "The worst is yet to come." There will be neither democracy nor peace in Italy until the workers overthrow the capitalist system which uses fascisti or liberals, according to its needs. The workers will establish their own democracy, thru the rule of the majority, even tho it is called a dictatorship. There are stormy days ahead for Italy, but out of this storm will come the calm of peace, when capitalist rule gives way to the rule of labor.

WORKERS PARTY CALLS MAY 1ST UNITED FRONT

New York Conference Sunday, April 12

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 29—The New York district of the Workers (Communist) Party has sent out a call to all union and fraternal labor organizations, calling for a united front May Day conference.

All members of the Workers Party and sympathizers are called upon to make arrangements for the conference, and to get favorable action on the May Day united front in their organizations.

The call for the May Day conference, issued by Charles Krumbein on behalf of the New York, district 2, of the Workers Party declares:

Call for United Front.

To all labor unions and workers' fraternal organizations: Fellow workers:

May Day, the greatest holiday of the workers is fast approaching. On this day the workers of the entire world will review their experiences and demonstrate their solidarity. On this day they will show their determination to fight for a better world for workers.

The last year has seen the growth

New Returns Six Postal Workers to Jobs at Reduced Pay

WASHINGTON, March 30. — Six postal officials in various parts of the country suspended several weeks ago on charges of "pernicious" activity in behalf of the postal pay bill today were restored to duty, effective April 1, but at reduced salaries, Postmaster General New announced today.

The men involved are Peter McGerty, New York; James M. Greig, Boston; Peter Wiggle, Detroit; Harvey M. Tittle, Springfield, Ohio; J. J. Fields, Louisville, Kentucky and William Sansom, Chicago.

Postmaster General New, said he had given careful consideration to each of the cases and "in view of their previous records in the postal service decided to restore them to duty, although each will have to take a reduction in salary."

Audience Gives Lie to Mathew Woll's Attack on Russia

BOSTON Mass., March 30.—Cheers for Soviet Russia from the audience of an open forum here, greeted the statement of Mathew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, that the A. F. of L. "defied" the Soviet government.

"The American Federation of Labor is opposed to recognition of the Russian Communist regime." Woll, said, and cries of "Liar" rang thru the hall.

Woll was "crown prince" in the federation of labor council during the rule of "kaiser" Samuel Gompers, and his speech demonstrated that the A. F. of L. leadership has not changed its reactionary, anti-workingclass policy since the death of Gompers.

MINE STRIKE SET FOR APRIL FIRST IN WEST VIRGINIA

Lewis Uses the "Help Wanted" Columns

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 30.—Page advertisements in West Virginia newspapers are the substitute used by the officials of the United Mine Workers of America in place of strike orders issued thru local unions, to call out on April 1 all the coal miners of ten counties of northern West Virginia.

To this pitiable subterfuge the Lewis machine is reduced by its own union wrecking betrayals of the West Virginia miners into the hands of the coal companies and their munderous armies. The machinery of the district union organization and the local unions, the natural channel of strike orders, have been destroyed by Lewis in combine with the operators and their gunmen.

"Help Wanted" for the U. M. W. of A.

The once mighty U. M. W. of A., which marshalled its forces in thousands of armed men determined to resist the operators in battle if need be, and which whipped the Baldwin-Feltz gunman army in open armed struggle in 1921, is now reduced to the ridiculous necessity of using the "Help Wanted" columns of capitalist papers to advertise for a strike, on April 1.

Weakened by the repeated betrayals of Lewis, and held down by the most ruthless array of armed force, the miners who long for the rebirth of the union in West Virginia cynically call the method of asking them to strike an "April fool joke."

In every coal camp of West Virginia the company gunman is the absolute despot. No "stranger" can set foot in any camp of any of the counties in the coal fields, or even ride the trains, unless he is met by a couple

REDS ARRESTED WHEN BALFOUR HITS JERUSALEM

Moslems and Arabs Protest English Rule

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

JERUSALEM, March 30.—Excited crowds are walking the streets of this city, the Arabs and Moslems taking objection to the visit of Lord Balfour as a representative of British imperialism. Balfour, who is scheduled to open the Hebrew university on April 1, has received hundreds of telegrams protesting against his visit.

British police have arrested every Jewish Communist here they could lay their hands on.

The Arab schools in Jaffa, Tur Keram, Gaza, and Hebron are completely closed down following the strike of teachers and pupils as a protest against Balfour's visit.

Zionists Betray Workers.

The leaders of the zionist movement which is being used by the British capitalists as a tool to enslave the workers of Palestine, offered prayers in the synagogues for Balfour, King George and Sir Herbert Samuel, high commissioner of Palestine.

In a manifesto signed by Omar Bittar, president of the Moslem-Christian committee, Sir Samuel's administration in Palestine is condemned. "We renew our protests against the British government," says the statement, "and raise our voices to the British public and world opinion against the great calamity that has befallen our country."

SOVIETS GUARD RIGHTS OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE

Russo-Japanese Treaty Protects Workers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKIN, China, March 30.—The Soviet Russian ambassador to China, L. M. Karakhan, has sent a note to the Chinese minister of foreign affairs, Huang, Fu, assuring the Chinese people that the Russo-Japanese treaty protects their rights, and that the Soviet government has kept faith with the workers of China.

Workers' Interests Protected.

Karakhan's note is a reply to a protest of the militaristic foreign minister, who claimed that the Russo-Japanese treaty was a violation of the Portsmouth treaty signed by the czar and the Chinese government in 1905. Karakhan, in his reply, shows that whereas the czar, in all his treaties with China, betrayed the Chinese people, the Soviets are at all times protecting their interests, and have repudiated the czaristic treaty which extracted plunder from foreign workers.

The reply of Karakhan states: "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note protesting against the recognition, according to the Soviet-Japanese agreement of Jan. 20, of the validity of the treaty of Portsmouth of 1905, as violating the sovereign rights and interests of China.

"Now, I feel bound to state that the said note dealing with that stipulation of the convention signed between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Japan which refers to the treaty of Portsmouth, caused me great surprise, and I am constrained to lay down that your protest against the recognition of the validity of the treaty of Portsmouth is so much in contradiction with the true significance of this act that it could at the best be explained by an adequate examination of all the international acts pertaining thereto and—which is accentuated by fully ignoring these acts which the Chinese government has itself concluded with Japan.

"1. Being mindful, to a degree which is well known to the Chinese people, of the sovereign rights and interests of China, the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, in its negotiations with Japan, did not agree to recognize the validity of the treaty of Portsmouth until, after a thorough and most careful study of the eventual consequences of such recognition, it was satisfied beyond any possible doubt that the recognition in 1925 formally of the validity of the treaty of Portsmouth,

REDS POLL BIG VOTE IN GERMANY DESPITE CLUBS

Halle, Murder Scene, Shows 30 Pct. Gain

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, March 30.—The early returns in the presidential elections gave the Communist Party, which ran Comrade Ernst Thaelmann as candidate, 1,869,553 votes. The Communists polled more votes than the democratic party candidate, Premier Hellpach of Baden; Dr. Held, Bavarian people's party candidate and Gen. Ludendorff, the fascist candidate, who received a measly 284,471 votes.

In Halle, where the capitalist police murdered several Communists at an election mass meeting, the Communists gained 30 per cent over last December's vote.

Hold Another Election.

No candidate received a majority in the elections, and another election must be held on April 26, when the candidate receiving the highest number of votes will be declared elected.

The total vote was only 69 per cent of the qualified electorate, as it was generally felt no one could secure a majority in this election.

Karl Jarres, candidate of the combined nationalists and conservative parties, polled the highest vote, receiving 10,387,323 votes. The heavy vote for Jarres, who took many fascist votes from Ludendorff, demonstrates that the reactionaries are making ready to concentrate their forces in a reactionary bourgeois coalition to take power in Germany.

Otto Braun, socialist candidate, received 7,735,678 votes. Many Communist votes were lost thru terroristic methods at the polls.

MUCH DEPORTED 'EMIR' REFUSED BY ALL LANDS LIVES ON HIGH SEAS

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30.—The self-styled Emir of Kurdistan, who traveled around the country under a number of aliases, including that of J. Albert Bronson, and Said Ben-Abdullah, and who was recently deported to England, will be shunted back and forth between the United States and England until steamship companies tire of maintaining him.

The "Emir" was deported because he was in the country on fraudulent passports. Arriving in England, the British authorities refused to receive him and he was sent back to this country on the same ship on which he left.

"Under no circumstances will this man be permitted to land from the ship on which he is now enroute to this country," the department of labor announced today.

IMPERIALISM IN PLOT FOR LOOT TO CALL CONFAB

Subject Peoples Are Near Revolt

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30.—Coolidge's diplomats and state officials, representing Wall Street imperialism, were today digging up the forgotten records of the first "disarmament" conference, preparatory to another meeting of world powers.

Both the English and the United States governments have guardedly approved such a conference, and are studying to see how much they can get out of the smaller nations and the colonies to divide between them.

British capitalists, thru their representative, Minister of Foreign Affairs Austen Chamberlain, are pushing the proposed Anglo-German alliance against the French. While Chamberlain assures Germany that he is for the immediate evacuation of Cologne and the Ruhr by the French and the "readjustment" of Germany's eastern border, the Polish foreign minister, Skrzynsky, announces that Chamberlain has promised him that England will not consider such a readjustment. Poland is endeavoring to secure complete control of Danzig, which the Germans also claim. The Polish white

'OUR INDUSTRIAL MIGHT THE ONLY HOPE', SAYS COOK

British Miners Face New Battle

LONDON, March 30.—The Miners' Minimum Wage Bill was defeated in the house of commons by a vote of 208 to 143.

Nearly all the tory members united against the measure, which would have given adult coal miners a minimum wage of from ten to twelve shilling a day, or about $15 a week. This bill had been declared by the miners' executives necessary to prevent a general coal strike.

"It is now clear that our only hope as miners is in our industrial might," said A. J. Cook, militant secretary of the Miners' Federation.

Meanwhile, Frank Hodges and other traitors of the "Black Friday" split of the triple alliance, known as being more concerned with the interests of the mine owners than those of the miners, are opposing a strike because they say "the mine owners are losing money." The miners, of course, have nothing to lose but their jobs, and their miserable existence which a pittance of wages affords. And despite their "losses," the mine owners strangely live in luxury.

Farrington Machine Predicts Defeat of Old Miners' Pension

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 30.— A defeat of the Illinois miners' old age pension act was seen here today by sources close to Frank Farrington, reactionary president of the Illinois Miners' Union, as preparation was made to notify locals of the returns from the recent referendum vote. While no official statement was issued, the pension system was said by Farrington men to have been defeated by at least 30,000 votes.

"LANZUTSKY IS FREED!" SAYS REPORT FROM VIENNA FIRST DAY AFTER WORLD DEMONSTRATIONS

VIENNA, March 30.—Stanislav Lanzutsky, Polish Communist deputy on trial in Przmysl on charges of attempting to overthrow the government of Poland was acquitted, according to dispatches that reached here today.

Comrade Lanzutsky was indicted because of a speech delivered by him at a meeting of railroad workers in Przmysl on November 13, 1923, during a big railroad strike.

When the Polish bourgeoisie decided to try Lanzutsky, they also decided to impose the death penalty and refused the offer of the Soviet government to provide the defendant with counsel.

Under the direction of the Communist International, a world wide demonstration was launched protesting against the proposed execution of Lanzutsky. Protests began to pour in from all sides warning the Polish government against the carrying out of its death sentence. Here in the United States, the workers appeared before the Polish consulates in the principal cities and in Washington a demonstration was held in front of the Polish legation.

"RECOGNIZE RUSSIA" RESOLUTION PASSED AT COMMUNE MEET

The following resolution was passed at the international unity demonstration held at the Ashland Auditorium:

WE, workers in mass meeting assembled, take this occasion to voice our views on certain political events of the past few months:

We register our unequivocal condemnation of the activities of the counter-revolutionary menshevik agent, Raphael Abramovich. We brand him as a conscious and willing tool of the enemies of the workers' and peasants' republic of Russia. And those elements, chief among which were the effete and bankrupt socialist party and the petit-bourgeois Forward, that gave aid and support to this traitor, we charge with having written in bold letters another entry into their shameful record of betrayal of the working class.

We demand the immediate and complete recognition by the United States government of the Union of Soviet Republics of Russia. Practically every other power, save the United States has granted recognition to the Union of Soviet Republics. There is no good reason for the United States to withhold recognition and we demand that negotiations be immediately undertaken toward that end.

FREE LANZUTSKY.

We voice our most vehement protest against the intended execution by the Polish white guard government of the Communist Deputy Lanzutsky. Comrade Lanzutsky is a working-class leader, accepted by thousands of Polish workers. His activities against the bloody bourgeois Polish regime have rallied behind him and the Communist Party of Poland large sections of the working masses. The menace of this growing power the Polish terrorists seek to ward off by murdering the leader, Lanzutsky. We call upon all workers to join with the International Red Aid, in echoing the slogan of the Polish proletariat, "Lanzutsky must not, shall not die."

We reaffirm our unalterable demand that all political and industrial prisoners still rotting in the capitalist jails of the world be given unconditional amnesty, and ask the workers to rally behind the Labor Defense Council in its fight for the release of the Michigan defendants and other class-war prisoners.

We appeal to all workers to come to the support of the International Workers' Relief in its campaign to save thousands of workingmen, women and children, who are facing starvation in the west of Ireland.

Long live the International Workers' Aid!

Long live Lanzutsky!

Amnesty for all class-war prisoners!

Relieve the Irish proletariat!

Down with Abramovich.

Long live the Workers (Communist) Party of America!

Long live the Union of Soviet Republics!

Hail the Communist International!

Indiana Bank Fails.

HOBART, Ind., March 30.— State bank examiners today closed the Hobart bank, which was to have been consolidated with the American Trust and Savings bank within a few days. The Hobart bank, examiners say, has $45,000 worth of bad paper. The bank formerly was called the Farmers' bank and as such was a branch of the bank of Valparaiso, which failed six years ago.

JOLIET POLICE SUPPORTS JUGO-SLAVIAN TERROR

Deports Communist from City

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

JOLIET, Ill., March 30.—Police of this town faithfully serve not only the interest of the steel trust of this country, but also the bloody government of reactionary Jugloslavia.

Workers of this town arranged a protest meeting against the white terror government of Jugoslavia, which is using every means to subject the working and peasant masses to the most horrible social conditions.

The South Slavic branch of the Workers Party of America, together with other organizations, called a meeting for last Sunday afternoon. But before the meeting was opened the chief of police, with six or seven of his lackeys came to the hall and dragged four workers to the police station and dispersed the rest of the workers.

Police Chief a Propagandist.

The arrested workers were held at the police station and all the books and various documents were taken from them. While they were held there for over an hour, the chief of police tried to convince them that the old despotic and czaristic government of Russia was better than the present workers' and peasants' government. Of course, he convinced nobody, except himself.

Among the arrested was C. Mikalachky, from Chicago, one of the editors of the Radnik. In his possession he had a few Inprekors, which the chief of police took from him and refused to give back. The chief of police will have an opportunity to read about the horrible white terror which is raging all over Jugoslavia, and to find out why the workers are protesting against the unbearable conditions.

Like the U. S. Syndicalist Laws.

For the last five years, since the bloody Jugoslavia came into existence, the terroristic government of Pashitch rules with an iron fist. Under the infamous "Obznana," which is equal to criminal syndicalist laws of this country, the Pashitch government has been and is crushing the workers' and peasants' movement. This law is today directed not only against the toiling masses but against the national minorities as well. The so-called holy trinity of Jugoslavia, that is Serbs-Croatian-Slovens is only a mask for the Serbian bourgeoisie, which is trying to strengthen its hegemony over the other nationalities.

Since the last election, held on February 8, 1925, the white terror is more fierce than before.

Deport a Communist.

The chief of police ordered detectives to take Comrade Mikalachy and chase him from the town, which was done. Mikalachky was taken to the city limits and told not to come back to Joliet, Ill.

This reactionary act of the Joliet police, in supporting the vassal state of the French bourgeoisie in the Balkans, fully reveals the international reactionary character of the armed forces of the ruling class, which is solely used against the labor movement, and against the working class as a whole.

The American "democracy" of Coolidge and Dawes is nothing else but the naked and crude dictatorship of the steel trust!

France "Recommends" 8-Hour Day—"If Dawes Plan Quits Germany"

PARIS, March 30.—The foreign affairs commission of the French chamber of deputies today voted to recommend ratification of the Washington eight-hour labor agreement, subject only to Germany's ratification. Adoption of the agreement by Germany, Great Britain and Belgium heretofore has been a condition of French ratification.

MUNDELEIN GETS TITLE FOR MUDD; FISHY COGNOMEN!

Boss Is Now Knight of St. Gregory

Cardinal Mundelein went to Rome with a lot of money and returned with a lot of decorations. No, brothers and sisters, those decorations were not for humble toilers in the industrial life of the nation; not even for labor fakers whose stomachs are calloused from crawling on their bay windows before the powers that be.

The pope, from whom those honors flow, has a wholesome suspicion of labor leaders and a contempt that is not reciprocated by those gentry, excepting those of them who are high up in the councils of the ku klux klan and the masonic order. But even they are cautious and will not tickle a mule's heel unless the animal is proven deceased by a competent authority.

The prince of the church, who can address the emperor of Swat as his cousin, returned from Rome with glad tidings. Last Sunday he presented Francis X. Mudd, with the title of Knight of St. Gregory in return for Mudd's contribution of $100,000 to the priestly incubator known as St. Mary's of the Lake Seminary, at Mundelein, Illinois, a town called after the cardinal.

Producing the Dough.

The name of Francis is no longer Mudd. The workers who toil in the mud for Mudd produced the dough that was kneeded into a title by the organ grinder on the Tiber. Mundelein, in presenting the title explained that the workers alone are not able to support the church in regal fashion. Strong priests, husky spiritual policemen are needed to keep the sheep in the shambles, see that they reproduce their kind in large numbers and out propagate flocks of the religions shepherds in competition with the catholics. Therefore, donations from big business are required. Big biz comes across in return for the use of the shepherds in keeping their wage slaves contented, patiently waiting until they called to their last slumber, while their masters on this very real earth make the welkin ring with sounds of revelry.

Ramsay MacDonald had the king of England confer a title on a tory biscuit manufacturer in return for an endowed automobile, the endowment being for the purpose of providing the auto with gas and Mac's chauffeur with Bass Ale. The title cost Alexander Grant $150,000 of a personal contribution to the socialist MacDonald, and quite likely another donation to the treasury of the British labor party. Mudd should come across again and there is no doubt but he will.

Peru Will Reject Coolidge Arica Award, Note Hints

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30.—Peruvian dissatisfaction with President Coolidge's finding in the Tacna-Arica award, which first manifested itself in demonstrations before the American embassy at Lima, culminated today in a sharp note from the Peruvian government containing demands likely to prove extremely embarrassing to the American government.

Hinting openly at rejection of the award, the Peruvian note demands that the United States send civil authorities into the disputed province to replace the Chilean officials now in charge.

Peru has charged Chile with deporting Peruvians and instituting a reign of terrorism in the province in advance of the plebiscite which is to determine whether the territory is to go to Chile or Peru.

This plebiscite is to be supervised by General John J. Pershing, who was appointed by Coolidge. Peru is dissatisfied with the appointment of military commanders to act on the dispute.

Criminal Action Is Urged Against Bankruptcy Ring

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 30.—Startling evidence of a "bankruptcy ring" headed by former Referee of Bankruptcy Charles B. Thomas, co-defendant with Federal Judge English in the congressional invesugation of the judge's official conduct, was introduced before the special subcommittee today by federal agents.

The report, recorded as evidence, described Thomas, close friend and financial bulwark of Judge English, as surrounding himself with persons whom he placed in positions of trust and that these persons were permitted to collect fees in excess of those fixed by law.

Testimony has shown Thomas frequently advanced Judge English large sums of money and that Judge English had ordered Thomas to pay himself as high as $1,000 monthly in handling bankruptcy cases.

The report also declared that the former referee who retired under fire was the recipient of many lucrative assignments from Judge English.

Cops Drape Selves Around Hall at the Bulgarian Red Dance

A score of uniformed police and plain clothes men stood around at the entertainment given by the Bulgarian branch of the Workers (Communist) Party at 777 West Adams St., Musicians' Hall, and got in the way of the dancers.

The police brought their own booze, and after imbibing, were more in the way than ever. One policeman sprawled on top of the lunch counter, until ordered to move away by the entertainment committee.

Before they left, the police tried to plant some of their booze behind the lunch counter, and threatened to arrest several of the Bulgarian comrades. They finally left, however, without any casualties.

The Bulgarian branch of the socialist labor party had objected to the Bulgarian Communists' affair, and had tried to induce the hall owner not to rent the Communists their hall, it was reported. It was rumored that the police came to the affair at the behest of the S. L. P.'ites.

A large crowd was on hand to see the artist Konoff, draw cartoons, and to hear the singing of M. Popvcky.

PRINCE'S TRIP WILL EAT UP ONE MILLION BUCKS

While Irish Peasants Are Starving

LONDON, March 30.—The commercial trip of the Prince of Wales will cost at least one million dollars. British business believes that the result will justify the outlay. The South American market is slipping, the burghers of South Africa have not much love for the empire that used their bodies for target practice in 1900, and the workers of that colony have not yet forgotten the wounds inflicted on them during the Rand strike, when their leaders were shot down, with the song of revolution on their lips.

Can Stand Punishment.

Altogether the old empire is in a shaky condition, but it is an old and seasoned empire and will stand a lot of punishment. While the business interests of Britain spend a million dollars on a princely junketing trip, there is a severe famine in Ireland, still a part of the empire. But the British parliament has not made an appropriation to relieve the famine in the west of Ireland.

Only a short time ago, this same parliament appropriated $12,500,000 to support the relatively large army that the Orange government of Belfast maintains as a garrison to defend the empire's interests, should the south of Ireland attempt to take its freedom seriously.

Working Mother Has Weak Babies, Scientist Says

NEW YORK, March 30—Dr. Max G. Schlapp, professor of neuro-pathology of the New York Post Graduate Medical school and director of the New York children's court clinic, took up the question of birth control from a different angle from the one taken by all the previous speakers before the sixth international neo-malthusian and birth control conference.

Contrary to those sponsoring birth control to the extent of ascribing all the misery in the world to lack of knowledge of birth control and those presenting the other side who insist that the world is going to the dogs solely because of a knowledge of birth control among all classes of people, he made his attack on the strenuous lives women live today. He declared that inferior children are being born as a result of married women and mothers having to work for a living.

"Women should stay at home and make it a fitting place for their husbands and children instead of going out to work, becoming overwrought emotionally, fatigued physically, not living a normal life and consequently bearing inferior children," he said. In his position he probably knows whereof he speaks but his speech was incomplete since he did not point a way out of this dilemma. He did not tell working men to direct their energies to abolish a society that makes drudges of working men and women and cripples of their children.

Prof. Ladislas Haskoven of Prague in his address made a plea for health certificates which would show freedom not only from veneral infection but also from other taints and diseases which would endanger the health of the coming generation.

JAIL SOLDIERS FOR DEFENSE OF SOVIET RUSSIA

Wrote Views to Paper Before Arrests

HONOLULU, March 30.—Part of the "evidence" against the soldiers who are now being held by the United States government in Schofield Barracks on charges of "being members of the Hawaiian Communist Leauge," are letters written to the newspapers by the Communist soldiers defending Soviet Russia against unscrupulous attacks.

Altho one of the charges against three of the soldiers is that they "belonged to a secret organization," the red soldiers expressed their views openly in the columns of the newspapers.

Russia Has No Strikes.

"If this country were ruled by a Communistic government there would be need for such a thing as a strike," wrote Comrade Roderick Nadeau, 21st infantry band, in the Feb. 15 issue of the Honolulu Advertiser. "The Hawaiian laborer is practically a slave. Thru the Communist form of government there will be no need for poorhouses and mock charity balls."

Crouch Faces Life Term.

Paul R. Crouch, of the headquarters of the 21st infantry, office of the supply department, who faces a sentence of life imprisonment, if the charges of "plotting to overthrow the government" are taken seriously by a court martial, wrote in the Feb. 14 issue of the Advertiser:

"Your position in regard to strikes has been on the side of those who believe in the sacred (?) rights of private property. The workers have a much better right to the ownership of the land upon which they work than the parasites who live on the sufferings of other men."

Comrade Crouch then replied to an attack of the paper on Soviet Russia, based on statements of Emma Goldman.

"As Communism is the real danger to capitalism," he wrote, "capitalists can join hands with anarchists in their mutual opposition to the Red flag.

"Out of the large number of individuals deported to Russia, Emma Goldman was one of the few who did not like conditions there. The majority are living in a prosperous colony in western Siberia known as Kuzbas. This colony is a success from every viewpoint.

"The editor says the watchword of 'bloody' (?) regime of the Soviet government is murder and that Russia has gone mad with slaughter. Mr. editor, no well-informed man could read such statements without laughing were it not for the serious harm that they may do. If the editor would read an article by a correspondent of the San Francisco Examiner in Russia he would learn that children carried several thousand dollars in gold (for official purposes) as there were practically no holdups in the Soviet republic and a conservative writer in the Saturday Evening Post admits life is even more safe in Russia than in other civilized countries.

"Perhaps the Advertiser gets its information about Russia from the same source as a writer about Communist propaganda in the Saturday Evening Post, who said that the 'Young Worker,' official publication of the Communist youth of America, is a daily. In reality, it is a semi-monthly and will become a weekly on March 1."

Replies to Anti-Soviet Lies.

Walter M. Trumbull, another soldier stationed at Schoffield barracks, wrote:

"As far as the stories of oppression, imprisonment and brutal murders in Soviet Russia, no one would believe them if he had a knowledge of the fundamental principles of Communism. Communistic principles do not in the least respect allow idleness. All must do some sort of work and are given their preference, when possible. There is no possibility of one man owning millions and another being destitute. There is no possibility of the government going mad with slaughter since the government is the people (the working people) and their wishes are carried out."

Crouch was arrested on Feb. 19, charged with violation of the 96th article of war. The last time he was heard from he was being confined in the prison hospital from digestive troubles brought on by brutal treatment while in the guardhouse. Seven other soldiers have been arrested on similar charges. They are said to be without legal aid.

Use Church as Fort.

MEXICO CITY, March 30.— The troubles here between catholic priests and the church members wishing to secede from the vatican, brought on another battle. Three soldiers were shot from a catholic church, held by the catholics under the leadership of the priest, Vicente Girau. The priest was later arrested.

$50,000 Fire in Danville

DANVILLE, Ill., March 30.—A fire in the business district of Watseka early today gutted the Iroquois county public service offices the plant of the Iroquois Times Democrat, Western Union office and two garages and threatened their buildings before assistance from nearby cities arrived. The loss will be more than $50,000.

Thugs Stationed at Open Shop Mine to Intimidate Workers

OKMULGEE, Okla., March 30.—Armed guards stationed at the scab B. & A. Mining company at Schulter, attack and beat up all union men who come near the mine even if it only to get their pit clothes or on some business with the office.

Henry Parish and employ of the B. & A. was severely beaten up by these thugs. Fred Burd and Charles Cornelius came to Okmulgee to protest to the county attorney that two of the guards threatened to shoot them if they came near the mine. They went to have their time sheets corrected. The B. & A. is making attempt to operate an open shop mine. Out of the regular 90 men working staff only four reported.

Miners Daughter Dies

MURPHYSBORO, March 30.—Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Wilson, tornado sufferers, who are now living in a tent here, learned that their 18 months old daughter was operated on in an Evanston hospital, for compound fracture of the lower jaw. Another daughter of the Wilsons, four years old, died in a St. Louis hospital. The couple are destitute.

PRESIDIUM OF C. I. OPENED UNDER ZINOVIEV

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, March 14.—(By Mail.)—In preparation of the extended plenary session of the Executive Committee of the Communist International, the presidium of the latter met today under the chairmanship of Comrade Zinoviev in the Mitrofanovski Hall at the Kremlin. There are present already delegations of various countries representing twenty-five sections; other delegations are still under way to Moscow. In order to prepare more thoroly all the questions that are to come before the extended plenary session the opening of the session is fixed for March 20.

The order of the day is fixed as follows:

1. Report of Zinoview on the political situation and the next duties of the Comintern with regard to the Bolshevization of the parties. (Reports and views on this subject will further be given by comrades from Germany, France, Italy and Czecho-Slovakia, as well as a comrade as representative of the youth.)
2. The struggle for the unity of the trade union movement. (Report Lozovski; co-reporters as about under 1 and a Polish comrade.)
3. The peasant question.
    a. Theoretical analysis of the agrarian question in the various countries. (Reporter Bukharin).
    b. relation of the Communist parties to the peasant movement in the various countries.
4. Report on the discussion in the R. C. P.
5. Report on the Lenin Institute and the Marx-Engels Institute.

For the purpose of clearing up the situation of various national sections, like the Czech, Yugoslav, American, committees have been appointed.

Miners Hold Meetings Today in So. Illinois to Discuss Industry

HARRISBURG, Ill., March 30.—Preparations were being completed today for the April 1 holiday conference of the United Mine Workers here Wednesday, when 8,000 coal miners will gather to discuss the present uneasiness in the coal industry.

Saline, Gallatin and White counties will be heavily represented at the conference at which some definite light is expected to be thrown on reports that a number of mines will close down after the holiday. Mass meetings are also scheduled thruout southern Illinois for that day.

Compromise Vote Bill Disfranchises Japanese Workers

TOKIO, Mar. 30.—The compromise suffrage bill, granting four million men the right to vote, passed both houses of the imperial diet. The original bill granted the vote to 14 million men, but the compromise bill, excludes from the franchise, "those who, owing to their poverty, are dependent upon public or private assistance for their livelihood," and many other workers.

Hayfever on Increase.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Hayfever,—a malady which incapacitates more than 1,000,000 Americans from six to eight weeks annually—is on the increase, the United States Public Health service announced today.

Doheny-Standard Oil Combine.

Merger of the interests of the Standard Oil Co. and the Doheny oil croporation in the Columbia oil fields, are near completion, it was announced, following the return to Chicago of Col. Robert Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Ford and Rockefeller Both Spawned by the Same Capitalist System

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, there is much discussion of the profits exceeding $100,000,000 taken by Henry Ford last year. It is said this huge profit indicates that Ford is the richest man in the world, having finally eclipsed John D. Rockefeller, and left America's other great multi-millionaires, George F. Baker, the Wall Street banker; and Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, far in the rear.

Ford took a profit of $47 on every car, truck and tractor that the workers in his factories produced in 1924. This is $10 higher than the $37 profit per unit that was reported for the ten months ended Dec. 31, 1923. This would indicate that the Ford hunger for profits is on the increase; developing in harmony, it seems, with the tremendous expansion program that during the last year added nearly another $100,000,000 to the total assets of the Ford corporation.

But one of the alleged phenomena that has the financial writers worried, especially those who hover about Wall Street, is, as they claim, that the masses do not have the same hatred for the flivver king, Ford, that they have for Rockefeller, the czar of oil. It is argued that now that the profits of the Fords, father and son, far exceed those of the Rockefellers, father and son, that therefore the Fords should be hated more than the Rockefellers. They wonder why this is not so.

• • • •

It is not difficult to explain this phenomenon. The Fords arrived late in the field of American exploitation. Ford found that he could get more out of his men working them eight hours than he could working them ten or more hours. In the pre-war days, before the tremendous increase in the cost of living, the wages Ford paid were considered comparatively good. This was all hailed as a "Ford Idea" that was thoroly exploited in books, newspapers and magazines, in one of the most widespread propaganda campaigns this country has ever seen. The "Ford Idea" was even accepted in foreign countries as one way of settling the labor problem. There have been no big strikes as yet in the Ford plants.

On the other hand cheap tractors and flivvers won Ford many supporters among the farmers until a demand of some consequence arose last year in support of the "Ford for President" boom.

Then there is the name of Rockefeller, like that of Carnegie, linked with some of the bloodiest battles against labor that this nation has seen. The words "Rockefeller" and "oppression" have come to be synonymous. Rockefeller entered the field of American exploitation a long time ago, and he built the Rockefeller fortune out of the blood and agony of America's working class. Large masses of workers know this. The name of Rockefeller is anathema to millions.

• • • • •

But that does not mean that Ford will not soon appear in the arena of the class war as an open enemy of the workers. The Ford boom among the poor farmers burst when the flivver manufacturer came out for Coolidge, the enemy of the farmers, for president. Cheap flivvers and cheap tractors have little appeal to poor farmers who cannot even afford to buy these. They are beginning to study what is the real trouble with the Ford-Coolidge social system.

• • • •

It is not true that the Ford slaves are contented. One of the most militant sections of the American working class is made up of those tens of thousands of workers that pour daily in and out of the Ford plants at Detroit, Mich. Yet, so far, Ford has managed to hold them helpless in his grip. They are part of the huge Ford machine; exploited to the last drop of their energy; thrown on the scrap heap before their time just as much as the workers in the oil, coal, steel or any other great industry. They are helpless. They have no union. They have not yet turned to the leadership of the American Communist movement. But the hour of revolt will strike. Then the whole capitalist system, with all its brutal oppression, will stand behind Ford just as it has supported Rockefeller in all his struggles with labor. Then the Ford myth will vanish. The workers will realize that they must organize to expropriate the wealth of Ford, just as much as they must take the wealth stolen by the Rockefellers, the Mellons, the Bakers, the Garys, the Morgans and all the rest. These capitalists are all part of the same social system. The capitalist system alone permits the Fords to transmute the energy of great masses of workers into a golden stream of profits that counted $100,0000,000 in the year 1924. The capitalist system must go. And with it Ford. Capitalist apologists may depend on it that the workers will show no discrimination between the different members of the plunderbund in the final struggle for power.

Turko-French Alliance at Work.

PARIS, March 30.—Franklin Bouillon has received an order for the construction of a wireless station in Turkey and orders for submarines from Turkey for French concerns. Americans were bidding for these orders. Bouillon was sent to Turkey by Premier Herriot to promise the Turks French support against the British claim to Mosul in return for promise from Turkey of the security of Syria and Turkish support of the French in North Africa and the near east.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGU

HUTCHESON'S "LITTLE PAL" WAS BRINDELL

Article 5 Answering Secretary Duffy

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

The present expulsions taking place within the carpenters' union are by no means the first ones. In fact, Hutcheson's record, since he quit box-making for a living and took over the general presidency of the U. B. of C. & J. of A., has been one of open corruption and illegal expulsion of all who stood in his way.

The close relationship between Hutcheson and Robert P. Brindell, who just recently served a term in Sing Sing for grafting, is well known to the members of the Carpenters' Union in the New York district. But the general membership are not so well acquainted with the close co-operation which existed between the grafting Brindell and Brother Hutcheson, and that it was Hutcheson who was responsible for the building of the Brindell machine that played so much havoc in the building trades of New York from 1915 until he went to the penitentiary and from which they have not yet recovered.

The Game Began.

It was after the betrayal of the carpenters in the New York district by Hutcheson in 1916 that the Building Trades Council was reorganized and from which Brindell derived his power and began his blackmail and bribery game, which cost the organization probably hundreds of thousands of dollars, leaving a trail of illegal expulsions of the best and most courageous members of New York.

Consider, for example, the case of Eugene Lans, a dock-builder and carpenter, who without trial was suspended from the union until such time as he was able to pay a fine of $500. The reason for this fine was because Lans brot charges of extortion against Brindell and also named six specific cases of misappropriation of funds. The local committee, creatures of Brindell, refused to produce the local records showing the items of misappropriation.

Hutch Helped Brindell.

Lans exhausted every effort to get back into the union. Hutcheson answering his appeal stated that he had no reason to interfere in the case.

Still another victim of the Brindell-Hutcheson conspiracy was August Holstrom, formerly president of the New York Dock Builders' Union. He, too, brot charges against Brindell similar to those of Lans. The charges were ignored and he was promptly expelled for daring to bring charges against Brindell.

Holstrom went to the war (while Hutcheson and Brindell remained behind to whoop up for patriotism from safe positions on the labor war board) and when he returned they refused to allow him to come back into the union, which Brindell by this time ruled with a rod of iron.

A Regular Chum of Brindell.

He finally got a job in Jersey City and applied for membership in the Ship Carpenters' Local No. 1216. Thir was out of Brindell's jurisdiction, but his friend Hutcheson stepped in and sent a telegram notifying the local that he could not be accepted as a member. Holstrom had been a member of the union since 1892, and for daring to bring charges against Brindell he was forced out of the union and is still hounded by the Hutcheson machine.

Many similar cases could be quoted from the time that Hutcheson revoked the charters of 68 locals in New York, turning a victory into a defeat and setting up and co-operating with Brindell in his career of crime against the carpenters' organization.

Both Hands in the Cash Box.

Back of all of these expulsions huge sums of money were involved. One item is particularly worth mentioning so as to give the reader some idea as to why these labor fakers fight so viciously to retain their positions as head of unions. The assessment levied during the New York 1916 strike totalled nearly if not over $300,000. Yet at the carpenters' convention held in Fort Worth Brindell only accounted for $70,000 of the strike fund. And up to date no other accounting has been made.

Many other points could be taken up showing the friendly and close relationship between Hutcheson and Brindell and how in every move they made their own personal advancement was always considered first. For further facts dealing with the Hutcheson corrupt administration see the pamphlet, "What's Wrong in the Carpenters' Union."

But in this series of articles sufficient facts have been brought out to prove to the most skeptical member within the carpenters' union that the organization is rotten at the top and that something drastic must be done to save the organization from complete demoralization and probable annihilation.

Now the Left Wing Is Organized.

The expulsions that took place during the period mentioned in this article, were of individuals who had no ways and means of bringing their cases before the membership. The present series of expulsions have the support of an ever-growing left-wing group which has a definite program of action and has its own official expression in the Progressive Building Trades Worker and is supported by the Trade Union Educational League, the Workers (Communist) Party, and all of their numerous publications.

The forcing back into the union of the five members "expelled" in Chicago, the refusal of the Detroit locals and district council to recognize the expulsion of Wm. Reynolds, the support given by hundreds of local unions and many district councils to all of the expulsion cases, shows the growing strength of the left-wing and marks the beginning of the end for the Hutcheson corrupt administration.

Grabbed Hot End of Poker, Now Wants an Asbestos Committee

NEW YORK—In spite of the fact that hundreds of locals have opposed the expulsion policy of the Hutcheson administration and are demanding the reinstatement of those expelled, Hutcheson continues his ruinous policy.

The Progressive Building Trades Worker some time ago predicted that F. W. Burgess would be the next one to be expelled, and that following him would come the campaign manager (Jos. Lapidus) of Morris Rosen.

As prophesied, Burgess has been expelled, and on March 18 Lapidus and the officers of Local 276 have to appear before a special investigating committee, selected of course by the G. E. B. relating to sending out matter of a "scurrilous" nature to the local unions.

The "scurrilous" matter sent out was the election program upon which the progressives run Morris Rosen for president. Hutcheson if nothing else is brutally frank. He wants every member of the union to understand that he will brook no opposition to his rule.

Chicago has shown him that he cannot depend upon his local lieutenants to put his expulsion policy into effect. Detroit is raising hell over his method of expelling by letter and his use of the courts. Los Angeles is protesting against the use of the police in expelling sixteen of their most valued members, and the general membership is in open revolt against the expulsion policy.

So Hutcheson is now trying to screen himself behind a fake "investigation committee," whose findings have already been decided upon and which is in open violation of the constitution. Hutcheson grabbed the red end of the poker when he started to expel the militanats, now he cannot let go without admitting all the charges that are being levelled against him.

Union Officials Sleep While Klan and Church Work for Coal Barons

By G. SPANOS.

WHITEVILLE, W. Va.—This section is the Big Coal River section where there are many small mining towns. It is from this town that the armed coal miners started their campaign in 1921 and 1922 to go and assist their striking brothers in Mingo county.

In 1921 the wages were cut and all miners in this district declared a strike. The coal companies brought in scabs to work in their mines on the American "open shop" plan ever since 1921. There are miners here who have been on strike ever since that time. There are union men who have returned to their jobs and are now working in the same mines with the scabs. Every one of them almost without exception are dissatisfied. They work very hard and do not receive enough money to live upon.

We do not know what stand they will take on the first of April when their agreement expires in the union mines. The miners say that no organizers have made an appearance as yet to advise them what to do on the first of April.

Those that belong to the K. K. K. claim that they are satisfied with their conditions as they are. The Negro preachers have started a campaign from Charleston, W. Va., and they are organizing the Negro miners and advise them to have faith in the almighty god instead of in unionism.

COAL MINERS IN PANHANDLE SECTION OF WEST VIRGINIA NEED UNIONIZATION

BELLAIRE, O., Mar. 30.—Sub-district 5 of District 6, U. M. W., takes the panhandle district of West Virginia. While almost all the mines in Ohio are union mines, the same cannot be said of the mines in the panhandle district of West Virginia. Some of these mines are still union, but the majority of them are not.

No real effort is being made at this time to organize the mines in this section of the district.

It will be recalled by the miners that an explosion took place at Benwood, W. Va., which is across the river from Bellaire, Ohio, on April 28, 1924. In this explosion 117 miners lost their lives.

This mine had beed a union mine but after the 1922 strike it, lke many other mines owned by the Wheeling Steel corporation, refused to sign the Jacksonville agreement. In spite of the fact that the Jacksonville agreement took from the men many of their rights, they decided that in W. Va. the time was ripe to taxe all the rights away from the miners.

117 Paid With Lives.

Soon after the mine opened this terrible explosion took place taking the lives of the 117 miners who were foolish enough to work in the scab mine when they knew that there is less safety for them in a scab mine than in a union mine.

It was reported at the time of the explosion that one of the fire bosses was Matthew V. Herron, who worked in the mine under the name of J. J. Boyle. This man turned out to be a department of justice agent, who was probably working in the mine in order to spy on the workers who were interested in having the mine organized.

The company denied this man was a fire boss, saying he was a timberman, altho they did not explain why a D. of J. man was working in the mine.

After the explosion, it was brought to the attention of the union officials in Sub-District Five that the company wanted to use union coal miners for rescue work. The union officers said that in view of the fact that such a terrible disaster took place, it would permit the union men to do rescue work.

Any one who knows the least bit about the manner of organizing workers knows that the only way in which to organise workers is to have men work with them, and to build up an organization.

Organizing Officials.

The mine owners only believe in collective bargaining when they cannot destroy the union. Yet what did the officials of the union do? Instead of sending union organizers to try and get jobs in the mine and win the confidence of the men, and thru that most effective manner organize the men, they wrote a letter to the officers of the Wheeling Steel corporation which owned the Benwood mine and asked for a conference to discuss the matter of the Benwood mine again becoming a union mine. The company never replied to this letter. They could not have been expected to. The only time they listen to representatives of workers is when the workers who are represented are well enough organized to compell the bosses to come to terms.

The militants in the miners' union do not approve of the correspondence school method of organizing the coal mines. The miners' union was not built in that manner when the miners' union was first organized. It was organized thru organizers who had the courage to face the sluggers and gunmen of the companies in order to reach the men and organize them.

One needs but to go back to the days when Mother Jones was active organizing for the miners' union. The history of the miners' union is filled with glorious struggles of the miners to organize themselves. While the workers in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, were living in tents as were the workers in W. Va. and other places, the officials of the union try to organize the correspondence.

To-day the bosses are planning wage cuts against the miners. In every important state where they have no state police they are campaining for them. They are preparing not only to starve the workers into submission, but to shoot them into accepting the 1917 scale.

The miners are demanding the organization of the unorganized coal fields. But the coal fields will only be organized by militant miners' organizers, who will not stay in the best hotels and fraternize with the bosses, but who will go among the miners themselves, win their confidence, by proving to the miners that they too are willing to make sacrifices for the union.

BUREAUCRATS, IN FRENZY, WRITE; SO WEEP, READER!

Not Responsible for the Cracked Lips

By HARRISON GEORGE

The following is a symposium of attacks upon the Communists and members of the Trade Union Educational League, whose activity in behalf of the interests of the membership of the unions has elicted from the union bureaucracy of not only the A. F. of L., but also of the independent unions, and the I. W. W. thrown in, these testimonials of efficiency in exposing and opposing the betrayals, class collaboration and autocracy of the various official families.

The publications from which these excerpts are taken came to our desk on the same day—and their similarity is striking; fanatic wobbly, yellow socialist and black reactionary as like as peas in a pod.

What the A. F. of L. Says

"True to form, the Communists once more are trying to do their utmost to wield improper influence among the members of union labor at every election of officers of organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The real purpose of this effort is to create a split in the organizations upon which they concentrate their activities. The United Mine Workers, the International Brotherhood of Carpenters, and the International Association of Machinists have had the misfortune of being the targets of these 'boring from within' specialists."—From the Federation News organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, issue of March 28, 1925.

The next in the exhibition is from the union of clothing workers which was formed in 1914 by a split away from the American Federation of Labor, leaving the faker Rickert of the United Clothing Workers to hold an empty office of a union practically without members. It was led and still is led largely by yellow socialists, whose increasing tendency to repeat the same bureaucratic crimes of Rickert against the interests of the workers who belong to it, has resulted in criticism of these officials by the left wing—and the criticism has been answered with blackjacks and guns and expulsions. We introduce:

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America

"In a most emphatic manner the members of the Chicago Joint Board served notice in the group which seeks to bring chaos within the organization . . . The enemies of the organization under the banner of the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers Party were scheduled to hold a meeting to attack the policies of the Amalgamated officials. The members were obviously greatly incensed at the disruptive tactics of these outside groups. The Chicago organization will not stand interference and dictation by outside agencies."—From The Advance, organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, issue of March 27, 1925.

The next on deck are the two I. W. W. organizations, one the "regular" I. W. W. still holding forth at the Madison street headquarters in Chicago, the other with a Chicago office but largely centered around Portland, Oregon, and with the Industrial Worker of Seattle, edited by a stump-ranch farmer. This last is the Rowan split from the genuine I. W. W., with apologies to the socialist labor party whose accusation is that the genuine" was a split from their "genuine" I. W. W. This may be dizzying, but true.

Both these I. W. W's. are, theoretically, biterly opposed to the A. F. of L., holding it as a cardinal principle that "Carthage must be destroyed" before anything can be done for the workers of the A. F. of L. A member of its general executive board visited the Indianapolis convention of the United Mine Workers, trying to persuade the Nova Scotia miners of District 26, betrayed by Lewis, to split and come into the I. W. W.

The I. W. W. is just now enthusiastically wasting its treasury trying to split and destroy the Structural Iron Workers' Union. The habitual destructive attitude toward the craft unions goes on all the time and everywhere, even in California and Washington, where the western members must depend so largely upon the moral and material support of the A. F. of L. members for defense against the capitalist government——that "inconsequential reflection of economic power" which the wobblies wave aside as unimportant even while it wrecks their halls and imprisons them by the scores.

In spite of this, there is a warm fraternity between the most reactionary labor fakers of the A. F. of L. and the fanatical anarcho-syndicalist leaders of the I. W. W. Welinder's speeches are indistinguishable from those Gompers made in 1886. Gahan, editor of the Industrial Pioneer, is invited by the reactionary labor fakers of the Barbers' Union of the A. F. of L. to speak against the Workers (Communist) Party to the local. He did so on March 26. In Seattle, the organ of the split, the Industrial Worker, takes violent sides with the labor fakers who are trying to expel the Communist from the Central Labor Council. We select for first introduction:

The I. W. W. Rowan Split Faction

"Is the I. W. W. a dual union? The pronouncement of the Communist Party of America, after it had received its instructions from Moscow—say that it is. But this was not decided on until the same Commnists tried to capture the organization for a tail to their underground kite (An underground kite is no novelty to this I. W. W. editor.—H. G.) and made a failure of it. The Communist Party was organized from elements outside the ranks of labor organizations. It doesn't report to and receive its orders from any labor body. The acts of Judas Iscariot, of Benedict Arnold, of John Wilkes Booth, of Harry Orchard and W. E. Townsend cannot appear worse than will the acts of those who liquidate the I. W. W. for their own personal schemes and attempts at leadership."—From the Industrial Worker, March 25, 1925. Organ of the Western Branches of the I. W. W.

The next exhibit is from the real sure-enough I. W. W., (again begging pardon of the DeLeon sect) which excludes even from its internal bulletins the letters of its members which intimate that their writer has a speaking acquaintance with revolutionary principles. We introduce:

The I. W. W. The Real Main Office

"Why is a member of the I. W. W. allowed to be a socialist, democrat, republican, catholic, protestant or even join Mrs. Rowan's Celestial Cloud Riders, and yet we balk more or less at the Communists? It is because the Communists have an outside machine and by claiming to be industrial unionists want to come into our organization and dominate it in the interest of that machine. I know two persons who have been around the Communists and they have assured me that the Foster machine is behind the Rowanites"—From the General Office Bulletin, organ of the General Executive Board of the I. W. W., Chicago.

After these illustrations, we leave the reader to ponder over the fact that the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League are the only ones whose programs for the workers are so universally accepted by the members of all kinds of unions, that the incompetent, dishonest and reactionary officials of them all have united in an unholy alliance.

Left Wing Papers, What They Are and Where to Get Them

In response to many inquiries as to the left wing papers issued by the T. U. E. L. committees, the following are given as constituting the expression of growing class consciousness of the rank and file within the American trade unions:

Metal Trades Amalgamation Bulletin.

This paper deals with all live issues of all the unions in the metal trades. It costs only 50 cents a year, and may be ordered from its address at 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago,

The Amalgamationist.

This paper issued by the printing trades group of the T. U. E. L. sets forth the principles of the left wing in all printing trades unions. Price 50 cents per year. Address: 1113 Washington Blvd.

The Railway Amalgamation Advocate.

The paper which reveals the how and the why all rail unions should amalgamate into one industrial union costs only 60 cent a year. It is published at 411 Dakota building, St. Paul, Minn.

The Progressive Building Trades Worker.

The building trades have the best paper, perhaps, of any of the left wing publications. It costs only 35 cents a year and can be obtained from 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Ill.

JEWELL BETRAYS C.& N.W. SHOPMEN TO RAIL COMPANY

Starts "B. & O. Plan" on North Western

After a fake favorable "vote" in the Chicago and North Western Railway shops, Bert M. Jewell of the railway department of the A. F. of L., and Otto S. Beyer, Jr. a former government agent and now an "efficiency" engineer, are busily inaugurating the infamous class collaboration scheme known as the "B. and O. plan."

They are welcomed with a glad hand by the union-hating company and are working together with William Walliser, vice-president and head of the personnel department of the road, which aims to profit from this betrayal of the employes' interests by the union officials.

Glenwood Shopmen Tried and Condemned It

One the Baltimore and Ohio road's Glenwood shops, where the plan was first put into practice, the Glenwood local of the International Association of Machinists was so weakened by its destructive effect on the union that the local could not afford to send a delegate to the I. A. of M. convention at Detroit.

What the machinists thought about it was revealed when these Glenwood workers passed a resolution recently condemning the fake "co-operation" as benefiting only to the company and a betrayal of their interests by Wm. H. Johnston, president of the I. A. of M.

This is the fact, in spite of the camouflage hung around the plan by Johnston, Jewell and Beyer, which is supposed to provide for the "recognition" of the union by the company. Actually, say the Glenwood shopmen, the "B. and O. plan" is simply the recognition by the union officials of a company union plan of speeding up work solely for the profit of the company. "It is a company union under labor union permission."

"Mutuality of Interest"—Bunk.

The hoary lie about the "mutuality of interests" between capitalists and workers is at the bottom of the plan.

"Recognizing a mutual interest in the successful and economical operation of shops, repair yards, etc.," says the agreement signed by the North Western and the union fakers, "we have held conferences to place in effect a systematized co-operative program."

Insures a "Minimum Number" of Workers.

"Employes can without doubt bring to the attention of the management many points which will improve local conditions as to methods of planning and handling work in shops and roundhouses on Sundays and holidays. These factors, together with the economical use of time and forces, use of tools of the railway company in the most advantageous manner, performance of work by the minimum number of employes consistent with the various classes of work available, etc., will aid in the successful operation of the shops and repair tracks.

"To present these suggestions, to insure their full and intelligent consideration and to secure the co-operation necessary to their successful adoption—conferences will begin at local points where foremen and other local officers will meet a like number of shop committee men"

It is expected that the shops at Clinton, Iowa, will be the scene of the first experiment on the North Western lines.

An Efficiency Speed-Up System.

The meetings are to be held with the ranking officer of the railway company or his representative as chairman of the joint committee

Subjects suggested for consideration are co-operation between departments; proper distribution, storage and care of material; increasing efficiency of tools and machines; disposition of scrap; most efficient method of handling engines through the shops; reclamation of usable material; conditions of shops and shop material; arrangement of car repair tracks and tools.

Nothing for the Men—But Betrayal.

None of the agreements provide for a definite arrangment in regard to distribution of the savings resulting from this plan but the union chieftains "expect" that the employes will be given consideration in this regard.

The union officials are the only ones which "expect" such an impossibility, and their treachery is most brazenly apparent when they sign an agreement which provides immense benefit for the company but none at all for the employes, all it assures them is a speed up system and a lay-off of any "superfluous" workers whose work the rest can do "if they work hard enough."

DENOUNCE WHITE TERROR AT RED DEMONSTRATION

Workers Pledge Loyalty to Communist Cause

The militant workers of Chicago, gathered in the Ashland Auditorium Sunday afternoon, celebrated the 54th anniversary of the Paris Commune of 1871, cheered speakers who denounced the Polish white terror which has condemned Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist deputy, to death, and pledged their loyalty to the Workers (Communist) Party and the Communist International.

A resolution was passed, condemning the activities of the menshevik agent, Raphael Abramovich, demanding the complete recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States, protesting against the intended execution of Lanzutsky, and demanding the liberation of all class war prisoners in the capitalist jails.

Earl R. Browder, acting secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, Robert Minor, one of the Michigan defendants and Lovett Fort-Whiteman spoke.

Negro Leader Speaks.

Lovett Fort-Whiteman, the Communist Negro leader just returned from Soviet Russia, described to the large audience the different kinds of prisoners in Soviet Russia.

"There are 1,500 counter revolutionists who are prisoners in Soviet Russia," said Fort-Whiteman. "There is no other way to make the workers and peasants' revolution secure than by curbing the activities of these counter revolutionists."

Minor Condemns Abramovich.

Robert Minor, Communist cartoonist, lecturer and writer, declared that while we mourn for the revolutionists who died in the Paris Commune, we can rejoice in the Russian revolution and our working class Soviet government.

Browder on Communist International.

"When we think of saving the life of Comrade Lanzutsky," said Earl R. Browder, acting secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, "when we think of the campaign for the recognition of Soviet Russia by the United States, and when we think of celebrating the Paris Commune we also think of the Communist International and its American section, the Workers (Communist) Party. None of the problems of the working class can be solved without the leadership of the Communist International."

The Paris Commune pageant was featured by the dancing of Emma Blackschmidt, Hilda Reed and Elsa Neuman and a recitation by Rose Lurye.

F. George Laubert, Lettish baritone, sang a series of songs, the Jugo-Slav tamburitza band, the South Slav chorus, Finnish and Bohemian gymnasts, and the Russian dancers, Misses Lutkus and Muzuka all gave excellent performances.

One of the most popular pieces on the entire program was the Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra and the Freiheit Chorus, which sang and played together for the first time on an English stage.

A large group of Lithuanian children opened the program with a red army drill.

The unity demonstration was held under the auspices of the International Workers' Aid, and the receipts went toward helping the Irish famine sufferers, the class war prisoners in European jails, and the fight of the Labor Defense Council against the persecution of Communists in Michigan.

Full Text of Soviet-Japanese Agreement in "Russian Review"

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30.—A translation of the complete text of the recently concluded Soviet-Japanese agreement, hitherto unavailable here, is published in the April number of the Russian Review. It includes the vital protocols on various important points, such as the evacuation of Northern Sakhalin by the Japanese troops, and the basic terms of the concessions granted to Japan in the oil and coal fields of the Soviet part of the island.

Apart from a rich array of official statistics and statements on the economic activities of the Soviet Union during the fiscal year ending Oct. 1, 1924, and the first quarter of the current fiscal period, the April 1 issue of the Russian Review presents an interesting article on the state-operated Soviet insurance system, inaugurated about three years ago. Substantial progress is shown in all phases of the work, but particularly in covering the peasants against agricultural hazards of crop failure and livestock plagues. During 1924 between 16 and 17 million gold rubles were paid out to the peasants for losses suffered.

Continuing the special cultural information department started in March, the Russian Review for April 1 prints, among other items of this class, an account of a decade of work by the Moscow Chamber Theater ("Kamerny Teatr"), describing in detail the novel methods devised by its famous director, A. Y. Tairov, in his effort to mold dramatic representation to exalted ideals of heroic philosophy and rhythmic laws, as a protest against what he considered the decadent realism prevalent in the Russian theater, with its portrayal of the discovered details and awkward action of everyday life.

Miners of Nanticoke Demand New Trial in Sacco-Vanzetti Case

A Sacco-Vanzetti resolution was adopted by Local Union 2202 U. M. W. of Nanticoke, Pa., as follows:

"WHEREAS, The members of Local 2202 in Nanticoke, Pa., have gone on record demanding a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti, convicted of murder in the first degree by a biased jury under the instructions of a prejudiced judge in the state of Massachusetts, and,

"WHEREAS, Notwithstanding the urgent demand from millions of workers thruout our country and all over the world, such a retrial and the opportunity to present incontrovertible evidence of their innocence of the heinous crime imputed to them has recently again been denied by their first judge, and an effort is now being made to have their case reviewed by the supreme court of Massachusetts, and,

"WHEREAS, They are in danger of their lives unless the prompt intervention of an enlightened public opinion prevents this miscarriage of justice, therefore be it,

"RESOLVED, That the members of Local 2202 U. M. W. of A. at their regular meeting held at Nanticoke, hereby reiterates its demand for a new trial for these defenseless victims of race and national prejudice and class hatred, to the end that the honor and fairness of the American people may be presented untarnished before the eyes of the civilized world.

of reaction the world over; the tightening of the grip of naked imperialism upon the toiling masses of the world. The Dawes plan spelling increased exploitation, not only for the workers of Germany, but of the entire world, was put into effect. Together with this increase of exploitation came the ruthless suppression of those who dared oppose the rule of the imperialists, resulting in the imprisonment of tens of thousands of the most militant workers thruout Europe and America. At the same time we already witness the complete breakdown of the league of nations and the feverish race for armaments, as witness to the fact that the capitalists are preparing for new imperialist wars.

In the United States also we saw the triumph of reaction. The strikebreaker Coolidge and the open shopper Dawes were swept into power. The last year has been a year of wage cuts and open shop drives. The last year saw an increasing army of unemployed and at the same time an increase in the use of child labor. Even the mild child labor amendment was defeated by the wave of reaction. The reaction in the United States like Europe also brot persecution of the most militant section of the working class. The last year was also a year of deportations, and added laws against the foreign born.

On the other hand we witnessed the growth of the popularity of the Soviet Republic and the strengthening of the left wing of the labor movement the world over. This left wing is particularly expressing itself thru the attempt to unite the Amsterdam and Red Trade Unions. These elements are demanding the unity of the trade unions because only thru a united trade union movement can the workers resist the wage cuts and open shop drives of the capitalists. These elements are also more and more freeing themselves from the illusions of capitalist democracy inculcated by the bourgeoie and its lackeys, and are demanding the establishment of a workers' and farmers' government as the only means to a solution of their problems.

Fellow Workers: This year more than ever must we present a united front against the united front of the capitalists. The Workers Party is therefore calling a united front conference which shall organize mass demonstrations to voice the sentiments and needs of the workers, on the above named issues.

The conference will be held on Sunday, April 12, at 1 p. m. at Labor Temple, 243 East 84th street, Room 8.

"Fellow Workers: We must demonstrate our united strength and solidarity. This can be done only thru the United Front of Labor against the united front of capitalism. We urge you to act upon this communication at once, to elect two delegates to the conference and send the enclosed credential to Charles Krumbein—108 East 14th street, New York City, as soon as possible.

Fraternally yours,
Charles Krumbein,
District Organizer of District No. 2,
"Workers Party of America."

SPANISH BRANCH MAKES BIG GAINS IN MEXICAN MEET

Fight for Protection of Latin Workers

Fighting every inch of the way for a program of action based upon the class struggle and for a militant fight against American imperialism, the Chicago Spanish-speaking branch of the Workers (Communist) Party made itself a leading factor in the convention of organizations of Mexicans in this country which has been meeting over a period of weeks, at 1616 W. Taylor St., Chicago, and which adjourned Sunday, after creating the Confederation of Mexican Societies. Many delegates, as well as visitors to the convention went up to the Communists and congratulated them on the stand they were taking.

Good Support For Program

Manuel Gomez and Jose Espinosa, delegates from the Spanish-speaking branch of the Workers Party, succeeded in rallying considerable support for their program in spite of the efforts of the Mexican consul, Luis Lupian, who attended every session and whose influence was strong enough to keep the majority to the safe and sane path of bourgeois patriotism. The left wing elements will continue to work in close co-operation with the Workers Party.

The convention was called on the initiative of the Club Benito Juaraz and the Sociedad Hispano-Americano for the expressed purpose of taking steps for the protection of the Mexican worker in the United States, but except for the Workers Party delegates and their supporters, it paid no attention to this important problem, notwithstanding the fact that the Mexican-born workers in this country constitute one of the worst exploited sections of the working class. The consul kept reminding the delegates that they were in a strange country and told them that if they did anything at all radical the police would immediately interfere. He put the fear of god into them so strongly that they shied even at the mention of the word "worker," which they refused to include in the name of the new confederation.

All Workers' Organizations.

Inasmuch as all the affiliated organizations are composed of workers, the Communist delegates did not withdraw, but will work within the confederation for a program of action which will really protect the Mexican workers in this country by building upon their own strength and uniting it with the power of the American working class as a whole.

Comrade Gomez, who led he militant minority in the convention, pointed out that the great mass of the Mexicans in this country are workers. He said that the first step toword bettering their condition is to recognize their special character as workers, as a section of the working class. He said further, that one of the elementary duties of the new confederation, a duty owed to themselves, to their fellow countrymen in Mexico and to the Latin-American peoples in general, is to carry out a fight against American imperialism.

Communist Program.

The program proposed by the Workers Party delegates contained the following points:

1. Unionization of the unorganized Mexican workers in this country; propaganda to get Mexicans to join the trade unions and to assist the unions to carry out a campaign of organization among them.
2. Struggle against the prevailing discrimination in the matter of housing, whereby Mexicans are obliged to pay higher rents than other workers for poorer dwellings.
3. Equal pay with workers of other nationalities for equal work done.
4. No scabbing; no taking the place of other workers when on strike.
5. Abolition of the present system of contract labor, or "engancho," as a result of which thousands of Mexicans are lured from their homes by false promises and brought to this country, where they are given their choice between being left stranded or going to work at wages far below the wage agreed on—often in the midst of a strike.
6. Vigorous resistance to attempts on the part of the United States government to deport workers for their political activities; the Mexican embassy and consulates to give the same protection to Mexican workers as it now gives to Mexican business men.
7. Against the so-called criminal syndicalist laws prevailing in many states; freedom for all political prisoners.
8. Struggle against the "Americanization" propaganda, as a scheme for converting all foreign-born workers into docile slaves of American capitalism.
9. Uncompromising struggle against American imperialism.

American Capitalists and Coolidge Advisor Rush Aid to Mussolini

NEW YORK, March 30.—Is it merely coincidence that Frank P. Stearns, co-resident of the White House with President Coolidge, and Thomas W. Lamont of Morgan's banking house are both going to Italy "for vacations" at almost the same moment, just after the arrival of the new Italian ambassador?

Fascismo may be explained by Count Antonio Cippico, Italian fascist senator coming to lecture at the Institute of Politics in Wiliamstown, Mass., but the answer to the question may not be.

Lamont was one of the greeters of the new Italian ambassador and read President Coolidge's letter of welcome to di Martini. It is an appropriate time for Stearns and Lamont to take pleasure trips to Italy when Mussolini seems broken by illness and popular disfavor. The strikes of metal workers thruout Italy are not easily stopped as the dictator announced.

Riverview Park May Be Turned Into Big Educational Center

Riverview Park, the 110-acre recreation park of Chicago is the site to be recommended for the building of a large educational center to comprise a junior and senior technical high school, a school for trade apprentices, an elementary school, a junior college and a normal college, also a stadium for north and northwest side school athletics.

The idea was originated by William J. Bogan, first assistant superintendent. He has placed the matter before several members of the board and it will come up as a recommendation to the board of education soon.

The site is bounded by Belmont and Western avenues, Addison street and the north branch of the river.

Red Students Take Over Sorbonne and Lock Out Professor

PARIS, March 30—The students at the Sorbonne, in a second demonstration against the appointment of George Scelle as professor of international law, led by Communist students, took complete control of the school building, locked the doors and cut the telephone wires. Two thousand students took part in the demonstration against Scelle.

Scelle was unable to take the professorship in March because of a similar protest, and he again gave up the effort to impose his reactionary ideas on the students.

Police charged the students, injuring several.

of heavily armed thugs and challenged: "Hey, guy! What are you doing here? What's your business? What do you want to see? What's in your grip?"—and so on.

"Co-operate with Sheriff," Says Bittner.

The strike will be an attempt to organize these now non-union fields, embraced in the ten northern counties including Grafton, Clarksburg, Fairmont and Morgantown. In spite of the fact that only a superior armed force has ever succeeded in establishing and holding the union against the lawless, murdering private army of the operators, Van Bittner, national organizer of the U. M. W. of A. recently issued a circular letter advising "co-operation with the sheriffs" who are invariably on the payroll of the companies and paid to destroy the union and murder any protesting members.

The strike call, signed by Van Bittner and Phil Murray of the U. M. W. of A. will involve the miners with the new and fake "union" organized by the companies and led by an ex-official of the U M. W. of A., Thomas Cairns.

An Imitation Union.

This company union, the "Mine Workers' Association of West Virginia," is incorporated under the state laws and the operators are driving the known union men into it, by coercion.

Well-known leaders of the now defunct and betrayed U. M. W. of A. are approached by smooth talkers who are ex-officials of the U. M. W. of A., now in the pay of the operators. They point out that the Lewis machine has betrayed the miners time and again. By this maneuver they gain the ear of the miners. Then they offer paid positions in the fake "union" to the local leader, if he will use his influence in its favor among the rank and file of miners.

The "Co-operation" of Sheriffs.

Without help from the U. M. W. of A., the victim is between the devil and the deep sea. Refusal of the offer of a paid position meets with outright punishment. Shots are fired from ambush, and the company gunmen, wearing badges of "deputy sheriffs" calmly throw the influential miner into jail on any old frame-up, and let him know that when he changes his mind and is willing to accept a position in the fake "union" and get his followers to join, he will be freed.

ting the kick into his stuff would have Henry Ford looking like a west Madison street snake oil peddler.

NO doubt the saloon league would subsidize such a religion, as Constantine financed the christian church after he had chopped off the heads of his relatives and needed some organization to keep him in good standing. It looks as if the new bible is written by a gang of bigots who had a particular grudge against the followers of Bacchus. St. Paul for instance, dropped a line to Timothy, an early business agent of christianity who evidently had stomach trouble: "Be no longer a drinker of water," wrote Paul, "but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities."

WHAT effect would a judge's frown have on the inebriate who appeared before the august court on a charge of violating his country's laws if the defendant were fortified with the knowledge that the founders of christianity held the curative qualities of wine for stomach trouble in higher regard than some people of modern times hold Fleishmann's yeast? Frequenters of "blind pigs" would serve their thirty days with a look of calm resignation such as adorned the countenances of early christians when about to be thrown to the lions.

WE must give the bible revisors credit for some political sagacity. They have determined to save the reputations of their leaders. It was common gossip in early day that at times, old man Noah swallowed more wine than discretion would ordain. He was the original toper. But that was his sacrifice to experimenting with the grape juice. Genesis tells us that "Noah became a husbandman and planted a vineyard, and he drank of the wine and was drunken." In order to protect Noah's reputation, the anti-saloon league deleted that little paragraph and the captain of the ark is fully qualified for membership in the ku klux klan.

NO doubt the bible will be revised again, when the saloon league gains control of the protestant sects. But who pays any attention to the bible? Those who do will find one to their liking. The catholic church has a bible that will satisfy the most exacting devotees of Bacchus. And it is not likely that the talmud will delete its yarns about the drinking bouts of the early leaders of the human race. If such an attempt is made the sacramental wine stores must be reckoned with.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST MURDER OF LANZUTSKY

Workers Storm Polish Consulate in New York

NEW YORK, March 30.—Thousands of workers led by the International Red Aid and the Workers Party stormed the Polish consulate here on Saturday afternoon with dozens of banners, many speeches and a definite demand that the Polish official use his influence to stop the government of Poland from the murder of Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist member of the diet who has been condemned to death for his fidelity to the working class of Poland.

Alert and wide-awake to every new attack made by the capitalist class upon the workers the Workers Party and the International Red Aid at once called upon the masses of New York to gather where they might be heard by the representative of Poland and the wide street before the consulate was soon crowded, banners and placards in large red letters telling the story of the latest atrocity staged against the workers.

W. W. Weinstone was the chairman of the demonstration and explained why the workers had assembled in such a mass on a bright afternoon. "We are here to protest against the official murder of Stanislav Lanzutsky who has been sentenced to die because he has dared to stand up for the enslaved masses of his country. If he is allowed to be murdered the killing mania now spreading among the tyrants of the world will soon bring disaster to the workers of this country as well as other countries."

Five Convicts Escape from Penna. Prison But Are Caught

BUTLER, Pa., March 30.—The five convicts who escaped from Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh, were recaptured near here early this morning, and are being held at the state police barracks on the outskirts of the city, according to reports from the barracks.

The convicts escaped by burning a hole thru the metal ceiling of a jail tier with an improvised electric torch, then sliding down a fifty-foot wall on a rope made from scrap wire.

"THE OFFICIAL OPPOSITION"

IN the past year, the labor movement in this country has undergone sharp changes.

NO longer does the membership of organized labor look to "progressives," "socialists" and "independents" to question the leadership of the reactionary bureaucracy in power.

THE clear-cut program and militant policy of the Left Wing, guided by the Trade Union Educational League—with Communists as the motive power—has driven from the field all fake "progressives," every pseudo "socialist"—every obstacle that beclouded the issues and prevented the progress of labor in this country.

TODAY there remain only two definite groupings:

ONE the old bureaucratic machine:—the seat of reaction, the hand-maiden of Capitalism, the reason for the fact that organized American labor has become the most backward body of labor in the world.

THE other group is the Left Wing: Commmunist-led, militant, with a program that leads to working class power.

THE DAILY WORKER has been the spokesman of the Left Wing in its crystalization; has pictured its daily struggles, has taught its principles and practice, has helped to make it "The Official Opposition" to the reactionary lords of organized labor in this country.

AT this moment and until June 15 The DAILY WORKER is conducting its Second Annual Sub Campaign for 15,000 new subscribers. It asks every militant in this country to get at least two subs:—one from your shop-mate or member of your union, and another that you will pay for (if you can): a "propaganda sub" to extend the influence of the paper expressing the new force and growing power in American labor.

guard government is backed by French capitalism, which is against the British-German alliance.

England Kills League.

The "disarmament conference," now that the league of nations has been practically killed by England's rejection of the league protocol, will according to reports, take up such international disputes as the immigration quarrel between the United States and Japan, and the struggle between the French and English, with the Balkan states and Turkey lining up on one side or the other, for the Mosul oil fields.

British Colonies Restless.

England's capitalists are frantically trying to hold down the lid on their restive colonial possessions. Egypt's parliament was immediately dissolved as soon as it was found that opponents of British imperialism were in control. Now the elections are being indefinitely postponed. India also is being ruled by the increasing use of the white terror.

Poland is trying to drag the Communist deputy Stanislav Lansutsky to the scaffold, and the Polish workers are rallying to his defense.

U. S. Imperialism Active.

Altho the mouthpiece of American imperialism, Cal Coolidge, is saying little, his dictators, Wood in the Philippines and Pershing in South America, are increasingly active.

William Randolph Hearst, who owns huge estates in Mexico, has offered part of this land to Mexican peons in order to stave off a peasants' uprising.

England is sending the Prince of Wales to her South African colonies to attempt to re-establish good feeling, and General Wood, pursuing another method, is murdering the Philippine leaders who are fighting American imperialism.

Japanese Fight U. S. Ban.

Tsuneo Matsudaira, the new Japanese ambassador to Washington, in a speech in New York said that Japan did not regard the United State's immigration bars as "final." At the same time Sir Charles Higham is egging on the United States to arm against Japan, while British and American capitalists intrigue and conniral for control of China and the Pacific colonies.

Soviet Russia, of course, has not been invited to attend an international conference to discuss a division of this plunder. But Soviet Russia has shown the people of China and the east that she can be relied upon to fight against any foreign imperialism, and to befriend the oppressed workers and peasants of all subject countries.

MILITANT WORKERS IN EUROPE UNITE AGAINST FALSE LEADERSHIP AND TO COMBAT INFLUENCE OF DAWES PLAN

LONDON.—The first definite steps toward the formation of a new alliance of the unions in England's key industries, for which the militant elements within the unions have long been carrying on an energetic campaign, have now been taken.

On March 11, the executive committee of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain met with the executive committee of the National Union of Railwaymen, and later, the executive of the Transport Workers' Federation; and on March 12, the miners' representatives conferred with those of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, and a committee representing the 41 other unions into which the remaining metal workers are unfortunately divided.

Miners and Railwaymen Meet.

At the meeting of the miners and railwaymen, the miners made a statement regarding the present position in the industry, the wages and hours under which their members were working, and expressed the opinion that the improvement of conditions steadily growing worse under the Dawes' plan, could only be carried thru successfully by forceful and determined action, in common with the unions in the metal and transport industries.

The proceedings at this initial meeting were largely informal, and further meetings are to be held. Following this meeting, a joint statement, signed by Mr. A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, and Mr. C. T. Cramp, industrial secretary of the N. U. R., was issued, merely announcing that the position as it affected both organizations had been discussed.

After the meeting of the miners and transport workers, the following official statement was issued under the names of Mr. A. J. Cook, for the miners, and Mr. Robert Williams for the transport workers. It says:

"After Mr. Herbert Smith and Mr. A. J. Cook had examined the objects of the meeting, Mr. Ben Tillett and Mr. Robert Williams presented the case for the Transport Workers' Federation.

"A frank discussion took place on the whole position, which will be considered by both organizations, and further meetings will be arranged."

In connection with this important step towards achieving unity in the struggle that is facing the British workers, the Communist Party has arranged a great campaign for the mining, railway, metal and transport industries, to take place during the last week in March. In announcing the campaign, the official organ of the Communist Party of Great Britain makes the following significant statement:

"The campaign will have a two-fold object.

"(1) To outline the party's proposals for securing the unity of the workers in the immediate struggles, with emphasis on the necessity of proceeding with the formation of local solidarity committees.

"(2) The need for a mass Communist Party which will strive to widen and deepen the workers' struggle both in regard to the unity of the workers and to the objectives which they are struggling to realize. Without such a party we may have more efficient trade unionism, but no revolutionary consciousness and no struggle for power.

"Already the party has fifty factory groups functioning in the industries mentioned. We must double the amount of the factory groups operating in those industries and increase the membership of the existing factory groups at least four-fold."

Metal Workers of Italy.

ITALY.—The first of a series of three conferences of militant Italian metal workers was recently held at Milan, under the auspices of the National Italian Communist Trade Union Committee. Following this conference, at which over 40 metal workers' sections of northern Italy were represented, conferences of the central and of the sourthern districts will be held. Among the sections participating in the Milan conference were those of Turin, Milan, Venice, Bologna, Trieste, Fiume, Ferrara, Treviso, etc. After approving a motion for uniting the agitation being carried in Lombardy, Tuscany and other parts of the country, against the reformist tactics of the labor bureaucrats, and their acceptance of government arbitration, the conference adopted the following resolution:

"The conference of revolutionary minorities of northern Italy within the Italian Federation of Metal Workers (F. I. O. M.) and the representatives of the shop committees of Milan, having the question of international relations under discussion:

"Denounce the sabotage carried on by the Amsterdam International, sabotage which has lately been once again confirmed by the last resolution adopted by the plenary session of the Executive Committee;

"Pledge themselves to fight within the Italian Federation of Metal Workers for admission of the Russian Metal Workers' Federation into the Metal Workers' International, and the calling of a world congress to realize the unification of the two trade union internationals;

"Affirm the absolute necessity of the revolutionary trade union unity of the working class, in order to form a front against the development of the capitalist offensive, aided by the secessionist action of social democracy;

"Declare that, against this offensive, characterized by the application of the Dawes plan, which strikes not only at the German proletariat, but at the toiling classes of the whole world, there must be created at any cost a united front for the decisive struggle."

Unity Struggle in Czecho-Slovakia.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA. — The past year has demonstrated that the hopes of the bourgeoisie of Czecho-Slovakia that the economic crisis would soon come to an end, are absolutely without foundation.

The number of unemployed has risen to 180,000, and is steadily increasing, due to the application of the Dawes plan and the sharpening of the economic crisis. The capitalists admit the existence of this crisis, and declare that there is no way of solving it save by lengthening the workday. The workers are prepared to offer vigorous resistance to the plans of the capitalists.

The cost of living is constantly increasing, food prices having risen 45 per cent in the course of one month. The situation of the working class is difficult in the extreme. The labor bureaucrats refuse to fight for wage increases, on the grounds that "our industry is not yet sufficiently developed to allow of an increase in wages." Thru the treachery of these yellow "leaders," the strikes of the miners, machinists and the textile workers have been crushed.

The state employes, of whom there are about 342,000, are in a wretched situation. The government has decided to dismiss 120,000, of which number 45,000 have already been discharged. The responsibility for these dismissals rests with the social democratic authorities, who are sacrificing these workers to the commands of the foreign financiers from whom they hope to get a loan. The reformist organizations of state employes absolutely refuse to engage in a common struggle with those adhering to the R. I. L. U.

Despite the opposition of union officials, the slogan of the Communist Party "towards trade union unity" is finding a living echo among the rank and file.

DAWES PLAN HITS BRITISH LABOR BELOW THE BELT

German Slavery Used Against Unions

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON.—British labor is flicked with the whip of foreign competition just when the leaders of the largest unions are working for a united front in the struggle for higher wages. A contract for building five 10,000 ton cargo boats goes to a German concern on the ground that the work can be done more cheaply in Hamburg. Many British shipyard workers are out of a job and the anti-union forces find the contract a made-to-order argument for reducing wages and abolishing trade union conditions.

The ability of the German firm to underbid British yards by from $290,000 to $480,000 per boat is still a mystery. There is evidence of collusion on the part of the British employers who are bent on undermining the wage movement and substituting a downward one. Secretary John Hill of the Boilermakers' Union points out that the winning German bid was considerably above the normal British price per ton and that the lowest British bid was inexcusably high. Hill says, "It is all part of some capitalist design which is now being applied not only to shipbuilding but to shipping."

Foreign competition underlies the deadlock in the British metal trades negotiations. The employers' federation refuses to discuss wage increases unless the Amalgamated Union agrees to consider lowering the standard of working conditions. Among the points the employers want considered are the lower wages and longer working week of competing countries ability of continental countries to undersell owing to the depreciation of their currencies, abnormal credits given to foreign competitors in their efforts to capture world markets, engineering imports increasing and exports decreasing in value per ton, great unemployment in the metal trades.

Cheap foreign competition is also the bugbear of the British miners in their attempt to win a bare subsistance wage. The average cost price of hard coal is $2.60 in Germany compared with $2.32 in England, the wage cost amounting to 42 per cent of the price in Germany and 65 per cent in England. German mine workers put in 8 to 11 hours a day compared with a 7-hour day in British mines. Lord Rothermere, head of the capitalist press combine, has given the miners an ultimatum about as follows: "If you don't stop your talk about getting decent conditions we'll get our coal from Germany and then where will you miners be?"

Final decision on the miners' program awaits the fate of a bill sponsored by their representatives in parliament to amend the coal mines minimum wage act. The miner officials are meeting the executives of the other big unions in an attempt at common action.

Charge Graft in Klan.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 30.—Factions within the ku klux klan are at war, and suits have been filed against George Bigerstaff, grand dragon of the ku klux klan, and other state klan officials. The suits charge the officers of the klan with misuse of funds, exhorbitant salaries, false statements, employment of fraud to obtain funds.

Bigerstaff, the charges state, receives a salary of $60,000.00 per year, in addition to the graft.

BUILDERS AT WORK

THERE'S A DANGER!

And Also a Golden Opportunity.

IN the enthusiasm and the interest born of the competition between the various locals in the Second Annual Sub Campaign for the DAILY WORKER, we want to warn our agents and Builders of a danger: you might forget the Workers Monthly.

It is important that altho this is the time to get subs for the DAILY WORKER with redoubled energy, it is also a golden opportunity for getting subs for the Workers Monthly. The second is also important.

While the DAILY WORKER is the official organ of our party giving a daily picture of the revolutionary movement the world over and serving as the guide for our actions, the Workers Monthly is the valuable journal that serves as the theoretical teacher of our membership, to give the guidance and understanding for our Communist activity. The Workers Monthly serves as the ballast for reading "our daily"—giving a proper balance to Communist viewpoint and action.

No doubt, if you are an agent your efforts in the DAILY WORKER sub campaign have led you to wisely begin rounding up for subscriptions the members of your branch who have up to now, thru lack of understanding or lack of funds, failed to become subscribers. If you have, see them again as well as those who have already subscribed to learn if they won't subscribe for the Workers Monthly. If they see the copy of the latest April issue (which is just off the press) they won't fail to do what they should have done long ago.

And when you—reader, BUILDER, agent—speak to your shopmate or member of your union for a sub to the DAILY WORKER, be sure to hand him (or her) a sample copy of the Workers Monthly and you will get the second subscription without the necessity of trying. We will gladly furnish the sample copies for this purpose if you tell us how many you can use.

The first task is the Second Annual Sub Campaign. "Now is the time for all good Communists to come to the aid of the party". . . and in the meantime be sure that when you get a DAILY WORKER sub to "make another Communist," you also give out a sample copy of the Workers Monthly to help you do it.

STATE POLICE NOT LIKE FICTION

various organizations represented were the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, the Illinois Bankers' Association, rotary clubs, kiwanis clubs, automobile clubs, etc.

All suddenly interested in protecting rural communities!

The Line Up.

Opposed to these mighty ones are the poor farmers themselves, as well as every labor organization in the state worthy of the name.

What this important struggle is about the readers of the present articles must now thoroly understand. In this concluding article, I intend to sum up briefly everything that has been brought out before relative to the scheme to establish a state police and to draw a few conclusions.

In my earlier articles I have shown:

(1) That the Dunlap bill now before the Illinois legislature provides for the establishment of a heavily armed, military police force, free to invade any community in the state at will, with or without the sanction of those communities.

(2) That a vast and expensive campaign of propaganda is on foot to deceive the workers as to its real purposes and to bring about the acceptance of the measure.

A Business Man Bill.

(3) That altho it is pretended that the state police bill is for "rural protection," it did not originate with the farmers, but with bankers and wealthy business men, who are at present its chief backers.

(4) That its purpose is industrial, to break strikes and to interfere with every organized effort on the part of the workers to better their conditions.

(5) That insofar as its purpose touches the lives of rural communities it is as an enemy of the poor farmers, in the interests of landsharks, moneylenders, monopolists and railroad magnates.

To Suppress Exxploited.

(6) That a state police force means a system of permanent system of international law, with complete disregard of constitutionally guaranteed rights, such as free speech, free press, freedom of assembly, etc.

(7) That the scheme is simply a development of the present tendency of American capitalism to build up a powerful centralized governmental machine to protect its monopoly profits from the "encroachments" of those whose labor power produced them.

(8) That all the above is proved not only by the conditions surrounding the agitation for the Dunlap bill in Illinois, but by the actual experiences of military police establishments in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, New York, Colorado, etc., and by the depredations of the nortorious Royal Northwest Mounted Police of Canada.

The continued pretenses of the capitalists that they want to protect the poor farmer are revealed as a miserable hypocrisy. What could three or even the maximum of seven troops of 65 police thugs do to suppress "crime" in the rural sections of Illinois, a state with an area of 55,000 square miles?

Concentrated Suppression.

Nothing. They will be used against the workers and poor farmers, concentrated in special areas (as in Pennsylvania) and shipped into an industrial center whenever a conflict is on between the boss and the workers.

And the people of the state will be obliged to support and maintain this private army of capitalist gunmen. Seven troops at a very conservative figure would involve a first direct cost of from $1,000,000 to $1,200,000 a year. Add to this the cost of equipment—guns, pistols, uniforms, motor cycles, ammunition—and the poor farmers, already taxed to an unendurable degree would suffer another serious blow.

Sign of the Intensified Struggle.

The class struggle intensifies. The state police force is for use in that struggle, on the side of the bosses. But the workers are not idle. They are putting up a militant resistance. The most class conscious section of the workers, under the leadership of the Workers (Communist) Party, is alive to the realization that the power of government is always the power of the ruling class in society (and in the United States that means the capitalist class!): it knows that when the bosses agitate for an extension and centralization of state power they are only forging a new weapon of their own to protect their stores of ill-gotten wealth. The present scandalous campaign for a capitalist-owned state police force in Illinois should serve to convince every worker who has ever been in a struggle, who has ever been on strike, to understand that what the Communists have been exposing is true.

For a United Front.

A united front of all labor elements, together with the poor farmers, will put the fear of proletarian might into the hearts of the puffy legislators in Springfield. It is the only way in which the Dunlap bill can be defeated. The Workers (Communist) Party is lending its full support to the establishment of such a united front. The Chicago and District 8 organizations of the party have already made themselves felt in the fight against injunctions now being waged in this state; they were instrumental in bringing the call to action before hundreds of local unions and fraternal organizations thruout the state. An even mightier effort is needed if the workers are to defeat big business in the attempt of the Dunlap bill to put them under perpetual martial law.

FOREIGN WORKER MENACED BY THE ANTI-RED BILL

Protest Meet Arranged in New York

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 30.—The new deportation bill, introduced by Congressman Holiday and passed by the house of representatives in February, is one of the most vicious bills that have ever been considered in this country. It is worse by far than the alien bill passed after the revolution of 1776.

The workers of this country must awaken to the seriousness of the situation. The government is preparing a new attack on the foreign-born workers, in order particularly to cripple the trade union movement. The most active trade unionists in this country are, in great part, foreign-born workers. They are the workers who today are causing uneasiness to the reactionary trade union officialdom. They are the ones who are not content to accept wage slashes, longer hours and worse conditions. They are the ones who are fighting for amalgamation into industrial unions. They are the ones who are fighting the gangsters in the unions. The foreign-born workers are among the best and most energetic militants of the whole working class of this country. And the government thinks that by Bill No. 11796 it can drive this militancy out of their heads.

Bill Must Go.

The capitalist government of Strikebreaker Coolidge and "Minute-Man" Dawes will succeed in putting this bill thru the senate if the workers of this country do not wake up. The workers of New York City will tell the government on Friday, April 3, at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th St., that this bill must go. The native and foreign-born workers will not be divided on this subject. Ex-Representative Chandler, speaking a few days ago in New York said that the "alien Reds must be told that Russia is their normal abode. American Reds must be told that Leavenworth or Atlanta is a better living place for them than New York City."

Workers of New York! Come by the thousands to Manhattan Lyceum and show the government that you are determined to fight for your rights. Agitate in your shops and trade unions. Get resolutions passed and send them to the Labor Defense Council, 108 E. 14th St., New York, who are arranging this protest meeting.

Back to the Versailles Treaty

In his speech at Bar-le-Duc, former Premier Poincare informed that part of the world's population that was listening Sunday that the powerful section of French imperialism which he represents will tolerate no rearrangement of the German frontiers.

The speech was an open declaration of the intention of the Poincare group to oppose any weakening of Poland as an ally against either Russia or Germany. It was undoubtedly intended as a notice to Great Britain that France has no intention of allowing Germany to enter a security agreement that does not recognize the colonial status of Germany.

Foreign dispatches state that Premier Herriot's new note to the German government will contain an almost verbatim copy of the statements made by Poincare Sunday, i. e., that the eastern frontiers must be guaranteed in the same way as the Rhineland before any further negotiations with Germany can progress.

Months of diplomatic dickering between France and England have brought the two nations no nearer agreement. Both countries add to their armaments and encourage their allies to do likewise.

The Versailles treaty is still the basis of the frontier arrangements. It strangles the masses and keeps the fires of national hatreds burning. It can result only in war.

In the meantime every ruling clique jails and murders Communists who alone expose to the masses of Europe the plots and counter-plots of the rulers.

Renegades from Revolution

A former I. W. W. now in the Seattle Labor Council, in close alliance with the reactionary gang to expel the Communists, has tried to prove thoroly that he can be worse than anybody whose feet never strayed into paths of protest. He declares that "division is better than unity" for the workers as long as capital is united (and he doesn't point out any end to this condition).

He likewise declared that industrial unionism is a bad thing and all strikes, too, should be forbidden.

This is nothing strange coming from a "modern" I. W. W. since the days of Sandgren, Welinder and Payne has given the organization an entirely new face. In fact Payne, in the Seattle paper of which he is the editor (providing it has not died since the last mail), quite frankly sides with the reactionaries in the Seattle Labor Council, attacking the very Communists who, as members of the "labor jury" at Centralia, gave the I. W. W. victims of white terrorism their best basis for appealing for the support of labor.

One might think that some regard for the work of such left wing elements might prompt even stupidity to hold a tongue when the issue was being fought out inside the A. F. of L. But Payne, who, in a united front with the labor fakers, is so devilish particular about "outside" interference, boldly stalks into the fray, stupidity in this case, being allied with mendacity and a carelessness of consequences to the interests of I. W. W. prisoners.

We repeat that we can expect anything from the I. W. W. officials. And it is not strange that the most disgracefully anti-labor speech in the Seattle Labor Council should come from an ex-wobbly at the same time that the official I. W. W. east and west covertly or openly sides with the blackest reactionary labor fakers against the left wing and the Communists.

No Impartiality

Even in such a disaster as that in southern Illinois where a tornado destroyed hundreds of homes and left thousands destitute, the class struggle makes its appearance in the relief of the victims.

Our story yesterday of the conditions in the storm-stricken district, the combination of bankers and businessmen for the control of relief, the rise in prices of all necessities of life, the clash between the miners and the red cross, all show the class interests that will not down.

There is no catastrophe too horrible to be turned to the purposes of profit. War, the greatest of all curses, is at the same time a harbinger of prosperity for the capitalist class.

In the relief of the distressed in great disasters there is no more impartiality so far as capitalist agencies are concerned than in any other avenue of its activity. It looks after the profits and the profitmakers, its soldiery are on the ground at once to aid in quelling an outbreak of resentment.

The International Workers' Aid looks after the workers and it makes no pretense of being impartial. Organized principally to help in strikes and other struggles of the workers, it knows that capitalism looks after its own.

The Milwaukee Leader and the Marxians

The Milwaukee Leader does little but complain these days. Its latest whimper is caused by the Christian Science Monitor, which stated in a recent article that the Russian Communists "put the Marxian theories into practice."

The Leader says:

"How is it that the Christian Science Monitor tacitly admits that the claims of the Communists to the title of Marxians and completely ignores the leading Marxians who have always repudiated the Communists?"

The Leader answers its own question in another part of the editorial from which we quote when it says: "The Communist revolution in Russia was repudiated by the leading Russian Marxians."

Marxism is a revolutionary method. When it utilizes the breakdown of capitalism for successful revolution those who repudiate the revolution naturally repudiate Marxism.

Bourgeois students of Marx can understand this, but logic has never been a strong point of the Milwaukee Leader.

The enemies of the Russian revolution and of the working class are not Marxians no matter how many quotations of Marx they may have memorized. The test of a Marxist is understanding of, devotion to and participation in all the struggles of the working class.

When the social-democracy betrayed the workers it proved that it was not Marxian, but anti-Marxian and therefore counter-revolutionary.

Coolidge Wars on Printers

The Typographical Union is feeling the heavy hand of the Coolidge administration. Members of the union employed by the government to the number of 167 have been fired outright and it is generally believed that the little tyrant Carter in charge of the department, is going to try and destroy the union.

Treachery on the part of the officialdom of the Pressmen's and Bookbinders' Unions has aided the Coolidge-Morgan government while the heads of the Typographical Union also show much reluctance in aiding the members of their own union.

A revolt is brewing in the government printing plant as a result of the inauguration of the spy and blacklist system.

Civil service rules are supposed to protect government employes, but capitalist government always manages to disregard even its own rules when war on the workers appears to be advisable. The printers are learning that there are no rules in the class struggle that capitalism respects except that of power.

A general strike of all government printers would probably result in the "canning" of Carter and the abolition of some of the more flagrant outrages in that department. The campaign of the printers against the government should have a general strike as its objective.

"Will Not Harass Business"

Referring to Attorney General Sargent, a Washington correspondent of the capitalist press says:

"Attorney General Sargent has exhibited a personality different from that of his predecessors. From what he has said so far the impression has been given that he will be a firm prosecutor and law enforcer, but that he will not harass business unnecessarily."

We wish someone would point out how this differentiates the new attorney general from any of his predecessors. All of them have been "firm prosecutors and law enforcers" when the workers and their organizations were involved, but none of them have harassed business unnecessarily or otherwise.

It is not the function of an attorney-general to harass anyone but workers. Since 1917 this fact has been so patent that even the always hopeful liberal middle class has become somewhat pessimistic.

A few big strikes and the record of Daugherty will be eclipsed by the new "firm prosecutor and law enforcer."

The Lanzutsky Demonstrations

The demonstrations against the murder of Stanislav Lanzutsky, Polish Communist worker and leader, have been successful. In Washington, the capital of the nation, in Chicago, New York, Detroit, Seattle and a dozen other cities the Polish embassy and the consulates were picketed by workers bearing banners with appropriate inscriptions.

The police were on the job as usual. There were arrests—also as usual. The capitalist press gave much space to pictures and news of the demonstrations apparently with the idea that they were in some way hurting the Communists.

Hundreds of thousands of people in the United States know for the first time of the murderous acts of the Polish capitalist government, of the heroic fight of Lanzutsky, the reason for his persecution and of the role of the Communist parties in Poland and America as the most advanced section of the working class.

The Japanese Sailors' Union, resenting the inference that a sky pilot is any better than a sea captain, have decided that an American movie which pictures a priest converting a captain to ways of righteousness, is bad. And they refuse to sail any ship from any harbor which has a priest as a passenger. God's disciples have fallen upon evil days when rude sailors refuse be to humbled before the gowned men with crooked sticks.

FREE LANZUTSKY, NEW YORK CITY TOILERS DEMAND

Resolutions Denounce White Terror

NEW YORK, March 30.—The white terror of the capitalist countries of the world was denounced in a resolution unanimously passed at the large mass meeting of workers held here at the Central Opera House.

Another resolution was unanimously passed condemning the Polish white guard government for its persecution of the Communist deputy, Stanislav Lanzutsky, who has been sentenced to be hanged for urging the workers of Poland to organize and prepare to overthrow their oppressors.

"Comrade Lanzutsky, Communist deputy in the Polish parliament, faces death at the hands of the Polish capitalist class and nobility for daring to stand before the Polish parliament and expose the shameless brutality of the capitalists of Poland," says the resolution, which was passed following the speech of William Weinstone.

Hands Off Lanzutsky.

"This meeting of workers assembled at the Central Opera House emphatically protests against this persecution and execution of the Polish workers, and categorically demands 'Hands off Comrade Lanzutsky.' This meeting declares it will rally the workers of the entire country and will not rest till, with the aid of the international working class, Lanzutsky and the four thousand proletarian revolutionaries in the Polish prisons have been freed and Polish reaction has become a thing of the past."

"In their vile actions they were aided by the treacherous socialist party of Poland, which denounces the revolutionists, and hands them over to the mercy of the capitalist executioners."

Denounce U. S. White Terror.

The resolution denouncing the white terror practiced by the government of the United States, as well as by European imperialists, which was also unanimously passed, follows:

The international capitalist class has thrown off its mask and is ruling thruout the world by force. In every country of Europe and Asia, the capitalist governments employ the most brutal means to suppress and crush the workers and peasants. More than 200,000 revolutionary workers and peasants are languishing in the capitalist dungeons for no other reason that they have fought for the working class against the capitalist class.

In these capitalist dungeons they are tortured and murdered, the capitalists not shrinking from the most violent methods in order to break the spirit of these fighters. But the capitalist class makes a serious mistake; these revolutionaries, to a great extent Communists and Young Communists, have pledged themselves to fight to the finish against capitalism and will not cease till capitalist rule is overthrown and the power of the workers and peasants is established thruout the world.

Support Workers' Aid.

This meeting of workers of New York City assembled at Central Opera House, protests against the brutality practiced against our courageous comrades. This meeting also calls attention to the fact that there are workers and peasants in prisons in the United States, in the American possessions and spheres of influence—Haiti, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, the Philippines, Hawaii. This meeting declares that even in the United States so-called capitalist "democracy" rests upon naked force, which the United States government is using with every greater frequency and violence against the working class.

This meeting declares that capitalist violence is part of the capitalist system and will not cease until capitalist power is destroyed and the power of the workers and peasants is established.

This meeting further pledges itself energetically to support the International Workers' Aid, which is the only organization in the world aiding the revolutionary workers in the capitalist prisons.

Long live working class solidarity.

Long live the fighters of the working class.

Soviets Guard Rights of Chinese

which was concluded and put into effect in 1905, could not in any measure effect any rights or interests in China whatsoever.

China Bowed to Czar.

"Your protest would have been quite timely and have had perfectly reasonable grounds twenty years ago, when the treaty of Portsmouth was being signed and when the czarist government felt itself in China like a master in his own home and, without the knowledge of the Chinese government, ceded to another country the territories and rights which the czarist government had itself seized in Manchuria. However, the Chinese government not only failed to offer any opposition to the czarist government, but by two acts which were signed between China and Japan in Peking on the 22nd of December, 1905, the Chinese government itself recognized all the rights of Japan that had been ceded to the latter by the czarist government on the strength of the treaty of Portsmouth.

"Consequently, as early as on and from Dec. 22, 1905, the treaty of Portsmouth lost all its significance as an international act in any way affecting the interests of China. Moreover, in 1915, on the strength of an agreement concluded between China and Japan directly and without any reference to the treaty of Portsmouth, the rights which, twenty years ago, have been ceded to Japan by the czarist government, were established on a new formal basis. I may be permitted here to invite your kind attention to the fact that those rights which have now apparently caused the protest on your part were fixed in 1915 for terms many times longer than those which were granted by China to the former Russian imperial government.

"2. However, notwithstanding the fact that the recognition in 1925 of the formal validity of the treaty of Portsmouth could not in any way prejudice the interests of China, the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics nevertheless deemed it necessary, in a special declaration signed on the same day as the convention of January 20 of this year, to exonerate itself of all political responsibility for the contents of the treaty of Portsmouth.

Soviets Defend Chinese Workers.

"I might indeed welcome your protest if I could regard it as an attempt to defend the rights and interests of China, but, as may be seen from the above-mentioned considerations, the protest contained in your note of Feb. 11, 1925, cannot serve any useful purpose and is unwarranted both formally and in substance. It, therefore, only remainst to me to express my sincere regret at the said protest, addressed as it is to the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics—the only power today that has of its own accord rejected the unequal treaties imposed upon China by the czarist government and concluded with the Republic of China a treaty based on the principle of equality and justice, because—undoubtedly against the wish of the government of the Republic of China—your note of the 11th inst. can cause the Chinese people to err by suggesting to them an altogether unwarranted idea that the policy of the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics can violate the sovereign rights of the Chinese people.

People's Interests Protected.

"I wish to assure you that neither in its part referring to the treaty of Portsmouth, nor, for that matter, in any other part of the Soviet-Japanase convention of Jan. 20, or the documents opposed thereto, can there be found any stipulation violating the interests of China, and that the said agreement does not even embody any question in whatever way affecting the sovereign rights and interests of the Chinese people.—(Signed) L. M. Karakhan."

CZARISTS' ATTEMPT TO OUST RED FROM THE RUSSIAN SCHOOL FAILS

A drive of counter-revolutionaries within the Federation of Russian Children's schools of Chicago and vicinity, to displace the superintendent of the schools, Comrade J. Ebergard, who is a Communist, ended in defeat when the executive committee voted to sustain Comrade Ebergard by a vote of 13 to 9.

The czarist Russians have been attacking the superintendent and the Communist members of the schools for the past year, since they have been badly defeated at the convention of the schools. They made many attempts to get control over the schools but failed. In one instance they attempted to appoint a czarist general as instructor of Russian history. The superintendent blocked this scheme and his action was sustained by the executive committee. This was too much for the counter revolutionists and they prefered charges against the superintendent.

After making careful and deliberate preparations to oust him about a month ago at the meeting of the executive committee, they failed as the vote ended in a tie. Action was postponed for another month and in the meantime the counter-revolutionists opened up an attack against the superintendent and the Communists in general in the local Russian sheet. The final meeting was held this Sunday and they suffered another defeat all along the line, being beaten on all important questions. All honest non-partisan workers who are interested in the welfare of the schools voted with the Communists.

Hunting for That Job.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I am an ex-soldier. I was fighting to protect J. P. Morgan's money, now I am fighting for a job..

I have been in Chicago about nine months, out of the nine months I have been working only three months.

Early in the morning I start on my daily routine, going to factories in hope of getting a job, but there is only one chance in a hundred to get a job, because there are several hundred people lined up. It shows there are many thousands of people here in Chicago that are in the same position as I am.

Finally I went to one of the employment sharks on Madison street. They had jobs for a few men as truckers in the Pennsylvania freight house. I paid him four dollars for the job. When I went there, about sixty men were there, the foreman came out and asked who had tickets from the employment office. A few of the men that had a ticket got a job. I was one of the unfortunate ones that did not get a job.

When there are so many men out of work they could get plenty men without the employment sharks, but only those that have paid for a job have a little show to land one, while the others have no chance whatever.

When the war was on, our Teapot Dome government was telling us we would receive jobs after we came back to the U. S. A. When we came back, we were asked what kind of job we wanted I filled out an application to work in a machine shop. I am still waiting for that job.—J. A. F.

WORKERS FACE DEPORTATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, March 30.—The foreign-born workers of this country may be deported without further ado if the house bill No. 11796 is passed by the senate of the United States. This bill has been passed by the house of representatives and threatens the whole working class in a manner unknown in this country.

The purpose of this bill is clear. The United Mine Workers, the needle workers and the textile workers are primarily foreign-born workers. The unskilled workers on the railroads are foreign-born; many of the building workers are aliens. When depression comes, followed by wage slashes and longer hours for those workers who still can find jobs, the government will have a convenient weapon against the foreign-born workers, viz., DEPORTATION.

Workers of New York City! Come in your thousands to the mass protest demonstration at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th St., on Friday, April 3, at 8 p. m. The Labor Defense Council has arranged this meeting and prominent speakers will make addresses. Workers of New York. Wake up your fellow workers in the shops. Rouse the unions. This new attack affects every worker in the country. Be on your guard—and line up in time. Be at Manhattan Lyceum on Friday, April 3.

'WHAT? AN ID IN A COLLEG AFTER IT ME

So Say the Legisla of Ohio

By A. WAGENKNECHT.

CLEVELAND, March 30.—The Ohio legislature is having its eleventh hour session. It has been a good boy, it has behaved itself wonderfully these weeks that its session lasted, says the Ohio manufacturers' association.

The "yellow dog" contract has not been voided. Union smashing will continue along the lines laid down by those who rule Ohio. Throughout the state workers seeking employment will be compelled to sign agreements pledging themselves not to join a labor union if they desire to connect with a feed bag a couple of times a day. The Ohio open shoppers are the state. They are naming the tune and paying the Columbus fiddlers.

Ah, Ha! an Idea Loose!

So when these coal, steel, rubber, pottery barons became afflicted with a last minute inspiration, and decided they'd better have a little more "my country 'tis of thee," they rushed a long resolution before the legislature, a resolution which has for its aim hot-footing it after a couple of "pinks" they discovered in several Ohio universities.

The resolution, if passed, will stop the pay of any professor who has been publicly active in any socialist, atheist, Communist or other organization of revolutionists. The resolution refers to the I. W. W. and those liberals helping it off and on; hits at the Civil Liberties Union and its defense of conscientious objectors; assassinates the Committee of 48 for daring to sit next to Communists at the St. Paul convention; exposes those who helped organize the monster "Recognize Soviet Russia" meeting held at Madison Square Garden in 1919; lands the labor unions that are expelling Communists; and grows white of face at the mention of La Follette!

Pink Professors Punished.

To a Communist, all this is hash, of course. But where there is a little pink smoke there may also be a bit of red fire. And the cry that's heard above and over all this pink trash is that Bolshevism is being taught in the Ohio universities. Undoubtedly there are a few progressive professors who demand the recognition of Soviet Russia, who desire that the "workers' experiment" in Soviet Russia be allowed to run its course without interference. These professors are going to be smoked out and, if the resolution passes, they will promptly be told that their wages have been stopped.

The Ohio manufacturers' association has no use for the "pinks" as yet. The day will come when they will put them to work to try to save the day for capitalism, much the same as was done in Germany, and same as those of redder hue in the Ohio universities.

The Literary Digest,
Gentlemen:

In reply to your letter of Feb. 14, 1925, in which you request me to renew my subscription, I say NO.

I will not subscribe to your magazine because the facts you publish are misleading to workers. I am a son of the working class. My father is a worker. I do not wish to waste my time reading your paper. Why? Because—

What does it matter to me if Coolidge or LaFollette is elected? Did the workers elect Coolidge? No. It was Wall Street. He is their man Friday. He will do the bidding of the millionaires and multi-millionaires on Wall Street, alright. Wasn't Coolidge a strikebreaker in the Boston police strike? He earned his job.

How would the tariff help the workers? It is only an uncivilized, medieval act to make people pay to get across the bridge owned by one man.

What is prohibition? There is as much boozing and more now. The poor are at the mercy o crooks who sell them poison an the rich have their private boo leggers and saloons in their ow homes. I am not inventing thi The papers show it.

OLISH PO GUARD MURDERS WO COMM PRISONERS ON OAD TO EXCHANGE AT BORDER

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WARSAW, Poland, March 31.—The whole working class population of Poland is boiling with anger at the murder of two Communists by their Polish guard convoy who was taking them to the border of Soviet Russia as prisoners to be exchanged for Polish spies held in Soviet Russia.

Police Sergeant Muraszko, the murderer, was among the police convoy on the train bearing the party, including Comrades Baginski and Wierzorkiewicz, as prisoners, to the border. Suddenly the police officer drew his revolver and shot the two Communists who were helpless, being shackled, from protecting themselves.

"A Patriotic Murder."

The police officer then shouted, "I have acted as a patriot! I have killed two traitors!"

The Polish workers, however, are demanding immediate execution of the murderer and grave fears are felt that unless the Polish white guard government quickly acts the Polish spies held prisoner in Russia may be executed. Especially, are the workers aroused at the government notification sent to Soviet Russia today, that the exchange of prisoners has "been postponed."

Sentenced Over Explosion in Fort.

This exchange was arranged some time ago, but only became known a few days ago, upon the acquital of Stanislav Lanzutsky following world-wide proletarian demonstrations of protest.

Comrades Baginski and Wierzorkiewicz were sentenced to death last year, upon an allegation that they were concerned in the dstruction of teh Warsaw fort, which an unexplained explosion destroyed in October, 1923. The frame up against the Communists was so apparent, even for white guard Poland that has 4,000 workers in prison, that President Wojciechowski commuted the two death sentences to life imprisonment.

Soviet Russia May Retaliate.

Their murder under convoy is expected to cause tremendous excitement in Soviet Russia. Already it is learned that one of the Polish spies to be returned from Russia under the exchange has been stopped en-route to the Polish frontier. He is M. Laszkiewicz, an attache to the Polish embassy at Tiflis, condemned to death for actively assisting armed counter-revolution against Soviet Russia.

The accusation is openly made that the government instructed the police sergeant to murder the prisoners on the train. Indignation is at white heat.

MINERS' STRIKE IN WEST VIRGINIA OPENS TOMORROW

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, March 31.— Meetings are being held by the officers of the United Mine Workers thruout the northern part of West Va. as part of the campaign launched today to unionize those coal fields.

A strike order has been issued by Van Bittner, international organizer for West Virginia, which takes effect today. Owing to the almost complete liquidation of the union in West Virginia the officials were obliged to resort to advertisements in the capitalist press announcing the strike.

Two Main Objects.

The union officials declare that the two main objects in calling the strike are, to organize the non-union mines in West Virginia so that the operators in that field will not be able to flood the market with "cheaper coal," thus offering "unfair" competition to the Pittsburg coal barons, and secondly, to rob the coal operators of an argument for a reduction in wages.

Officials of the miners' union predict that besides the 16,000 miners already on strike in West Virginia, some for several years, 6,000 more will come out today.

Preparation Demanded.

While the mine leaders dismiss the conferences now being held by the operators in Cleveland, members of the rank and file of the United Mine Workers of America express the opinion that those secret conferences which have been taking place for two weeks, demand that the miners' union should prepare for the most gigantic conflict in its history.

Tho the miners' officials admit that the operators of the Ohio and western Pennsylvania fields are planning on a complete shut down on April 1, the former claim that only the large operators contemplate such a move and that the small fellows will continue to do business as usual.

THIRTY-THREE MINERS TRAPPED IN MINE BY WATER AND GASES

NEWCASTLE, England, March 31—Thirty-three men were trapped in the Montague colliery at Scobwood, near Newcastle, this afternoon by a sudden inrush of water. Two hundred men were underground when the flood started, but all except thirty-three made their escape.

Eight of the entombed men were said to be in a perilous position tonight on a ridge near the roof of the mine. Rescue work was being greatly hampered by foul gases.

Scores of relatives are gathered about the pit head, including many women, who have stood in the cold rain for fourteen hours or more in the hope of rescue.

The rescue teams were withdrawn at midnight. Nothing further is possible until greater pumping power is provided to cope with the flood, which is increasing rapidly.

Men who attempted to enter the pit mouth today said the waters were rising rapidly and that the deadly black damp was already present, greatly lessening the chances that any of the imprisoned men would escape alive.

SOCIAL STANDING ADMITS STUDENTS TO UNIVERSITY

Students and Faculty Revolt at Practice

By A. W. HARVITT.

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 31.— Students at Toledo university are in revolt in protest against the goose step policy of President Stowe.

A storm that has been brewing for several months in Toledo university broke a few days ago, when the student body demanded the dismissal of the president.

The demands of the students were so urgent that the board of directors were forced to ask for President Stowe's resignation.

The board has now attempted to retaliate by dismissing three professors, Bradley, Nurse, and Jones.

These three members of the faculty are charged with being rebels and anarchists, and of being responsible for the agitation that brought about the resignation of President Stowe.

The rest of the faculty have threatened to quit in a body if the three professors are discharged.

Some of the faculty members who have been interviewed, say that President Stowe is not a man big enough for the job he holds, and that he tried to make up for what he lacked in ability by his arbitrary and petty policy in dealing with the faculty.

The faculty are unanimous in protesting against the action by the board in dismissing the three professors and threaten to quit in a body if it is carried out.

The board of directors accuse several other professors of being rebels and anarchists.

The students have circulated a petion protesting against the dismissal of the professors on which they have 540 names. They have also called a mass meeting of protest.

The students say that President Stowe was instituting a policy of selecting students who applied for admission to the university, according to their social and economic position in society, giving the preference to applicants who had a better social standing.

The students and professors are against this new policy and say they will oppose it.

Chicago Unions Are Against Bill Giving Cars to the Bankers

Local unions which have responded to the referendum on the report of the Chicago Federation of Labor's traction committee, against the Dever traction steal, have unanimously indorsed the committee's report and condemned the Dever ordinance.

Forty local unions have sent in votes on the ordinance, and every one has unanimously voted against granting the bankers a perpetual franchise under the protection of Dever.

Among the unions opposing the ordinance are the Die and Toolmakers' Lodge No. 113 of the International Association of Machinists with a membership of 750, and the four local unions of the leather workers.

LABOR WRECKER PAUL SMITH IS IN GREAT FALLS

Progressives Defy Meal Ticket Artist

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GREAT FALLS, Montana, March 31.—Paul Smith, the meal ticket disorganizer who succeeded in partially wrecking the trade union movement in Minneapolis and St. Paul, arrived here a few weeks ago to perform the same kind of destructive feat in Great Falls. But about all he has accomplished so far is winning the praise of the Anaconda press and exposing himself to the workers as a species of dankey that can bray loudly and use his hind legs, but has a natural disinclation to reform any kind of work.

Smith is mad because the Federal Labor Union, refuse to go into his vest pocket and come forth only when the pie card autocrat gives the word. The workers from the great open spaces have taken Smith's measure. The local paper, Great Falls Town Topics, has laid down a barrage against Smith, that keeps the slimy faker, running for help to the Anaconda Mining Company's press.

Smith's record in Minneapolis, was exposed in a recent isue of Town Topics by C. A. Hathaway, Workers Party district organizer in Minnesota. The principal accomplishment of Paul Smith in Minneapolis was to spend $20,000 of the A. F. of L.'s money and lift the charter of the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly.

When Smith arrived in Great Falls, he made his presence known to the capitalist papers and issued a statement, charging the labor troubles in this city to the domination by radicals of the local labor movement.

Smith made his first public appearance at the meeting of the Federal Labor Union where he made a short speech. He requested that a special meeting of the union be called. Smith talked for an hour and a half, making a bitter attack on the Communists. When he got thru, his hearers felt as if they had been thru a padded cell house. But the worst was yet to come.

The chairman called on Steve Ely to say what he had to say. Steve is as ready to talk as a street fakir and selected the I. W. W. for attack. By the time Fly got thru, the audience had forgotten what Smith said and the two tirades scunded to them like the rantings of addle-brained medicine men.

Smith informed the officers of the Federal Union that they had no business in the organization. This union has cooks and waiters, clerks and waiters in it, somewhat like the Irish Transport and General Workers Union. Holding aloft the banner of craft unionism, Smith delivered his ultimatum decreeing that the workers must be separated or else do without a charter. Why should cooks, waiters, clerks, teamsters and creamery workers be united when they could be worse off separated? No reason in the world declared Smith. Ditto, said the Great Falls capitalist rags.

According to Smith nobody really belongs to the Federal Union and the organization should be immediately scrambled. This prospect is not to the liking of the progresives in Great Falls, so Smith finds his teeth biting a granite rock.

Smith's arrival in Great Falls coincides with the exposure of the Black Magic Oil company which promised to produce oil where there was no oil. Perhaps its promoters read in the bible that the prophets occassionally made water gush from a rock with a blow from a rod. The oil magicians however, legally entitled themselves to receive $250,000 from the public for stock. They are still at large and selling stock at a dollar and a half a throw. The supply of suckers is decidedly on the wane.

The point in this story is that H. E. Gallagher, secretary of the Smeltermen's Union is an officer in the Black Magic Oil company and this is the gentleman into whose oily hands Smith intends to place the labor movement in Great Falls. The board of directors of this fake oil company is composed of labor fakers and cronies of Gallagher.

The progressives are determined to give Smith and his reactionary cohorts the fight of their lives.

WAGE SCALE IN JERSEY TOWN IS WORST KNOWN

Workers Get as Low as 12 Cents Per Hour

By GEORGE BENDER.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J.—The Canister company of this city is owned by A. Garpeen, well known New York banker. He is also president of the Phillipsburg First National Bank

This company employs about 75 workers, mostly middle-aged women and men, with some young workers, and has a wage scale the worst every known. Women and girls get only from 12 to 25 cents and hour, a 50-hour weekly pay averaging from $9 to $15.

Low Wages and Speed Up.

For men they pay from 36 to 45 cents an hour, their pay ranging from $18 to $22.50 a week.

As for speed-up systems, the company pays a "premium" adjusted according to the above scales, so that when payday comes the women receive, counting their piece rate premium, from $15 to $19 a week, the men from $18 to $23.

Then the bosses cut down the force, laying off workers for several days or a week to walk the streets looking for work, while the ones who are left at work have to do the added work for the same or less money. At the same time, the bosses set the production rate so high on piece work that the workers are not able to make the required number.

Yet the bosses claim the Canister workers have opportunity to make money by their "premiums." The other day the work's manager and bosses' lackey presented the workers in the press room with a warning notice on the bulletin board. It said that the press machine operators were not working fast enough for him. The notice threatened to penalize any worker found "soldiering or loafing" in the shops.

Victims of Injuries.

This flunkey doesn't consider the dangerous handling of tins by workers whose hands are always cut and bandaged as it is now. With more speed there will be more injuries.

Canister workers! Organize a shop committee at once! Unite yourselves completely thruout the shop, electing a committee which must be your best fighters to take up your complaints with the boss. By standing solid and true behind your shop committee you can resist wage cuts, get higher wages and better conditions, and stop the tyranny of the snobby manager who wants to speed everybody to death. And then you must subscribe to the DAILY WORKER, the only daily paper which assists the workers in all phases of their struggles.

COMMUNISTS TO RUN THAELMANN IN 2ND GERMAN ELECTIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, Germany, March 31.—The Communist Party of Germany will run Ernst Thaelmann, who polled two million votes in the first German election, as a candidate in the final election to be held April 26. Since no candidate secured a majority in the first election, a run-off contest was necessary, according to the German law. Comrade Thaelmann is expected to poll an even larger vote in the coming election.

Otto Braun, socialist candidate, will not run again, it is announced, as the social-democrats will form a coalition with the "republican" bourgeois parties. Former chancellor Marx is being talked of as the candidate of the left block, which will oppose the fascist-monarchist coalition and the Communists.

The former crown prince Frederick William who voted for the monarchist Jarres, declared that he hopes to have his son take power and re-establish the monarchy.

HARRY JENSEN BILLY SUNDAY OF CARPENTERS

Doing His Stuff Like an Evangelist

Now that the five members of Chicago Local 181 of the Carpenters' Union who were expelled thru the trickery of Harry Jensen, have been reinstated by the local, Harry is running around to the other locals claiming credit for the belated act of justice.

Jensen is telling the members that he went down to Indianapolis in order to use his influence with "czar" Hutcheson to get the "expelled" members back into the union. The carpenters know that Harry was talking nonsense. It was the splendid fight made by Local 181 and the support of the other locals that forced Jensen and Hutcheson to eat crow.

Trying to Square Himself.

Jensen paid a visit to Local 1786 last week. When the votes on the recent wage scale for the inside locals were counted and the report announced at the district council, the delegates from Local 1786 learned to their amazement that their local had voted for the low wage scale that was put over by Jensen. The fact was that the local had voted against the agreement. Jensen denied having any hand in the mess, so he went before the local to square himself.

The secretary of the local did not know how it happened but acknowledged that he did not have his glasses on when he sent in the vote tabulation to Harry Jensen. This was a pretty thin alibi. In fact, the carpenters could see thru it, at least better than the secretary could see without his glasses. But better still the carpenters are seeing thru Harry Jensen.

Another Billy Sunday.

Those who saw Jensen perform said that he had Billy Sunday backed off the boards. When Billy is busy inducing sinners to hit the sawdust trail he pulls off a madman stunt, tearing off a perfectly good collar, drinking a big jug of water, standing on chairs and doing hand springs. All this to show that he is possessed of the spirit of Jesus.

Jensen almost destroyed ten dollars' worth of furniture while explaining himself to the carpenters. But for his lack of hair, he would have done better than Billy. When denouncing the Communists he is in the habit of grabbing for his foliage only to run into a more or less bald head. Some people say Harry lost his hair because the roots got worn away rubbing against his brains. Others believe that on the contrary, the roots of his hair got cold feet looking into a vacuum, which means an empty space.

Alsace-Lorraine Question Is Still Up for Discussion

(Special to the Daily Worker.)

PARIS, March 31.—Alsace-Lorraine is a French department and as such should adopt the French legal code at the end of the special regime there, Premier Herriot declared today, in a long address to the chamber of deputies.

Alsace-Lorraine was taken from France by Germany after the Franco-Prussian war. France secured it again in the world war and it is now governed by a high commission. It is rich in iron, coal and other products.

To Tone Down Peru Protest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31.—The note of protest sent by Peru to President Coolidge, protesting against his award in the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru, and against the appointment of the military dictator, General Pershing, to head the plebiscite to settle the controversy, will be delivered to Coolidge by the Peruvian embassy here soon, it was announced.

The original note will be toned down before presentation, it is rumored.

GERMAN RAIL WORKERS WAR ON DAWES PLAN

Amalgamate Unions to Unite All Action

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, March 31.—Sporadic "outlaw" strikes on many divisions of the former national railway lines now under direct private management of the Dawes' plan, continue to disturb both the management and the social democratic leaders who fear a general strike as the devil fears holy water.

Amalgamation in June.

However, under pressure from the Communist left wing, a conference of representatives of the two principal railway unions, the German Railroaders' Union and the National Union of German Railroad Officials (clerical workers) met two weeks ago at Frankfort and agreed to a united front in any action until the two unions are formally amalgamated at a conference to be held in June.

300,000 Fired; Others Speeded.

Under the beauties of the Dawes' plan, 300,000 railway workers have been discharged and those remaining have been compelled to do the work on longer hours and speed up systems imposed by the Dawes' plan control. They work 54 hours a week.

Moreover, their wages have been cut down until the 750,000 railroaders are getting lower pay than the already starvation wage average of German workers as a whole.

Profits All For Reparations.

The men are aroused over the attitude of the arbitration commission which refuses to grant them any concession whatever, meanwhile the railway lines under the Dawes' plan are doing well financially and can afford to grant increases, but [illegible] wishes to devote all profits to paying reparations with the exception of [illegible] cent increases given to the high officials.

Wages now are below the pre-war level, while freight and passenger rates are above it.

Demand 8-Hour Day.

The men demand the effective eight-hour day as provided in the German constitution and abolished by the Dawes plan; abolition of the contract system of speeding up workers beyond their endurance; the abolition of the bonus system.

The speed up system is responsible for sickness and many injuries, as shown in the Berlin district sickness was nine per cent the first part of January. And the management itself admits that the number of employes injured from April to September, 1924, was 626, against 513 the year before.

Six Hundred Mill Workers Lose Jobs in Lawrence Flood

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., March 31.—Rivers and Brooks of northern New England were far above their banks today, the third day of flood conditions. The floods have one life.

Six hundred textile operators were thrown out of work at Lawrence when high waters of the Merrimac river flooded the mill cellars.

Several main highways in western Massachusetts and along Massachusetts-New Hampshire border line were under water.

DETMOND, Germany, March 31.—Seventy soldiers were drowned, according to latest reports, when a pontoon bridge spanning the upper Weser river collapsed today during maneuvers of reichswehr troops. Hundreds of soldiers were on the bridge at the time.

ANTI-INJUNCTION BILL SAVED FROM FAILURE BY QUICK FLOOR WORK

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 31—By quick action on a sudden "hunch" Representative Roger Soderstrom, of Streator, sponsor of the "anti-injunction bill," saved the measure from defeat today when a vote of the house failed to pass it. The vote showed 74 ayes and nays, but lacked three votes having a constitutional majority.

Taking the floor before the vote was announced, Soderstrom saved the situation by moving that further consideration be postponed. It was explained that more than enuf favorable votes to insure the bill's victory were absent and that by his action, Soderstrom had held the fort until he could marshall his full force for later consideration.

OSCOW, March 16, (By Mail.)— e second session of the organizing ference met on March 16, and was sided over by Comrade Winterson ermany).

Comrade Sauvage (France) reported on the progress of shop nuclei in Communist Party of France. The organization on the basis of shop clei has made considerable pro- ess in the industrial districts, and in ris it has been completely carried ru. Even before the fifth world ngress there existed here and there op nuclei, but could not function tisfactorily owing to the defective eological preparation. The organ- ing of nuclei has only developed ter the eliminaton of the right wing lements. This reorganization was ade in conjunction with successful ropaganda meetings.

Comrade Tores (Northern France) eported that in his district party ork was greatly facilitated than the reorganization on the basis of shop uclei. The street nuclei have not roved a success, therefore they were issolved and the work given up. On he other hand, the inclusion of outside comrades into the nuclei has proved a successful experiment.

Comrade Geschke (Germany) reported on this work of reorganization in Germany and particularly in Berlin and Brandenburg. The reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei meets in Germany with greater difficulties than in other countries. The main difficulty is that the German workers are rooted in social democratic organizing methods. Experience teaches us that it is no good to precipitate matters. The reorganization must be carried thru without loss of members. The work of the Communist fractions in the outside party organizations progresses satisfactorily. The shop nuclei journals are written and edited by the workers themselves.

Comrade Bertz (Saxony) supported Geschke's report by examples from Saxony.

Comrade Westphal (Hamburg) shows that reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei in his district is difficult mainly because the shops could promptly be mobilized for any action even before the reorganization. They succeeded however to overcome the difficulties and the work of reorganization goes on well.

It is just for this reason that we welcome your fight not only because it is the first important sign of the ascendency of the Italian labor movement after unparalleled repression of the last years, but as the first attempt to extend the area of the struggle beyond local bounderies.

"We welcome your powerful movement as the beginning of larger contests against the miserable regime which oppressed the Italian proletariat.

New York Y. W. L. Will Greet Spring With Costume Dance

NEW YORK CITY.—With the rebirth of the new season, spring fever is inevitable to all the young folks.

Branch 1 of the Young Workers League has forseen this unavoidable and incurable "disease," for there is no anti-toxin against spring fever yet. Branch 1 has therefore arranged a novel spring fever costume dance for Saturday April 4, 1925 at 1347 Boston Rd., Bronx, N. Y.

All the young have promised to be at this affair. The wings on the half-dollar will greatly aid you in flying to the promises-to-be the most popular place that evening.

A place is reserved for you and your pal. So, come and find your place. The environment will be most appropriate. Expecting you,

Workers Party Nucleus Organized in Gary, Indiana, Steel Mills

Two nuclei functioning for two months in Gary, Indiana, have just made their applications for charters to the national office of the Workers Party. One of the nuclei organized is in the Gary steel mills.

Reports of their activities will soon be published. They are going ahead with their work in good order.

Soviet Villages Get Radios

LENINGRAD, March 31.—For the first time Russian villages are being equipped with radios by means of which the peasants are kept in touch with the most recent agricultural news.

COMMITTEE FINDS MOUNDSVILLE PEN STRIKE WAS JUST

But Convicts Have Been Severely Punished

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 30—(FP)—An investigating committee of the West Virginia legislature has reported that the recent strike of convicts at Moundsville penitentiary against illegal changes of tasks in the contract labor shops was "morally justified"—altho many of the convicts have meanwhile been punished for this protest. The committee also declares that the contracts secured by Isado Gordon, the Bardsall and the Kleeson companies were illegal. Gordon is one of the heads of the prison contract labor trust, of which the two companies are known as subsidiaries. They manufacture shirts at Moundsville.

As a result of its study of the situation, the legislative committee finds that the contract labor system itself was responsible for this prison strike and it recommends that the system be abolished. It urges that the state employ its convicts on state work, such as road-making and the production of goods used by the state institutions.

Record Slight Earthquake.

RENO, Nevada, March 31.—Slight earthquakes were found today to have been recorded on the university of Nevada seismograph here. The shocks which were of short duration, registered at 9:51 and 10.09 o'clock last night. The first movement was along a north and south line, while the second was east and west. Both shocks were estimated to be within a fifty mile radius.

Sow Oats in Illinois.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., March 31.—Spring sowing of oats, which began spasmodically in various portions of central Illinois last week, was in full blast on nearly every farm today. Farmers said it was the earliest oats had been sown for several years. Ideal ground conditions have prevailed for several days.

Probe Freight Rate Boost.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The interstate commerce commission today ordered an investigation of the proposal of several railroads to increase the freight rates on canned fruits and vegetables, condensed and evaporated milk, in carloads, from points in Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin to eastern New England and Canadian destinations.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

of John L. Lewis is ample testimony to the treachery of the labor fakers who have effectively co-operated with the coal barons in destroying the union.

THE Federationist is typical of the average labor sheet. Some of them are openly financed by the capitalists. Others are run by private individuals with the endorsement of labor bodies. Others, still, are owned and controlled by labor organizations. But with rare exceptions they all endorse the policy of co-operating with the boss. "B and O Bill" Johnston is the official spokesman of this policy in the industries. The socialist party and the socialist labor party have tacitly accepted it.

UNDER one subterfuge or another the fakers in the labor unions or in the yellow working class political parties, have made peace with the class enemies of the workers. Only the Workers (Communist) Party on the political field and the militants in the labor unions under the leadership of the Trade Union Educational League stand on the class struggle and declare that no solution of the social question can be seriously attempted until the working class become the ruling class preparatory to abolishing all classes. The socialist labor party under the pretense of being "evolutionist" and opposed to violence is practically a stoolpigeon agency for the government. The socialist party is just as bad.

THE complete collapse of the official leadership in the American Federation of Labor is so obvious that a simple assertion of the fact is all that is necessary. Whatever fighting spirit exists among the lower strata of leaders owes its existence to the propaganda of the Communists. A new leadership is being developed. The old leaders have now the philosophy of class collaboration with which to cover up their treachery. But the class struggle exists. Just as Galileo insisted that the earth moved around the sun despite the curses of the Roman catholic inquisition, the Communists know that the class struggle cannot be disposed of by any lion and lamb proposition, whether in the form of labor banking, labor insurance companies or "B and O" plans. The struggle between the workers and the employers over the produce of labor's toil, will continue until the worker gets it all minus whatever portion is considered necessary to pay for the upkeep of the workers' own government. But that will also be decided by the workers.

FIFTY REPORTED DEAD IN MOSCOW TRAIN SMASH-UP

MOSCOW, Russia, March 31.—Fifty persons were killed and scores injured in a head on collision near Kazansky station, here today, news dispatches state. Scores of ambulances have been sent to the scene.

Many of the passengers were killed as they slept when the trains, one a passenger train from Tashkent, and the other a suburban train, collided at Sokolniki Park.

Several coaches were smashed including the international sleeper from Tashkent. Bodies were buried under the debris.

Mounted militia were called to keep back the crowds while Red soldiers and firemen attempted to aid those who were caught in the tangled wreckage. The injured were taken to Sokolniki hospital.

Leonard Wood Sends Representative to Silence Gambler Son

TAMPA, Fla., March 31.—Osborne Wood, son of the Philippine Island dictator, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, is due to arrive here this afternoon on the freighter West Chetac. It is widely reported here that Gen. Wood has sent representatives to meet his spendthrift son, who left Europe to escape gambling debts, and spirit him away. Gen. Wood is anxious to escape all the unfavorable publicity, it is said, and wants no light shed upon the debauchery of Osborne Wood.

Some of the public organizations here are planning a demonstration in "honor" of the gambler when he lands.

Wood's Cossacks To Attack.

MANILA, P. I., March 31.— Gen. Leonard Wood is expected to send his constabulary to fight the Moros who have retired to their fortresses in the provinces. Wood's constabulary have murdered many Filipino peasant leaders who organized to fight the oppression of the American landlords.

U. S.—Sweden Pact Little.

GENEVA, March 31.—The Swedish government has registered with the league of nations the arbitration convention concluded between the United States and Sweden last year. The convention means little, for it excludes from arbitration, "differences that affect vital interests, honor or independence of the two contracting parties."

Statement by Kassner

To whom it may concern:—The Workers Party of America is the only organization in this country which upholds and advocates the principles and program of the Communist International, and which alone can lead the working class to victory thru the establishment of the proletarian dictatorship in the form of a Soviet government.

I, Jacob Kassner, being a member of the Workers (Communist) Party recognizing its discipline and being in complete agreement with its principles and ts program, hereby publicly announce that I sever all connections with any other political organization and especially the League for Democratic Control of Boston, since I cannot consistently support the Workers Party of America while maintaining membership in the League for Democratic Contrtol which is spreading propaganda and creating sentiment for bourgeois-liberal political ideas in opposition to the Workers Party and seeks to establish in this country a progressive party which would be hostile to the Workers Party and would represent the interests of the petty bourgeoisie as against the interests of the working class.

In view of the above statement of facts I, Jacob Kassner, have resigned from membership in the League for Democratic Control and from all official positions in the league and publicly announce that since no member of the Workers Party can hold membership in the League for Democratic Control, and since its activities are not conducted in the interests of the working class that henceforth I cannot undertake any activities in its behalf and I hereby repudiate the principles and program of the League for Democratic Control and request the league to withdraw my name from its stationery and public statements as one of its executive committee.

Yours for Communism,

Defective Babies to Be Killed at Birth in Future, Says Doctor

NEW YORK, March 31.—The annihilation of defective children at birth was predicted for the future handling of cases of that character by the medical profession by Dr. Norman Haire formerly director of the Walworth Birth Control Clinic in London, in speaking before the birth control conference at the Hotel McAlpin.

Dr. Morris H. Kahn blamed religious prejudice and fear of legal restraint and trouble for the indifferent and antagonistic attitude of the medical profession to birth control.

Dr. Benjamin T. Tilton of the St. Marks Hospital, said birth control was necessary among the poor.

Owen R. Lovejoy, executive secretary of the national child labor committee said that child labor was the problem of the big family.

Respectable endorsement of the movement whose leadership once was limited to veteran rebels was given at the convention by no less a dignitary than Dr. William Pusey, president, American Medical association and by a number of other persons of more or less distinguished names in the field of medicine. The day's sessions ended with resolutions: one asking the league of nations to study the birth control question (this in line with the congress' theory that overpopulation leads to wars) others asking the support of organized labor and of child welfare movements.)

A message calling for the appointment of a commission for the study of birth control methods by county and local medical societies in the United States was sent to President Coolidge by the conference.

It adopted a resolution asking the American Federation of Labor to support birth control work on the ground that "the penalties of unlimited human reproduction are most severely visited upon the toiling masses."

Judge Holds Union Is Not Responsible for the Death of a Scab

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, March 31.—Judge Charles Turnbaugh yesterday ruled that the United Mine Workers could not be held liable for the acts of its members and that it could not be sued or prosecuted for the acts of an individual. The decision was given in dismissing a suit filed by Mrs. Eva N. C. Majors against the union for $250,000 damages for the death of her husband, killed during a strike.

Tools Are Important

Like an expert craftsman, a thoro Communist is very critical, very careful in the choice of the tools he must work with.

He views closely every method that will better build the revolutionary movement. And for him, in addition to correct principles and practice, the means of their most efficient promotion is essential.

Carefully, closely, the Communist calculates every little item that aids to build for working class power.

The DAILY WORKER contributes to the Communist revolutionary craftsman a small tool that well serves his purpose:—a small leather binder.

Snuggly fitting your pocket, you may find in this binder the book for your shop-mate (perhaps the clinching argument to "make another Communist"); a descriptive catalogue of every Communist book and pamphlet; all Communist publications (in all languages)—more useful information and note paper for your convenience.

This is an important tool for a Communist. The DAILY WORKER gladly gives one to every worker who secures a NEW yearly sub —or $6.00 worth of subs ($8.00 worth in Chicago).

The DAILY WORKER gladly makes this offer to stimulate interest in the Second Annual Sub Campaign and for more efficient promotion of Communist activity.

HE BEST PLACE TO MEET IS ON THE JOB ITSELF

rovidence Hosiery Girls Win Fight

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Boyden and ns, knitters of hosiery, employing bout 400 workers, mostly girls, posted notice in the shop increasing the ours to a 54-hour week. As excuse said:

"Owing to the sacrifice we have had make in selling our products this ar in order to obtain business and ep our mill running full time, and ther than make a 10 per cent wage duction as most corporations have ne, we have decided to adopt the llowing schedule of working hours."

Heard That Stuff Before.

This didn't sound so good to a mem- r of the Young Workers League ho has heard that sort of bunk be- re. A meeting was arranged in co- peration with the Workers Party, r the workers to come to a meeting tside the shop. But that didn't seem bring many. So, what do you think, e discovered that the best place to ld a meeting was right in the shop! A canvass of the shop was started. paper was passed around which id: "We refuse to work 54 hours d, will not accept a cut in wages." alf of the 400 signed the paper.

Meeting Right On the Job

Then on Thursday the girls called meeting right in the shop on the mpany's time. The superintendent, r. Cordin, was very indignant but at did him no good. He attended the eeting to "present the case for the mpany. He said that the great "sac- fice" the company was making to ep the mill going deserved better nsideration for the "poor company" the girls.

The answer was that the girls would fuse to work 54 hours whether the mpany would sink or swim; that the y was little enough as it is, and that increase of six hours a week is cut wages of 12½ per cent.

Strike Forced Three Hours Off.

The super then was forced to com- mise and pacified the girls by ing the hours posted to 51 hours three hour difference. He stormed saying he didn't want to see a congregation in the shop again, complaining that the girls should "come to him, as he always did at he could." He said that there uld be no wage cut as long as he s there.

The difficulty of holding a solid front re is the conflict artificially kept up tween the piece workers and day rkers. The piece workers had the staken idea that they can make re money, disregarding the fact at the company is hiring more help ery day in order that when the rush over, the rates will be cut on piece rk.

Piece and Day Workers Must Unite

Another difficulty is that two years o when the piece workers struck, e day workers scabbed; then when e piece workers won their strike d went back, the day workers struck ile the piece workers scabbed. vertheless both strikes were won. w our task is to show both of them forget the old row and work to- ther, because if the day workers e the piece workers are bound to t their rates cut. The program will pushed.

Anthracite Speeds Up Preparation for September Strike

NEW YORK CITY—"The anthracite miners are at present working under a contract which will expire Aug. 31 of this year," says the circular of a large Brooklyn company, "and we have no assurance that a new agreement will be reached at that time, or what the terms and conditions may be. It is our desire to fill our customers' bins as quickly as possible, and to that end we announce the opening of our new spring prices."

The company quotes stove and nut coal in Brooklyn at $14 a ton, put in. This is a decrease of 50 cents a ton from recent peak prices, but an increase of 50 cents from the minimum price last spring. This increase issue, it was explained, to an equal increase at the mine.

Because of the "threatened suspension" of mining next fall, the circular continues, "there is bound to be a decided increase in the demand for coal." It warns that the reduced prices are subject to increase after May 1.

In a similar circular another company quotes the same prices, and declares: "Because of the threatened strike at the mines on Sept. 1 we will be able to guarantee the above prices only up to May 1, 1925."

Several coal men admitted yesterday that talk of a strike is being used to increase sales.

Meanwhile, in Pennsylvania anthracite fields, the usual slack period in working during summer will give way, according to announcement of the companies, to a full time and speed up all summer, evidently hoping to lay in enought supply to fight the strike likely to begin on September 1.

Marine Workers Are Deported in Attack on Both Seacoasts

BROOKLYN —(FP)—Secret deportation by the United States of foreign born workers is arousing the Brooklyn branch of the Marine Transport workers, two of whose members, Olaf Ekengren and Oscar Ollikainen, are among the victims. They were whisked away without the knowledge of their friends or fellow workers. The only clue was a letter from them dated Feb. 24 at Ellis Island but not delivered in Brooklyn until March 4 five days after the deportation.

SAN FRANCISCO. — Two sailors, members of the Marine Transport Workers' Union, are still held at Angel Island immigration station for deportation. A third, Alphonso Rodriquez, arrested at San Pedro, has shipped to South America. Authorities were unable to find of what country Rodriquez was a citizen, and therefore offered him his choice of shipping to any foreign port or staying in jail indefinitely.

Non-Union Bands Hurt Union Mucisians

NEW YORK—As the air gets warmer and the ban concert season approaches members of the musicians' unions are wondering how many of them will be done out of jobs through the competition of the police band, the fireman's band, and the street cleaning band, all nonunion. Competition from the bands of private corporations as the National Biscuit company is also a disturbing nonunion factor, but the union feels its chief grievance is against the use of taxpayers' money to furnish nonunion music against the interests of organized labor.

Reaction and Revolt in the Furriers' Union

By A. SIMON

NEW YORK CITY—The signing of the last agreement was the first act of treachery on the part of our union officials during the past year. Not even a single one of them had the courage to say that the agreement was a miserable compromise, but was the best that could be obtained under the circumstances.

Without a single exception, every one of these unscrupulous office holders joined in a chorus of praise proclaiming this unheard of defeat as a great victory for the furriers, tho' they were fully aware that it was a triumph of the bosses over the workers.

All of them, "the famous" President Kaufman, his errand boy Manager Braunstein, the hired scribbler of the Fur Worker, the treacherous Forward, and the whole clique of paid hirelings, with shameless irresponsibility of men who had long lost their concern for the workers cheered this defeat as a great victory for the fur workers. The class conscious workers were burning with indignation and pain. The manufacturers gloated with victory. Labor circles were astounded at this unprecedent confusion. Nothing mattered, our officials signed their names to this disreputable document.

Democratic Pretense

This was the most damnable act of treachery ever committed by the officials of our union. This treachery was coupled with swindle. The militants in our union feerlessly exposed this fake. In order to evade the full responsibility for their acts, the officials called to their aid the fake democracy (which is often the best weapon of deceit in the hands of the capitalist class). Under the pretense of democracy, they gave over the agreement to a referendum vote to the membership. The Forward criminally misrepresented the terms of the agreement, and the officials appointed "trained hands" to fill the ballot boxes.

The fur workers regarded this maneuver with utter contempt, and ignored the referendum in mass. Nevertheless, the officials declared the agreement ratified by a large majority.

Deceit, swindle and perjury. The first act was one of treachery. This was followed by falsifying the terms of the agreement in the yellow Forward. Then, came the swindle at the ballot box, it was thus that the officials of the furriers' union distinguished themselves as traitors, fakers and perjurors. Such are called working class representatives. What a tragedy!

The Reign of Terror

This occurred in the month of February. The workers were unemployed. Month after month, the army of unemployed increased, thousands of workers were driven to the market in search of jobs. The contractors, who operated their little sweat-shops with unorganized cheap labor were busy, while the union workers starved. The officials, however, sat calmly in their offices receiving their weekly pay. Local meetings were not called. Meeting! What for? The workers came to the office to protest against this abominable state of affairs. The answer was terrorism.

The leading militants were expellel from the union under trumped up charges produced by Manager Braunstein. The bureaucrats took no account of the workers' misery and made no effort to unionize the scab shops. Their chief concern was their jobs, and they made preparations for the elections.

No Aid to Unemployed

The lefts demanded financial assistance for the unemployed out of the union treasury. The officials sneered at this proposition. Union funds must not be used to assist the workers, was their reply. The funds of the union must go to pay the fat salaries of the union officials and their hirelings, but not for the workers, no matter how great their misery.

At the approach of the elections, however, a few thousand dollars were distributed as unemployment doles The largest part, naturally fell into the hands of the machine supporters, who generally delivered the votes for the same job holders. The question of mass unemployment, the unorganized shops, the demoralization in the rank of the workers, the continuously reduced wages and ruthless exploitation of the workers and other urgent union problems were placed on ice. Elections was the one problem uppermost in the minds of the officialdom, and the entire machinery of the union was feverously at work to make secure the comfortable jobs of the powers that be.

Hand Picked Committees

In spite of the fact that the militants were expelled from the union, in spite of the fact that the officials had secured the assistance of the bosses and foremen in their campaign for re-election, and forced the workers to vote for Braunstein, they were nevertheless uncertain as to the results, for they were fully aware of the terrible wrath in the hearts of the workers against their shameful misdeeds. They knew that the workers could no longer be trapped by the net of lies.

In mortal fear less their day of reckoning had arrived, they organized their own strong-armed squad, who together with hired sluggers succeeded in electing an "election and objection committee" of hand-picked machine supporters. They then, removed all opponents from the ballot and declared themselves the legally chosen representatives of the fur workers.

The Rank and File in Action

It is understood that organization problems of the union continued to remain on ice. The army of unemployed came to the office and organized mass demonstrations demanding that immediate steps be taken to improve their miserable lot.

In the beginning, Manager Braunstein had planned to disperse the gathering of unemployed with the aid of the strong arm-squad, but he soon realized that the terrorism in this instance could not be used with success. He was forced to permit a meeting of the workers in the office of the union. The unemployed stormed the offices with their protest, they openly exposed the shameless treachery and fakes of these job holders and demanded an explanation for the false promises in the agreement.

The manager, realizing the difficulty of his position, again called to his aid his much abused schemes of deceit. Under the pressure of the workers, he instituted an organization committee of volunteers, who were to engage in the immediate campaign to exterminate the sweat shops.

On the following day, this committee of the rank and file was declared illegal and forbidden to undertake any organization work.

In the month of August, the busy season came, the fur workers, exhausted from hunger, welcomed this opportunity to get back to work. The bosses, fully aware of the great needs of most of the workers, utilized this condition to their own advantage and forced the workers to submit to reduced wages, single pay for overtime and more ruthless exploitation.

Betrayed Anew

How did the officials of our union meet this new situation? Not only did they fail to organize the sweat shops, which was a simple task because of the great amount of work in the trade, and the consequent demand for workers, but our famous manager even dared to recommend that the workers be permitted to work overtime for single pay, trusting the lord almighty that when the season will be at an end, the union will collect back pay.

The result of this week-kneed policy was that thousands of furriers were compelled to accept reduced wages, single pay for evertime. They worked day and night. Hundreds of thousand of dollars were added to the huge profits of the bosses from over time alone, and now our poor manager is shedding crocodile tears over the fact that no more than $20,000 out of this huge sum of workers money had been collected by the union as back pay for overtime.

Busy Working For LaFollette

Our business agent staff was too much preoccupied collecting funds for the democrats and republicans in the LaFollette campaign to devote any time to reclaim the lost money of the workers. No wonder that out of 3,750 complaints recognized even by our so-called representatives, 2,750 were lost, and out of the 1,000 supposedly settled in favor of the union, the great gain was on the side of the manufacturers.

Now as to the joint board. Fruitless were the efforts of the few sincere delegates to the joint board to force the officials to attend to their duties and responsibilities to the workers. In vain did they attempt to uncover the graft system in the joint board. In vain did they struggle to do away with paid sluggers at union meetings. Unsuccessful were their efforts to solidify the ranks of the most abused and demoralized workers, who alone can halt the growing appetites of the bosses for larger profits.

Decay in Union

In vain were their efforts to secure a favorable decision from the so-called impartial chairman. In vain was the effort of these few delegates to reorganize the union and mould it into a weapon of offense in the interest of the workers. In vain too, were there efforts to institute democratic reforms in the management of our union, and draw into activities the loyal, devoted and conscious workers.

The black and treacherous fascist regime of Kaufman and Braunstein like a deadly plague continues to ravage our union and to hold it down in the swamp of treachery and fake, which has reduced our organization built on the sweat and blood of the workers to the shame of the labor movement.

There is but one ray of hope penetrating this evil of darkness—that is the T. U. E. L. section of the furriers' union. The fight, to be sure, is not an easy task for the militants, but the greater the corruption and the more injurious the influence of the Kaufman machine, the more the membership turns for deliverance to the left wing represented by the Trade Union Educational League.

T. U. E. L. Program the Rallying Point.

The hope of the workers is the program and tactics advocated by the T. U. E. L., inspired and encouraged by the rank and file. The militants, notwithstanding the discriminations, expulsions and persecutions, are conducting their fight fearlessly and vigorously, gaining step by step and driving Kaufman to desperation.

The symptoms of decay of his terroristic machine are more and more evident. The day is not far distant when the militants of the furriers' union, together with their comrades in the other needle trade unions, will join hands in the erection of a really militant industrial union for the workers. This day is beginning to dawn.

BANKERS SAY TOO MANY SPINDLES AND WORKERS

Remedy Lies in International Unionism

NEW YORK.—There is no need for working 20 per cent of the cotton spindles of the world, Hicks & Williams, New York bankers, state in explaining the reason why Lancashire spinners in British mills are accepting reductions of time.

The American bankers would like to influence American cotton mill workers, their statement indicates, to accept the lower wages and part-time work that has been their lot since the war.

During the war, the bankers say, the spindles of the world increased tremendously. The 7,000,000 spindles f China, Japan and India are all busy, the bankers claim. United States mills gained 6,500,000 spindles since 1914.

Accepting the figures of the bankers on these items, however, the Communists and members of the Trade Union Educational League do not accept the "remedy" proposed by the bankers, who want to persuade the American workers to compete, in speed up systems, low wages and long hours, with the textile workers of the Orient.

On the contrary, say the revolutionary unionists, the only hope for American workers, in textiles as in other industries, is to co-operate with the exploited workers of China, India and Japan, join with them thru the Red International of Labor Unions to fight together in a solid front to raise all their wages, reduce all their hours, and finally to emancipate the whole working class from the international capitalist class.

New York Janitors to Organize and Fight 40 Per Cent Wage Cut

NEW YORK—Jack-of-all-trades janitors may be but they don't get paid as well as a union worker in any trade apartment house caretakers in New York claim and so they are joining the union, Superintendents and Janitors Local 32 affiliated with Building Service Employes' International.

The complaints of these handy men were aired at a mass meeting recently and the astonishing fact that wage cuts up to 40 per cent have been imposed on janitors came out. Every apartment house dweller expects his building's janitor to be on the job every hour of day or night. He doesn't object to the janitor's living in the damp, low ceiled basements.

He never thinks whether the man is paid enough. He knows that the janitor's wife often is seen helping him out with his work of caring for the house. But all these grievances make the janitors of New York's cliff-dwellings more eager to organize 100 per cent and get better conditions and more wages.

"Community Chest" Is Not for Strikers Who Fight Against Cuts

UTICA, N. Y., Mar. 31.—Not a cent for needy strikers' families is to be had from the community chest fund, tho the community chest drive had received considerable support from many of the 1,200 textile workers who are now out against a wage cut. Directors of the community chest told the general organizer for the American Federation of Labor that he was very sorry but all the assignments of the fund had been made early in the year.

Generous support has been coming to the strikers from local unions from other crafts which have assessed their members in some cases and given lump sums from their treasuries in other cases. The strike committee distributes bread and meat to the families of the strikers.

Philadelphia Auto Workers Organizing Despite Obstacles

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—At an enthusiastic meeting held in the carpenters' hall, the Automobile Workers' Union has been definitely established with 40 new members. The chairman of the evening pointed out that the meeting was called by the temporary executive committee elected by a group of auto workers who had organized the local two weeks ago.

Five large automobile shops were represented and all the workers were of the opinion that the time is ripe for the organization of a successful union. After a short discussion it was unanimously decided to affiliate with the Automobile and Aircraft Workers of America. The men were conscious of the fact that an industrial union alone could successfully organize the workers in the auto industry.

Before the meeting opened, the committee was notified that they could not meet in the carpenters' hall anymore and no reason was given, but, the members of the Trade Union Educational League, who are active in the organization of this union, easily solved this "mysterious" eviction and pointed out that the Carpenters' Local No. 8 and the carpenters district council, who have recently upheld the illegal expulsion of Fred Burgess, own this hall, and further most of the men who have poined this union are auto body builders over whom the carpenters' union claims jurisdiction although they have never made any effort to organize them.

The automobile industry is composed of no less than eight trades over which eight international unions are fighting for jurisdiction and in the fight neglecting the possibility of organizing the industry. The Automobile and Aircraft Workers' Union of America is an industrial union and is out to organise every man that works in the auto industry. Members of the new Philadelphia local are conscious of this and are determined to do everything possible to build a powerful militant union.

The next meeting will be called thru mail due to the difficulty of securing a suitable hall. Further information can be secured by writing Frank Winkler, 521 York Ave., Philadelphia.

Governor Admits Law Aimed at Injunction Is "A Mere Gesture"

TRENTON, N. J.—Possible trial by jury in contempt cases arising from injunctions against picketing—the room for which organized labor has been fighting many years—is seen as the result of the passage and signing of the Richards bill.

The bill provides that vice-chancellor may at his discretion grant a jury trial to workers charged with picketing in defiance of injunction and it makes it mandatory on the chancellor to refer all contempt cases to another vice-chancellor than the one granting the original restraining order.

In signing the bill Governor Silzer seeks to dispel optimism with which it may be greeted, for he says: "I am quite sure that this bill will not accomplish the end desired, and that the bill in its present form does not give the relief which organized labor feels it is entitled to. It is a gesture, nothing more."

OHIO POTTERY WORKERS DEEP IN UNEMPLOYMENT

Wage Cut Looms and Election Near

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio.—The nominees for the national offices of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters have been announced by the headquarters of the union. For president, John T. Wood and William H. Cox, both of East Liverpool are the candidates; for secretary-treasurer, John D. McGillivray of East Liverpool stands against Edward McDevitt of Clarksburg, W. Va.

There are about thirty potteries here, the largest pottery center in America, and the largest single pottery in the world. Sanitary ware, bathtubs, etc., are made in Trenton, N. J., the East Liverpool potteries makes the table ware. It is the chief industry of the city of 25,000.

Prepare For Wage Cut

The bosses are evidently preparing for a wage cut, using the part time starvation preparation as a beginning. The D. E. McNichols plant has been working two days a week—sometimes; C. C. Thompson and Laughlin both work about five days a week; the Hall China company about four days a week; the Dresden pottery is doing nothing—and so it goes.

Across the river in Chester, West Virginia, the sheet and tinplate mill has shut down indefinitely. The Millsville mill about four miles away, is working three days a week.

One of the brickyards has cut its forces one half in one department. Bricklayers average about five days a week since Christmas. Altogether the building trades have been on half time since last fall.

Wage Cut for Miners

The mines, soft coal, have done little for a year. The West Point mines will start April 1—provided (there is always a joker) the miners take [illegible] a day for day work and the diggers do all the dead work for nothing.

Members of the Pottery Workers Union should write to the Trade Union Educational League, telling what their candidates stand for in principle and program—if they have any, about their lives in the union and on the job—and whether or not the union is going to fight against any wage cut as it should fight.

Hutcheson's Pal in Losing Fight to Keep Graft Won in Strike

NEW YORK CITY, March 31.—A verdict for $2,580 against Robert P. Brindell, former building trades council leader, in favor of Joseph H. Goldblatt, a contractor, was returned by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Cotille.

The amount included interest on $2,000 which Goldblatt alleged Brindell, John Chapman and Richard Pike, two labor delegates, compelled him to pay in order to have a strike called off on a building he was erecting in West Forty-fifth street.

ANOTHER LAW AGAINST LABOR IN MICHIGAN

"Not Necessary to Prove Over Act"

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LANSING, Mich., March 31. — A stand was taken against the organized Detroit bricklayers by Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck last Wednesday when Representative Arthur U. Odell, of Allegan, introduced a bill to make it a criminal conspiracy against the state for two or more persons to make any sort of an agreement to hinder sale of state prison products.

"Many Possibilities" in New Law

The Detroit Bricklayers' Union placed an embargo on Jackson prison brick last summer, and has since refused to raise it. The Odell bill would make each member of the union guilty of conspiracy and liable to a fine of $1,000 and from two to 10 years in jail.

The bill has many other possibilities affecting other organizations which might be in competition with products turned out by state manufacturing plants, such as the prison cement plant at Chelsea, the binder twine plant at Jackson prison, the furniture industries at Ionia and the textile products at Marquette. A canning plant also is in operation at Jackson prison.

Prison Boss Presses Bill

Henry Croll, Jr., sales manager for the prison industries, had the bill introduced in the house. According to information given to members of the house, Croll has been unable to sell prison brick in Detroit because of action of the Detroit Bricklayers' Union last July refusing to allow members of that organization to lay prison made brick.

Conviction Easy—Not Necessary to Prove Anything

The language of the proposed bill is far reaching. The union boycott as a protest against prison made products of all kinds could be easily and severely dealt with.

Conviction is made easy because under the terms of the bill, it is not necessary to prove any overt act. Any discussion of boycott plans is made a conspiracy.

APRIL FIRST IN HISTORY

1791—Mirabeau, leader of the French Revolution, died.

1871—Paris Commune decrees the equalization of salaries of communal officers to those of skilled wage workers.

1917—Anti-militarist meetings in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, etc., suppressed by authorities on the eve of our joining in the war "to make the world safe for democracy."

1922—600,000 American mine workers out on strike. Soft coal strikers won out August 15, hard coal strike won Sept. 2.

Letters From Our Readers

To the DAILY WORKER:— Dear Comrade: The following is a copy of a letter sent to both the New Republic and The Nation:

Sir:—Will you please let us know in your correspondent columns why you find fault with Russia in her treatment of political offenders, when she treats them the most humanely of all nations? Will you please let us know why you shed cant tears over the handful of restrained politicals of the Soviet Republic and ignore the millions of prisoners in "prosperous" America, in shops, in stores, and on farms; men, women and children, many of them suffering more acutely and who are in fact, if not theoretically, prisoners of custom, tradition, greed and hypocrisy. Many of these are underfed and live in rooms not fit for human habitation. Many of them would be lucky if they could get six months rest in one of those political prisons of Russia.

Are you—like these unfortunates—unconscious of all this; and do you also, accept the lie, that these unhappy conditions are necessary?—H. Lowenstein, Route 2, Box 720, Phoenix, Ariz.

Republican Leader Stole $500,000 from U.S. Treasury

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31.—William Boyce Thompson, who in 1920 was chairman of the finance committee of the republican national committee, has been drawn into the tax scandal, it being shown that Thompson owes the government $500,000 which, thru the "leniency" of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Mellon, he was not forced to pay.

The Couzens senatorial investigating committee also revealed that a total of $200,000,000 was stolen from the government by the United States Steel corporation, the Aluminum company, of which Mellon himself is the head, and other large corporations with which Mellon is friendly.

Electric Trust Makes Millions

NEW YORK, March 31.—The General Electric company last year made the largest profits in any year of its history, it was announced here. Net profit, after every charge had been paid, was $39,235,548. A large dividend was paid stockholders.

On The Food Question.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I was very glad to read the article by Leland Olds on Breakfast Foods, Raisins, or Candy, in the issue of March 20.

One would think such articles as that, would open the eyes of the worker. Any worker who reads such articles should realize he is helping to swell the profits of those concerns. But that is not all. He is also lowering his own vitality by eating those foods. In order to live and have health, we do not need to eat that kind of food. Sugar has no food value as it is given to us by the sugar trust. Our bodies can get all the sugar they need in raw, fresh fruit and vegetables. Any sort of grain once a day is enough for any worker together with plenty of raw fruit and green, leafy vegetables.

When the workers learn to eat fruit and green leafy vegetables and only a little grain or whole wheat bread made from the whole wheat kernel, we will be on the road to progress. Right foods build the brain. Wrong foods tear it down; cloud it so one cannot think right.—C. B. Merrick.

FARM METHODS IMPROVING IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Exclusive News in Paragraph Form

Below are printed some exclusive news notes from Soviet Russia, giving the latest information of the activities of the Soviet government in the field of agriculture and among the city workers.

Russian Statistical Methods Better.

At the All-Russian Statistical Conference Prof. N. D. Kondratov, who returned just recently from the United States, where he studied the agricultural situation, reported on the American system of gathering agricultural statistics. He stated that he found that the Russian and American systems of statistical research were similar in most aspects, but that the Russion system was superior in one very important respect, i.e. that it has developed a plan for checks and balances in the verification of the material, which the American system lacks.

All-Russian Census.

The U. S. S. R. is preparing for an All-Russian census, which will be started on January, 1926. An agriculture census will be organized for the summer, 1926. The results of both these censuses will be announced by March, 1929.

Learn Chemistry.

In many villages of the U. S. S. R. circles are being organized for the purpose of learning chemistry with the aim of practically applying the knowledge attained in agricultural activities. It is hoped that as a result of increased chemical knowledge on the part of the peasants that the crops will be increased and the pests more effectively eliminated.

Sheep Raisers.

The department of agriculture has received a petition from the sheep raisers of Siberia for permission to emigrate and settle in North Caucasia, or on the banks of Volga, or in southeastern Russia, in order to raise Merino sheep. They ask for 15,000 dessiatins of land on which to raise from 7,000 to 8,000 sheep at the beginning and promise to increase that number within ten years to 100,000 head.

Dairy Farm Union.

The growth of the number of unions in the principal dairy farming areas can be seen from the following table:

Region	1908	1911	1913	1917	1924
Siberia	65	218	563	1410	1200
Vologda	—	20	41	372	250
Moscow	—	16	21	30	58

Corn Area Increased.

According to reports from the department of agriculture the area to be sown for corn will be increased from 1,450,000 to 1,900,000 dessiatins this year. By 1927 it is hoped to increase this area to 3,400,000 dessiatins. The seeds needed for this increase in area will be delivered to the regions where they will be needed by the first of April.

Arbor Day.

The department of agriculture is working out a program for an All-Russian Arbor Day which will be initiated on a fixed day each year. The program aims at the complete co-operation of the peasantry thruout Russia.

Eliminate Locusts.

The Middle Asiatic bureau of agriculture has devised a plan for the elimination of locusts in its territory. In Turkmania the area infested by the locusts is estimated to be 60,000 dessiatins in Usbeck 20,000 dessiatins are affected. The work of extermination will be begun at once on 40,000 dessiatins.

BUILDERS AT WORK

NOTE—We have received a few notices of the activities of our BUILDERS written by themselves. Today's is the first, written by one of our agents, and we will gladly print any notice of activities or suggestions to better build "Our Daily." Let us know WHAT you are doing and HOW.

We Are Going to the Shops with "Our Daily"

By G. B.

AT our local Canister works here in Easton, Pa., we have such speed-up methods that the dissatisfied workers will surely listen to the message that "Our Daily" brings. The story I have sent in on local conditions I hope will appear in this issue of which we are ordering 75 copies for distribution at the gates of the place I have described. We will also sell our Italian paper "Il Lavoratore" if we can get it here in time.

In this way we will begin our campaign to acquaint the workers here with "Our Daily" (which is also every workingman's daily) in all the shops in Easton, Pa., Phillipsburg, N. J., and our end of the Lehigh Valley section.

We are also making preparations to get the DAILY WORKER to the local Labor Council and in this way are going to make an effort to reach both organized and unorganized workers in the vicinity.

• • • •

This is real news to the DAILY WORKER and this is the kind of work—the BEST kind—that will build "Our Daily" and with it the Communist movement in this country. To the masses with the DAILY worker!

Among other subjects: the recognition of Soviet Russia; a view of the developments in Mexico; the Negro and the trade unions; the situation in the miners and the textile industry; a discussion of different views of Leninism—plus poetry, photographs, cartoons and an international review section—combined in the April issue (and as interesting as eleven other issues in one year) make THE WORKERS MONTHLY well worth the subscription price of $1.25 for six months and $2.00 a year.

BOSSES TOOLS UP FRAUD AS N COMPENSATION

Labor and Scienti Prepare to Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, March 31.—Hea Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan New York City, it was announced day by the workers' health bure has filed with the legislature at Al ny a protest against the employe bill which would rob workers of co pensation benefits, and a brief favor of the four amendments to compensation law.

According to the workers' hea bureau, the compensation law fi centers about the attempt of the e ployers to "put thru provisions wh are extremely dangerous to la which have no precedent in o parts of the New York law or in other law in the country, and wh would nullify the purpose of co pensation."

The fight began in January w four amendments to the occupatio disease section of the compensat law were introduced with the back of the State Federation of Labor. T amendments provided compensati for poisoning by bensol, gasol naphtha, benzine; for skin irritati and for silicosis.

"Labor's silicosis bill," a stateme by the workers' health bureau d clares, "drew the fire of New Yo employers at once. Silicosis is a de ly lung disease caused by breath silica or quartz dust. Particles of dust get into the lungs and dest them. This often leads to tubercul Silicosis affects quarry workers, st cutters, stone masons, rock drill miners, marble workers, tunnel w ers, potters, sand blasters, grind polishers, buffers and workers in milar trades.

"Disease and death from silic have been so widespread that la organizations and physicians h urged that silicosis be compensated a distinct occupational hazard. A to that effect was introduced last y in New York but failed to pass. other bill was introduced this y and was at once met with a coun bill representing the interests of ployers."

The employers' bill, known as Miller-Truman bill, contains the lowing dangerous provisions:

1. It grants compensation for cosis only in a restricted [illegible] trades listed in the bill and [illegible] all factory workers except [illegible] thus discriminating against th [illegible] of workers entitled to compens for silicosis.

2. It provides that a worker m be employed for five years contin ly in one of the listed trades b he can claim compensation for cosis. A worker cannot claim co pensation if injured before the years are up.

3. In order to prevent work from getting compensation employ may discharge or suspend work whom they do not consider healt Workers once refused employment discharged may never again cl compensation for silicosis.

In spite of the unanimous opp tion of scientists and organized lab the labor and industry committee commended favorable action on Miller-Truman bill—and killed all bors' occupational disease ame ments.

About This Book

"Lenin-- The Great Strategist of the Class War"

by A. Lozovsky.

In a splendid introduction Alexander Bittelman, member of the central executive committee of the Workers Party, says:

"What must you do? What can YOU Do?

"Turn to Lenin, he'll tell you. He has built a party and led a movement which already conquered for the toiling masses one-sixth of the earth's surface. He ought to know how you do those things. Ask him and he'll tell you."

We have received a new stock of this splendid pamphlet by the secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

A. PURCELL, leader of the British trade unions, made a neat rt to the criticism that the Rus- government displayed unusual rtesy to the British trade union gation while on its tour in that ntry. Purcell replied that it was e true that the Russian workers peasants treated them royally, thought that was to the credit of Russian workers. Capitalist gov- ments, he said, receive capitalist resentatives from other countries h honors, and why should not the sian workers do the same to the oys of labor? A pretty snappy eback!

ARABS DEMAND FULL CONTROL OF PALESTINE

60,000 Arabs Strike Against Balfour Today

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

JERUSALEM, Palestine, April 1.—The six hundred thousand Arabs in Palestine, in answer to the speech of Lord Balfour today at the opening of the Hebrew University here, demand complete control of the country.

England has several times tried to throw a sop to the Arabs, but they have presisted in demanding all or nothing.

The latest attempts of English imperialism to bring the Arab population into subjection has been to cause racial antagonisms thru control of the Zionist movement. England has brot in 40,000 Jews since the war, making a total of only 95,000 Jews in the entire country, and has attempted to play the Jews against the Arabs.

This attempt however, made no headway with the Arabs, who continue to demand complete control of the country.

Balfour, who appropriately chose April fool's day on which to speak, was greeted by the general strike of the Arabs and black draped houses when he appeared this morning.

Balfour first made the enmity of the Arabs when, on behalf of English capitalists he issued the declaration in 1917, which announced England's cooperation with the Zionists as a means of suppressing the growing move of the Arabs for complete independence.

The Arabs are now boycotting the existing administration, having declined to participate in any way.

Russo-Japan Treaty Details Force U. S. to Speed Recognition

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 1.—The details of the Russo-Japanese treaty, which have for the first time been seen by officials of the Coolidge government show, according to these officials, that the United States must recognize Russia at an early date.

The treaty contains a clause compelling the Japanese government to expel counter-revolutionists against the Soviet regime from Saghalin. Japan receives 50 per cent of the oil fields of Saghalin, and the right to an equal share with other nations in the rest of the fields. Japan is also granted coal fields in Siberia and northern Saghalin.

State department officials declare that the treaty points to a Far Eastern alliance with the United States totally isolated, unless Russia is recognized in the very near future.

Extra! Ask Oil to Clean Up.

BOSTON, April 1.— Reporting to the legislature today on its investigation of the rapid rise in the price of gasoline the special commission on the necessaries of life declared that if the oil industry "does not clean its own house, public opinion will demand that conditions in the industry be corrected by legislation."

J. BULL'S DIPLOMATS LICKED BY FRENCH IN TURK SQUABBLE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 1.—The French government has given Turkey a big slice of its Syrian mandate in return for Turkish support in France's anti-British diplomacy. Turkey's booty as a result of the treaty consists of: The free use of the port of Alexandretta; control of the Bagdad railway; the disposition of 150,000 Armenians and several districts of French Syria which contains hundreds of thousands of former Turkish subjects.

The Bagdad railway was one of the causes of the world war. Germany wanted possession of it. It is now in Turkey's control from Constantinople to Nisibin, which means under French control. Britain feels as comfortable with this railway in possession of her French enemy as a burglar who suddenly finds his gat in the hands of his intended victim.

KLUXERS FOUND GUILTY AT NILES, OHIO, LET OFF WITH FINES

WARREN, Ohio, April 1.—Twenty-seven members of the ku klux klan, rged with various offenses in connection with the Niles rioting November last, which resulted in the proclamation of martial law, were today found lty by Judge James S. Thomas. in common pleas court here. In each a fine of $300 was imposed, $250 of which was suspended upon their good havior.

SOVIET FOES IN FAR EAST DISINTEGRATE AS LEADER MAKES PEACE

SHANGHAI, China, April 1.—Complete collapse of the anti-Soviet nest of couter-revolutionary Russians in the Far East, has been brot about by the return of Semenoff to Vladivostok under an arrangement with the Soviet government.

The recent Russo-Japanese treaty ended the intrigues of the Japanese for control of Vladivostok, and Semenoff, who was fighting Soviet Russia with the aid of Japanese imperialism, found himself without a backer, and made peace with the Soviet government, it is reported.

The Soviet government will hold Semenoff's wife and children as hostages, while Semenoff is permitted to re-enter Vladivostok, it is said.

The counter-revolutionary Russians in the Far East are the remnants of those expelled from Vladivostok, along with the Japanese after the Soviet government took control. It was Semenoff who aided in the intervention of the United States and allied forces in Siberia in 1918. The United States soldiers were stationed near Archangel.

SMALL'S SOLONS HAND LABOR TWO HEFTY BRICKS

But Fakers Have Lots of Patience

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 1.—The "friends of labor" in the senate proved to be as helpless as usual when the injunctions limitation bill and the forty-eight hour bill were almost knocked out here yesterday.

The injunction limitation bill failed to pass by three votes and would have died right there and then, but for the action of its sponsor in moving indefinite postponement before the vote was announced.

Another Wallop.

The house industrial affairs committee followed this blow at the labor program by refusing to recommend the women's eight hour bill. The injunction bill is a mild protest against the hamstringing action of the courts. But the injunction is such an important weapon in the hands of the capitalists that they will not stand any tampering with it.

John H. Walker, the generalissimo of the A. F. of L. lobbyists is not daunted by the rebuffs given to his "reward and punish" policy. He has plenty of time and the wolf is nowhere within howling distance of his door.

Miners Celebrate the 8-Hour Anniversary Jobless and Starving

HAZLETON, Pa., April 1.—The 155,000 miners of the anthracite coal field are not working today, observing the anniversary of the inauguration of the eight-hour day. Under proclamations issued by their district officers only hoisting engineers, firemen, pump runners and watchmen will remain on duty. The celebration is general thruout the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers of America.

However, unemployment among union miners is so general, that thruout the country this year, tens of thousands of union miners will not be working anyhow, and can regard the celebration without any joy. These are asking why the union should not dedicate the day of celebration of past attainment to the formulation of a fighting program to overcome the terrible miseries now overwhelming them.

Indiana's Suit to Revoke Bell Phone Charter Nears End

DEPORTATION MENACE MUST BE COMBATTED

Labor Defense Council Sounds Warning

The Labor Defense Council today issued a warning to all workers and workers' organizations against the deportation methods of the department of labor of the United States and particularly against the deportation bill which is now before the senate after having passed the house (House Bill No. 11796).

Recently the capitalist papers carried "news" based on the boast of the the department of labor that some 5,000 had been deported in the last year. News also leaked out in labor papers of the underhanded "deportation" of some transport workers from New York City. These workers had disappeared and it was only when they wrote their friends from Ellis Island that the "shanghaing" came to light.

Now however, the government intends with the aid of a carefully prepared "legal" and "democratic" deportation bill to systematically deport "undesirable" alien workers. Who are these undesirables and what is the purpose of the bill?

A Union Smashing Bill.

In calling upon the workers of New York City to attend a mass meeting of protest against the bill, to be held April 3 at Manhattan Lyceum, the New York division of the Labor Defense Council says "This bill threatens the whole working class in a manner unknown in this country. The purpose of the bill is clear. The United Mine Workers, the needle workers, and the textile workers are primarily foreign born workers. The unskilled workers on the railroads are foreign born; many of the building workers are aliens. When depression comes, followed by wage slashes and longer hours for these who can still find jobs, the government will have a convenient weapon against the foreign born workers, viz., "deportation." They point out that the most active trade unionists in this country are, in great part, foreign born workers,

WEST VIRGINIA MINERS OF NON-UNION FIELDS CALLED ON STRIKE

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 1.—Conflicting statements were issued regarding the possibilities of a general strike of coal miners in the northern West Virginia field, called for Wednesday by the United Mine Workers of America.

Phillip Murray, international vice-president of the Miners' Union, declared "every non-union coal miner" in the district "will suspend operations Wednesday and continue their suspension until the Baltimore agreement had been completely restored."

Strike Closes 18 Mines.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 1.—Work was suspended in 18 union mines in this vicinity, and the miners, at a mass meeting here, celebrated the eight-hour day. This was the first day of the general strike called in the northern W. Va. coal fields, by the United Mine Workers, in an effort to force restoration of the Jacksonville wage agreement.

JOB SHARKS ROB CITY WORKERS, REFUSES REFUND

Chicago employment agencies are taking large fees from jobless workers, keeping the money three days or more, and making it difficult for the workers to get their money back, although they get no job.

D. Renkema, one of the victims of the employment sharks, was required to pay ten dollars in advance, when he tried to get a job thru the La Salle Employment agency, 406 S. Dearborn St. Renkema applied for a job as fireman, and was sent to several places, where he found the job already filled.

Renkema then demanded his money back, and was told that he must wait three days. He is now penniless.

The employment agency treated Renkema gruffly when he demanded his money back and threatened to throw him into the street when he showed some of the other men waiting to get jobs how the company obtained the money under false promises. Renkema has been unable to get work for several weeks.

TEXTILE WORKERS MUST HAVE A UNITED FRONT AND CLASS SOLIDARITY OF ALL WORKERS

By J. W. JOHNSTONE

Assistant National Secretary, Trade Union Educational League.

The strike of the textile workers in Willimantic, Conn., again shows the willingness of the textile workers to resist the wage cuts being imposed upon them. It also emphasizes the great need for united action of the workers against the powerful textile barons. While President McMahon is busy warring on the "reds" and pleading with the bosses for arbitration, the employers are enforcing their wage cuts mill by mill.

The Trade Union Educational League presents the only solution that, if followed, would soon put an end to the present wage-slashing campaign. Meeting the employers over the conference table means defeat for the workers unless it is backed up by a powerful union and a solid unbroken strike line. It is only in and thru the struggle that the workers advance their interests.

For a United Front Conference

With most of the industry unorganized, and the small percentage that do belong to organized labor split into numerous weak, impotent unions, the one thing left for the workers to do is to call a united front conference of all textile unions and textile workers to work out a common program of action against the united front of the textile millionaires.

In the present strike the textile workers of Willimantic, as in all the other textile strikes, the Workers (Communist) Party, the Trade Union Educational League, and the DAILY WORKER have rendered invaluable assistance to the strikers, only to meet the opposition of the union officials who would rather see the workers lose a dozen strikes than to be labeled "reds."

Unity Despite Officials.

With or without the assistance of the McMahons, the textile workers must be welded together so as to be able not only to meet and defeat the present wage slashing campaign, but to take the offensive and abolish the present speed-up system, child labor, and to reduce their working hours and raise their standard of living. This can only be done thru a united front.

On March 17, Wm. Simons, district organizer for the Workers Party, in FOUR HUNDRED WOMEN STRIKE WITH WEAVERS FOR WAGE INCREASE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., April 1.—Four hundred women employed as setters in the weaving department of the Stephen Sanford & Sons Rug and Carpet Mills here left their work today, apparently in sympathy with sixty of the weavers who walked out last week when a demand for increased pay was denied. The plant was placed on a four days a week schedule last week.

LITTLE HOPE TO SAVE 38 BRITISH MINERS TRAPPED BY FLOOD

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEWCASTLE, England, April 1.—Slight hope remained today of rescuing the thirty-eight miners trapped yesterday by a sudden rush of water into the Montague Colliery at Scobwood. A new pump was hurriedly rigged up yesterday afternoon as a last attempt to drain the flooded pit.

BANKERS PAID, KEEP CONTROL UNDER CAR BILL

No Provision for Employes' Control

The voters of Chicago will decide Tuesday whether or not the Dever traction ordinance shall be passed, thus costing the city millions of dollars to be paid the traction owners under the terms of the ordinance.

The Dever ordinance, written in cooperation with the bankers owning the traction stock, and backed by the Chicago Tribune, provides for a board of control of nine men, appointed for life, to have entire charge of the traction lines. These men cannot be impeached.

Three of these nine trustees are to be appointed by the traction bankers, and three by Mayor Dever. Those appointed by Dever must be approved by the bankers, but not by the city council or the voters. Three more trustees are to be picked by the first six trustees.

The board of control, which undoubtedly would play into the hands of the bankers, judging from Dever's service to the bankers in concocting the ordinance, has complete power to hire and discharge traction employes, fix wages, and provide for the price of fares and the finances.

The traction line owners participate in the operation of the lines until every dollar of the city's indebtedness is paid, which because of the large amount Dever has agreed to pay, will not be for at least sixty years.

The ordinance leaves the voters no alternative. They may merely register a negative protest against Dever's sell out to the bankers. No provision, such as the Workers (Communist) Party advocates, for the immediate confiscation of the traction lines, with the employes themselves exercising control thru union committees, has been allowed to come before the voters.

FEDERAL JUDGE HELPED BREAK '22 SHOP STRIKE

Disbarred Lawyer for Aiding Strikers

ST. LOUIS, April 1.—Federal Judge George W. English, being investigated here by a house committee for corruption and tyranny, testified that he disbarred Attorney Charles A. Karch for "unnecessary demands for jury trials for the striking shopmen."

English revealed how he used the federal judgeship in an effort to break the shopmen's strike. He admitted he "used forcible language," in addressing officers and attorneys and sheriffs. He told the sheriffs, English testified, "To display nerve enough to control the situation or I would relieve them of their duties and substitute forces appointed thru my office."

English admitted that he "conversed with E. F. Ackerman of the Union Trust company about getting a place for my son Faris, and in the same conversation talked with Ackerman about increasing deposits in the Union Trust of bankruptcy funds," but claimed the two topics were unrelated.

"I'm Worthless," Admits Wood, Son of the Dictator

TAMPA, Fla., April 1.—"I realize that I am worthless," Osborne Wood, son of the Philippine Islands dictator Gen. Leonard Wood, said upon his arrival on the West Chetac here.

Wood flung a fortune to the winds in Europe while his father's contabulary were shooting down impoverished peasants in the Philippines who had organized to try to secure a living wage from the American plantation owners.

Wood was clean shaven and dressed like a dandy. He flashed a large size bankroll.

New Administration in District 11 of the United Mine Workers

Ford Plans to Build.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 1.—The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad, owned by Henry Ford, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission today to issue $1,181,000 of first mortgage 50-year five per cent gold bonds. The bonds will be sold at par, and the proceeds used for construction purposes.

FRANCE DOUSES CAL'S CONFAB WITH ICE WATER

Britain May Apply the Golden Screws

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, April 1.—British official circles, even the staunchest supporters of the proposed second disarmament conference, were dismayed today by vague reports from Washington to the effect that France has rejected the conference proposal.

Officialdom was unwilling to comment while waiting confirmation or denial of the reports, but some believed the action was less a definite refusal than a display of French tactics.

If France definitely rejects the parley idea, a certain official faction here will do its utmost to have Great Brittain close down on France, demand repayment of the French debt and otherwise turn the screws, probably by withholding from the proposed security pacts unless they are coupled with disarmament.

Taxpayers Uneasy.

Britain wants disarmament. Any competition in armament building means higher taxes and British tax payers already are incensed by high taxes.

French rejection of the Washington conference plan would be a blow and it is reasonable to expect the administration will use all its efforts to force France to accept.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 1.—The state department confirmed dispatches which state that France has not notified this government, formally or officially, of its unwillingness to participate in a conference.

French diplomacy, it was explained, does not work that way. It works thru more subtle channels. What the French government aims to do, according to authorities here, is to kill the conference aborning, thus escaping the embarrassment of being invited, and then having to decide whether to accept or be put in the position of being an obstructionist to the furtherance of world peace.

Put It in Writing.

It was hinted in authoiatitive quarters that France is going to get a chance to put her objections to coming to Washington in writing, despite the disbelief expressed by the French foreign office that the United States will never place her in "such an embarrassing position."

No immediate decision on whether to issue invitations is in prospect. Coolidge, it was said today, will devote considerable study to the matter during his summer vacation, and probably make a decision before congress convenes. Meanwhile, the informal diplomatic battle will continue under cover, with the Americans and British seeking to break down France's opposition.

Japanese Diet Adjourns.

TOKIO, April 1.—The fiftieth session of the Japanese diet has adjourned.

Outstanding measures disposed of by the parliament just closed include the suffrage bill, giving the voting privilege to male citizens over 30 years of age, who earn a living, the peers "reform" bill, the alien land ownership bill; bill providing severe penalties for sedition, and the national budget bill.

ABRAMOVITCH PROMISED HOT RECEPTION BY THE SAN FRANCISCO WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—The militant workers here have protested against the announcement that Raphael Abramovich, menshevik anti-Soviet spy, is scheduled to speak here.

The yellow socialist, Cameron King, has openly boasted that he will call in the capitalist poice to spit the workers' heads if they don't like the slanders of Abramovich agaist the the Soviet government.

Labor Unity, the San Francisco Communist paper, says of King's statement, "We urge the Communists to hold King to his statement. If the protests against the foul slanders of Abramovich do result in somebody being roughly handled by the police, King will be held responsible. If Abramovich is allowed to speak, then the shame will be on the local radicals.

"Our class is being tortured and murdered in the bastiles of Europe and you ask us to remain silent when the tool of their torturers and murderers comes here and jeers at them. Not on your life!"

SOCIALISTS NOW YELLOW, SAYS CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Victor Berger Totes Bourgeois Mentality

That capitalist writers who do not take their information concerning the revolutionary movement from the fink agencies are becoming convinced that the socialist parties of the world are no longer at war with the capitalist system, but on the contrary, are its strongest and most loyal supporters, is becoming more apparent every day. It is not often, however, that one of them, comes out so openly as "Scrutator" the "radical" expert of the Chicago Tribune.

Writes to Suit.

"Scrutator" is a renegade radical and while his slam at Marxism is about all that could be expected from a slimy creature who writes to suit his boss, his picture of the socialists in the role of conservatives is correct. In proportion as the yellow socialists turn to the right the masses, whose exploitation continues with greater intensity desert them and turn to the Communists. Scrutator's article in The Chicago Tribune of April 1, follows:

If any one had predicted ten years ago that the world's financial centers would feel reassured by an increase of the socialist vote in any country he would have thrown doubt upon his own sanity.

Yet the showing of the social democratic party in the German elections probably carries such reassurance, and a victory for the out and out conservatives would have caused alarm, as it would have been felt that the measure of European settlement already achieved would be imperiled.

Yes, the world changes—and so does socialism.

Nothing has been more marked than the shift of German socialists from class consciousness to state consciousness, since they began to participate in power after the German revolution.

A German socialist today, like Victor Berger, mostly imagined that he is a socialist, while in fact he has a most respectable bourgeois mentality.

A complete socialist government of Germany probably would amount to nothing more radical than a socialist government in Milwaukee, which has long ago become a commonplace.

A political platform usually is the last place to look for a change in a party's mind. Usually the old slogans are carried in the preamble and resolutions long after the stuff is dead. Witness the democratic party of dry southern states reaffirming Jefferson and Jackson after eight years of Wilsonian federal autocracy that would have shocked Hamilton.

But the present program of the socialist party of Germany reveals a great change. Adopted in 1921 on the reuniting of the party after the war split, it is conspicuous for its abandonment of many pet Marxian dogmas, including the disappearance of the middle classes and the impoverishment and expropriation of the working classes. Even a faith so fanatical as that of Marx couldn't retain these old formulas in the face of years and years of history that showed that they were not true, and that they were becoming less true as time passed. If German socialism has been thus weakened and diluted despite national defeat, poverty, and reduction of living standards resulting from the war, need we be surprised that everywhere else it is becoming more and more practical and opportunist—"yellow" instead of "red."

At its present rate of progress toward reformism and away from revolution socialism will be politically less radical than the populist party of 1892 in a few years. And half or more of the "pop" stuff is now the law of the land.

But as insidious reformism, sapping the springs of individual enterprise, socialism may prove more dangerous to civilization than in its older form, in which it caused alarm and stiffened resistance.

Over Half Million Dollars Appropriated for State Army Camp

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 1.—The the capitalist politicians in session here turned down the labor injunction bill and the forty-eight hour bill, the bill sponsored by the militarists to appropriate $650,000 for the extension and improvement of Camp Grant went thru the senate appropriations committee like grape juice thru a prohibitionist.

Generals and officers appeared before the committee but their services were not required.

URGES UNITED TEXTILE FRONT

a letter to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Railway Trainmen, drew attention of these organziations to the fact that 2,500 mill workers of the American Thread company were on strike resisting a 10 per cent wage cut, and that members of these organizations were pulling out cars from this company, thus helping to defeat the strike. On behalf of class solidarity he asked that this be stopped.

The Sanctity of Agreement.

The answer to this appeal we print in full:

March 21, 1925.

Grand Office,
Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers,
Cleveland, Ohio.
Warren S. Stone, President.
L. G. Griffing, Grand Chief Engineer.

Mr. William Simons, District Organizer, Workers Party of America, P. O. Box 183, Willimantic, Conn.

"Dear Sir and Brother:—We have your letter of the 17th wherein you explain the strike of 2,500 mill workers of the American Thread Co., which you state, is a protest against a 10 per cent cut and I note your reference to members of our organization pulling out cars with American Thread company product and asking what we are going to do regarding the matter.

"In the first place, we have agreements with the railroad companies and pride ourselves on the fact that we have never yet broken a contract and do not intend after almost 65 years.

"Furthermore, the federal law demands that railroad employes shall transport all inter and intra state commerce and you can readily appreciate that if our members refuse to haul goods manufactured by a plant whose employes are out on strike, the railroads would be idle a great part of the time.

"Where we are advised of a legally organized strike called by a recognized labor organization, our members are notified to continue performing their usual duties but under no circumstances take the place of strikers or to do work formerly performed by those out on strike and if our members follow these instructions, they are not violating their obligation.

"We regret that you feel as you do toward our men who are simply carrying out the contract they have with the railroad company, but we have never ordered our men off their engines in similar cases and cannot consistently do so in this instance under the law.

" Fraternally yours,
"L. G. Griffing, G. C. E."

(Seal)

Grand International Division Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

This is the typical attitude of the labor bureaucrats towards strikes. And this undoubtedly would be endorsed by President McMahon. Appeals to these people are useless. Labor's future fighting force must be developed from the bottom. Griffing, the grand chief engineer, like Stone, Lewis, McMahon, and the others, has been too long removed from contact with working class life until his position of labor leader has become a business, so that he feels a more harmonious relationship with the employers than with the workers. The letter above might have been written by the secretary of any chamber of commerce.

In spite of all handicaps and the lack of leadership, a united front is being slowly formed. The textile industry has been the scene of many bloody battles. Militant in the struggle, their main weakness has been their inability to hold their lines intact.

Men and women of the textile industry rally your forces to oppose wage cuts, and demand an increase in wages!

Instead of longer hours, shorter hours!

Abolish the speed-up system!

Abolish child labor!

Fight against the increasing unemployment!

Organize shop committees thruout the textile industry!

Away with your small craft unions. Amalgamate. An industrial union of workers against the industrial union of the bosses.

A united front of all textile workers against the united front of the textile barons.

SHIPPING BOARD SELLS SHIPS FOR $25,000,000 LESS THAN FIRST COST

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 1.—The shipping board has voted to sell the government's five ships in the San Francisco-Orient service, which cost thirty million dollars, for $5,625,000.

The ships were voted sold at a price which is 25 million dollars less than their original cost and 15 millions less than it would cost to construct them at this time.

Farmer Worries Over Money.

LINCOLN, Ill., April 1.—The body of Ervin A. Trefter, Logan county farmer, was found at his home near Pulaski today with a rifle bullet in the forehead. He was believed to have committed suicide since it was known he had been despondent over illness and financial difficulties.

Head-on Crash.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 1.— Two men and a woman were killed and another man and another woman critically injured here early today when their automobile traveling nearly 60 miles an hour crashed head-on into a street car at St. Paul-Minneapolis intercity limits.

Firetrap School Burns.

Fire in the grade school in Brookfield endangered the lives of the 450 school children. The fire destroyed the third floor. Some of the children were hit by flying embers, altho, miraculously, none were seriously injured.

German Building Burns.

The German building, one of the last remaining landmarks of the world famous Chicago fair of 1892 was destroyed yesterday by fire of undetermined origin. The flames had gained great headway when firemen reached the scene.

AUTO TRUST IS FORMED BY WALL STREET BANKERS

NEW YORK, April 1.—A New York banking syndicate headed by Dillon, Read and company, will acquire control of Dodge Brothers, Detroit automobile manufacturing company, when the final papers in the negotiations are signed this week, it was learned today.

In order to acquire this property, the bankers crossed swords with Morgan interests, who were anxious to annex it to the General Motors Co. enterprises. The success of Dillon, Read and company was due to the fact that they offered cash, where the Morgan bankers suggested the exchange of stock of General Motors and affiliated concerns.

Consummation of the purchase of Dodge Brothers was expected to be made the basis for another gigantic merger of automobile manufacturers, involving property worth $500,000,000 and including the Packard Motor Co., Hudson Motor Co. and Briggs Body corporation. It is understood that about $175,000,000 in cash will be transferred to the Dodge Brothers' heirs in the closing of the deal, making it one of the largest single cash transfers for an industrial unit in the history of the country. The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. is also interested in the deal.

Deny Latest "Trotsky Story."

MOSCOW, April 1.—Soviet officials semi-officially denied today rumors that Leon Trotsky had been slain and his body destroyed. Officials said Trotsky, late Soviet commissar for war, still was at Suchum continuing his cure and had so far improved in health that he was able to make speeches and had written a book.

BIG CORPORATIONS AND POLICE PROSTITUTE LATEST INVENTIONS TO SAFEGUARD PROFIT SYSTEM

The radio, telephone, and the photo-telephone, are now being used by the large corporations, thru their servants, the police departments, to protect private property.

The latest inventions, instead of being used for the betterment of mankind, the advancement of science, and the raising of the standard of living of the workers, are being prostituted by the capitalists to prolong their regime of exploitation.

The organization of a national system for the rapid identification of criminals will be started by the Bell Telephone company on Saturday, when the Chicago, New York and San Francisco police departments will be hooked up for the transmission of "telepix" photos by telephone.

This latest invention, the photo telephone, will be used to broadcast the pictures of "criminals" all over the country within a few minutes, so that private property may be protected.

and cite ex-representative Chandler, speaking in New York, who said "alien Reds must be told that Russia is their normal abode. American Reds must be told that Leavenworth or Atlanta is a better living place for them than New York City." And "Reds" of course, are all workers who fight against reaction, wage cuts, longer hours, open shop, company unions, and for better conditions, strengthening of unions thru amalgamation, etc.

Want Docile Slaves.

What the government and the bosses want is docile wage slaves. How do the bosses get around the immigration quota regulations when they want cheap labor in quantities in certain sections? Why, there is a convenient arrangement under which Mexican and other workers are brot into the United States under the contract system, and supposedly shipped back when the job is done.

Not so long ago the American Civil Liberties Union reported "The fear of radicalism has very largely abated as a result of the sweeping conservative victory in the campaign and there will be less interference with their propaganda." In relation to this statement a religious weekly (!) asked "Are we to judge that the failure of their cause is the only way to insure free speech for 'pink' lips?" But evidently the cause has not failed, and there will be continued interference in spite of the Civil Liberties Union's statement. The government now aims to divide the workers, and hopes to break this resistance by centering the attack on the foreign born. So the fight must and will go on.

Dropped One Case.

Only recently the Labor Defense Council has had to take up the cases of John Schedel, Blais Kuush, Thomas Klein, E. Vajtauer, John Lassen and the three Young Workers in New York City, all of whom are involved under existing deportation laws. On direct appeal to the Secretary of Labor, deportation proceedings against Klein were abandoned, due principally to the fact that Klein has a dependant wife and seven children in this country. It is hoped that the Schedel case, where the situation is similar to that of Klein, will also be dropped. After long and unsuccesful efforts in the courts the defense was only able to get permission for Kuush to voluntarily deport himself to Russia. Kuush and his wife left New York on February 28. Vajtauer and Lassen were both active editors of Communist language dailies and it looks as tho they were deliberately "selected" for deportation. Evidence against them was taken from their writings in these papers. Vajtauer is still held on Ellis Island; the Lassen case is pending.

Also recently the proceedings against A. V. Severino, active Communist in the labor movement of Cleveland were renewed. Severino is a naturalized citizen of Italian birth, but the department of justice is moving to take away his citizenship papers and then have him deported. Another case of "selective" deportation. Severino is too active in the labor movement. He is a "Red." The technical (open) argument of the government seems to be: If you are a Red now you must have been when you entered the country; for Redness is a foreign disease, it doesn't have its birth or growth here; therefore you must have misrepresented yourself when you asked for citizenship.

So not only alien workers are menaced but also naturalized workers. All of the workers of America must unite in a fight against the deportation methods and bills of the bosses, for the sake of working class strength, resistance, and solidarity.

Workers Seeking Power Are Today's Victims of Class That Oppresses

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, workers may well interest themselves in the activities of the state's attorney's office in the so-called Shepherd case. It is just an incident that the same terroristic methods are being used by Crowe's frame-up gang in this case, that feature every attack on labor.

There is this difference, however. William D. Shepherd has a million to back his fight. The newspapers are alternately friendly to him and to the state's attorney's office. Shepherd's case gets before "the public" without prejudice, in fact, the Hearst press is pretty much on his side. Shepherd's case will get before the jury, without prejudice, in the promised murder trial. All of which is denied workers who threaten the employer's power.

• • • •

This sensational murder case has developed into open warfare over witnesses who say they can "blow the whole Shepherd case out of the water." There is an Earl Clark who made an affidavit that he "had never seen any germs of any nature in Faiman's school." He is promptly arrested by Crowe's office. Then there is a Mrs. Luella Rhuebell, another former attache of Faiman's school, who claims she had "never seen a letter written by Shepherd" that Faiman said was sent to him inquiring about a course in bacteriology. Crowe's police are immediately put on her trail, but she eludes capture at her apartment by getting away via the fire escape.

All of which will no doubt develop interesting clashes at the trial. But no one will get hurt.

• • • •

It is different when a worker, like Salsedo, held captive in the federal offices of the capitalist state on a top floor of a New York skyscraper, is driven mad by the persecution to which he is subjected, and leaps from the window of his prison, being crushed to death on the pavement far below. That was during one of the "red raids" that had the endorsement, if not the actual participation, of both the Shepherds and the Crowes. In the Salsedo case, for instance, the kept press of the metropolis was all on one side, on the side of capitalist prosecutors.

• • • •

But the piffle writers of the yellow dailies are also at liberty to expatiate at great length on the murder, by John Bircher, aged 73, of his wife, after which he committed suicide. Bircher had prayed publicly for the conversion of his wife to his religious views. When she refused to be converted he murdered her. None other than Arthur Brisbane, again of the Hearst press, finds comfort in the fact that:

> "There was a time, not long ago, when nations and organized religions within the nations did on a gigantic scale exactly what this half-crazy man in Ohio did to his wife."

Which raises the question whether Bircher or Brisbane is insane; no doubt both. Bircher is a survival of the religious intolerance that is dying out, because religion feels itself powerful enough to get along without crucifying its opponents. One of the highest points in Chicago is the tip of a cross on top of a "loop" skyscraper owned by a church. All religious sects are backing one creed in New York City today in the building of a $15,000,000 cathedral. The church feels secure in its place under capitalism and it can afford to be tolerant of its enemies, at least for the time bring. Not so the capitalist state that protects it.

When the Brisbane-Hearst outfit called for the blood of Mooney and Billings, in California, as it did, it was not much different from Bircher, the religious fanatic turned murderer in Ohio.

It wasn't the catholic church in Poland that sought the blood of Stanislav Lanzutsky. But it was the church's best protector, the Polish capitalist state. It is capitalism that fears for its life today. It murders and throws into prison by the tens and hundreds of thousands the political dissenters of today, the Communists, just as surely as the Roman Caesars threw Christians to the lions in the arena twenty centuries ago, or the British church in the early 17th century drove dissenters across the Atlantic to find new homes on the unsettled shores of the American continent.

• • • •

Brisbane isn't a Nero. But he would like to be one. He is just a little scribbler for the great capitalist Neroes of this day, who send workers to the gallows, or to prison, when they protest against the torture of labor today in the world's great industries of this century.

It is the dread of the destruction of this insane capitalist system that unites myriads of madmen like Brisbane, the journalist; Shepherd, the little capitalist; Mundelein, the churchman; Crowe, the prosecutor, in support of the capitalist state with its nominal heads like Coolidge, in the United States; Mussolini, in Italy; Horthy, in Hungary, or Grabski, in Poland. In the war against Communism all these defenders of capitalism are no more sane than Bircher, the Ohio murderer, crazed in defense of his religion. Every oppressing class breeds its own brand of madmen. Communism comes to rid the world of all oppressors. It comes to bring sanity to this earth.

SECTION OF THE TRADE UNION EDUCATIONAL LEAGUE

LOSOVSKY WRITES ON REFORMISM IN PRE-WAR UNIONS

The Third Kind of Union Ideology

By A. LOSOVSKY.

General Secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

Finally, we have the third movement, the social-democratic trade union movement, the most representative of which has been the German and Austrian trade unions. What are the characteristics of this type of trade union organization? It has to a certain degree been between trade unionism and anarcho-syndicalism. In theory, the social-democratic trade union movement arose from the necessity of creating a new social order.

Therefore, it has been different than the pure trade unionism in that it had as its aims the problem of creating a new society, or the destruction—under certain conditions—of capitalism. It was socialistic in the sense that it had socialistic ideas. But we would be greatly mistaken if we would mix the socialist ideas, or in other words the socialist theory and resolutions about socialism, with the everyday practice—with the preparation of the coming of socialism.

The "Gradualist" Idea.

The characteristic of the pre-war social-democratic trade union movement was the thought of the possibility of arriving at the new society by gradual transition, separate victories and separate changes of society. In this way, the overthrow of capitalism was not the aim of these unions, but the gradual change of society. And this development of socialist from a capitalist society they visioned as a developed form of democracy, a developed democratic society which spreads its democracy to the maximum. It is the development from political democracy, gradually becoming an economic and social democracy.

This is the basis of the theory of the social-democratic trade union movement. Socialism, from their point of view, is the legal son of democracy. It should gradually grow out of the development of democratic forms.

Reformism and Its Aliases.

And now we see that the characteristic of the social-democratic trade union movement which differentiates it is what we call "graduation" or slow evolutionary steps from one form into another. This idea has different names in different countries, but in general and more correctly it may be understood as "reformism," which means the idea of gradual change of society by means of reforms.

In France that which we call "graduation" has had the name of "possibilism." In England the same thing has been called "Fabianism," adopted by the so-called Socialists who are for a slow, gradual transition from one system into another.

"General Strike is Party Business."

The social-democratic trade union movement stands separate from the social-democratic party. It believes somewhat in a division of function: The party has to do with politics, we, the trade unions, have to do with economics. The general problems of the labor movement are under the jurisdiction of the party, but we, the trade unions, should only have to deal with economics.

And it is interesting that there were many cases where the trade unions of Germany refused to consider the question of a general strike under the pretext that it was not under their jurisdiction, that it was the business of the party.

The Three Main Streams of Thought.

We have, therefore, three ideological factions in the world's trade union movement, which, before the war, were often in conflict with each other. These conflicts were mostly conflicts of leaders of different countries, notwithstanding the fact that these factions existed in every country. In Germany, where the socialist movement was most influential, the anarcho-syndicalist movement was very weak and mostly in so-called "local unions."

In France, where the anarcho-syndicalist movement was the stronger, alongside with it there existed a powerful reformist trade union movement of pure German type. In America, and England where they have a specific type of trade union movement, other forms of the trade union movement also existed.

Carpet Weavers on Strike for More Pay

AMSTERDAM, N. Y.—The weavers of axminster carpets in the firm of Sanford and Sons here, are out on strike for an increase in wages.

"COME INTO MY PARLOR," SAYS THE OPEN SHOPPER SPIDER TO THE TEXTILE WORKER FLIES

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 31.—A committee of prominent people, the best in the city, have finally stepped forward to make a gesture at settling the strike, 18 days after it started. On Friday, March 13, the first week of the strike, I asked Acting Mayor Hickey what the city was doing about the strike, to which he responded, "The city can't do anything." Which was natural for a city council owned body and mind by the American Thread Co. But there's nothing like throwing a bluff. And the "red menace" must be met. To continue to do nothing would be simply adding fuel to the red propaganda, which has thrown Willimantic into a feverish state.

City Fathers Not Concerned

On March 21st, an alderman wrote to Hissoner, asking for a meeting of the common council "for the purpose of discussing the strike situation." On the 23rd, the acting mayor replied that he had submitted the question to every council member, whose unanimous opinion was that "The matter did not come under their consideration." In reply, the lone alderman took a dig at his fellow politicians: "No one can be honest in politics, even in this small city, attested to by the thirty or forty places that are daily selling liquor in the city, because a board of alderman does not feel, as in the present strike situation, that the enforcement of law comes within their jurisdiction."

Open Shoppers Appointed

The common council has not dealt with the strike, for the American Thread Co., does not wish it to. Acting Mayor Hickey, on his own initiative, appointed a committee, consisting of the following elite: George W. Hickey, acting mayor; James P. Bath, president of the chamber of commerce; Harry W. Standish, president of the rotary club; T. Frank Canningham, president of the businessemen's association; Russell A. Andrews, first selectman; John R. Pickett, assessor; James J. Lee, alderman; Charles A. Gates, county sheriff; last and not least, H. N. Bullard of the Chronicle. Before this honorable guard of capital, the strikers committee appeared yesterday afternoon to state their side of the case, as tho it needed further explanation.

The businessmen in town hate to see their profits diminish. They are losing money, since the strikers buy only absolute necessities. They want the strike settled, but they are not concerned with the justice or injustice of the worker's fight. Whether the workers get 5 or 10 per cent or nothing, is not the vital matter with them. They want the strike to be settled, the quicker the better. The American Thread company has been shut up like a clam, since the strike began. The company hopes to starve the workers into submission. Only the workers have expressed a desire to meet with the mayor's committee, and naturally, the strikers will be asked to be "reasonable," etc.

Rely Upon Yourselves

This reliance on mediation will do the workers little good. When President McMahon were here on March 18th, he advised the strike committee to go before the exchange club and tell them the strikers' side of the conflict. This went against the grain of one committee member, but they all went. The exchange club is a businessmen's organization, similar to the rotary club, containing members of the chamber of commerce. Yet the strike committee representatives appeared before them.

The strikers must remember that if the mills remain shut down, and no workers enter the mills to work, then the strike is won, and the ten per cent restored. The strike will be won more quickly, if more workers can be thrown into the conflict, if the Fall River and Holyoke plants are pulled out; and if the movement can be spread to the seventeen plants in England of the English Sewing Cotton company, limited.

All Others Are Enemies

Labor can only rely on itself. The role of those not a part of the working class is to settle the strike at all costs, whether the strikers win or not. The working class has only itself to fall back upon; that the textile workers will learn before many moons are over.

Six Months Jail for Organizing Workers

WESTWOOD, Cal.—Charles B. Griswold, I. W. W. organizer, was arrested in Westwood for violation of the Busick anti-I. W. W. injunction, the specific charge being the enrollment of new members (loggers) into the organization. This is the first arrest under the injunction in this part of California. Griswold demanded a jury trial, which was granted, the jury of lumber company employes bringing in a verdict of guilty in ten minutes. He was sentenced to six months in the county jail.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 1.—Three dead and 13 hurt in trolley and automobile accidents was the Sunday toll here, the worst since the opening of spring road traffic.

BALTIMORE STRIKE, LED BY COMMUNISTS, WINNING SHOPS FOR UNION RATE

BALTIMORE, Md.,— Eighty-five per cent of the struck clothing factories in Baltimore have settled with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union. Wage increases average nearly fifteen per cent, bringing wages up to union standards. Fifteen hundred workers in these tailor-to-trade factories walked out March 24. Communists organized the strike.

Anthracite Miners Now Discussing the Progressive Policy

SCRANTON, Pa.—The anthracite miners received another lemon from the "impartial" umpire of the anthracite conciliation board, Charles P. Neil when he denied the tracklayers of the Pine Brook colliery an increase in wages now being received by some of the tracklayers working on the main haulage ways. The argument used by this "impartial" gentleman is that in 1902 the tracklayers had a difference in rates and for that reason he cannot grant a uniform rate to all the men even tho they are doing the same kind of work.

After deciding that the operators need not pay the men same wages for same kind of work, Mr. Neil realized that to uphold his reputation as an impartial umpire he had to do something for the workers as well, and, so he forthwith expressed his full "sympathy" for the grievance of the tracklayers.

This decision is another nail in the coffin of the infamous conciliation board that unfailingly hands all the important decisions to the operators and much sympathy and occasionally a minor decision to the miners to keep them pacified.

The Progressive Miners' Committee demands in its election program the unconditional abolition of the conciliation board and calls for the direct settlement of all grievances between the operators and the union with representatives of the grievance committees present at the settlement. The progressive program is attracting wide attention in the present district election campaign. For the first time the miners are discussing vital issues in connection with the elections.

Bernard Zaleskas and John Witcunas running as candidates on the progressive ticket for district president and vice president are the only candidates running with a program in this election.

The union bureaucracy working hand in hand with the mine bosses are already threatening the supporters of the progressive candidates with the loss of jobs for distributing the progressve programs in the unions and the mines.

Road Boss in Illinois Trims Wages on Poor Unemployed Workers

HILLSBORO, Ill.—Work on the hard roads near Hillsboro begins with the law of supply and demand working beautifully for the contractor, in this case of a company from Texas. The company opened an employment office in the middle of March and put a notice in the paper.

A modern Coxie's army of jobless greeted the boss when he showed up at 7 a. m. He promptly cut the advertised rate of 35 cents an hour for laborers to 30 cents and so many men were left after all the jobs were filled that the fortunate ones expect another cut next month. The wages paid men with their own teams and scrapers is 60 cents an hour and the team owners feed their own horses. The shift is 9 hours.

Thus is Illinois being pulled out of the mud. The workers here are unorganized so they are helpless. Down in despised Williamson county when the hard roads contractor reached Herrin he ran up against a solid laborers' union. There was a flareup and the usual howl from the boss about not enuf money from the state, etc. But when he laid the concrete thru Williamson county he paid the union muckers 80 cents an hour and they worked an 8-hour day.

ONE NIGHT STAND DRAMA PLAYED BY INQUISITION

Villain Runs Away with Audience

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Mich.,—Acting on the suggestion of William Reynolds, ex-expelled member of the carpenters' union, that any dirty work against the carpenters should be arranged for in the Hotel Statler and not in a regular meeting hall, the inquisitors led by Cosgrove and Duffy arranged for a star chamber session of the district council in that place for Friday evening, March 27.

When the delegates, including Reynolds, having been notified by telephone or telegraph, had arrived in the lobby, Reynolds was advised by Cosgrove that the "evidence" would be submitted to the delegates, a statement would be made by the committee and the delegates would get a chance to "justify their action."

Reynolds, so Cosgrove intimated, would not be present as the committee must be "consistent" with the attitude of the general office which did not recognise Reynolds as a member, but he would be told "in brief" what had happened afterwards and would be allowed to make a statement and be given a hearing.

When the delegates marched into the parlor, Reynolds marched with them, although again advised by Cosgrove that he "could not." When all had been seated, the following little drama occurred:

Act One—Scene One

Cosgrove (in the chair): "This meeting cannot go on until all those not recognized by the general office as members are removed."

Reynolds: "Brother Cosgrove."

Cosgrove: "I want no statements from any non-members."

Reynolds "I have stated that I would never again leave a meeting of the district council unless forced to do so. However, if you wish to present any evidence against me and make statements and allow me to answer them and assure me that my case will not be discussed further, I will leave, then, so that any other business might be taken up."

Cosgrove: "We are giving no assurance to any non-members."

Reynolds: "I am giving most emphatic assurances that I will not leave. Now do your stuff."

Cosgrove: "Reynolds, you must leave!"

Reynolds "Cosgrove, I am here!"

A delegate: "A point of information."

Cosgrove: "I will answer nothing while Reynolds is here."

A delegate "We had enough czars. Come on, fellows, let's go." Business of walking out amid general laugher.

Curtain

Five delegates for Local Union 1805 remained with the whitewash committee from the executive board and the injunctionites Botterill, Sharrock, and Fish.

Even with this "select" group, a strong fight, not for Reynolds but against the method of procedure of the general executive board and against their stupid conduct in Detroit, developed. Fish, the district council secretary who was forced by Botterill to sign the injunction, was especially bitter against that fossilized autocrat.

A Great Bellyache Develops

The inquisitorial mission has learned during its brief visit that even those few who nominally support them are very sick of what they must support. The great majority are openly opposed to the bullheadedness of Hutcheson and his coterie of autocratic associates and parasitic appointees. They have made it manifest to these plump parasites that Detroit is no parking place for old dotards with the temperaments of retired rear admirals.

Sharrock, whose reputation as a progressive and career as a labor leader has been broken in a vain effort to uphold the G. E. B.'s miscarriage of justice, sat thru the meetings Thursday and Friday with a smile which said, "This is the bed you made for me. How do you like it?"

"Choose Your Exit Now"

The "five crooked aces," as one delegate called them to their faces, have returned to Indiana with food for some long, long thoughts. We hope that their actions in the future will prove them chastened and wiser.

Part Time Work to Starve Workers Into Accepting Wage Cuts

WOONSOCKET, R. I.—Attempt to cut wages of woolen goods workers will be met by a strike. Curtailment of operations, with part time work, is seen by the union as an attempt of company management to get the workers so hungry that they will accept a wage cut when it is offered. So far no general attempt has been made to cut woolen workers wages, as has been done in the cotton industry.

PROMISES OF TEXTILE BARONS TO MILL WORKERS ARE BROKEN AS WAGES FALL AND JOBS MOVE

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The fraud Senator Butler and his textile associates put over on New England cotton mill operatives when he promised better earnings and ability to compete with the south as a result of wage cuts is appearing in the statistics of the industry. Wages of cotton mill workers in Massachusetts in February averaged $19.76 a week compared with $20.05 a year ago and the number on the payrolls remained 12½ per cent below 1922. New England mills averaged only 150 hours per spindle while southern mills averaged 274.

Increasing Production.

Cotton mills thruout the country are averaging 208 hours of operation per spindle, compared with 194 hours in February, 1924. But Secy. C. S. Green of the Southern Yarn Spinners Assn., says: "Mills will soon reduce operations by a cut of approximately 25 per cent."

The sharp contrast between average hours in New England and the south during February is shown in the department of commerce figures:

February cotton mill operation	Hours per spindle
Maine	187
New Hampshire	154
Massachusetts	138
Rhode Island	171
Connecticut	177
Alabama	259
Georgia	270
North Carolina	289
South Carolina	283
Virginia	204

Southern states with 17,420,952 spindles reported 4,780,000,000 spindle hours operation while New England with a million more spindles reported only 2,770,000,000 spindle hours, about two million less. In 1924 New England lost nearly 400,000 spindles while southern states gained 570,000.

Better Move the Union Along.

What this means is revealed in the in the annual report of the New England Southern Mills, a Massachusetts corporation. It says: "A year ago we had under way the moving of 35,000 spinning spindles and 15,000 twister spindles from Lowell, LeRoy and Newburyport plants to a new building under construction at Hogansville, Ga., At Tucapau, S. C., we have installed the necessary machinery for the manufacture of crash toweling. These crashes were formerly made at the old Stark Mills in Manchester, N. H."

The Manufacturers' Record reports that the equipment of the new Worth mills of Forth Worth, Tex., consisting of 16,000 spindles was moved from the Fairhaven mills of New Bedford, Mass. The company's statement describes this as the transplanting of a mill to a place of lower wage costs and gloats over the fact that 2,000 workers applied for the 350 jobs available when the mill opened.

California Sticks to 'Criminal Syndicalism'

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—(FP)— Assemblyman Hornblower's bill to repeal the California criminal syndicalism law was unanimously killed in committee. Hornblower and two representatives of the State Federation of Labor defended the bill, pointing out its injustice to innocent men, and characterizing it as an example of "post war hysteria."

Seen on a Street Car

By A WORKER.

A young man with a copy of a capitalist paper in his hands (judging from appearance—an office worker of $15-20 per) is about to take an unoccupied seat in the street car. He glances at a copy of the DAILY WORKER which happened to be lying on the seat. He throws it on the floor, settles down and reads the capitalist sheet.

The majority of us, like this young man, neglect to read our own paper. Why? Our paper brings to us our class problems. It enlightens us on the exploitation of the workers by the capitalist class in power. It points out for us how injunctions, the army, the police, thugs and dicks are used by the capitalists to break our backbone in strikes for better living conditions.

The DAILY WORKER teaches us that thru the establishment of workers' control, unemployment, child labor, race discrimination, unsanitary housing and working conditions and bloody wars will be abolished.

Workers, the capitalist press misleads you. It tells you you are free and promises you a heaven beyond the grave as a reward for your suffering on earth.

Workers, do not let the capitalists mock at you because of your ignorance. Read your own paper, the DAILY WORKER, not the capitalist sheets.

Women's Eight Hour Bill Side-Tracked By House Committee

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 1.—The bill limiting the work of Illinois women to eight hours a day and six days a week, has been reported out of the committee on industrial affairs with no recommendation, and consequently will not be placed on the house calender.

The industrial affairs committee claims to have committed an oversight, but the proponents of the bill declare that it was purposely shunted to one side.

Urges Combine Against Reds.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 1—That the democratic and republican parties are both parties of capitalism was shown in the speech here of Governor William Brandon of Alabama, who urged the two parties to combine to fight the Communists. Brandon suggested a conference of both parties in Washington.

WORKERS FIGHT INJUNCTION IN ILLINOIS HOUSE

Employers Lobby for Court Power

The Illinois Manufacturers' Association in a private letter sent only to members of the organization, reveals the employers' reliance on the courts to suppress unionism and aid in breaking strikes.

The letter is headed, "Anti-Injunction Menace," and declares:

Bosses Fight Unionism.

"Labor union leaders are planning to force a vote in the house of the Illinois general assembly on the anti-injunction bill (H. B. 28) Tuesday, March 31.

"Unless a herculean effort is made on the part of manufacturers and property owners generally, this proposed legislation will pass the house. It is a vicious measure in every particular in that it deprives the courts of the right to protect life and property and is for the purpose of aiding the extension of the most radical kind of unionism."

The anti-injunction bill, which aims to prevent court interference with the right of workers to strike, came up on the floor of the house today and a bitter debate began immediately.

"Labor is in danger from this power of injunction," one representative said, "And the menace is even greater in Illinois than elsewhere. Labor is asking to be relieved of the type of employer who wants to rule by injunction."

Witnesses to Prove Gompers Was Sane Included LaFollette

WASHINGTON, D. C.—It appears that when the widow of Sam Gompers last week gave up her fight to get more from his estate than the legal minimum which he left her in his will, made just before he started to Mexico, some interesting developments were lost to mankind.

Samuel, Junior, who got the bulk of the estate, was prepared to bring witnesses to prove that Samuel, Senior, was in his right mind when he made the will. Among others, these witnesses included Senator LaFollette.

Samuel, Junior, has been and is getting along famously as a government piecard under the republican administration of both Harding and Coolidge. He is chief clerk in the U. S. department of labor, the chief function of which is to betray strikes with so-called "mediation," to prevent any "radicals" from getting into the country, and to deport them without trial if they get radical after they work for Judge Gary and the other open shoppers.

Samuel, Senior, leaves a $25,0 home in Washington, among other legacies, including bonds in some investment not revealed.

No. 1
Trade Unions in America
By Wm. Z. Foster, James P. Cannon and Earl R. Browder

Is, with a brief statement of the American trade union movement, a history of the development of the left wing and an explanation of the structure and program of its guiding spirit—the Trade Union Educational League.

No. 2
Class Struggle vs. Class Collaboration
By Earl R. Browder

Is a splendid study of the methods of labor bureaucracy to divert the workers from militant struggle thru the B. & O. plan, insurance schemes and workers' education. A most valuable number for the thinking worker.

If you have not as yet seen a copy of this splendid little propaganda giant, and have not enjoyed the valuable reading in each, be sure to ask your local Daily Worker Agent for a copy—or a dozen copies. (They are twelve for $1.00:)

FEDERAL OFFICER PROPAGANDIZES AGAINST NEGROES

Government Backing Rouses Protest

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 1—Use of the department of labor's privilege of free mailing (franking) for the purpose of spreading vicious anti-Negro propaganda has aroused vigorous protest and a demand for the dismissal of the department agent involved.

W. A. Plecker, the culprit, is a Virginian, and has been using his government franking privileges to distribute free of charge a pamphlet entitled "Eugenics in Relation to the New Family and the Law on Racial Integrity" of which he is a co-author and which describes our black fellow workers as members of a lower race who must be treated as inferior.

"Dr. Plecker is an avowed anti-Negro propagandist," says the protest to U. S. Secretary of Labor Davis. "What he has to say . . . is insulting to all colored American citizens, but when as an official of the United States department of labor he sends this matter out under government frank and at the expense of the common tax payers, his actions become a public outrage."

Classical Dancing, Workers' Athletics at Cleveland Dance

CLEVELAND, O., April 1.—April 5, Gridina's Hall will be the scene of Cleveland's liveliest, most hilarious, most riotous Communist entertainment ever staged in the history of the local. Fifty Finnish comrades of the Finnish Athletic club will demonstrate with parallel bars and bar-bells the meaning of workers' sport activity. Double cut-offs, single backward cut-offs, hand-stands and shoulder rolls will be part of the program of athletic feats which will entertain the audience of workers who will also participate in the international costume ball, one of the evening's festivities.

The leading feature of the evening will be the number by Lillian Krestan, popular youthful ballet dancer of Cleveland radical circles. The climax of her performance will be the revolutionary dance for which Isadora Duncan was barred from Boston auditoriums.

Supper will be served at 6:00 p. m. Admission in advance is thirty-five cents; at the door, forty-five cents. The doors open at 3:00 p. m.

Anti-Nationalistic Concert and Spring Fever Dance in Bronx

BRONX, N. Y., April 1.—All the young folks and all the folks who feel young are invited to attend the Spring Fever Costume Dance of the Young Workers League, Bronx English branch on Saturday, April 4 at 1347 Boston road, Bronx. This appropriate affair promises many novel features and a good time for all. The spring fever inoculation costs only 50 cents and includes admission to all the fun.

On April 11th the Bronx English Branch No. 1 W. P. has arranged an original international anti-nationalistic concert and ball. This will also be held at 1347 Boston road, and tickets cost 50c.

DANCE FOR BENEFIT OF WHITE RUSSIAN PRISONERS IN POLAND

The Workers' Home, together with the White Russian Peoples' Society will give a concert and dance this Sunday, April 5, at Schoenhofen Hall, corner Milwaukee and Ashland avenues, for the benefit of the political prisoners in Poland. Many of the White Russians who are fighting for the liberation of the territory forcibly annexed by Poland and which is in fact part of the Soviet Republic of White Russia, are suffering in the jails of Poland. Only a few days ago, the capitalist press reported how two of such prisoners who were on their way to be exchanged for Polish prisoners in Soviet Russia, were shot down by the Polish chief of police.

All who are in sympathy with the liberation movement in Poland are invited to attend this affair and thereby help the victims of the Polish bourgeoisie. The concert will start at 4 p. m.

DUNNE ADDRESSES YOUNG WORKERS ON ROLE OF NEGRO IN CLASS WAR

With an attendance of more than 30 young workers, nearly half of whom were Negroes, Branch No. 3 of the Chicago Young Workers League, held its first meeting last Friday, in its new hall at 3201 S. Wabash Ave.

Comrade Bill Dunne spoke on the role of the Negro workers in the class struggle in America, with particular emphasis on the importance of winning the Negro youth. Comrade Dunne's speech was listened to attentively and was followed by questions and discussion which served to bring out additional points of interest.

In the future it is planned to adhere to the educational program of the city central committee, but to have as many special lectures as possible. The Negro question in particular will be closely studied, as the branch is located in the heart of the Chicago so-called "black belt," and prospects of organizing large numbers of young Negro workers seem very favorable.

In view of the splendid success of the mass social and get-to-gether held recently in conjunction with the South Side Branch of the Workers Party it has been decided to give another one on the last Saturday in April. However greater emphasis will be laid on the propaganda and organizational features of this affair.

Organizing Shop Nuclei.

On the industrial field the branch is engaged in building nuclei at the Pullman car shops and the Chicago Mail Order house. Efforts are being made to connect members of this branch with members of the Pullman branch who are also employed in the car shops. When this is accomplished a real live nucleus will start functioning in this important plant employing thousands of young industrial workers.

The campaign at the Chicago Mail Order house is being carried on thru the medium of a semi-weekly mimeographed organ, The C. M. O. C. Workers Bulletin. This bulletin is received with great favor by the young workers and several of them have come down to branch meetings and expressed a desire to participate in the work which the league is carrying on. The next issue of the bulletin which will be out Friday will be a special organizational one and will carry an appeal to the young workers to attend the next meeting of the branch to deal with conditions at the Chicago Mail Order house. A special program of entertainment and speaking has been prepared for the evening in expectation of a good turnout from the young mail order house workers.

Los Angeles Juniors Promise Big Program for Annual Festival

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 1.—The Junior section of the Young Workers League of Los Angeles have been very busy for the past two months preparing themselves for their second anniversary. The date of the celebration is April 12, the place, Co-operative Centre, 2706 Brooklyn Ave.

The rumors are that this year's concert will be even better than last years, and that is saying a lot—for those who were to the first anniversary concert of the Juniors last April still remember the wonderful program offered by the Juniors, and will turn out 100 per cent strong this year.

It would take too much space to numerate all things on the program, but a few of the numbers are: "Happy Prince", play in three scenes; "Labor Defense," operetta in four scenes; "Spirit of Communism," ballet. Close to 75 children will partake in the program.

This is the event of the year. We advise you not to miss it. Get your ticket beforehand to assure your securing a seat. Tickets can be gotten at the Co-operative Centre any evening from 7 p. m.

The junior section of the Young Yorkers League of L. A. meets every Tuesday and Wednesday night from 7 p. m. to 8:30, at the Co-operative Centre. We urge all parents to send their children to this organization, as it is the only children's organization of its kind. We invite all children to visit our group meetings.

Dance for Relief of Irish Famine Victims Planned for Cleveland

CLEVELAND, March 31. — The Cleveland branch of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Relief committee has arranged a benefit dance to raise funds for the relief of the Irish famine sufferers, to be held Saturday, April 4, at Gordon Square Market hall, West 65th and Detroit Ave.

The Uncle Sam and Terence McSwiney clubs of the Irish Republican organization have donated the hall for the evening. There will be Irish and American dancing at this popular west side hall. Admission is 50 cents.

Circulating Donation Lists.

The committee is arranging for a public mass meeting in April to be addressed by a prominent Irish speaker and contribution lists are being circulated among the workers of Cleveland.

All those who are able to assist in this work by selling tickets for the dance or circulating contribution lists, should get in touch at once with the secretary of the committee, John Fromholz, Room 13, 5927 Euclid Ave., phone Randolph 4065.

Scandinavian Reds Have Benefit Party Next Saturday Eve.

Workers on the northwest side of the city will have an opportunity to spend an enjoyable evening as paying guests of the Karl Marx branch of the Workers Party, at a benefit dance and surprise party which will be held in the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard, next Saturday evening, April 4. One of the best orchestras in town is engaged for the occasion. There is no objection to visitors from any other part of the city.

Stamford Y. W. L. Reorganizes

STAMFORD, Conn., Apr. 1.—Branch 164 of the Stamford, Conn. Young Workers League has been reorganized with all the old members attending and new ones added. Every member has pledged himself to greater activity to make the branch forge ahead in real Communist activities. The co-operation of other branches will be appreciated.

Harlem Forum to Discuss Religion Next Sunday Nite

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 1.—Harlem Open Forum will tackle the subject of religion this coming Sunday evening, April 5, at the Harlem section headquarters, Workers Party, Local New York, 64 East 104th street. The discussion will be led by H. Bourgin, former editor of the Novy Mir, well-known as a writer and lecturer on Communism. Comrade Bourgin, who has written on the subject of religion, will speak on the topic: "Religion as an Instrument of Capitalism." Especially at this time when a campaign is being conducted to introduce religious instruction in the schools, the discussion at the forum will be highly interesting and valuable.

There will be three more sessions of the Harlem Open Forum: Sunday, April 12 — The Family — Jeannette Pearl leading the discussion; Sunday, April 19—The Capitalist, Labor and Communist Press — Ludwig Lore; Sunday, April 26 — Proletcult — Eli Jacobson.

Ragozin to Teach Class in Harlem.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Ray Ragozin, one of the founders of the Communist Party, and an expert teacher has been secured as teacher of a class in Fundamentals of Communism, for the Harlem section of the Workers Party, Local New York. She will conduct the class every Friday evening at the Harlem headquarters, 64 East 104th St.

MOISSAYE OLGIN TO SPEAK IN RUSSIAN IN CHICAGO, APRIL 17

What promises to be one of the most interesting lectures given in Chicago in the Russian language is the lecture to be given by Comrade Moissaye Olgin, co-editor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir. He will speak at the Workers' Home (formerly the Soviet School), 1902 W. Division St., on Friday, April 17, at 8 p. m., on "What did the Russian Revolution Give to the Workers and Peasants?"

Comrade Olgin was in Russia a few times during the revolution as delegate to the Comintern. He is the author of "The Soul of the Russian Revolution," and other works about the revolution. He is an excellent speaker and it is expected that he will draw a big crowd of those who understand the Russian language. Admission is only 25 cents.

BUILDERS AT WORK

MAKE IT A COMMUNIST SUMMER!

By TOM MATTHEWS.

THE first warm days of summer will soon be here. The Young Workers Leaguers, like the live-wires that they are, will set out across the country on their annual hikes, many of them from coast-to-coast. The building tradesmen in the Workers Party and Trade Union Educational League will move about from town to town as their work may dictate. The agricultural workers will be out in the fields. Party members engaged in winter-season occupations will take their flivvers out on vacation trips.

• • • •

All of these will have the opportunity of their life to do pioneer work in building and extending the lines of the Communist movement in this country. Along with every tool box and every knapsack must go the DAILY WORKER—the tools of Communist BUILDERS. Every small town factory or railroad shop, every farmer's door or mail box must be visited with the DAILY WORKER Every group of agricultural workers in the fields or orchards must be made acquainted with the DAILY WORKER.

• • • •

If you are so fortunate as to possess an automobile, then LOAD IT UP WITH THE DAILY WORKER. You needn't wait for that cross-country trip, but go out to these near-by towns or factories on your Saturday afternoons or Sundays with your bundle of the DAILY WORKER. Whether you sell them or give them away, see to it that they are placed into the hands of new readers whom you will find glad to make the acquaintance of a fighting labor daily.

• • • •

Young Communists and Juniors should make their hikes, whether week-end or cross-country, into DAILY WORKER HIKES. If a week-ender, make your destination some near-by town or factory. Take along enough DAILIES to supply the autoists and farmers along the way.

THIS SUMMER SHOULD WITNESS NOT A SLUMP BUT A GREAT IMPETUS TO THE COMMUNIST MOVEMENT IN THIS COUNTRY.

MAKE IT A DAILY WORKER SUMMER!

Comrade Matthews suggests splendid action in the article above and his slogan is an action builder . . . we suggest it becomes a slogan of yours. But if you have any other suggestions on how to "Build the DAILY WORKER"—and especially if you are putting them into practice now—write them up and send your article to this column.

Tools Are Important

Like an expert craftsman, a thoro Communist is very critical, very careful in the choice of the tools he must work with.

He views closely every method that will better build the revolutionary movement. And for him, in addition to correct principles and practice, the means of their most efficient promotion is essential.

Carefully, closely, the Communist calculates every little item that aids to build for working class power.

The DAILY WORKER contributes to the Communist revolutionary craftsman a small tool that well serves his purpose:—a small leather binder.

Snuggly fitting your pocket, you may find in this binder the book for your shop-mate (perhaps the clinching argument to "make another Communist"); a descriptive catalogue of every Communist book and pamphlet; all Communist publications (in all languages)—more useful information and note paper for your convenience.

This is an important tool for a Communist. The DAILY WORKER gladly gives one to every worker who secures a NEW yearly sub—or $6.00 worth of subs ($8.00 worth in Chicago).

Recommend Taking $900,000 from School Funds for Building

A building budget carrying an appropriation of $15,500,000 was approved by the finance committee of the board of education and will be submitted for final approval to the board at its next regular meeting. This move will necessitate adding $900,000 or the price of two additional elementary buildings to the construction program. The amount will be deducted from the maintenance budget.

The committee took this action upon a recommendation from the firm of Griffenhagen & Associates who undertook to prove that the increase represented an actual saving and that it had the added feature of adding seating facilities for the school children.

Ten Million Chinese Starve.

More than ten million Chinese are in want of food from the effects of floods and famine in north and west China, a missionary reported to his Chicago office. American famine relief cares for only six and one-half per cent of the sufferers it was reported.

DONATION FOR WORKERS' AID FOR THE CLASS WAR PRISONERS WAS $276.50

The collection at the International Unity demonstration in Ash-Auditorium was $276.50, it was announced by William F. Kruse, local secretary of the International Workers' Aid who acted as chairman of the meeting.

The money will be used to aid the Irish famine victims, and for the class war prisoners in Europe.

Monopolies Make Identical Bids for School Contracts

School supply companies, coal companies, and other Chicago industries are, by means of monopolies, keeping a fixed high price on their products in Chicago, J. Lewis Coath, trustee of the board of education, charged.

The coal companies and school supply companies meet and fix identical bids for city school contracts, Coath charged.

Frederick Alt, sent to Chicago by Attorney General Sargent to investigate monopolies in Chicago, may consume at least a year on probing this state of affairs.

School officials are inclined to look on Alt's visit as a means of keeping one of the department of justice employes busy. No results are expected and prices will be kept as high as ever by the monopolies.

Only Super-Persons Entitled to Families, Conference Decides

NEW YORK, April 1.— The last meeting of the sixth international neomalthusian and birth control conference was given to the discussion of eugenics with the final adoption of a resolution encouraging large families among "super persons."

However, the question raised by Dr. Aleta Jacobs of the Hague, founder of the first birth control clinic in the world, who wanted to know who and what was to determine the superior qualities of accepted parents was left unanswered.

An international birth control committee was appointed, with England, Scandinavia, Austria, Hungary, Holland, Germany, Japan, China, Mexico, Switzerland and America represented. The conference voted to raise a fund to pay the fine of 37,000 francs to save Eugene Humbert and his wife from further imprisonment in France for distributing birth control pamphlets.

The next international conference will be held in Geneva next August.

CAPITALISTS EXPLOIT NEGRO SCHOOLS, ENFORCING RIGID RULES AND SPYING ON REDS

By LOVETT FORT-WHITEMAN.

The revolt of the student body of Fisk university for Negroes, in Nashville, Tennessee, against the tyranny imposed on them by a white president of southern ideas and a board of trustees composed of white business men and lawyers, culminated in a school strike in which over five hundred of the students took part.

The trouble at the Negro university began last November, when a group of students who appeared before the officials of the university with a petition asking for student self-government and a relaxation of the stiff rules of conduct, were seized by southern police who had been called in by the school heads. Many of the student leaders were thrown into jail on a charge of "rioting."

Rigid Rules Imposed.

Now comes the news that the entire senior class and a large number of other students at Fisk-university have left the school with the intention of entering other and more liberal universities in the north—if they can get in.

Superficially, the revolt of these colored men and women may appear unimportant. And the officials of the university, using the white capitalist press and some of the more reactionary of the colored newspapers as their mouth-piece, have been doing all in their power to make it appear that the rebellion is based entirely on a desire of the girls to wear clothing more unconventional than the stringent rules of the school permit, or a desire of the men to read or write later than 10 o'clock on one or two evenings a week, at least.

No one can deny that the rules of the university, written and enforced on a group of colored men and women by a handful of white business men, are ridiculously rigid. Students may not gather in groups of more than three, excepting for classes. No man student may even speak to any girl student unless an older person is near to listen to the conversation.

Negro Schools Exploited.

No one can deny that these rules alone would bring on rebellion in any student group. But the primary cause for the revolt at Fisk lies deeper. How can a handful of people impose upon a large student body rules calculated to reduce men and women to the social status of disobedient children, and of very inferior children at that?

Negro schools and universities have long been a happy hunting-ground for white business men seeking, thru the medium of so-called higher education, to "teach the Negro his proper place" and to make him, either a docile wage-worker or else a missionary of the petty-bourgeoisie to drive from the minds of his own race all thots of social rebellion. They have been able to do this by means of large gifts of money to Negro educational institutions, thru which they automatically receive the privilege of appointing to the ruling board of the school one or more trustees of their own turn of mind.

No Inter-Racial Harmony.

A deceptive feature of the trouble at Nashville is that Fisk university is the only place in the south in which both white and colored teachers have places on the faculty. This seeming interracial harmony means nothing. All teachers must meet with the approval of a group of white aristocrats, out of whose pockets the money for the schools is taken.

Writes About Negroes

Lovett Fort-Whiteman.

The man against whom most of the fury of the colored students is at present directed is Fayette McKenzie, the white president of the university. McKenzie has never made any secret of his desire to please the southern aristocracy by keeping the Negro students in his charge strictly segregated and under iron-clad rules of conduct. He has created in the school an elaborate detective system, which spies out and reports students and instructors who show the slightest sympathy with more advanced ideas. He has made it a strict rule that no colored speakers may appear before the student body. It was the attempt to enforce this rule that started the rebellion in the oldest class five months ago.

McKenzie Negro Hater.

McKenzie is a prominent member of the "Commercial Club" of Nashville, an association of the white business aristocracy of the city. The president of Fisk university voted with the club when last year it went on record against a theater company in the city which admitted Negroes to the front entrance, instead of forcing them to use a back door.

Whole-heartedly behind the policy of the white president in his efforts to keep Fisk university a servile institution, stand the black and white business men of the board of trustees. Paul Cravath, an attorney for Morgan interests and one of New York's biggest corporation lawyers, is the president of this board. Its vice-president is Hollingsworth Wood, head of the National Urban League, an institution organized ostensibly for the purpose of improving the condition of the Negro in large industrial centers, but making it a practice to supply Negro nonunion labor to employers whenever there is a strike. It is from the Urban League that the Chicago meat packers have drawn their scab labor during strike periods.

Capitalists Control School.

Another board member at Fisk is Luke Lee, former senator from the state of Tennessee and present owner of the most important paper in Nashville. Lee has time and again been outspoken in his opposition to the granting of the ballot of Negroes.

President McKenzie received his social training as a government agent among the few Indians left in the United States. The Indian policy of the government has always been to enforce the strictest territorial segregation. McKenzie has evidently resolved to apply to the Negroes under his care the methods learned in previous jobs.

IRISH WORKERS AND PEASANTS IN DIRE NEED

Driven to Live on Dried Leaves

NEW YORK, April 1—"The workers and peasants are living on what they can find and are eating even dried leaves," said Colonel George O'Callaghan Westropp, reporting at a conference in Belfast a few days ago.

"The cattle are dying by the wholesale, 426 head having succumbed in two months in one district. All the sheep are already dead, and there is no livestock left in two large townlands. In two other townlands covering an area thirty miles long by ten miles wide, the people have lost 80 per cent of their livestock. A traveller cannot journey along the roads without meeting two or three funerals daily."

The capitalist press of this country and of Ireland denies that there is any famine in Ireland. This picture of the misery and starvation of the Irish workers and peasants by a man who is not a radical, not a Bolshevik but a colonel and a leader of the Irish Farmers' Union, and at last reported in the capitalist press, demonstrates that the situation is very critical.

God Save the Capitalists.

"The people are seeing black," said Colonel Westropp. "Tomorrow they may see red, and then god help Ireland." In other words, the workers and peasants who are suffering hunger, see on all sides the rich in luxury and splendor, while their wives and children starve and become the prey of every kind of disease. Yes, tomorrow they may see red—and then god help the landlords, capitalists and exploiters of Ireland. Then Ireland will throw off the yoke of British imperialism, the yoke of the landlords and capitalists who suck the very lifeblood of the workers and peasants; who are now eating the best that the world can provide, while 750,000 workers and peasants, the producers of Irish wealth, are starving.

The workers of America must help the Irish workers and peasants. American workers aided the Russian and the German workers when famine appeared in their countries. The American workers will not allow their Irish brothers and sisters to suffer. Agitate in all organizations. Collect funds and send them to the Irish Workers and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

New York Public School Teachers Get Wage Increase

ALBANY, N. Y., April 1—The N. Y. legislature passed the Kleinfeld-Ricca Teachers' salary bill sponsored by the joint salary committee of the teachers' associations of New York City, with which the Teachers' Union is affiliated. The campaign was carried on in a half-hearted fashion, the bill appeared certain of being strangled in committee, and then was passed unanimously in what appeared to be an effort of the republican legislature to embarass Governor Alfred E. Smith, "the friend of the teachers." When called upon in the last days of the session, the rank and file of the teachers responded by sending thousands of telegrams to the legislators at Albany The press to date has preserved a conspiracy of silence.

The teachers as a whole consider the provisions of the bill as generous. In reality the younger teachers, the initial salary of the K-g-6B group being raised by the pitiable sum of $25.00 from $1,500 to $1525. President Linville offers the weak reason that "the numerical preponderance of elementary school teachers stands in the way of their getting a larger income

The increases in the maximum salaries for classroom teachers in the elementary and high schools range from $450 to $600 per year. The supervisors and principals come in for the gravy receiving increases ranging from $1,000 to $5,000. The annual cost of the increases provided in this bill for 30,000 teachers is about $11,000,000.

Despite the discriminations against the classroom teachers, labor in New York state and city should come to the support of the teachers in their effort to gain even these inadequate schedules.

Clergymen Endorse Birth Control.

NEW YORK, April 1—The birth control movement was wrapped in a mantle of respectability when clergymen of five different denominations called it a force "for the betterment of the human race." The ministerial endorsement was voiced at the birth control conference in the Hotel McA'pin. They drew up a resolution calling upon the churches of the world to lend their support to the movement. The clergymen were Rabbi Stephen S Wise of the Free Synagogue, Rev. Dr. Charles Francis Potter, pastor of the West Side Unitarian church; Dr Harry Elmer Barnes; Dr. W. F. Roble and Dr. William F. Ogburn.

Towards World Trade Union Unity

> The question of unity of the working class organizations against the powerful attacks of European and American capitalism has become of pressing importance. It is more than important: it is fateful for the future of our movement and the movement of the organized workers of the world.
> In the last few months the prospect of securing that unity has definitely come nearer. But unity will not be achieved unless the representatives of the trade unions (head offices, districts and branches) and the mass of the workers themselves are fully aware of the urgency of the question and the need of giving it our strongest backing. In this country one of our great difficulties in the past . . . has been . . . lack of the necessary news of what was going on in each separate country. . . . The so-called socialist press in continental countries cannot be relied upon at the present time (as I know from my personal experience all the time we were in Russia and also in Amsterdam) to give an unbiased presentation of facts.

The above are extracts from the preface written by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions, to the first issue of the special supplement, devoted to international trade union unity, to the Monthly Circular of the labor research department of the British Trades Union Congress.

The publication of this bulletin has been made necessary by the sabotage of the unity drive by the right wing of Amsterdam and by the Second International.

Purcell sets forth in some detail the betrayal of unity by the Amsterdammers and considering the habitually restrained expressions of our British brothers, his statements are doubly damning. He says:

> . . . . . the conduct of official representatives of the other trade union movements (with certain laudable exceptions) has been one of extreme hostility to proposals emanating from the General Council of our Trade Union Congress and that this hostility has led them into acts of trickery—it is best to speak plainly—towards our own trade union movement cannot be doubted. To see this it is only necessary to read some of the statements they made succeeding our I. F. T. U. meeting at Amsterdam this month. Both Oudegeest and Jouhaux (not to speak of Vorwarts) have made it plain that they regard the so-called "compromise" motion carried there as a smart piece of work that defeats our nine months' endeavor to attain international unity thru the medium of an "immediate unconditional conference."

Last week we said that the report of the British trade union delegates to Soviet Russia marked the beginning of the sweep of the influence of the Russian revolution into the Anglo-Saxon countries—countries where for certain reasons its effect has been less marked than on the European continent and the Far East. The drive for unity of the world trade union movement started by the Red International of Labor Unions has been greatly strengthened by the official report of the British delegation. It has blown away the fog of lies and half-truths with which the social-democracy and the capitalists had concealed the great events taking place in Russia. The publication of the report is coincident with the launching of an intensive campaign for unity by the British trade unions marked by the establishment of a press devoted solely to the end of exposing the Amsterdam and socialist traitors.

In addition to the special supplement to the Monthly Circular of the labor research department the British labor movement is now publishing Trade Union Unity—whose name declares its purpose—with an editorial board composed of A. A. Purcell, Edo Fimmen and George Hicks.

Things are moving in the labor movement of the world. The agents of world capitalism are on the defensive.

The task of the Workers (Communist) Party and Trade Union Educational League is to bring the best elements of the American labor movement into step with the world swing to unity.

We begin tomorrow the publication in serial form of the special supplement on International Trade Union Unity from which we have quoted. From now on we shall devote much space to extracts from all publications favorable to world trade union unity. In addition we will publish quotations from the report of the British trade union delegation and endeavor to give the American workers a clear impression of the immense importance of the relations established between the All-Russian and British trade unions—the most important international event since the signing of the Russian-Chinese treaty.

More Polish Capitalist Brutality

The Polish government by shooting on their way to Soviet Russia two Communist prisoners who were to be exchanged has set the world a new precedent in studied brutality and disregard of all international agreements.

The theory of the Polish government seems to be that with the backing of France and America it can bathe in the blood of the workers to its heart's content. This theory may have some basis in fact as it is certainly true that Soviet Russia will not make war on Poland even to save the lives of devoted revolutionists.

But there are other matters that the Polish government would do well to consider, such as the former rather friendly attitude of the masses outside of Poland to her desire for national freedom, the interest with which her attempts to restore national unity were watched, the toleration with which the bloody excesses of her government were at first received. Even when she started war on Soviet Russia at the behest of allied imperialism she had the sympathy of millions of workers who knew nothing of the sinister forces backing Poland.

All this is changed. The Polish workers altho a rigid censorship exists and the jails are filled with trade unionists and revolutionists, have succeeded thru the Communist International, in getting the ear of millions of their fellow workers. It is a hopelessly ignorant worker who does not know today that the Polish government is a government of murderers, grafters and degenerates that first betrayed the Polish masses to the allied imperialists, slaughtered thousands in a counter-revolutionary war and that now crushes mercilessly trade unions and revolts alike.

Poland is caught between Germany and Russia. Her natural resources and factories are being plundered by French adventurers who plan on the existence of Poland for ten years only. The masses are poverty-stricken, but the landlords and capitalists have greatly enriched themselves. Economically, Poland cannot survive as a national entity. Politically she will go down beneath the feet of her working class when they can bear no more.

When that day comes the Polish ruling class will pay for every broken strike, for every torture, for every murdered worker and for such bloody brutalities as that of shooting working class prisoners on their way to be exchanged.

Social-Democracy and the Vatican

The news from Germany following the indecisive election returns indicates clearly the hopeless bankruptcy of the social-democracy. The socialist press echoes the liberal press and announces its willingness to support a candidate of the catholic center party to defeat the nationalists and monarchists.

The Communist Party candidate, Comrade Thaelmann, will be in the finals and if the social-democracy makes the proposed coalition, great numbers of those who voted for their candidate, Braun, will support the Communist Party.

The situation in Germany, the manner in which the social-democrats run around seeking a way out like rats whose burrows have been closed, is a great lesson to the workers who still have faith in parliaments and capitalist democracy.

There is no freedom for the masses in Germany and there has been a progressive decline in the number of their privileges ever since the overthrow of the monarchy that was to have been the first step towards liberation. Germany is still in the Kerensky period and the social-democrats seek to preserve merely the outward forms of democratic procedure. The bogeyman of the monarchy has been used by the social-democracy to frighten the masses into making concession after concession to the industrial lords and their puppet government. It is the logical outcome of a counter-revolutionary policy that now places the social-democracy in the position of looking to the party of the vatican as an ally.

That the vatican and its followers in Germany will exact important concessions in return for entry into a coalition with the social-democrats goes without saying. Bavaria is a catholic state and the vatican has long dreamed of a new catholic empire, to replace Austria, with Bavaria as its center. Bavaria is largely agricultural and the peasantry is the bulwark of reaction of every character. Large numbers of the special terrorist police, the "green" police, are recruited from the rural districts of this povince. "Republicanism" that depends for its existence on such elements simply commits suicide. Any president elected by the proposed coalition would be a dictator of the most ruthless type, an emporer in all but name.

Catholicism is a survival of feudalism, its outlook is that of the middle ages. The German social-democracy, it seems, has not yet reached the full depth of betrayal. It is willing to aid and accept the aid of the most reactionary force in Europe to maintain its bureaucrats in office.

It is evident that the German working class has a bitter struggle ahead of it, a struggle to which all its previous ones have been mere child's play.

Only one party in Germany tells the masses the truth—that freedom lies thru struggle and not thru continual compromise which drives the workers ever backward. The Communist Party fights bravely every kind of reaction, but its main task is to break entirely the hold of the social-democrats upon the masses.

Tradition of social-democratic leadership is strong in Germany, but its constant treacheries, the proposed coalition with the vatican most of all, make it easier to point out to the working class its real role—that of an agent of reaction and counter-revolution.

AMERICAN TRADE IN CHINA GOES STEADILY DOWN

Russia and Japan Cut Out U. S.

SHANGHAI, April 1.—Although the United States shipping interests are gradually gaining control of the commerce sent out from here, the largest port in China, American business firms are losing their hold on manufacture and trade within China.

The figures show that in 1922 American ships handled 48 per cent of the shipping out of Shanghai to the United States, and this figure was increased to 50 per cent two years ago and 54 per cent last year.

On the other hand, the participation of American merchants in Chinese trade to the United States fell off from 35 per cent in 1922 to less than 30 per cent last year. These figures are based on the percentage of exports from Shanghai to the United States handled by American firms.

The reason for this slump, according to American Consul Cunningham, is the more active participation of other foreign firms in Chinese trade.

Coolidge is finding it difficult to appoint someone to the vacant post of American ambassador to China, as American imperialism has received heavy blows in the far east recently, and the post has grown important to Wall Street.

Japan and Russia have closer contact with China than ever before and the United States capitalists are growing desperate.

MUSIC.

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

EDWARD COLLINS, one of the best of the local pianists, was soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra Hall. He gave the first performance of his own piano concerto. Of this the first movement is terrible and should be destroyed in some painless manner. In the last two sections Collins has done a big job and done it well. His slow section is somewhat in the nature of a modernized Chopin nocturne. His last movement is called "Allegro Ritmico (All Americana)" which in rhythm, melodic line, and to a certain extent is orchestration, is in jazz style. True, the jazz of the movement is as far removed from the real thing as Orchestra Hall is removed from a cabaret, but nevertheless it is jazz, and revitalizes the too often dead and boring concerto form.

There were other soloists on the program as well. Alfred Quensel and Vaclaw Jiskra, first flute and principal bass, respectively of the orchestra, did some excellent teamwork in the Bach suite for strings and flutes which preceded the Collins' concerto.

Another soloist shone forth later in the performance of the Brahms fourth symphony, Robert Lindemann, the first clarinet of the orchestra, who had the extended solo in the second movement of that monumental work. This symphony of Brahms, his last and greatest, illustrates the composer at his best and his worst. He had inspiration and material for three wonderful and unsurpassed movements, but, being afraid to fly in the face of tradition and write a symphony in less than four movements, he tacks on thirty-two variations on a tiny theme that was not worth writing in the first place, much less variating. The result is a movement full of sound and fury signifying not much of anything.

(And now having written the above I expect somebody to rise in wrath and denounce me. About a year I panned the Brahms fourth symphony something awful from beginning to end. This review proves several things, the main one being that if one must report musical affairs, one must be either dishonest or inconsistent.)

THE Civic orchestra wound up its season at Orchestra Hall with the customary program of light, popular stuff. The program opened with the time honored overture "The Dumb Girl of Portici," by a man whose name I love to write, Daniel Francoise Esprit Auber. A theme in this overture is almost invariably used to accompany the furious riding episode of the western movie.

In memory of Moritz Moskovski, who died some weeks ago, the orchestra played two movements from one of his finest works, the suite, "From Foreign Parts" (not an exactly accurate translation of "Aus Aller Herren Laender.") The German and Hungarian movements were played.

Raymond Koch, the soloist gave a masterful performance of the prolog to "Pagliacci," and was forced to encore with the aria "Dio Possente" from Faust.

There was another soloist in the orchestra, Myron Russell, one of the best English horn players I have ever heard. He starred in the second movement of Ippolitov-Ivanov's Caucasian suite, called "Evening in the Village."

Other works on the program were the scherzo of Mendelsshon's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music, the Norwegian rhapsody of Eduard Lalo, and the march that introduces the second act of "Tannhauser."

CLARITY IN THE KAROLYI FRAUD

By JOHN LASSEN (Editor, Uj Elore)

IT should be of interest to the American workers to find out some details about the role played by Count Michael Karolyi during his presidency in Hungary.

The first Hungarian republican government differed in no way from the Ebert-Scheidemann-Noske government. It contained social-democrats, liberals of the old middle class school and small peasants. The storm of the revolution swept together this government which, it was hoped by the great working masses, would represent the interests of the working class and the peasantry. Soon enuf it became clear that this was out of the question, that this government too was being utilized by the capitalists, and that the working class could depend only on itself. The employing class used the Karolyi government simply for keeping the rebellious masses quiet, for "calming" them.

Objectively considered President Karolyi and his government were just as much hostile to labor as the government in Washington. A few of the anti-labor acts of the Karolyi government are taken from the wealth of facts and reported here in order to serve the rich store of facts.

A spontenaeous movement of discontented miners arose in Salagotaryan. This movement which was directed against the inhuman dealings of the coal mine bosses there, was quenched in the blood of the miners by Peyer, on the order of the Karolyi government. Peyer came with machine guns into the city, and fired at the innocent miners.

The Karolyi government—like all capitalist governments—worked with spies, whom it sent into the Communist Party in order to get information on the activities of the Communists.

The Karolyi government organized a so-called "civilian guard," whose sole task was the combating of the revolutionary movement.

In the various strikes the soldiers and police were almost always "on the spot." Thus, for instance, a tremendous mass strike movement was suppressed in the Oeckert & Homolka factories.

Under the Karolyi government the single Communist newspaper, Voros Ujsag, could appear only illegally. And even this illegal existence they tried with the greatest craftiness to make impossible.

But the Karolyi reaction reached its high point when the unemployed took by storm the editorial office of the treacherous Hungarian Social Democratic Nepszava. The demonstrators were attacked by the civilian guard and the police from both sides, and as the battle lasted into the night the civilian guards and police shot at each other in the dark and some of them fell in that way.

The next day the leaders of the Communists were arrested. Bela Kun was beaten almost to death, and a number of other Communists were brutally mishandled. The whole party was made absolutely illegal.

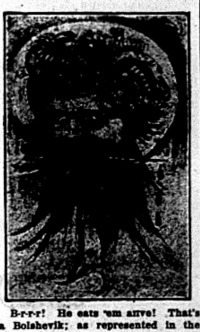
The Karolyi government took an open anti-labor stand. But Karolyi & Co. made a mistake. Their methods of persecution produced a effect which they had not expected. There were protests against the persecutions of Communists by the government. The masses of workers began to recognize the treacherous role which this half bourgeois, half social democratic government was playing, and the masses streamed to the Communists. No one believed any longer that either Karolyi or the social democrats represented the working masses.

This recognition gave the basis for the dictatorship of the Hungarian proletariat. Michael Karolyi might personally be the most honest and most agreeable man in the world, but his policy was nothing else than the policy of Scheidemann-Noske-Ebert. Karolyi himself was dragged — perhaps against his will—into a swamp, into the capitalist terror, imprisonment of workers, suppression of newspapers, the shedding of innocent blood of workers. Karolyi and "Karolyism" sacrificed the blood of the working class to capitalism.

Cal Speeds War-Plans.

WASHINGTON, April 1—President Coolidge has instructed the war department to hold all national guard armory drills required by law.

The president recently held up an appropriation of $1,332,000 for guard drill pay. The war department was authorized to draw on the appropriation to pay for the required drilling by guardsmen.



B-r-r-r! He eats 'em alive! That's a Bolshevik; as represented in the capitalist press. But do you know how a Bolshevik really looks? Come and see "Beauty and the Bolshevik," Wednesday, April 15, from 6 to 11 p. m., at Wicker Park Theater, 1739 Milwaukee Ave., near Robey St. Benefit of the International Workers' Aid and the Communist press.

SICK CHILDREN, 14 AND 15, MUST WORK FOR LIVING

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 1—A statement on the health of working children issued by the New York State Industrial Commission points out that nearly half of the working children between the ages of 14 and 15 were found to have physical defects which were aggravated by the work they were doing.

The study included 412 working boys and girls under 16 years of age in New York City, and was conducted at the city's two continuation schools.

"The children entered industry because money was needed at home," says the statement.

"The desire which many of these children have for more education is emphasized by the fact that in addition to working every day almost one-eighth of the children attended night school. Wages centered at about $12, and only 3 per cent of the children received less than $10. Half of the children worked forty-four hours, the 6 per cent, contrary to the law, worked more than forty-eight hours. Boys had the active, girls the sedentary jobs. One-third of the boys were on their feet the entire workday; one-quarter of the girls sat the whole of their workday. One-fourth of the children were provided with wholly inadequate chairs, in most cases stools.

"On the health side the number of physical defects for each child averaged 2.4. Almost one-fifth of the children had some visual defect, one-third had dental defects, one-eighth had enlarged tonsils, 5 per cent of the girls had thyroid enlargement, and 4 per cent of the children had heart affections. Tuberculosis was found in 1 per cent, with lung abnormality in 3 per cent.

"Half of the children with a flat-foot condition had to be on their feet the greater part of their workday; one-quarter of the children with defective eyesight worked under eye strain; more than one-half of the children with heart affections worked under an excessive nerve strain."

O. K. Van Sweringen Merger.

RICHMOND, Va., April 1—The merger of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway into the Nickle Plate System, being promoted by the Van Sweringen brothers at Cleveland, apparently has been approved, it was announced here today after an all-night count of the ballots cast yesterday.

Formal announcement of a result is being held up because of uncertainty as to whether a two-thirds of the total vote cast or two-thirds of the total outstanding shares are necessary to approve the merger.

English Takes Stand.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 1—Testimony of tyranny, impropriety, financial corruption and graft against Federal Judge George W. English, was finished today. Judge English testified in his own behalf, and declared he disbarred Charles A. Karch, attorney, because Karch "sat in court in a menacing attitude."

The congressional committee is hearing evidence on which is based a plea for impeachment of English, who is charged with conducting a bankruptcy ring.

Wheeler Charges Booze.

CHICAGO, April 1—Booze was used by government agents in Washington to debauch witnesses called before the grand jury which indicted him, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana charged. He will go on trial April 16 on an indictment alleging that he represented a client before a federal bureau after he was elected snator.

It is no exaggeration to say that there has never appeared in this country such an important journal of information and theory—when you can find articles by Gregory Zinoviev, Wm. Z. Foster, I. Stalin, Earl R. Browder, Wm. F. Dunne, Alexander Bittelman and other well known writers in one number—as you will in the April issue of THE WORKERS MONTHLY which has just come off the press.

Support the Work of International Red Aid!

Editor's Note.—One of the resolutions adopted by the recent tremendous Paris Commune demonstration in New York City urged support of the International Red Aid. It can be made the basis of similar declarations to be adopted elsewhere. It follows:

THE imperialists of the world during the past seven years have carried on a campaign of the most vicious terror against the working class. Capitalist governments acting either as open dictatorships or so-called "democratic" states, have all alike resorted to the foulest measures against the working class. In the fascist-ridden states of Mussolini, Horthy and de Rivera, in the imperialist vassal states of Roumania, Poland, Finland, Greece and Jugo-Slavia, etc., hundreds of thousands of workers and peasants have been the victims of the murderous white terror. In Germany at this moment 7,000 workers are languishing in prison. In India, 25,000 revolutionaries are imprisoned. In China, Korea and other suppressed colonial countries, the victims of imperialist suppression have been thrown in the foulest of dungeons. And obtaining its climax, 1,000 workers of Esthonia and the Baltic states have been shot in cold blood. Those in prison have been subjected to torture, the like of which can be found only in the annals of the Inquisition. The so-called democratic countries of England, France and the United States have likewise treated the workers to mass arrests, wholesale deportation and brutal mistreatment.

The terror in all countries increases day by day. And each day sees more severe laws, more desperate devices to crush the revolutionary movement and particuarly of Communists. The bourgeoisie resorts to these measures to suppress the revolutionary Communist movement so as to force upon the working class unhampered exploitation, to wipe out their organizations, to drive down their wages and to make the lot of the exploited that of miserable, helpless slaves.

In view of these facts, the workers of New York in mighty demonstration in Madison Square Garden assembled on Sunday, March 15, express their determined protest against this murderous white terror raging in capitalist countries thruout the world. The meeting appeals to all workers in America to come to the immediate assistance of their imprisoned comrades. It calls upon the workers to do everything in their power to hasten their liberation from the capitalist dungeons. The workers here assembled recognize that only by supporting the campaign of the International Workers' Aid the world wide Red Aid organization for proletarian prisoners in capitalist countries, can relief be brot to our imprisoned fellow workers.

At the same time, the meeting declares that the recent formation of a new committee ostensibly to help proletarian prisoners can only result in dividing the forces of the workers in America, and prevent a united front to accomplish real proletarian relief. In view of the fact that the International Workers' Aid invites active co-operation from all friends of the imprisoned workers and peasants in capitalist countries and in those lands groaning under the iron heel of international exploitation, the meeting sees no need for the existence of another committee.

The Madison Square Gardeen meeting especially voices its indignation and unqualified protest against the use of the appeal for political prisoners to attack Soviet Russia, the only country striving to end exploitation and suppression of the masses. The presence of open enemies of Soviet Russia on this new committee justifies the conclusion that his committee will serve as a cloak behind which a dastardly counter-revolutionary campaign against Soviet Russia now being conducted can be furthered. The meeting pledges itself to conduct a vigorous campaign for International Red Aid and to unmask these counter-revolutionist socialists in this latest and most brazen attack upon the first workers' republic.

Long live the fighters for freedom of the working class!

Long live the international working class solidarity!

Long live the International Red Aid

IT is not likely that the thousand and one agencies that have been engaged for several years in the profitable business of multiplying the fatalities incident to the great Russian revolution, and pointing with feigned horror to the comparatively few assassins and would-be assassins now occupying prison cells in the Soviet Republic, will make the welkin ring with the horrible atrocity committed by the Polish government in having its agents murder two working class prisoners, on the way to Russia in exchange for Polish prisoners being transferred to Poland.

OF course, the Polish government will disavow the crime just as the Japanese government disavowed the murder of hundreds of revolutionaries who were herded into a closed area and then charged by troops with fixed bayonets on orders from the war department. But the result of the Japanese massacre was as predicted by the radicals. The revolutionary movement has made such headway in Japan since then that the government, only a few days ago was obliged to pass one of the most drastic treason laws ever placed on any statute book. The bandit government of Poland will pay dearly for the premeditated murders of its agents.

LADY BATHURST, until recently owner of the most reactionary organ in England, the Morning Post, takes Canon Donaldson of Westminster Abbey to task for that gentleman's strictures on the moral looseness of Britain's aristocracy, as revealed in recent court actions. The lady is surprised that the crimes of the working class are glossed over while the comparatively few sins of the aristocracy are broadcasted over the world. What the aristocrats may do if this pinpricking policy is continued, the lady does not specify, but the action will be drastic. Surely the dear things are not thinking of going to work!

DEVOTEES of Freud, Jung and company, may be interested to know that among the followers of [illegible] psychologists, are [illegible] wife of [illegible], the noted New York banker, and Fowler McCormack, son of Harold McCormack of gland fame, and grandson of John D. Rockefeller. Fifi was never happy, she declares until Jung's mental factory in Zurich, enabled her to see herself as others couldn't see her. Her mind was enlarged, and no doubt so was Jung's pocketbook. More power to him. Sucker anglers will no doubt flourish as long as capitalism exists, and such being the case, the bigger the fish the better for all concerned.

PEOPLE are no longer seriously interested whether Fifi and Fred Beauvais, the Indian guide, were any more to each other than what their lawyers' briefs claimed. Everybody concerned, in the legal scrimmage, from the lawyers on both sides to the Indian, are well fed and clothed. But the rich having nothing else to do, insist on making news. So with Fifi. The whereabouts of young Fowler McCormack, might not be disclosed until his press agent felt the time was ripe to introduce him to the business world via the lowest-rung-in-the-ladder route, but for the appearance of Fifi Stillman at a factory gate in Milwaukee, where young Fowler was slaving away in his father's plant.

THE newshounds immediately got busy, and the stories published of Fowler's sufferings, juggling heavy castings for ten hours daily and living in a four-dollar a week room, should make a dissatisfied worker stifle any feeling of envy towards the position of his masters. It is true that young Fowler can make a date with Fifi in one of Milwaukee's swellest hotels, while Fifi invites the newspapermen to "shoot" them both conversing over the tea table. Fifi receives the reporters in her reception room, "covered with a form-revealing mandarin wrap of Chinese reds and blues." Under those conditions Fowler may bear up under his agony in the shop until he knows the business "from the ground up."

RUSSO-JAPANESE TRADE BOOMS AS TREATY RESULT

Soviet Trade Body to Be Formed

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, April 2.—"The international policy of the Union of Soviet Republic is based on the principles of full equality of rights of all nations and taking stock correctly of mutual economic interests.

"It is on these principles that the commercial treaty between the Union and Japan is based," Mr. Ganetsky, member of the collegium of the people's commissariat of foreign trade, said in an interview with a Japanese journalist in Moscow.

Trade With Japan Jumps.

"There was not much trade done between the two countries before the war," Mr. Ganetsky observed, "but in the recent years the export to Japan, first of timber and then of fishery products has been steadily growing, and these products have lately been closely followed by agricultural produce, such as oats, flax, seed, etc. At the present time, it is proposed to develop the exports into Japan from not only the Russian far east, but all the Union. Among the goods to be exported are oil and oil products, salt, iron, etc. Naturally, Jap-

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith the first installment of extracts from the Special Supplement to the Monthly Circular of the Labor Research Department of the British Trade Union Congress devoted to furthering world trade union unity.

The Special Supplement begins with a preface by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam) and is composed largely of original documents; correspondence between the Red International of Labor Unions and the Amsterdam right wing officialdom, reports of conferences, etc.

The publication of this Special Supplement, the very frank and militant announcement of its purposes by the president of the Amsterdam International, the complete exposure of the treacherous and disruptive tactics of the right wing which it contains, all are indicative of the tremendous hold that the slogan of World Trade Union Unity has gained upon the British trade union movement, the most powerful section of the Amsterdam International.—Ed. Note.

PREFACE.

By A. A. Purcell, President, International Federation of Trade Unions.

THE question of unity of the working class organizations against the powerful attacks of European and American capitalism has become of pressing importance. It is more than important: it is fateful for the future of our movement and the movement of the organized workers of the world.

In the last few months the prospect of securing that unity has definitely come nearer. But unity will not be achieved unless the represent-

WORKERS PARTY ORGANIZER, PINCHED FOR "DISTURBING WORKERS", DISTURBS THE COPS

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., March 30.—(By Mail.)—This morning, Frank McLean, lieutenant of the Willimantic police force, tried to achieve fame by the Palmer-Daugherty-Coolidge route. But instead of being promoted, he got it in the neck.

As I was nearing the post office, a man stepped up, and asked me to accompany him up there (pointing across to the police station). I, asked him who he was, and he flashed his police badge on his vest (he was in plain clothes). I told him I had nothing to do with the police department and

TO BOYCOTT THE AMERICAN FLEET IN AUSTRALIA

Unions Protest Class War Imprisonments

NEW YORK, April 2.—When the American naval fleet drops into Australian harbors next summer there is a possibility that it may be declared "black" by Australian labor as a protest against the imprisonment of American labor men by federal and state governments. At least such forebodings are voiced in sensational feature articles in the Melbourne Sun, just receivere here by a former Australian seaman, now in charge of the New York office of the Kuzbas colony.

When a ship or fleet is declared "black" the men are refused service in restaurants, saloons, and street cars Union men are canvassing the tradesmen involved, says the newspaper, urging them to line up behind the boycott. In particular the liquor trades workers are requested to stand solidly in refusing to wet the whistles of the Yankee navy men.

"This," remarks the Sun in a jibe at American prohibition, "would be the cruelest blow."

Prime Minister Bruce has taken official notice of the cloud in the offing and begs folks to take no notice of it but the Sun says that the Australian commissioner in the United States is expected to be asked to reassure the American government.

Kidding the Prince.

FUNCHAL, Maderia Island.—Wireless greetings were dispatched from the British colony here to the Prince of Wales, as H. M. S. Repulse passed here enroute to West Africa. The prince replied to the message.

SMALL'S STATE POLICE BILL IS BEFORE SENATE

Even More Vicious Than the Dunlap Bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 2.—The Dunlap state police bill, which would establish a police force of 450 officers and men to be used to break strikes, was reported to the senate by the committee on military affairs without recommendation. This means that those who favor the bill must muster 26 votes, a majority of the senate, to have the bill placed on the calendar.

But a second bill providing for an unlimited force of state police, under the direct control of the governor, who would appoint the commander, was reported favorably by the committee on roads.

This bill is cloaked under the guise of a measure to protect roads, but has been so amended by Small's committee that a state police force of 1,000 men may be maintained.

The members of the force, under the bill, have the full power to make arrests and act as regular state police. The Small bill is worse than the Dunlap bill, for it gives the police the same power, and in addition, provides for an unlimited force.

It is reported that if the bill passes, Small will appoint his son-in-law, Col. A. E. Inglesh, to head the constabulary. No limit is placed on the salary of the officers, but the men are to receive $150 a month or less, according to the bill.

Demands Prisoners Pay Raise.

The wages of Bridewell prisoners have not been increased since before the war, an alderman told the city council, and submitted an ordinance increasing their pay from 50 cents to $1.00 per day. The ordinance went to the judiciary committee.

British Death Penalty Remains.

LONDON, England, April 3.—The death penalty in the army was maintained in the house of commons by a vote of 320 to 156. It was brought out that 287 officers and men were executed during the war by the British army officials.

PROTEST MEET AGAINST POLISH TERROR FRIDAY

Party Instructs Members to Attend

The City Central Committee of Local Chicago of the Workers Party concurred in the recommendation of the city executive committee at its regular meting at 722 Blue Island Avenue, last Wednesday evening, instructing the party members in this city to be present at the mass protest meeting against the reign of terror and murder now on in Poland against the revolutionary workers, which will be held on next Friday evening in Schoenhofen Hall, corner of Ashland and Milwaukee Aves.

The principal English speaker will be Earl R. Browder, acting executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party. Ther will also be speakers in Polish and other languages.

Murder Two Workers.

The Comrade Lanzutsky is reported to have been acquitted by the Polish bourgeois judges, the reign of terror against the workers appears to have taken on a fresh impetus. On the same day that the report of Lanzutsky's acquittal reached the United States, it was learned that two workers on their way to be exchanged for an equal number of Polish counter revolutionaries, imprisoned in Soviet Russia, were brutally murdered, by their guards when nearing the Russian border. The workers of the United States must join with the workers of other countries in making their protests felt.

Th recent demonstrations in the United States were very effective in showing the Polish government that their brutal murder campaign cannot be carried on with impunity. It is of particular importance that the hundreds of thousands of Polish workers in Chicago should be reached with the message of Communism and this exposure of the present terror in Poland affords a splendid opportunity to arouse their interest. The local office of the Workers Party urges all readers of the DAILY WORKER to tell every Polish worker they may meet about this meeting and urge them to attend.

Judge Decides Free Speech and Strikes Don't Go Together

PATERSON, N. J., April 2.—An echo of the broad silk workers' strike of last autumn was heard here last Tuesday when Judge Delaney of the court of special sessions gave a decision against free speech involving seven arrests made at a meeting on October 6, last. The judge declared the men guilty and will sentence them today. An appeal will be taken to the New Jersey supreme court against the present decision.

English Testimony Ends.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 2.—The congressional sub-committee of seven has ended its nine days of examination of the conduct of Federal Judge George W. English. The tesimony has been completed. English was charged with corruption and tyranny and with conducting a bankruptcy ring which cheated bankrupts out of thousands of dollars. Testimony revealed that English used his court to aid the railroads to break the shopmen's strike.

"Archduke" Fined for Speeding.

VIENNA, Austria, April 2.—The former Archduke Leopold of Austria was fined twenty shillings here for speeding into a pedestrian with his motorcycle. The "archduke" tried to escape the fine by declaring himself an "unskilled laborer" who was hurrying to work, but he was fined nevertheless.

PLUTES STEAL NATIVE RICHES IN PHILIPPINES

Americans Even Rob Native Tongue

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MANILA, P. I., April 2.—Using the phrases regarding "law enforcement" which have been applied to keep the American workers in subjection to the profit system, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood has enforced the iron rule of American imperialism on the Philippine natives.

Leonard Wood rules here frankly in the interests of the American capitalists. The Philippine Islands are a battle ground between the natives, fighting and dying for independence, and the capitalists, supported by the guns and clubs of Wood's constabulary.

Murder Natives.

A concerted drive is now under way not only to suppress by murder the independent movement, and the movement of the peasants to secure decent living conditions, but to "Americanize" the school, law, government and industry, under the direct rule of Wood's bayonets.

An American "educational survey committee," sent here by Columbia university, is carrying on the work of "Americanization," in the schools. Speaking of the work of installing the "goose step" in the public schools, Dr.

COMMUNISTS THE WORKERS GROUP IN GERMAN POLL

Socialists Dicker with Right Parties

BERLIN, Germany, April 2.—The issue will be clear cut in the final German election, April 26, between the working class, represented by the Communist Party candidate Ernst Thaelmann, and the fascist-monarchist right coalition, probably to be represented by D. Jarres, and the socialist center bloc, which wants to perpetuate the rule of the exploiters with bourgeois democratic republic and will probably have as its candidate Wilhelm Marx.

The socialists have, in their preelection maneuvers, again and again demonstrated their complete adherence to the rule of the employers.

The social democratic leaders made a deal with the catholic party that they would support the candidacy of Marx if the centrists aided them in electing the socialist Otto Braun as minister president of Prussia.

This was carried thru, but at the same time that the centrist minister Hoepke-Achoff gave way to the socialist, the catholics were dealing with the people's party and the nationalists for a solid right bloc against the socialists.

Attorney General Aided Booze Makers Is Probe Testimony

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 2.—The Couzens' senatorial committee investigating a clash between the department of justice and the treasury department brought out that the attorney general's office objected to the siezure of breweries on the ground that "heavy expense was incurred in guarding them, and the law continued to be violated thru the bribery of guards."

A letter was read from former Attorney General Stone to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, objecting to the siezure of liquor and suggesting that "the injunction proceeding is by far the most effective in the long run."

State Spends More Millions.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 2.—Governor Small today signed three special appropriation bills totalling $6,012,600.

N. Y. INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' AID MEET TO LAUNCH NEW CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, April 2.—A conference of delegates to the International Workers' Aid will take place on Monday, April 6, at 8 p. m. at 108 East 14th St., Room 32. Branches should be represented at the conference, for a new campaign is to be launched.

'FORWARD' DISCOVERS A. C. W. EXPULSION IN ORDER TO LIE ABOUT IT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, April 2.—The yellow daily Forward has made the discovery that all is and has not been well in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union.

It never could discover previously that Local No. 5 had been expelled or that Locals 63 and 24 had withdrawn in protest at the expulsion and were acting in concert with Local No. 5 against the autocracy of the Hillman machine. But then the Forward is a capitalist newspaper, and as such does not give news favorable to the working class.

But at last the Forward speaks. And as usual when it speaks, it lies. It has found out that Locals 63 and 24 have "deserted" Local 5 and gone back to the joint board.

The fact of the matter is that Locals 63 and 24 went back to the joint board by the decision of the joint executive of the coatmakers, which includes Local 5 and the other coatmakers. The Forward was blind until it saw a chance to lie. Thus we hear of the "desertion" of Local 5 by the other two locals.

STANDARD OIL HEGEMONY OVER LATIN AMERICA

Huge Sinclair-Morgan-Wall Street Combine

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 2.—The merger of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, one of the world's largest oil producing company's of which Edward L. Doheney is chairman with the Standard Oil company of Indiana, marks the domination of the Standard oil trust in the exploitation of the North and South American oil fields.

Standard Oil Is Supreme.

The oil companies acquired by the Standard Oil trust include the Pan-American Petroleum company, Petroleum Carriers' Ltd., of England the Pan-American Southern Petroleum company, the Mexican Petroleum company, Ltd., the Caloric company, the British-Mexican Petroleum company, and others.

The Wall Street bankers, who are part of the Standard Oil company which bought the Doheney interests, include the Chase National bank and the Chase Securities company, and the Blair and company bankers, and British interests, headed by Lord Inverforth, which own a huge slice of the Standard Oil interests.

The new Standard Oil-British combine announces that intensive exploitation of the Mexican and Latin American oil fields will begin immediately. The trust will unite other companies operating on the Pacific coast and in the Latin countries. The Lago Petroleum company will be taken over to further extend the Latin-American exploitation, it was announced. The Lago Petroleum corporation operates on the eastern shore of Lake Maracaibo, in Venezuela and elsewhere.

To Exploit Latin America

The Caloric company has interests in Rio de Janeiro, Bahia, Para, Santos, and Pernambuco, Brazil, and other South American points.

The British Mexican Petroleum company, one half the stock of which is subscribed by British interests, distributes thru stations at Manchester, Liverpool, Plymouth, Hull, Newcastle, Glasgow and other British cities.

The California Petroleum company, the Doheney concern which aided in the bribery of Albert Fall to secure naval oil leases in California from the United States government, has also been taken into the deal. The General Petroleum company has also been merged with the oil combine.

Harry F. Sinclair, who is in the Standard Oil trust, will share in the control of the new combine. Sinclair is connected with the Standard Oil company of Indiana. The Standard Oil acquires thru the deal a fleet of 31 tanker ships.

France to Issue New Money.

PARIS, France, April 2.—A financial communique issued last night declared that the Herriot government will soon ask parliament to issue new money in an effort to relieve the financial crisis.

33 BRITISH MINERS' LIVES LOST IN FLOOD

Three Weeks at Least to Reach Them

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEWCASTLE, England, April 2.—Late yesterday it seemed as tho nothing short of a miracle would serve to save the thirty-eight men and boys who were caught on Monday by a sudden rush of water into the Montague Colliery at Scobwood.

Rescuers, however, were still laboring with great energy on the installation of giant pumping apparatus in an endeavor to free the mine of water. But the company's consulting engineer ruefully admitted that there was no further hope to be entertained for the entrapped workers, as even with the hardest kind of pumping, it would take three weeks to reach the victims. It would be impossible, he declared, to send down divers into the rushing torrent, and moreover poisonous gases filled the places where rescuers would have a possible chance to operate.

Twenty-six Families Bereaved.

Men who attempted to enter the pit mouth this morning said the waters were rising rapidly, and that the deadly black damp was already present, greatly lessening the chances that any of the imprisoned men would escape alive.

Of the thirty-eight entrapped men, mine officials announced twenty-six are married and have a total of seventy dependents.

SOVIET RUSSIA DEMANDS POLAND EXPLAIN MURDER

Prisoners Shot by a Police Guard

RIGA, April 2.—The shooting of Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz has aroused a great storm in Moscow, and the Soviet has sent a strong protest to Warsaw demanding strict investigation of the circumstances and punishment of Murasuko, the commanding officer of the Polish police escort guard who shot the officers, who were his prisoners.

Moscow believes that the men were not shot on Murasuko's personal initiative, but that the shooting was inspired in official quarters.

The position of the Poles in Russia intended for exchange is very unenviable. One of them is a Roman catholic priest named Usak. He had reached the Polish consulate at Minsk, around which a great crowd of workers had gathered, demanding his surrender. The Polish consul refused to give him up pending instructions from Warsaw.

A Frame-up to Stir Patriots.

Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz were lieutenants in the Polish army and were framed up by the Polish government which tried to prove that they were involved in bomb explosions in order to inflame the rabid Polish patriots into believing that Soviet Russia's spies were in the Polish army to betray Poland as a nation to Russia as a nation and obscure the real fraternity existing between the Russian workers and the Polish workers as a class.

Their trial was farcical, and it was proved only that the two lieutenants were sympathizers of Soviet Russia and had spoken of the necessary bond of class interests which exists between the workers of Russia and those of Poland. Complicity in any bomb explosions were positively not proven.

Polish Doctors Finish the Job.

It is learned that Wieczorkiewicz, who was not killed outright by the assassin, died on Monday morning after an operation by Polish doctors had proved unsuccessful in saving his life.

Turks Conquer the Kurds.

CONSTANTINOPLE.— Turkish troops have made their way to the center of the Kurdestan rebel area and expect to have the uprising under complete control soon, it was announced today.

HOW BIG NEWS IS MADE

WASHINGTON, April 2.—President Coolidge is asked by a visitor whether he is going to begin negotiations with Russia. He replies that he does not know that there is anything new to be said on that subject at present. The biggest newspaper in the capital, the Star, runs 200 words on its front page, an hour later, under the headline—"Coolidge Adamant in Stand on Russia. Sees No Change There Which Would Warrant Recognition by This Country."

RED FLAG FLIES IN NORTH SAKHALIN

MOSCOW, April 2.—The official agency Rosta announces that the Soviet flag was solemnly hoisted today at Alexandrovsk, the chief town in the northern section of Sakhalin island, which is returned to Russia under the recently concluded treaty with Japan.

UDGE SHIES AT RED'S MAY DAY PIN AND MAIL

ut Finally Sticks to Minor Charge

The three members of the Young orkers League who were arrested r distributing circulars in front of e Boston Store exposing miserable onditions there, were given small nes and forced to pay the "costs," Judge Gentzel's court, room 1106, ty hall, yesterday.

Valeria Meltz and Joseph Plotkin ere fined $1 each, and Benjamin ogel was fined $5. When asked why e had been fined more than the thers, the judge said that Vogel was rom St. Louis and therefore should ot have "mixed up in any Chicago ffairs."

Letters Ruled Out.

The prosecutor tried to drag the etters, which were taken from the hree Communists when they were arrested two weeks ago, into the trial as vidence, but upon objection of David Bentall, attorney of the Communists, such evidence was ruled out. Bentall showed that the charge was disorderly conduct and the question of the beliefs of the defendants was not involved.

The judge seemed incensed that Comrade Vogel should be wearing a May Day button with a red ribbon on it in court, but was finally persuaded to mind his own business and stick to the disorderly conduct charge.

Arrested at Boston Store.

The three Communists were arrested by the private detectives of the Boston Store and turned over to the central station-house police. They were threatened with deportation charges, but upon investigation by the federal authorities it was found that there was no evidence against them and they were held on the "disorderly conduct" charge.

French Students to Call General Strike to Get Dean Back

PARIS, April 1.—Students of eighteen universities in France were invited today to join the entire Paris University, including the Sorbonne, in a forty-eight hour students' strike beginning Thursday as a protest against the suspension of Dean Berthekmey of the law college.

The dental, pharmacy, medical and political science colleges already have agreed to the strike.

The action follows the student demonstration Saturday in protest against Professor Scelle delivering a lecture on international law because he was an appointee of Premier Herriott.

PITTSBURGH T. U. E. L. GENERAL GROUP MEETS MONDAY NIGHT, APRIL 6

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 3.—While the trade unions have not succeeded in gaining a solid foothold in the industries in Pittsburgh, Pa., the militants nevertheless are quite alive. The metal trades have for some time been a leading factor carrying on actual work for the establishment of the left wing. The militant steel workers are actively repairing for the coming convention of their union the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. The militants in the needle trades have control of the local unions and even the building trades are getting on the job making a beginning in ordering and actively distributing 200 copies of the pamphlet "What Wrong With the Carpenters' Union?"

The various groups will meet jointly in the general T. U. E. L. group Monday, April 6, to establish the proper connections between them as individual groups. The meeting will be held in the International Socialist Lyceum, 805 James St., N. S., 8 p. m.

Arne Swabeck, district organizer will speak on "Late Developments in the American Trade Union Movement." The regular T. U. E. L. business will also be transacted.

British Protest Seen as Counter to U. S. Objection

LONDON, England, April 2.—Following the protest of the American government to China regarding the punishment of a steamship captain who had caused the death of several Chinese, the British imperialists, thru the Baldwin government, have also lodged a protest with China.

The protest sent by the British objects to the use by Chinese troops of the Chinese railroads in which English stockholders have holdings. The British claim these Chinese railroads are still indebted to British stockholders.

The protest is seen as a counter protest to the American objection. The British are anxious to keep the American capitalists from gaining too much control over the Chinese.

Vaccinate Mill Slaves.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 2.—Because one of their employes contracted smallpox, 2,700 employes of the Manville-Jenckes textile mills here were vaccinated with smallpox serum. The vaccination was compulsory.

N. Y. TEACHERS' FIGHT FOR WAGE RAISE STILL ON

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Ricca teachers' salary bill, inadequate as it is to meet the present-day cost of living and giving only the miserable increase of $25 a year to the large bulk of the teaching staff, is meeting with much opposition now that it has reached the final stage of its fight and awaits the signature of Governor Al Smith.

The joint salary committee of the teachers' organizations composed of William R. Lasher, chairman, Anna R. Pettebone, secretary, and Benjamin Mandel, publicity director, have issued the following statement on the latest development in the New York teachers' struggle to get an increase in their wages:

Altho the Ricca teachers' salary bill was passed unanimously by both houses of the legislature, the bill is by no means out of danger. Before Governor Smith will affix his signature to the measure, he must be convinced that the taxpayers of the city recognize the justice of the teachers' claim. Mayor Hylan has come out on two separate occasions against the mandatory character of this legislation, alleging that it will increase the city's tax rate. Reports are being circulated in which the cost of the bill is inflated from $1,500,000 to $17,000,000. Altho the teachers are asking for an average increase of but 15 per cent, which is far below the increase in living cost, yet it is being widely spoken of as an increase of 20 per cent.

Teachers and parents who want to see the Ricca bill signed by the governor should immediately secure the passage of favorable resolutions by influential local organizations—civic, political, labor, fraternal and social. Copies of these resolutions would be forwarded at once to the governor, the press and to Mr. William R. Lasher, chairman of the joint salary committee, 3177 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn.

Plutocracy Steals Native Riches in the Philippines

Stephen Duggan, member of the committee, said here, "The American system provides a ladder from kindergarten to university up which any boy or girl may rise according to native capacity."

Bootblack to President.

But the facts give the lie to Duggan's familiar "from bootblack to president" bunk.

An analysis of the lumber industry, made here recently, discloses that all but three Filipino lumber companies have been driven out of the field by foreign concerns. There are three large Chinese lumber concerns, four Spanish, two English, and four American, the largest on the islands.

Incite Fishing War.

The fishing fleets of the Philippines are controlled almost entirely by the Japanese, including the large fleet in Manila Bay. The American controlled papers here, and the Wood dictatorship are urging the Philippines to gain control of the fishing industry. The Americans of course, plan to have the natives do the dirty work in a fishing war, and then take over the control of the industry, thru Wood's dictatorship. Such is the method of the capitalists to "Americanize" the Philippines.

Robbed of Language.

The Filipinos find themselves robbed of even their language The federation of women's clubs, one of the many American organizations forming a part of the foreign dictatorship, are engaged in a campaign to make the English language the sole medium of expression.

"If the people of the Philippines are to develop national feeling, and national institutions, there must be a common tongue—English," said Vice-governor Gilmore, speaking before this club.

The American capitalists have taken a cue from the British imperialists and are displacing the existing common tongue of the natives with the tongue of foreign imperialists in order to make control of the dependent nation more secure.

Steal Native Riches.

American imperialism is bitterly combatting the independent party, under the leadership of Manuel Quezon, because the Philippine Islands are islands of rich in hemp, tobacco, hard woods, tin, rubber, rice and sugar; because they are the distributing point for United States commerce with the Orient, and are the militaristic base for the further enlargement of the sphere of American imperialism in the Pacific.

Leonard Wood, whose constabulary are even now chasing the Moro natives, and who have killed scores of peasants who were fighting for a decent wage, declared in a speech here before the American bar association, Manila branch, that these bloody acts are "attempts to instill in the public a respect for law enforcement."

He said the same thing when his American cossacks shot down steel strikers.

Catholics, Fortified in Church, Fire Upon Mexican Troop Patrol

MEXICO CITY, April 2.—In a clash between federal soldiers and catholic civilians in Aguascalientes five soldiers and a number of civilians were wounded. A group of catholics was stationed in the tower of a church. As the mounted patrol neared the church the men in the tower opened fire.

The troops retreated without answering the shots until the commander received orders from General Talamantes to capture the church. After an exchange of shots the church party was dislodged.

A Spanish priest named Giraud was arrested, charged with inciting to riot.

POLITICIANS IN EFFORT TO DENY PROSPERITY END

Scurrying About to Prove "Prosperity"

WASHINGTON,—(F. P.)—April 2.—Stock market collapse and the severe reduction in purchase of soft coal by the industries of the country are two elements in the creation of a series of rumors in Washington that the business outlook is not good.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover has felt it wise to announce that business is still sound, and that stock market prices are no true index of the industrial outlook. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon made a similar statement some days earlier.

Still the pulse of the commercial speculators in Washington is jumpy, and a regiment of statistical experts for bankers and manufacturers is studying the latest reports to gain an impression of what is coming next.

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor is likewise watching the turn of affairs, as reports come in from many directions indicating that unemployment is growing. He says he has no proof that the total of unemployment is greater than has officially been estimated; trade unions do not maintain a service news of unemployment. Nevertheless, the soft coal situation is not indicative of an early decrease of the army of unemployed.

Tells Combine to be Good.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 2.—Ten coal dock operating companies, handling 80 per cent of the bituminous and anthracite coal produced in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky, are ordered by the federal trade commission to "cease and desist" from certain practices, designed to drive all Illinois coal and other all-rail coal and the distributors of such coal from the market in Minneapolis and St. Paul. The combine is known as the Northwestern Coal Dock Operators' Association. It is ordered to refrain from entering into any agreement or combination to restrain or suppress competition in the sale of coal at wholesale or retail.

Illinois coal is union mined. The combine has been dominating non-union fields and forcing Illinois miners to hunt new jobs.

Judge Backs Phone Trust

FRANKLIN, Ind., April 2.—The charter of the Indiana Bell Telephone company, remained intact today following the verdict of a jury which deliberated only 20 minutes before deciding against the state.

The judge told the jury that the evidence in the case was not sufficient to warrant the death of the corporation. The state sought to have the charter of the company forfeited and a receiver appointed on the grounds that some of its contracts restrained trade and created a monopoly.

British Dislike Greco-American Loan.

ATHENS, Greece, April 2.—The Hambros banking interests of England have objected to an agreement recently completed by the Greek government for a loan from an American Wall Street concern, it is reported here.

The objection was on the ground that under the last convention dealing with loans for refugees Greece was prohibited from concluding any loan without the consent of the league of nations.

Blame It on the Girl.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 2—John C Klein, driver of the motor car which struck 5-year old Jeanette Hedrick, resulting in the child's death, today was charged with manslaughter. The charge was changed to involuntary manslaughter after witnesses told police the girl stepped into the motorist's path and that he was driving slowly.

Soviet-Chinese Trade

MOSCOW, April 2.—To encourage Soviet-Chinese trade and also to assist the Ekaterisburg Fair, which is an important event in the commercial life of all the Ural district, the Soviet government has ordered that goods sent to this fair from China proper and Mongolia, be passed free of duty.

Church Backs Bosses in Fight to Maintain Seven-Day Work-Week

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the same aggregation of "open shoppers" that made war on the anti-child labor amendment to the federal constitution, is now opening an offensive against the fight of the workers for one day's rest in seven.

Up close to the head of the procession in both these anti-labor drives are to be found the religious reactionaries who cloak the blackest crimes of capitalism under the mantel of "freedom" and "liberty."

It is now hypocritically argued that grown workers, men and women, should be allowed to toil any hours they choose, just as it was urged that children must not be robbed of "the god-given right" to enter industry any time they desired.

• • • •

In Washington, D. C., there has actually been set up an organization that sends out its propaganda attacking all efforts to shorten the work-week. It parades under the euphonious title of "Religious Liberty Association" and is out to save, as it claims, large sections of the American working class from being compelled to toil six days instead of seven days each week. Its philosophy is summed up in this paragraph:

> "The right to work and the right to rest are natural God-given rights which are left with each individual to decide for himself, just the same as the number of hours he is to sleep at night, when he is to retire, when he is to arise in the morning, and how many meals he should eat a day and what combination of food he should take for the benefit of his health. To compel a man not to work when he wants to work, is the exercise of arbitrary authority."

That is the basis on which the big profiteers in the steel trust insisted on keeping the seven-day week going in that industry until they realized they could no longer keep the workers in leash. They claimed the twelve-hour day and the seven-day week were good for the workers; that the workers liked it, thrived on it. But, rather peculiar, they never permitted the men in the mills to speak their views on this matter.

• • • •

The employers and their subsidized organizations, like the "Religious Liberty Association," are having an increasingly hard time of it trying to delude workers into believing they have any rights under capitalism. Increasing masses of workers know that they eat, sleep and work at the will and the whim of the bosses' dictatorship, except where they are able to thwart its edicts thru their own organized strength. If there are any "god-given rights" the boss has them. It was the Pennsylvania mine owner, Baer, who once claimed that he ruled over the mine workers thru divine right. Only the powerful organizations of the hard and soft coal miners in that state have liquidated that dream.

• • • •

Many workers do not know what is meant by capitalism. It is a Bolshevik word they do not fathom. But they instinctively know that it is the bosses'hand that sets the alarm clock. The fight of the workers for one day's rest in seven is an example of this fact. This shorter work-week fight involves hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of workers, in many industries. It parallels the five-day week fight in other industries.

There is only one power that permits John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to pray in his Fifth Avenue Church in New York City, on Sunday, while armies of workers toil at their jobs in the oil fields, or other branches of the oil industry. That is the power of dollars in Rockefeller's grip. Perhaps, in the words of the "Religious Liberty Association," Rockefeller, Jr., mumbles this lie:

> "It must always be remembered that every man has a natural, inalienable right to work at any time he wants to work, as well as a right to rest when he wants to rest, without let or hindrance on the part of the state or an industrial commission."

That is the usual frandulant propaganda of the open shoppers.

• • • •

Workers have only those rights that they fight for and win. Today the big fight is to win power from the capitalists who control the lives of the workers under capitalism. Struggles for the eight-hour day and the six-day week, are but small preliminary skirmishes in that long war. The war nears its victorious ending for labor in Soviet Russia with the building of the Communist Society.

The church in Russia, before 1917, was all on the side of the czardom. Yet the capitalist world feels shocked to think that the Russian workers and peasants should now, in the day their victory, have no use for the church.

The "Religious Liberty Association," in its fight against the "one-day-rest-in-seven" movement, also helps open the eyes of workers to the real mission of the church under American capitalism. It is thus helping teach the workers a lesson that the church is their enemy. Let the workers profit by this lesson to the limit.

Y. W. L. Branches Meeting Friday Night

All branches meeting tonight will hear the reports of their delegates from the city central committee meeting which was held Tuesday. Vital problems of activity discussed at the city central will be before the branches for action.

Questions of organization of shop nuclei, the Young Worker sub drive the Negro work and many other equally important matters are on the order of business. All branches have reported increase in membership and activity and we can well expect good business meetings tonight. The branches meet as follows:

Are Branch No. 1—6th Floor, 166 W. Washington St.

Area Branch No. 2—1910 W. Roosevelt Rd.

Area Branch No. 3—3116 So. Halsted St.

Area Branch No. 5—2409 No. Halsted St.

Area Branch No. 6—2623 Hirsch Blvd., basement.

Everybody is welcome.

Trust Plans New Road.

WASHINGTON, April 2—Reports were curent in Washington today that the New York Central was behind the project to build 344 miles of new railroad across Pennsylvania east and west and to be known as the New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago railroad.

Railway men saw in the proposed new construction a plan of the New York Central for a shorter route to Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO GETS RECORD IN SHOWING MOVIES

"Beauty and Bolshevik" Draws Big Crowd

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—C. J. Read, secretary of the San Francisco conference, International Workers' Aid, reports a record breaking success at the recent showing of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik." "Every seat in California Hall was filled, and the biggest crowd that was ever seen at that hall stayed to the dance. The pictures were highly appreciated and already people are asking when the next one is coming.

Show Big Success

"If you have time you might let all Chicago know that the San Francisco show was one of the biggest successes we have had for many a day. We feel encouraged over our success with the picture, and by the spirit shown by the spectators."

It should be noted that the San Francisco committee has shown every film put out by the I. W. A., so proletarian movies are no novelty there. Yet "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" met with this sensational success and put everybody on the lookout for the next film.

Should Book Movie

There are several hundred cities in this country where this Russian film masterpiece has not yet been shown. In some of them are committees experienced in running workers movies, in others there are able comrades who, if they once try, will find that it is easier to run a successful movie than to put on a good meeting.

Every local, large or small, should book this movie at once, by getting in touch with the movie department, International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

Red French Deputy Repulses Attack of Upholder of Police

PARIS, France, April 2—The Communist deputy, Renaud Jean, was attacked in the lobby of the chamber of deputies by the nationalist deputy, Perinard. Comrade Jean had denounced police interference with Communists who were staging a demonstration at the Sorbonne university. Perinard shouted vile names at the Communist, and when they met after adjournment in the lobby, Comrade Jean was attacked.

The Communist repulsed the attack with one well-timed blow full in the face which shook all the fight out of the nationalist and forced him to hastily withdraw.

Bankers Reorganize Packing Companies in 3rd Big Merger

Following the establishment of a gigantic automobile combine by the merger of the Dodge, Packard, Hudson and other auto manufacturing companies, with the Briggs Body company, and the Goodyear Tire company by Wall Street bankers, and the combine of the Standard Oil with the Doheny Oil corporation, comes the announcement of the reorganization of the Wilson Packing company.

The packing concern, one of the "big four" members of the packing trust, will be taken over by a group of bankers, headed by the First National bank.

Important Young Workers League Meet in New York

NEW YORK, April 2.—On Sunday afternoon the Young Workers' League of New York will hold a membership meeting at 105 Eldridge St., to discuss the past work of the league and our present tasks in this district.

There will be a general report by the district organizer and discussion of the report.

Every member of the Young Workers' League of New York must attend this meeting. There will be taken a roll call, and all those absent will be disciplined.

Out of town branches of District No. 2 Y. W. L. are invited to attend this meeting. The out of town branches if they can not all attend should at least send one representative to the meeting.

Admission by membership card only.

Among other subjects: the recognition of Soviet Russia; a view of the developments in Mexico; the Negro and the trade unions; the situation in the miners and the textile industry; a discussion of different views of Leninism—plus poetry, photographs, cartoons and an international review section—combined in the April issue (and as interesting as eleven other issues in one year) make THE WORKERS MONTHLY well worth the subscription price of $1.25 for six months and $2.00 a year.

NEXT EXPLOSION MAY KILL MEN IN ILLINOIS MINE

Panama Mine Ignoring All Safety Rules

By TOM TIPPETT.

PANAMA, Ill., April 2.—If you hear of another mine explosion with scores of coaldiggers blown to atoms, don't be surprised if the report comes from Panama. The men employed in the Cosgrove Meehan Coal Co. mine here declare a disastrous blast may occur any minute and have lodged a protest, to prevent it, with the Illinois mine inspector. The present owners recently bought the mine and have inaugurated a system to cut the cost of coal production that breaks the law to such an extent that the men threaten to strike.

The Panama mine is the most gaseous pit in the Taylorville district, according to the state examiner. Three explosions in the past decade have burnt 28 miners to death. Almost every explosion in a coal mine is caused when coal dust which accumulates in the haulage ways is set off by gas, accidentally ignited. Coal dust is highly combustible. The state mining law requires this dust to be removed and all haulage ways kept sprinkled with water. This work is done on the night shift to prevent jamming the work schedule of the day force. After the explosions in Panama the old company constantly kept a night crew of 125 men on safety work. One gang did nothing but clean roads.

Air Courses All Clogged Up.

The new company reduced this force of 125 to 12 men. No mine roads are cleaned any longer. Air courses have become clogged and the main air current is now being circulated through an abandoned section of the mine before it reaches one of the working sections. The danger of this lies in the fact that the old workings are full of gas which has been blocked in by concrete walls. That part of the mine is now squeezing (the earth settling into the worked-out chambers). The squeeze has cracked three of the concrete walls. When the crack releases gas the air current will carry it to the working section. Six hundred men are in that mine on working days.

The Panama miners, having gone through explosions before, sent for the state mine inspector. John Millhouse, the inspector, has just finished a 3-day examination of the mine. His report, posted at the mine top, cites four main haulage ways as "very dusty and dirty." Another haulage way is "usually dirty." His recommendations in part read: "All haulage ways mentioned must be cleaned and sprinkled with water often." The squeeze section is not ordered closed to the air current but "it must be watched and examined regularly before the men go down."

The miners object and say the earth settles by day as well as night and that a new air course should be provided.

Company Says Profits Come First.

None of the changes have been made. The company claims is it unable to run the mine at a profit if it must abide by the state laws.

If the Panama mine blows up again there will be no need for a commission to determine why it happened. The miners, the inspector and the company will know why in advance.

Mob Violence.

NEW ORLEANS, April 2.—Judge Beattie sitting in the federal court has denied the right of Sol P. Dacus to a new trial against the Great Southern Lumber Co. for 130,000 for damages growing out of the anti-union mobbing at Bogalusa in 1920. Dacus with other union labor men was mistreated by a Liberty league, composed of citizens and employes of the lumber company when the union tried to secure adequate wages and better housing.

SAND HOGS IN STRIKE THREAT WIN VICTORY

Limit Hours Under Air Pressure Labor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, April 2—The Compressed Air Workers' Union, in which the 3,000 'sand hogs' of New York are organized, has won a signal legislative victory in the passage and signing of the Nicol-Phelp bill at Albany, radically limiting the hours under which men may be worked at the higher air pressures in the caissons and tunnels beneath our sky-scrapers and rivers and harbors.

Representatives of the contractors' association fought the bill to the last ditch but legislators were aware of the union's declaration that not a 'sand hog' would go into the 'air' in the construction of the much advertised Brooklyn to Staten Island tunnel unless hours were so shortened that the men would be protected in some degree against the terrible 'bends' or compressed air illness that laid nearly nine hundred men out in the New York to Jersey City tunnel now nearing completion.

The 6-hour day, broken into two shifts, begins at 18 pounds pressure above normal, under the new bill, instead of at 21 pounds as in the former regulations. The 4-hour day starts at 26 pounds instead of 30, which means that a large proportion of the men will be on a 4-hour basis as much of the work is done between 26 and 30 pounds. Hours decrease with increasing air pressure until 48 pounds is reached, when men will be allowed to work only one hour a day:

The bill now signed goes into effect July 1.

Stone Abandons Plan to Amalgamate the Two Head End Unions

CLEVELAND.—Hope for amalgamation of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen has been abandoned for the present by Pres. Warren S. Stone of the Engineers, he declares in the April issue of the Locomotive Engineers' Journal. Committees representing both organizations to smooth out merging of insurance, pensions and other funds discovered "insurmountable difficulties." The Firemen and Enginemen will consider the question once more in their June convention. For several years both brotherhoods have negotiated wages and conditions in common under the Chicago joint agreement.

duty. Arthur used to be a radical, or at least something to the left of the socialist party. But lately he has been traveling so far to the right that he is scraping the polish of Victor Berger's heels. Hearst's foremost columnist has an idea that warships are out of date and the airplane is a much more effective weapon for raining death on the heads of any people foolish enough to get fresh with Wall Street's government. Arthur is an old man, and it would not be fair to postpone the next massacre until he passes away.

IT is not so certain that Otto Braun will be the next Prussian premier by grace of the democratic and catholic parties. The socialists offered to back the catholic Wirth for the presidency of the republic in return for the Prussian premiership. But the catholics decided to throw their votes to a democrat, leaving the socialists up in the air. The latter are now scurrying, around trying to find a market for their seven million votes. If the kaiser isn't dead broke he can have them. The yellows are out for the dough.

Russian-Japanese Trade Is Booming as Result of Treaty

an can likewise expect to sell a good many of her products in the U. S. S. R.: among such products there may be mentioned paper, fishing nets and various fishing equipment, raw silk and, generally, raw materials for the Soviet silk industry, and so forth.

Beats Pre-War Record.

"According to the latest customs returns, the general Soviet-Japanese trade turnover in 1923-24 reached 15,500,000 rubles, which was about three times as much as in 1913. To promote trade relations with the U. S. S. R. there is no need to organize any special combine of Japanese firms.

"Following the conclusion of the commercial treaty, there will be established a Soviet trade mission in Japan, which will enter upon direct business relations with Japanese commercial and industrial concerns. At the same time, however, it would be useful to organize a Ruuso-Japanese chamber of commerce, where Japanese businessmen concerned could obtain all the necessary information on the position of the market and the respective laws of the U. S. S. R., and which could enter upon close relations with the Russo-Oriential chamber of commerce and other similar organizations.

Soviet Trade Commissions.

"It is, of course, difficult to say just now how many trade missions the U. S. S. R. would establish in Japan," Mr. Ganetzky further stated, "as it would depend on the actual development of trade relations. But I believe it would be useful for all parties concerned to open Soviet trade organs in some other big commercial centers of Japan, beside Tokyo, such as Osaka, Hakodato, etc."

BIG CAPITAL GRABBING BIG FARM FACTORIES

Tenants and Proletariat Increasing

"The danger is that it is already too late to find a remedy short of revolution," writes Herbert Quick in his book The Real Trouble With the Farmers. He sees a class conscious farm proletariat coming into existence as a result of the increase in land values due to the complete occupation of all good farm land.

Most writers, he says, are "ignoring the fact that farm tenantry has increased until it is the controlling factor in the condition of the farmer. It controls the majority of the farms in most of our richest farming districts When to the proportion of farms under tenantry is added the other farm areas which are mortgaged and the owners of which are in fact if not in law merely tenants, it embraces a vast majority of the farms in the United States.

Farm Tenantry On Increase.

"Farm tenantry increases with such rapidity because land grows so valuable that a poor man cannot buy it and pay for it. Farms in good farming regions are not for people in even moderate circumstances, as working people go. Lands which sold for $5 an acre in my boyhood have been sold in recent years for $500 an acre. Rich people in towns and cities bid with unvarying success against the dirt farmer for the ownership of farms."

Quick points out that this passing of the land into the hands of the rich is increasing the average size of farms. The 40-acre and 80-acre farms of yesterday have been combined into 320-acre farms worth $100,000 to $150,000. Once young men could buy and equip a farm with the savings of a number of years' labor. Now that is impossible where land is good.

New Farms Cattle Factories

The curse of landlordism, he says settles on a region wherever the land increases in value. It results in farms which lack flowers, shrubs and fruits. It produces farms which are merely corn, hog, wheat and cattle factories.

Remedies such as lower freight rates, diversification, farm credits and cooperation, he says, will eventually only boost the value of lands and the farmers will be no better off. He cites an instance in which cooperation with a better system of rural credits raised the price of land 200 per cent, 300 per cent and 500 per cent until it became too valuable for a poor man to hold.

The farm rental system in the United States is described as the worst in the world. To find one as bad we must go to prewar Russia. It is rack-renting, a system in which the landlord has the legal right to get as much out of his land as he can. It is filling the land with people on a peon scale of living.

OPEN SHOP TO DRIVE AGAINST STRONG UNIONS

Miners' and Building Unions in Line

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Watch the open shop pincers tighten on the organized coal miners. The golden age for the American investment empire requires a subservient working class at home. Open shop is the domestic side of imperialism.

The war left three powerful labor groups that could challenge the divine right of the money lords: the railroad workers, the mine workers and the building trades. Other strong unions did not so directly threaten basic industry in which the financial dictatorship is intrenched.

Administer "Breadline Cure."

Open shop strategy since 1920 has been to starve these groups into submission one at time, to administer what the capitalist press calls the "unemployment cure."

First the railway shopmen, the stronghold of the metal workers. In less than a year, about 200,000 were laid off and the railroads either let the work slide or contracted it out at exorbitant cost to nonunion concerns. It was an informal lockout which the unions fought bitterly but vainly. After two years in which tens of thousands had little employment or none, the railroads forced the 1922 shop strike. And the government backed the railroads.

Heavy Losses in Metal Trades.

The metal trades unions lost heavily in membership, lost their entire right to represent the employes on a majority of roads, and lost their militancy. Strike action was at a discount, co-operation with capital on a poor-relation basis at a premium.

Then open shop hit the miners. Union mines in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and the southwest were forced to part-time, in many instances to complete shutdown, while nonunion mines exceeded all records. Later union mines in outlying districts cautiously opened on a nonunion basis.

Recently the Cleveland conference of operators in the central field was put forward as a feeder with the hint that if it proved ineffective toward the capitulation of the union the lockout would extend to Pennsylvania. The Pittsburgh lockout followed. The union has been forced to threaten expulsion for locals working a fake cooperative scheme in order to evade the agreement and get jobs.

Who is next? There are the building trades, protected so far by the unusual housing demand. And beyond them the more strongly intrenched railroaders.

Peru Feels Cheated Over Award Giving Nitrate to Chile

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Public indignation in Peru against the Hughes-Coolidge award of the Tacna-Arica nitrate territory to Chile, under the thin disguise of a plebiscite in which only Chileans will vote in large numbers, has forced Leguia, the dictator president, to send to Washington a note demanding modifications of the award. He asked that American forces be sent to the disputed region to protect Peruvians during the taking of the vote. If his demands were not complied with, he would not accept the award and would take no part in the plebiscite.

Ambassador Velarde hesitated to convey this ultimatum to Coolidge. The White House and state department learned its text when someone else in the Peruvian embassy gave it to the newspapers. Then pressure was applied, and over the week-end Velarde got new instructions which toned down the demands to polite requests. Peru's government now suggests that a native constabulary be organized to control the plebiscite and its preliminaries. This new note was delivered to Secretary Kellogg. But all the world had meanwhile been informed that the Peruvians felt that they had been cheated out of their territory by the Hughes-Coolidge decision.

Bill Lee Now Out for Stone's Scalp Using Lewis' Gun

CLEVELAND. — The Warren S. Stone-John L. Lewis war is raging on a new front. Pres. William S. Lee, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is distributing 2,500 copies of Lewis' pamphlet charging Stone and his associates with operating a nonunion coal mine in West Virginia. Lee and Stone have been at sword's points for years. Lee has held back from co-operation with the 15 other railway organizations which united to publish Labor, the national rail labor weekly, and refused to join the Conference for Political Action which sponsored the LaFollette insurgent presidential campaign last fall.

Big Business Knows the Value of Having Unity Against Labor

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Two hundred trade associations and 1,100 local chambers of commerce throughout the country are affiliated with the U. S. chamber of commerce, whose headquarters are in Washington. Three fourths of the revenues of the national body come from associate and sustaining memberships, held by big merchants, manufacturers, bankers, etc., in whose name the national officers speak to the governmental chiefs.

Cal's Wall Street Appointee on Job

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Rejection at the next senate session of Thos. F. Woodlock, former editor of the Wall Street Journal, as a member of the interstate commerce commission is apparently the response to the recess appointment to Woodlock after the senate twice failed to act on his nomination. Woodlock's appointment has apparently been urged by the Morgan and Mellon interests in the belief that the new commissioner can accomplish a great deal of valuable work for them before the senate shall throw him out.

Weeks to Lease Power Plant.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of War Weeks is getting ready to advertise for bids for the hydro-electric power—about 100,000 horsepower— which will be generated at the Wilson dam, Muscle Shoals, beginning about July 1. Inasmuch as the power can be disposed of for only a brief time without the consent of congress, which refused to finally enact the Underwood leasing bill, it is anticipated that the General Electric power trust will bid in this "juice" at a small fraction of its commercial value.

Steel Trust Cleaned U $153,114,811

Workers in the steel mills of th U. S. Steel Corp. during 1924 turned over to the owners a profit of $153, 114,811. Calvin Coolidge's share o this amounts to $589 while George F Baker, dean of New York bankers and largest stockholder, gets $690,500.

Cal's share on his steel trust holdings just about equals the wages on which the average steel worker's family is supposed to live for four month Baker's haul would cover the entire year's budget of 387 families in the steel towns.

Profits Double the Investment.

Profits of the corporation since i organization in 1901 have totaled $ 517,348,727 or more than twice th capitalization, nearly half of which was water. Out of this enormou total $2,087,771,000 has been availabl for dividends on the preferred an common stock. This represents abou four times the actual investment re resented by stock at the time of o ganization. The corporation has pai $1,176,473,763 in cash dividends.

The water in the common stock h been squeezed out by annual appr priations for new construction out o surplus profits. These have totale $1,210,662,572, thus placing behind th common stock which originally repr sented little if any investment a val of around $238 a share. Thus the re investment represented by the co mon stock has been put in by unde paid workers and overcharged co sumers and the $595,960,000 in ca dividends to common stockholde has been little more than legaliz robbery.

New York Solons Fail to Pass the 48-Hour Law

ALBANY, N. Y., April 2.—The New York state legislature closed without passing the 48-hour bill for working women in spite of both parties' pledges that such a bill would be passed. The republican majority, led by the Associated Industries, tried to substitute a joker bill which would have permitted employers to work women (permanently) 54 hours a week. The industrial board under what Senator Mastick, sponsor of the 48-hour bill, called "complicated and unworkable conditions" could reduce working hours in certain industries after investigations and hearings. The Women's Trade Union League fought for the passage of the Mastick-Shonk bill which would have limited working women's hours in industry to 48 per week.

By JACK ARMITAGE.

NGHAI, China, April 2.—The s Labor party (Kuomintang) likely to dominate in large part kin unity conference. Peace orient depends largely upon the e of the Pekin conference. In ation for this the Kuomintang en strengthened in every way. prolonged illness, followed by th of Sun Yat Sen has been re- ble for the postponement of the ence. Sun's successor has not en chosen, though it is likely he mantle will descend upon Chung Koi, an ex-governor of , who is chairman of the Kuo- g committee of control.

To Hear All Views.

Kuomintang has insisted that a conference representative of opinion in China. The Chinese party has no foolish notions re- g the position of the oriental rs. Asia's teeming millions of rs are the proletariat of the and its efforts are bent upon unification of China as the first in the betterment of the econ- status of the Chinese worker.

control of the Kuomintang is l in a committee elected by its ers. It is usually assumed that Kuomintang is controlled by pol- s and militarists at Canton, to the term Bolshevik is applied. matter of fact, Kuomintang has adquarters at Pekin, and the ittee of control is drawn from y scattered provinces, in all of radical influence is steadily g ground. The party has a big ving and receives a strong sup- from overseas Chinese, particu- in America and Australia.

BUILDING TRADES UNIONS IN NATIONAL CAPITAL FACE OPEN SHOP DRIVE RUN BY BANKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Hundreds of strikebreakers have been recruited in Richmond, Baltimore and Philadelphia, according to officials of the Master Painters' association of Washington, to replace members of Painters' Union No. 368 in the event of a strike on April 6 in support of the demand of the union for a wage of $10 a day. Non-union painters in Richmond are said to be getting only $5.60. Men of other building trades are likewise being listed to replace union men who may go out when their own demands are rejected within the coming fortnight.

W. T. Galliher, chairman of the board of directors of the Federal-American National bank, one of the largest in the city, presided at a meeting on March 30, of a special committee of the bankers, real estate men, speculative builders and sub-contractors, at which plans were laid for the struggle to break the building trades unions in the District of Columbia unless the unions drop their demands for a raise in pay. All the allied interests pledged support to sub-contractors who should refuse to pay the higher scale and take the consequences.

The painters and other unions involved in the demands refuse to give up hope that the bosses will agree to a peaceful solution involving some degree of increase in wages. They recognize that there is cheap labor available in cities south of the Potomac, but they do not believe it can be imported to Washington and maintained here as a strikebreaking force with any success to the actual builders. They consider this maneuver a bluff.

Workers Party of Milwaukee Holds Membership Meet

CLEVELAND HAS COSTUME BALL SUNDAY, APRIL 5

Dancing, Music, and Gymnasts on Program

CLEVELAND, April 2.—More features are being added to the program for the international entertainment, bazaar, and costume ball, to be held on Sunday, April 5, at Grdina's Hall, 6021 St. Clair Ave., by local Cleveland, Workers Party.

The Lettish Singing Society has agreed to appear, in addition to the German, Hungarian, Jewish, Lithuanian, Finnish, and Ukrainian choruses. Neil Amter and Jerome Land will be among those who will provide instrumental music.

Finnish Gymnasts Appear.

The Finnish gymnastic teams will appear, the women's team being especially proficient in calisthenics, and providing a novel and very interesting drill. The Russian Mandolin Orchestra, which always receives an ovation, will also be on hand.

The committee is arranging for refreshments during the evening intermission, so that anything from coffee and a sandwich to a substantial meal at a very moderate price, can be secured.

Award Prizes.

Dancing is scheduled for 7:30, and the evening will be featured by the numerous national costumes which will be worn by the dancers, for the best of which individual and group prizes will be awarded; and by ballet dancing by Lillian Krestan, one of Cleveland's leading artists in this line. Jack Bros. peppy union orchestra will provide the music.

Child Workers Ruined in Health to Pile Up Profits for Employers

NEW YORK, April 2.—Half of New York's working children of 14 to 15 years have physical defects, said State Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton, and these defects are aggravated by the work they are doing. Half of the children with flat feet must be on their feet most of the day; one-quarter of the children with defective eye sight work under eye strain; more than half the children with heart defects worked under conditions of nerve strain.

Almost half the children working, entered industry because the money was needed at home. In summing up his report Hamilton remarks: "Subjecting the child under 16 to conditions of work which tend to break down rather than strengthen his physical equipment would seem to be false economy."

Prison Strike Against Contract Slave System Was Fully Justified

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 2.—An investigating committee of the West Virginia legislature reports that the recent strike of convicts at Moundsville penitentiary against illegal changes of tasks in the contract labor shops was "morally justified"—although many of the convicts have meanwhile been punished. The committee also declares that the contracts secured by Isador Gordon, the Bardall and the Kleeson companies were illegal. Gordon is one of the heads of the prison contract labor trust, of which the two companies are known as subsidiaries. The legislative committee finds that the contract labor system itself was responsible for this prison strike, and it recommends that the system be abolished.

FOSTER JUNIOR GROUP PUTS ON PLAYS AT PARTY

Have Big Program for First Anniversary

The first anniversary of one of the brightest, most energetic and militant groups of the Juniors was celebrated by the Foster Junior Group of Brownsville. This group, which has participated in many party affairs, demonstrated that the boys and girls composing it, not only understand what Communism means and what its aims are, but also that they possess the energy to go forth among the boys and girls of this country and do the propaganda and organizational work necessary to build up a powerful youth movement in the United States.

Shows Fighting Spirit.

The Foster group showed its fighting spirit in the tableau "Slavery and Freedom" and in the two-act playlet "The School." The young comrades played with zest and understanding. In the tableau they showed that they well understand the struggle that the workers are engaged in, and the dynamic enthusiasm with which they gave the tableau was catching.

The playlet is very effective and was played with wonderful clarity and precision. This little play should be given by every group in the organization. The three main roles were played by three comrades of the Juniors, Louis and Sadie Mikells and Anna Rishen. These three boys and girls played with splendid finesse. We older comrades who have gone thru the American schools and know what they stand for, once more lived thru our own youthful experiences. It is said that the two young comrades, Louis Mikells and Anna Rishen, in giving definitions of the world capitalism, parasite, Communism and Soviet, supplied their own definitions, which were as correct as Marx himself has put them.

Performance Captivating.

The verve with which the children played was captivating: Do Communist children excel? Have they the militancy that children should have who are not spoiled by the vicious school system? Is there any substitute for the Junior Groups in this country to train children into militants and fighters against the degrading capitalist system? There is none, despite the fact that some comrades not only do not appreciate the work that is being done by the Junior Groups, but also seem to be opposed to the Junior Groups as a matter of principle.

The Junior Groups of New York, and particularly the Foster Group, have been given good leadership and training by the Young Workers' League of New York. Their consciousness has been intensified, their vigor increased. The natural, instinctive fighting spirit has been increased.

Pay Heed to Juniors.

If comrades of the Workers Party would only pay more attention to the splendid work that is being done by the Junior Groups, particularly of New York City, if they would criticize less and help more—if they would answer the appeal of the Young Workers' League and of the Junior Groups, to send their children into the groups—just as the Juniors and the league appeal to the non-party proletarians to do, then the movement would grow with greater speed and enregy.

There is no substitute for the Workers (Communist) Party; there is no substitute for the Young Workers' League. There is also no substitute for the Junior Groups, despite all suggestions of non-partisan schools of every character.

Israel Lifschitz was chairman of the meeting, which he conducted like an adult. During the evening, which was one of tremendous enthusiasm, Comrade I. Amter spoke about the youth movement in Soviet Russia, and Comrade W. Herberg addressed the assemblage in the name of the district committee of the Y. W. L. The evening was instructive, elevating, inspiring.

All hail to the Juniors!

INSTITUTION FOR MOTHER AND CHILD WELFARE IN LENINGRAD

LENINGRAD, April 2.—In spite of extreme economic conditions, much was done in Leningrad during the years of revolution with respect to protection of motherhood and childhood. But the greatest achievement of all was the establishment of the Institute for Mother and Child Welfare.

The premises of the institute consisted of 17 pavilions spread over an area of ten dessiatines. There are at present about 700 mothers' and children's cots in the institute.

The institute is really quite a little township with various types of institutions, whose business it is to look after healthy and sick children and to do everything for the protection of motherhood.

The work of the institute is under the direction of the council consisting of prominent medical men, jurists, biologists, and social workers.

The institute has a considerable number of departments.

There is a consultation room for mothers with children, and pregnant women.

Nurses Are Fully Trained

In the consultation room, there are fully trained nurses who give the mothers advice on sanitation, hygiene, etc.

The waiting room is a large, light circular hall. Its walls are covered with picture posters dealing with the protection of mothers and children. The room next to it is the weighing room which is provided with a special children's weighing machine. Children suspected of suffering from infectious complaints are not allowed into the general waiting room, but are taken to a special room divided into separate little boxes. From the weighing room the children go with their mothers into a large light corridor, from which a number of medical consulting rooms may be entered. The waiting room for pregnant women is at the other end of the corridor and has a separate entrance. Its walls too are covered with slogans and posters.

In the same building is the children's clinic for special complaints (therapeutic, surgical, nervous and eye and ear complaints). It has also a special entrance.

In the main building there are: a surgical department with a splendidly equipped operation room, Rontgen rays cabinet, department for internal complaints, a clinic for nursing children and a distributing department for children under 12 months. Here the children are examined, kept under observation and then sent to the special mothers' and children's homes.

In the large two-storied pavilion to the right of the big avenue the maternity department occupies the first floor. It is well equipped and very light, clean and comfortable. The newly born babies are put in a special ward away from their mothers. On the second floor is the department for pregnant women to which women are admitted two months before their confinement if they are in poor circumstances. And then there is another department where mothers stay with theid babies for two months after their confinement, also in cases of economic hardship. Here too, everything is clean, light and comfortable, white furniture everywhere, slogans and posters on the walls. Separate bed-rooms and a separate dining-room. Five of the pavilions are hotels for mothers with their children, and then there are three pavilions for children only.

Instruction Given Mothers

The mothers take duty in turn. They look after the children, work in the linen and in the dining room, and are also encouraged to work in the sewing room, which is in a separate building.

Mothers get instruction in sanitation, hygiene, etc., and there is also a school for the liquidation of illiteracy.

There is a milk center in one of the pavilions, which is beautifully equipped,—a special room to which the milk is delivered and where it is cooled, a room for the sterilization of milk and for the preparation of milk foods. These rooms are provided with special sterilizers, cooling apparatuses and separators. Here too the milk is bottled. There is a special bottle-washing room and a waiting room, also a laboratory with the necessary aquipment for scientific work. The outstanding feature of this department is its scrupulous cleanliness, which equals that of the operation room. At present this milk center prepares about 50 different foods for nursing children who have to be artificially fed.

The tasks and possibilities of this institution are enormous. The idea is to train in the institute a cadre of mother and child welfare workers for work in the country. The institute most become a center for the further development of the science of bringing up healthy children, a science which is yet in its infancy.

Social Work Big Task

Apart from scientific work the institute makes social work one of its main tasks. A motherhood and childhood protection nucleus will be organized shortly, consisting of representatives of factories and works situated in the Viborg district, as well as representatives of social organizations. This nucleus, as a proletarian social organ, is to establish contact between the institute and the factories and works.

The social-judicial department which is being organized in the institute will make it its business of study and to realize the legal rights of mother and child.

Finally, the institute is undertaking to be the patron over one of the uyezds, to give instruction and render help in uyezds mother and child welfare work, and first and foremost to organize medical consultation in the villages.

The institute is closely connected with all Leningrad mother and child welfare institutions, and is, so to speak, their scientific and leading center.—Yasnaya.

GALA SPRING DANCE BY WORKERS' SCHOOL SATURDAY, APRIL 11

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Workers' School will hold a gala spring entertainment and dance on Saturday evening, April 11, at 108 East 14th street. This is the first affair arranged by the school at the new headquarters and promises to be a prize event at our workers' house.

Among the many interesting features of the evening will be an exhibition of Armenian folk dances by Varya Stepanian, well-known Armenian dancer.

Music will be furnished by the orchestra of the English Williamsburg branch, the fame of which has spread among our ranks thruout the length and breadth of the city.

Comrades and sympathizers are urged to make no other arrangements for the evening of April 11, and to come to the Workers' School at 108 East 14th street.

TACTICS OF C. I. TAUGHT AT N. Y. WORKERS' SCHOOL

Classes Held in Bronx, Harlem and Brooklyn

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Workers' School announces that a course in the Principles and Tactics of the Communist International is now being given under its supervision in the Workers' Educational Centers of Bronx, Harlem, and Brownsville.

To Trace World Situation.

Beginning with an analysis of the world economic situation and the crisis of capitalism, the course will then take up the problems of Communist tactics and the building up of mass Communist parties. A study will be made of the organization of the Communist International and the Communist Party, devoting special attention to shop nuclei reorganization, propaganda work of the Communist Party, the winning of the peasantry, the national and colonial questions, work of co-operatives, among the youth, etc. The course will close with an analysis of the special problems and tendencies of the Communist parties in the leading countries.

The chief text to be used is the theses of the Fifth Congress of the Communist International, as contained in No. 8 of the "Communist International." This will be supplemented by other important documents.

Classes are as follows:

Bronx Educational Center, 1347 Boston Road—Every Tuesday evening, 8 p. m. Instructor, I. Stamler.

Harlem Educational Center, 64 East 104th street—Every Tuesday evening, 8 p. m. Instructor, Rebecca Grecht.

Brownsville Educational Center, 1701 Pitkin Ave., Brooklyn—Every Monday evening, 8 p. m. Instructor, George Siskind.

Everyone Can Enroll.

Comrades and sympathisers are urged to enroll at once. In the previous term classes in the Elements of Communism were conducted in the Workers' Educational Centers. The course now offered supplements this study of Communist theory, but may also be profitably taken by those who did not follow the other course.

This course will also be given by Comrade Joseph Brahdy at the West Side headquarters, 345 West 39th St., date to be announced.

A course in the Elements of Communism, with Ray Ragozin as instructor, will be given every Friday evening, 8 p. m., at 64 East 104th street.

For information and registration inquire of secretary, Workers' School, Room 34, 108 East 14th street, or of the Workers' Educational Centers.

Number One--

Is a task of no small importance.

Getting a sub for the DAILY WORKER from your shop-mate or member of your union is a task for the very best kind of a Communist organizer.

You must state, prove, convince—you must place before the uninformed worker every argument as to why he should subscribe to The DAILY WORKER—and to the Communist principles it advocates.

But it is the task of every Communist.

This is the field in which are found not only the future members of the Workers (Communist) Party, but also—

This is the field and work in which are developed the highest type of Communist Organizers.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub is a task of no small importance! Try it on your shop-mate—it will make a better Communist of you!

ALABAMA GOVERNOR CALLS FOR UNITED ATTACK ON BOLSHEVISM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CINCINNATI, O., April 1.—"Bolshevism is growing. The conservatives of the democratic party must join with the conservatives of the republican party, under one party name to combat it."

This was the statement of Governor William Brandon, of Alabama, who arrived in Cincinnati today to deliver an address.

The governor suggested that a conference of the two old parties be held at Washington at once and the outcome of such conference should be an immediate merger of the conservative elements of both parties under the name of the conservative party.

"There is a real danger here," Governor Brandon said. "It must be realized. And steps must be taken to cope with it. The conservatives of both parties are alike in their political beliefs, and a union should not be difficult."

"I do not favor government development and operation of Muscle Shoals," said the governor. But he expressed himself as favoring government supervision, the work to be done by private parties.

Anti-Soviet Agent Angry at Exposure by the Daily Worker

When F. A. Mackenzie, anti-Soviet agent of the Daily News, who has been trying to take Jake Spolansky's place as that newspapers' official liar, spoke against Soviet Russia at a north side forum, he found that he had a hostile audience on his hands.

During the discussion period, George George Kocalis, and other members of the Workers Party, gave the lie to Mackenzie's statement that counter-revolutionary prisoners in Russia were "in prison for nothing at all."

Pointed questions were thrust at Mackenzie as to why he did not take an interest in the thousands of Communist prisoners rotting in the European prisons. He replied he "knew nothing about Communist prisoners."

Comrade Kocalis told the audience that Mackenzie was the representative of a rotten capitalist sheet, which has no use for the working class, and told of the DAILY WORKER which defends the interests of the workers.

Mackenzie mentioned the DAILY WORKER in his speech and seemed much perturbed that the workers' daily had exposed his anti-Soviet lies.

Old friends and new will gather at the West End Women's Club on Saturday evening, April 4, to enjoy a variety of entertainments to be staged by the I. W. W. press committee.

Professional singers and actors will do their stuff, a playlet, "A Woman of Convenience" will be staged by good talent, altho the censors have barred the title, so we understand, as being more intriguing than the play justifies.

Besides this, Pasco Eseralero, will give a selection of songs in Spanish and English. And then, there will be a dance on a good floor with a fine orchestra.

Open Shop Drive in Washington, D. C., to Involve 40,000 Men

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Refusal of 30 members of the Stonecutters to work with a foreman who has no union card resulted in immediate dismissal of all members of the union employed by the president of the local master masons association, William McLeod. Officers of seven other building trades which have, like the Stonecutters, demanded an increase in wages, believe they also may face a lockout. The Stonecutters were told their union would no longer be recognized. Dismissal of the Stonecutters took place 24 hours after a meeting of over 100 speculative builders, subcontractors and financial and real estate men, determined to jointly resist any increase in building wages but no other action against the unions

Forty thousand men are involved in the impending struggle. April 6, 1,000 Painters are scheduled to go out unless the bosses grant an increase from $9 to $10 a day—a demand which the Master Painters have rejected. The Steamfitters are asking a raise from $10 to $11, May 31. The Plumbers ask the same raise for May 7. The Rubble Stone Masons want the same for April 1, and the Cut Stone Masons for April 6. The Millworkers are also demanding a raise, as are the Plasterers.

Borah Denies Anti-Soviet Talk.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Frederick William Wile, standpat press correspondent and radio lecturer on foreign affairs at Washington, announced Kellogg, "with President Coolidge's support, stands exactly where Secretary Hughes stood, and where Secretary Colby stood," as to recognition of Russia.

Neither the state department nor the White House would confirm this statement, but Senator Borah remarked that Wile was "altogether too positive."

Dial Gets His Reward.

WASHINGTON—Former Sen. Dial of South Carolina, who voted with the administration on all important issues during the recent session, when he was a democratic lame duck, has received his reward. He has been named by President Coolidge as a member, on salary, of the special commission on Muscle Shoals. Dial voted to give Muscle Shoals to the power trust, under the terms of the Underwood bill. He is a big owner of cotton mills, and is a persistent enemy of public ownership of power, railroads or other utilities.

Montana Flood Waters Recede.

GLASGOW, Mont., April 2.—Flood waters of the Milk River were receding this morning after reaching their highest point last night and causing a damage of approximately $100,000 in this vicinity. The water covered the first floor of many houses on the lower side of this city and wrought havoc to many of the farms.

Cleveland Dance Also Aids Hungry Workers

CLEVELAND, April 2—Painters' District Council No. 6 and Street Railway Employees have purchased tickets for the big dance on Saturday, April 4, at Gordon Square Market Hall, West 65th and Detroit, for the benefit of the Irish Famine Sufferers.

The local branch of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, under whose auspices the affair is being run, is making preparations for a record-breaking crowd at this popular West Side hall, where Irish and American dancing will provide all with one of the best times of the season.

McCarthy to Speak.

The local committee will also hold a mass meeting in the near future, at which John Patrick McCarthy, now on his way back from the famine region in Ireland, will speak.

The local capitalist press is playing true to form by publishing news stories which attempt to minimize the extent of the famine in Ireland but the wide-awake Irish workers of Cleveland, are not fooled by such propaganda of the British and Free State governments and their American sympathizers, which they have seen many times before.

Donations for Bazaar.

A bazaar is being run in connection with this affair, and every party member is to make a donation of merchandise or cash for this purpose. A number of the branches will have branch booths, and the donations are to be left either in the local headquarters, at 5927 Euclid Ave., or at the branch headquarters.

Donations for the bazaar are coming in and good reports being made for advance ticket sales, and the committee is making preparations for a big crowd, and for the most successful affair held by Local Cleveland during the season. Admission only 35 cents in advance (45 cents at the door) for both afternoon and evening. Entertainment starts at 2 p. m.

Engineers' Building Tied Up by Row Over Jurisdictional Rights

CLEVELAND, April 2.—An involved jurisdictional tangle centers about the uncompleted $5,000,000 Brotherhood of Locomotive Engeneers' Building in Cleveland. The federal court has been asked to pass on the disputes which involve the structural iron workers, painters, plumbers, bricklayers and steam engineers unions. A plea for an injunction was brought by a sub-contractor against the main contractor and seeks to have iron workers hang elevator doors, rather than carpenters. It is also charged that the painters are demanding that metal window wor factory be repainted.

The building, to have been completed in March, will not be opened until June. Similar delays are occurring on the $4,000,000 public library job.

Complete Conference Plans.

ROME—Preparations for the International Parliamentary and Commercial Confrerence, April 7 to 21 were completed today. There was no indication that Germany will participate.

BUILDERS AT WORK

HE STILL KEEPS OUT OF JAIL!

Even Tho He Tries it in Boise, Idaho.

WE have once before brought to the attention of our readers the splendid efforts of a real BUILDER—Comrade Theodore Pierce of Boise, Idaho—who told us then what a nest of reaction this town was.

Despite threats of jail he sold the DAILY WORKER on the streets and continues doing it as you see by this letter he sends us:

Dear Comrades:

I am writing today to let you know that I have not as yet found my way to jail for selling the DAILY WORKER as some would-be capitalist has suggested I would. I am sending you another $1.50 today for the papers I have sold.

Increase my order to ten copies daily and send me at once a dozen copies of Upton Sinclair's "Singing Jail Birds" to sell as I go along with the DAILY WORKER.

Boise is a stronghold for the would-be sore-head capitalists, who, should they get out of work, would be starving in less than a month. They are literally owned and driven by their bosses altho the DAILY WORKER is opening some of their eyes and I think is doing them a world of good. Yet many of the "frog-head farmers" think it too radical. I have not been able to take any more subs but have promises of some soon and you can rest assured I will keep after them.

Fraternally Yours,
Theodore Pierce.

The fine spirit of this BUILDER is one we are glad to bring to the attention of our readers. Boise is a "hard" town—with religion of the fifty seven varities as its cloak of virtue. This comrade is opening up a new territory where it is not easy to be a Communist Pioneer. More success to his efforts and may our movement have more such BUILDERS.

It is no exaggeration to say that there has never appeared in this country such an important journal of information and theory—when you can find articles by Gregory Zinoviev, Wm. Z. Foster, I. Stalin, Earl R. Browder, Wm. F. Dunne, Alexander Bittelman and other well known writers in one number—as you will in the April issue of THE WORKERS MONTHLY which has just come off the press.

About This Book
"Lenin--
The Great Strategist of the Class War"
by A. Lozovsky.

In a splendid introduction Alexander Bittelman, member of the central executive committee of the Workers Party, says:

"What must you do? What can YOU Do?

"Turn to Lenin, he'll tell you. He has built a party and led a movement which already conquered for the toiling masses one-sixth of the earth's surface. He ought to know how you do those things. Ask him and he'll tell you."

We have received a new stock of this splendid pamphlet by the secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

Mergers

What Wall Street admits is the largest merger n the history of the oil industry has just taken lace with the acquisition of the Pan-American etroleum and Transport company by the Stand-rd Oil company of Indiana, the most powerful ubsidiary of the Rockefeller interests.

The assets of the Pan-American include besides il wells and immense concessions of Mexican oil roperties, refineries and a fleet of oil tankers conisting of 31 ships with a dead weight of 272,500 ons, formerly controlled by E. L. Doheny of Tea-ot Dome fame.

Just as in world politics the struggle centers around a re-division of the world between two or three great imperialist powers so on the American continent the present period is one of huge consolidations of industrial combinations already gigantic in size and unbelievably powerful. Independent enterprise on a large scale is a thing of the past.

Two events, one occurring in the United States, the other in Mexico, have created the opportunity for which Standard Oil has been waiting—the election of Coolidge by a huge plurality guarantees a kindly attitude by the government towards the big capitalists under the slogan "no interference with legitimate business," the rise of the Calles government and its complete domination by Wall Street assures American capital of the privilege of cashing in on such holdings as those just acquired from Doheney by Standard Oil. Mexico has been "pacified," the Standard Oil now has the edge on its British competitor.

In other lines of industry the same process can be seen. The General Electric increases its capitalization and becomes second only to the steel trust; the Morgan interests are perfecting another huge merger of coal, gas, electric power, iron and chemical concerns in the south. Gold flows in a steady stream into the United States and is exported in the form of loans which force other nations to pay tribute to the American finance-capitalists.

The American working class is exploited as never before. More commodities are produced at a lower cost than in any other period, the permanent army of unemployed grows even while industry is active.

The keynote of all this is militarism—training camps, student reserve corps, the division of the nation into military areas, the organization of skeleton army sections with their corresponding industrial subsidiaries, the clamor for increased naval armaments, the great maneuvers of the fleet in the Pacific, the thumping of the tom-toms by the capitalist press.

The capitalists are torn between two desires. They wish to see industry running at the highest possible speed, but at the same time they hail with joy any slackening as a signal for the beginning of another open shop offensive. In the coal mining and textile industry this scheme is already under way.

The official labor movement talks glibly of prosperity and sees no sign of the grave danger confronting the whole American working class. The capitalists combine and re-combine their forces and multiply their strength. The labor unions under the influence of a leadership that is less awake than the middle-class liberals marches straight to disaster.

The urge for profits from industry is no longer the great force it was in this country once upon a time. A powerful section of the capitalists now fill their coffers from the interest on foreign loans. They can wait while the workers starve during periods of unemployment, make war on the workers' organizations and weaken the working class so that it cannot effectively resist being used as cannon fodder.

A united front against wage cuts and the open shop is today something more than a defense of the mass standard of living. It is the first step in resistance to the war plans of the rulers whose increasing centralization of power in the form of mergers in basic industries is a prelude to another blood bath for the workers.

The son of Major General Leonard Wood is not much good, but he is some improvement on his father. Up to date he has not butchered any Filipino peasants.

Jugo-Slavia is about to borrow $100,000,000 from American and British bankers. Another "independent" nation.

Cal's $600 steel trust dividends do not in any way correspond to the value of the services he has rendered it, but being president has to be figured as part of the price.

Semenoff Quits

Semenoff has made his peace with the Soviet government—on its, not his, terms.

He will be allowed to return to Siberia, not because he can be of any use to the workers' and peasants' government, but because the Chinese workers and peasants, as well as the Japanese, have tired of having this bandit leader in their territory. The Soviet government takes responsibility for the further acts of this white guard as a favor to the peoples with whom it has concluded treaties. It is hardly necessary to say that Semenoff's career as a leader of counter-revolutionary detachments is over.

American soldiers who were in Siberia as part of the Wilsonian imperialist adventure will remember Semenoff as the most brutal of the white guard elements. Several clashes between his murderous bands and the American troops took place in spite of the fraternization between the officers of both armies and the former enlisted men will waste no sympathy on Semenoff no matter what happens to him.

The liquidation of the emigre counter-revolutionary organizations is proceeding at a rapid pace. Semenoff follows Savinkov and only in those countries where the aristocracy has more money than sense do these elements receive any support. It will not be long before the United States will be the only nation where they can find shelter and pork chops.

It is quite fitting in view of the counter-revolutionary character of American capitalist democracy that the offspring of the industrial lords should mingle with the degenerate scions of the Russian aristocracy which a workers' revolution has wiped out in their own land.

Solidarity and Civilization

We have to hand it to the so-called backward peoples when it comes to displaying solidarity. 600,000 Arabs boycotted the welcome to Lord Balfour the other day in Palestine; they closed all shops and draped their houses in black. They want no British imperialist rule and show their disapproval with a unanimity that is striking and effective.

Contrast the militant action of these sons of the desert with the cowardly attitude of the millions of Irish in the United States when Lloyd George and other mouthpieces of British imperialism arrived. There were a few sporadic protests, but policemen of Irish birth or descent suppressed them and most of the Irish people made no protest at all.

Civilization, from the revolutionary point of view, is not gauged by the number of movies and one-arm restaurants, but by the manner in which the masses resist attempts to enslave them.

From this standpoint the Arab workers and peasants are miles ahead of nationalities that ape the respectability of their rulers.

A Correction

On March 20 we published an editorial entitled, "Wall Street-Calles Socialism," in which we referred to a "sob letter written by one Nellie Seeds Nearing, ex-mate of Scott Nearing."

Our sole purpose in making this reference was to prevent anyone receiving the impression that Scott Nearing was in any way in sympathy with the letter, written to The Nation, and signed by Nellie Seeds Nearing. The letter itself was nothing more or less than a glossing over of the betrayal of the Mexican workers perpetrated at the El Paso convention of the American Federation of Labor and we would have been fully justified in making a sharper and more extended criticism of it.

We had made inquiries from a number of persons whom we considered reliable and were informed that the Nearings had separated due to deep-seated political differences.

Scott Nearing informs us that this is not the case, that he and Nellie Seeds Nearing have been married since 1908 and are still living together.

We make the correction for the record. We do not desire to drag the matrimonial relations of anyone into political controversy, but persons who express the Pollyanna viewpoint in public journals on such important issues as the wholesale selling of a labor movement to Wall Street by a labor officialdom which wars on the Communists, need not expect us to share their ideas as to what constitutes the good, true and beautiful.

A Center Candidate for the Allies

Marx, candidate of the center coalition, seems to be the choice of the American capitalist press for the German presidency.

It is probable that two other entries will contest the finals with Marx—Jarres, candidate of the big industrialists, and Thaelmann, the Communist leader.

The allied imperialists favor the election of the center candidate rather than that of the big industrialists for the reason that it will mean government which, while showing the mailed fist to the German working class, will be unable to build any real resistance to the colonization of Germany. The industrialists would insist on many more concessions from allied capital than the spineless social-democracy, an important part of the center coalition.

The kind of government that the allies want in Germany is one that will war on the workers, but be soft as butter in the hands of the allied diplomats and financiers.

The world is moving fast when world capitalism looks to the German social-democracy, in alliance with the catholic party to give it the kind of a regime it desires.

The lessons of this will not escape the important sections of the German masses and the Communists are driving these lessons home.

CHARGE WORKERS PARTY ORGANIZER DISTURBED LABOR

But It Seems Police Only Ones Disturbed

stated that I would accompany him, only if put under arrest.

This pleasant formality being arranged, I was informed that the charge was: "Making myself a nuisance on the public streets!" He explained further that I had disturbed the building workers, and kept them from their work. By this time, we had entered the police station.

Under Arrest.

As we walked in, Police Chief McArthur met us. Lieut. McLean began his tale of woe. How I had "disturbed" three different groups of workers on the streets, how I had given out the DAILY WORKER, and, horrors! how I had urged the benefits of a society when the workers would control the factories and mills. He insisted that the DAILY WORKER should not be allowed in Willimantic (on this question, the labor fakers agree with him.)

I told him that unfortunately he could not handle this, since the postal authorities at Washington did not deny the DAILY WORKER the postal privileges. I told the chief that we had the right to sell the paper, that I was talking with workers who wished to talk to me; and furthermore, that the building trades workers were not working then, on account of the rain. I insisted that we were going to tell the workers the benefits of Communism, and the hellishness of capitalism.

The chief then stated that a complaint had been made to him about a crowd gathering around the Gem Theater Saturday morning. I disclaimed all responsibility for the gathering of the crowd, since I was merely selling the DAILY WORKER.

The chief agreed that we had a perfect right to sell the DAILY WORKER. Long before this, the lieutenant, seeing the bone he had pulled, slipped out, with his tail between his legs.

I asked the chief if I was under arrest any longer, and the reply was that I was not. I walked out, and when I told the story to the workers I had spoken to before, the melodrama was pulled off, they laughed. A fitting story for a Gilbert-Sullivan operetta.

The Loot.

Lieutenant McLean figures often as one of the heroes in raids on moonshiners. But it is said on good authority that he likes the stuff himself, and is often in a state not befitting a majestic officer of the law. On one occasion last year, he was arrested by the state police, and a charge placed against him by the police captain. But an angel came to his aid, and forced the squashing of the charge.

That angel was the acting mayor of the city, Hickey by name, who gets the major part of his salary from the American Thread Co. for office work. He gets the rest of his salary, $750 a year, for doing further office work for the American Thread Co. in his capacity as acting mayor. And so the charge was squashed.

Another Guess Coming.

Loot-tenant McLean thought this was an open season for reds. But he has another guess coming. In this connection, it is interesting to observe the charge brought against the city council by one of the council members:

"No one can be honest in politics, even in this small city, attested to by the thirty or forty places that are daily selling liquor in the city, because a board of aldermen does not feel, as in the present strike situation, that the enforcement of law comes within their jurisdiction."

Socialists Want Militarism.

VIENNA, Austria, April 2.— Herr Butsch, socialist deputy, and former minister of war, and Otto Bauer, another socialist deputy, advocated mobilizing every soldier. Bauer declared, "The day will come when danger will threaten us from Hungary and we will need every soldier." The remarks were made before a meeting of the socialist military society of the Vienna garrison.

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

atives of the trade unions (head offices, district and branches) and the mass of the workers themselves are fully aware of the urgency of the question and the need of giving it the strongest backing. In this country one of our great difficulties in the past, as compared with our continental comrades, has been the lack of either the knowledge of languages or of the necessary news of what is going on in each separate country. Whatever we decide to do in the future we must proceed on the basis of ascertained facts. We must all the time go forward on a sure footing of facts and reliable information.

Besides this there are other reasons well known to my colleagues on the general council. The so-called socialist press in continental countries cannot be relied upon at the present time (as I know from my personal experience all the time we were in Russia and also in Amsterdam) to give an unbiased presentation of facts. Added to this the conduct of the official representatives of the other trade union movements (with certain laudable exceptions) has been one of extreme hostility to proposals emanating from the general council of our Trades Union Congress; and that this hostility has led them into acts of trickery—it is best to speak plainly—towards our own trade union movement cannot be doubted. To see this it is only necessary to read some of the statements they made succeeding our I. F. T. U. meeting at Amsterdam this month. Both Oudegeest and Jouhaux (not to speak of Vorwarts) have made it plain that they regard the so-called "compromise" motion carried there as a smart piece of work that defeats our nine months' endeavor to attain international unity thru the medium of an "immediate unconditional conference."

For these reasons I would welcome the establishment of a journal devoted to the purpose of supplying just that information and facts and figures about the problems of international trade union unity which we so sorely need. Already some of us have been discussing such a publication; and any steps taken in that direction will, I know, secure the support of a very large number of my fellow unionists. And by "support" I mean not only approval, but actual support in subscriptions and donations. If we believe in this thing we must be prepared to back it up out of our pockets as well as with our good will. That we shall do so I have no doubt.

Meantime I am very glad to learn that the labor research department is publishing a special supplement to its Monthly Circular giving in a handy form an account of the Amsterdam meeting and the recent history of the move towards international trade union unity, together with a useful summary of the report of our delegation to the Russian Trade Union Congress. And I gladly take the opportunity of writing this preface to their special supplement. I hope it may be possible for the new publication I have referred to above to be included, at any rate for some time, as a supplement to the Monthly Circular, and so add to the already useful work the L. R. D. is doing.

THE APPROACH TO UNITY.

The beginning of the year 1924 saw the world's trade union movement sundered and divided. Hardly any country, even the most backward, but had its small beginnings of trade unionism, while in the more developed capitalist countries the membership of the trade unions was numbered in millions. No single organization, even of the loosest kind, linked up these millions of organized workers. In Europe two organizations disputed with a bitter animosity for the membership of the European trade unionists; the International Federation of Trade Unions, with its headquarters at Amsterdam, was faced by the Red International of Labor Unions with its headquarters in Moscow. In several of the European countries there were two or three rival federations of trade unions, some affiliated to the I. F. T. U., some to the R. I. L. U. The British Trade Union Congress was the main support of the I. F. T. U., while the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions provided the chief backing for the R. I. L. U. Outside the European arena where this struggle of rival organizations was taking place to a greater or lesser degree in almost every country, there remained unconnected with the I. F. T. U. the trade unions of the United States of America, of Latin America, Australia and the other Pacific lands, of Africa other than the Union, of India, Japan, China, the Far East, and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Prior to 1924, efforts had repeatedly been made to bring together the two organizations claiming an international scope, and had as repeatedly broken down. In the course of the last twelve months, however, renewed efforts for international trade union unity have at last begun to show some prospect of success. To describe this move towards unity lasting over the twelve months, and the present position that has been reached is the purpose of this special supplement.

Correspondence Between Amsterdam and Moscow.

For a beginning in our narative of the change in the attitude of mutual hostility, we may take the meeting of the third congress of the International Federation of Trade Unions held at Vienna in the first week of June, 1924. It is true, that (to quote the official I. F. T. U. report): "In the period under review (1922-1924) the Red Trade Union International has repeatedly approached the International Federation of Trade Unions with the request that the two internationals should co-operate and form a united front." But to enter into a recital of these past negotiations would take us too far from the present issues, and we may therefore start as from last June.

The matter arose in this way. The report of activities, 1922-1924, gave an account of relations between the Red International of Labor Unions, and the International Federation of Trade Unions, in the course of which was quoted a letter from M. Tomsky, president of the Russian Federation of Trade Unions, of February 7, 1924, which contained the operative words:

> What does interest us is the common action of the trade unions of all orientations against our class enemies. We are prepared to meet your representatives when and where you choose for the purpose of serious discussion of the common struggle to be fought against the capitalist offensive.

The concluding comment of the International Federation of Trade Unions report was:

> As will be seen from the survey, the method and tone of the Russian reply has for the moment put an end to this correspondence, and has again considerably reduced the prospects of inaugurating practical discussions. There is no object in the International Federation of Trade Unions taking any further steps so long as it has only replies of this kind to expect.

To this at once Mr. Fred Bramley took exception in the name of the British delegation, and proposed that negotiations with the Russian unions be continued. This was supported by Edo Fimmen (International Transport Workers' Federation). The German and other delegates were violently opposed. Eventually, to meet the wishes of the British, a resolution was carried, of which the following is the last clause:

> The conference recommends the bureau to continue consultations, in so far as this is compatible with the dignity of the International Federation of Trade Unions, with the object of securing the inclusion of Russia in the international trade union movement thru the necessary acceptance of the federation rules and conditions.

This resolution was despatched from Amsterdam in a letter dated July 16, in reply to which a letter was sent from the All-Russian Central Council of Labor Unions by its chairman, Tomsky, on the 26. The latter part of this reply runs as follows:

> We think that it is just the conditions of unity which must form the subject of our negotiations, and that to put forth as a preliminary condition our acceptance of the constitution and the rules of your international, as you do, is contrary to the character of the coming negotiations and to the aims of unity.
> If, you, comrades, consider yourself formally bound by the resolution of the Vienna congress, we, the Russian unions, being a section of the Red International of Labor Unions, are equally obliged to carry out the decisions of our All-Russian Trade Union Congresses and the congresses of the Red International of Labor Unions. In accordance with this, and desiring to find the common ground for negotiations which in our opinion will undoubtedly lead to a better mutual understanding and to a closer coming together of the two parts of the now divided international trade union movement, we take as our starting point the idea that in our negotiations we should discuss the decisions of both internationals on the basis of equality and mutual attention.
> Putting the cause of unity of the international labor union movement above any formal consideration, and thinking that it would undoubtedly be benefited in consequence of our meeting and businesslike negotiations, we are of the opinion that it would be more right and just if we were to meet without any preliminary conditions on either side.
> With revolutionary greetings,
> For the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions:
> A. Tomsky, Chairman,
> A. Dogadov, Secretary.

Thus the Russian position was first that their Trades Union Congress was a faithful constituent of the R. I. L. U., second, that the only possible common ground for negotiations was equality in status as between the two internationals, thirdly, that the conditions prescribed in the Vienna decision would preclude any meeting or chance of unity, and any sticking to formalities or etiquette would have the same effect.

LOCAL CHICAGO ACTIVITY TOLD AT CITY CENTRAL

All Forms of Work Going Forward

Continuation of agitation and demonstration, as initiated by the central executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party in the case of Comrade Stanislav Lanzutsky, Polish Communist, against the Polish white terror; insistence upon going forward with shop nuclei reorganization, regardless of obstructions and difficulties; intensification of trade union and industrial work; and development of the DAILY WORKER drive, were problems dealt with at the city central committee meeting, Workers (Communist) Party, local Chicago at the April 1 meeting.

The demonstration before the Polish consulate last Saturday on behalf of Comrade Lanzutsky, and the parade thru the Polish working class districts with banners and distribution of literature, give possibilities of drawing more Polish workers into the Communist movement. The next step is the meeting scheduled at Schoenhofen Hall for tonight, April 3, which all party members must support. (See. other columns for details.)

Build the T. U. E. L. in the Struggle.

In the needle trades, a millinery group, tho small, has now been formed; in the Amalgamated, despite the terrific reaction and terror of the Levin-Hillman machine, the left wing is increasing its work. The leaflet outlining the real issues confronting the Amalgamated in connection with the coming wage agreement was distributed by the thousands, as well as another leaflet. Organize and Fight!, distributed on the morning after the sluggers of the Levin machine had prevented rank and file expression on the issues in the union.

The party as a whole must back 100 per cent every action the needle trades comrades initiate. In the carpenters, our comrades have now been reinstated into Local 181, having, with rank and file support, compelled the corrupt Hutcheson to back down.

The machinists' left wing report good progress in the election campaign against the Johnston outfit, while, moreover, thus bringing the left wing program of amalgamation, against class collaboration (B. & O. plan), freedom of expression and reinstatement of Toledo expelled, for independent political action, etc., before the machinists.

The barbers' group is beginning to function and is holding an affair in the near future to get funds for further work. Preparations are going forward for a huge-monthly Trade Union Educational League meeting, Wednesday, April 29.

The C. C. C. reiterated the need for the organization of a shop nucleus branch (sub-section) from Nuclei 2, 3, 4, 5 as a means of integrating and expanding the nuclei activity. Discussion on this question was lengthy, some confusion betraying itself among some comrades, who confused the nucleus with a shop committee and reduced the nucleus to a shop fraction shorn of its political character.

However, with instructions from the C. C. C. and D. E. C. to proceed with the organization of the shop nucleus branch, it is likely that the better functioning nuclei will aid materially to develop the understanding and activity of the weaker nuclei. The nucleus branch (sub-section) will take up and direct the work of the particular shop nuclei and deal, too, with the general political problems before them in and outside of the shops.

Irish and Miners' Relief Task of Party.

With the unity demonstration over, the party and the Labor Defense Council will concern themselves with increasing relief activity for the famine stricken workers in Ireland and the workers affected by the tornado in southern Illinois. The next meeting of the Chicago Labor Defense and Relief Council will be Friday, April 10, at 722 Blue Island Ave.

A mass meeting for Irish relief will be held April 24, at Emmet Memorial Hall with John Patrick McCarthy, returned from the famine area, as the main speaker.

Applications accepted were: Polish North Side, three; Englewood English, one; South Side English, two; North Side English, two; Ukrainian No. 1, one.

May Day meeting preparations are going forward. May Day committee meets next Tuesday, April 7, at 19 South Lincoln St., as does also the street and factory meeting committee.

DAILY WORKER drive reported in other columns.

C. C. C. endorsed comrade running for justice of the peace in village of Berwyn, on provision that he declare himself the candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party and campaign on its platform.

Next meeting of the C. C. C. Wednesday, April 15, 1925, 8 p. m., at 722 Blue Island Ave.

Fraternally,
Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago, Martin Abern, Secretary.

NE TERROR WAVE SWEEPS POLAND

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE United States government has not yet apologized to Messrs. Fall, Doheny and Sinclair and their aids and abettors for relieving the navy department of its oil supply, illegally and with profit as a forethought. No doubt the apology will come in due time. For the present the gentlemen, above mentioned must rest content with having the indictments charging them with conspiracy to defraud the government, quashed, by a liberty-loving judge who has a penchant for seeing that the individual enjoys his full rights to rob under the constitution—provided he robs according to Hoyle.

THUS the great Teapot Dome scandal comes to an end, unless there is a reaction in the senate. But the senate has adjourned and will not meet again until November and nothing short of a revolution can jerk Coolidge out of the White House for four years. Many thousands of workers still are of the opinion that all are equal under the law in the United States. Once in a while, the capitalists courts render a decision which seems to hit the big fellow, but there is usually a way out—for the fellow. Nobody could have any doubt that ex-secretary of the interior, Fall, turned over valuable oil properties to Doheny and Sinclair for valuable considerations, something like $150,000 or about as much as Ramsay MacDonald received for securing a title for Sir Alexander Grant.

THE democrats came near getting a four-year lease on the White House over the Teapot Dome issue. They very likely would, but for the religious question. The fact that prominent democrats were mixed up in the oil mess did not seem to affect the availability of those men for democratic consideration as candidates for the presidency. Calvin Coolidge hid like a snail in his shell until the storm passed. He dropped Denby and Daugherty from his cabinet. They were the goats. It must be admitted in fairness to the gentlemen who stood at the receiving end of the oil scandal that there was more envy than jealousy in the breasts of 100 per cent Americans over the whole business. Capitalism has such a corrupting influence on society that thousands would gladly see Fall hanged, not because he had committed wrong, but because he was a successful grafter.

THE DAILY WORKER did not expect that Doheny, Sinclair and company would be punished. Why should they? This is the government of big business. Those men did what every other capitalist interest in the

TEAPOT DOME INDICTMENTS ARE QUASHED

Doheny, Sinclair and Fall Get Away

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Criminal indictments against the three biggest figures in the great oil "scandal"—ex-Secretary of the Interior Albert D. Fall, Harry F. Sinclair, and Edward L. Doheny—were quashed in the supreme court of the District of Columbia today by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy.

Without expressing any opinion on the guilt or innocence of the accused men, Justice McCoy dismissed the indictments on technical grounds—the principal one being that the presence of a government attorney: Oliver Pagan, in the grand jury room during the taking of testimony, vitiated the instruments.

Criminal Conspiracy.

The indictments had charged the trio with criminal conspiracy in the leasing of Teapot Dome oil field to Sinclair and the leasing of Elk Hills reserve, in California, to Doheny.

Justice McCoy decided that when congress authorized the employment of special counsel to prosecute the oil case, Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, it thereby took the case out of the hands of the ordinary legal department of the government. Consequently, the court decided, when Pagan, who is the indictment expert of the department of justice, remained in the jury room during the taking of testimony it made the whole proceedings unlawful and vitiated the indictments.

Two Courses Open.

In the absence of Pomerene and Roberts, the special oil counsel, other government attorneys would make no statement as to the government's future course. It was said, however, that two courses are open—the government can appeal from Justice McCoy's ruling, or it can accept the ruling and obtain new indictments on the same evidence, taking care to eliminate the irregularities which led to the overturning of the present instruments, on a convenient technicality.

The opinion was returned in the case of the two indictments against

DOWN WITH THE MURDER-GOVERNMENT OF WHITE-GUARD POLAND!

COMRADES Baginsky and Wierczorkiewicz, working class prisoners of the white-guard government of Poland, were assassinated by the police whose prisoners they were, while approaching the border of Soviet Russia where they were being taken under agreement to exchange them for some Polish criminals.

This cold-blooded murder which must arouse the anger and indignation of every class conscious working man is a part of the systematic white terror in Poland, by which the Polish bourgeoisie hopes to keep the working class suppressed. It is the logical product of the policy of the Polish government, which is a lickspittle and satellite of French imperialism, exploiting the workers of Poland for the profit of the Polish bourgeoisie and again for the profit of French imperialism. It is a part of the same white terror which shoots down strikers, and which revoked the parliamentary immunity of Comrade Lanzutsky and placed him on trial for his life because of a speech made in behalf of striking workers.

Baginsky and Wierczorkiewicz, together with five other Communists had been sentenced to death for alleged destruction of the arsenal of Warsaw. In the trial the prosecution had to admit that no proof whatever existed that the explosion was not caused by explosives stored within the arsenal. The only evidence brought against the accused was their propaganda and activity in behalf of the oppressed masses of Poland. The judicial conspiracy against them was so obvious that the president of Poland was forced to commute the sentence of death. But thus deprived of its victims the polish bourgeoisie hired a petty police official to carry out with an assassins' weapon what they did not succeed in having done by an official firing squad—the murder of fearless spokesmen of the workers.

The Workers (Communist) Party of America calls upon all working men to demonstrate their disgust and abhorrence toward this murder of Comrades Baginsky and Wierczorkiewicz, and toward the government which is responsible for it. Let the Polish white guard know that the workers of the entire world know their crimes and pledge aid to the Polish workers in replacing the rule of bourgeois murderers with a rule of the working class and farmers.

Down with the murderers of Baginsky and Wierczorkiewicz!

Hail the coming government of Polish workers and peasants!

Hail the Communist International, leader of the working class struggle against the white terror all over the world!

Central Executive Committee,
Workers (Communist) Party of America.

HERRIOT DUMPS FINANCE CHIEF; SAVES HIS NECK

But Damocles Sword Hangs Over Him

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 3.—Herriot secured a vote of confidence from the chamber of deputies by throwing his Finance Minister Clementel to the wolves and surrendering to the vatican on the catholic question by taking Anatole de Monzie into his cabinet to replace Clementel. The vote was 530 to 26, the Communists alone voting in the opposition.

It is not expected that the Herriot ministry will survive the present crisis which has only been temporarily relieved by the compromise with the vatican. The socialists who strongly supported the break with the vatican voted confidence in Herriot after he appointed de Monzie finance minister.

Senator de Monzie is a close personal friend of Caillaux as well as of AMERICAN SECTION, INTERNATIONAL RED AID, CALLS FOR STRUGGLE AGAINST THE POLISH REACTION

The following statement was issued today by the American section of the International Red Aid thru its national secretary, George Maurer:

• • • •

DESPITE the release from immediate danger (there are still rumors that Lanzutsky is not completely out of danger) of the Polish Communist Deputy Lanzutsky under pressure of world-wide working class protests and vehement threats of reprisal on the part of the Soviet govenment. the Polish white terror continues its attacks on the Polish workers and their leaders.

The story of the cold-blooded and obviously officially instigated murder of two exchange prisoners who were on their way under guard to the Russian border is now in the news.

Information has just come to us that in addition to Lanzutsky, three other deputies of the Polish diet, Ukrainians have also been deprived of parliamentary immunity that they may be prosecuted for speeches made in August, 1923.

At that time they urged their constituents to oppose the military colonization of East Galicia by Polish ex-soldiers. The same or a similar fate that awaited Lanzutsky will now likely be the lot of the three deputies, Wassilchuk, Chuchmay and Kozitsky, who represent the oppressed Ukrainian peasant minority in the Polish diet.

Along with all this, thousands of workers are rotting in jails without trial or being hurried thru farcical court procedures. The bloody Polish regime is performing well its duty as a puppet of western imperialism and as a military buffer against the workers' and peasants' republic of Russia.

The International Red Aid continues its fight against the Polish reaction and calls upon all workers and sympathizers of the workers' cause to protest the brutal and ruthless regime that rules Poland and suppresses the workers and the national minorities with mailed fist.

We are in receipt of telegrams and letters from Upton Sinclair, Professor Harry Dana, Ellen Hayes, Roger Baldwin, Rev. David Rhys Williams, and Edw. C. Wentworth, pledging their support in protesting the excesses of the present hopelessly reactionary regime in Poland.

16 German Workers Killed.

BERLIN, April 3.—Sixteen workmen died today under the ruins of a chimney which collapsed at the Boehlem works in Leipzig, according to dispatches.

SOVIET SENDS SHARP NOTE TO POLAND ON MURDER OF PRISONERS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, Russia, April 3.—Foreign Minister Chitcherin yesterday re-enforced with a vigorous note his verbal representations to the Polish government concerning the murder of the two Polish revolutionary symphathizers.

The communication declares that the failure of the Polish government to observe the agreement governing the exchange of these prisoners gives the Soviet government a free hand to deal with the Polish subjects who were to have been released from Russia. The foreign minister demands that Poland take adequate measures to punish those connected with the crime.

GREAT DEMONSTRATIONS IN SOVIET RUSSIA OVER THE POLISH MURDERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., April 3.—Demonstrations over the murder of two revolutionary prisoners by their Polish police guard who were supposedly taking them to be exchanged according to agreement with Soviet Russia at the Polish-Russia border, have caused the Soviet authorities to post strong protective guard over the quarters of the Polish mission here.

Mounted troops patrol the streets around the Polish consulate in Leningrad, great crowds of demonstrative workers gathering in angry masses listen to speeches hour after hour on the white terror in Poland.

The Polish priest Ussak, convicted and sentenced to death by the Soviet government for sexual sadism, and scheduled for exchange for the murdered revolutionary prisoners, was concealed on the way to the border by the Polish consul at Minsk. The foreign commissariat has protested this crime to the Polish mission in Moscow and the Minsk consul, Karchevsky, has had his exequater annulled by the Soviet government and his immediate withdrawal asked.

WILD SCRAMBLE FOR POWER BACK OF PARLEY TALK

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3—President Coolidge is pushing a new conference of world powers, in order to force payment of a part of the seven billion dollar war debt to the United States government, it was said here. Four billion dollars of this debt is owed by France.

Club Over France.

The Morgan loan to France, with the necessity of continual large interest payments, and the debt to the United States government, give the American imperialists a strong hold on France. This will be used as a club to force France to enter a new "disarmament" conference, which would discuss not only limitation of armaments, but payment of the war

ABRAMOVICH IS RECEIVED IN LOS ANGELES

Eight Workers Jailed and Beaten

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 3.—Raphael Abramovich, counter-revolutionary emissary of the menshevik Second International, held, or tried to hold, a meeting at the Labor Temple here.

The hall and its approaches were packed with police and detectives, resembling a fortified position. Over one hundred workers trying to gain admission were not permitted to enter.

Many Workers Protest.

Nevertheless, in the small audience many workers who protested verbally when Abramovich began to repeat his discredited lies against Soviet Russia, and the brutal violence used upon them for so doing, kept the meeting in a continual turmoil, and the result was a flat failure so far as Abzramovich raising any sentiment against Soviet Russia was concerned.

Eight workers whose vocal protests disturbed the infamous professor of prevarication, were arrested, badly beaten up and held for trial under bail of $100 each.

Raise $1,000 Bail Money.

Demonstration of the excluded workers took place before the hall, where $1,000 bail money advanced by sympathizers was collected from the crowds.

The capitalist press, running alongside the yellow socialist gangsters and the capitalist police summoned by the petty bourgeois socialists, publish hair-raising "exposures" of "a plot to kill Abramovich." The Los Angeles workers, however, have given their greeting in their own way to the slimy agent of counter-revolution against the workers' and peasants' republic.

Ford Wants Control of R. R.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Henry Ford will make a group of stockholders in the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad an offer to buy their stock at $102.00 per share, at the annual meeting this month. Ford paid $5.00 a share on preferred stock and $1.00 per share on the common stock when he took over the road five years ago.

TWO COMMUNIST SOLDIERS FACE DEATH SENTENCE

Follows Brutal Murder of Two Prisoners

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., April 3.—All information reaching here indicates that a new terror wave is sweeping over white guard Poland.

The day following the brutal murder on March 29, of the two exchange prisoners, Baginski and Wierczorkiewicz, the Polish courts, thru Judge Krakoff, condemned to death the Communist soldiers, Segal and Diffetski, charging that they had issued revolutionary proclamations.

This development indicates that there is to be no let up in the many killings of the murder regime thru which the Grabski government maintains itself in power.

Only today are all the facts being learned concerning the carefully premediated murder of the two prisoners destined for return to Soviet Russia.

According to a signed agreement between Soviet Russia and Poland, the two Polish revolutionary army officers, Baginski and Wierczorkiewicz, were to be exchanged for a catholic priest, Ussak, a member of the Polish government mission, here arrested by the Soviet power for a capital crime—sexual sadism.

Baginski and Wierczorkiewicz, in Poland, were condemned to death for revolutionary activity on behalf of the starving and oppressed masses of Poland, and the indentity of their interests with the workers' and peasants' government of Soviet Russia.

Victims of Frame-up.

They were later commuted to life imprisonment and then to 15 years of prison because they were plainly victims of the frame-up so far as formal charges of crime against them were concerned.

At the border station where these two prisoners of the Polish white guard regime were held, and only one-half an hour before the time fixed for delivering them to the Soviet authorities at the boundary line, Baginski and Wierczorkiewicz were cruelly tortured and then killed by Polish police officers inside the railway car as it stood at the border.

The day after, Segal and Diffetski were condemned.

This is the regime of the Polish capitalists and landlords, the pets of both French and American imperialism. This is the "democracy" and "civilization" of capitalism.

Russian Masses Protest.

Thruout Russia the masses of workers and peasants are holding gigantic protest meetings before the Polish consulates. From all over the world the cables and wireless dispatches tell of the anger of the working classes of the world at the awful barbarism of white guard capitalist Poland.

From all countries come news of great mass protest meetings and demonstrations of hatred for the white terror ferocities of capitalist Poland.

Meeting in Chicago.

Chicago workers gathered last night in a great mass meeting at Shoenhofen hall, corner Ashland and Milwaukee avenues, in protest demonstration against the brutal murder of Baginski and Wierczorkiewich. The meeting was scheduled at too late an hour for the DAILY WORKER to give a full account of it.

UTICA-TEXTILE STRIKERS ARE TRICKED INTO "ARBITRATION" AND ROBBED OF STRIKE VICTORY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

UTICA, N. Y., April 3.—The textile strikers of the Utica Steam and Mohawk Valley Cotton mills have been betrayed at the moment they were upon the point of victory. The old game of "arbitration" combined with the usual treachery of the union officials, in this case Joseph R. White of the United Textile Workers, has done its slimy work well. The strikers began going back yesterday.

Frederick Gillmore, mayor of Utica, after seeing that the strikers were winning and that the mill owners needed help, appointed an "arbitration" committee. This fine bunch of appointees consisted of two lawyers, one of

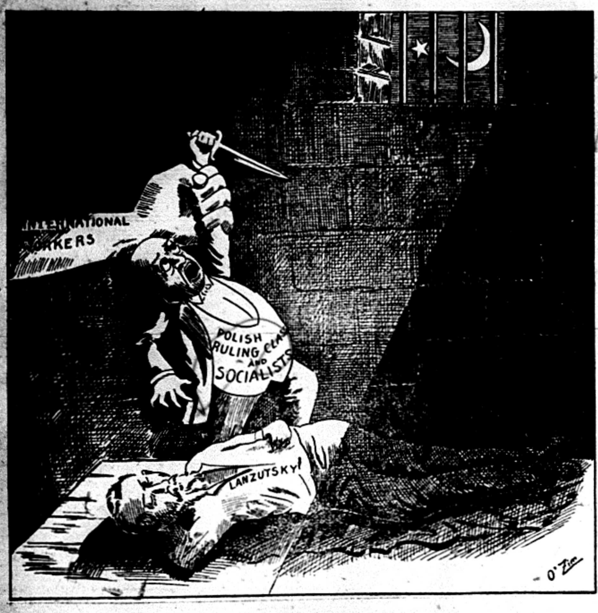
AN IRRESISTIBLE POWER



PRESS HUSHED BY HUGE FUND OF EMPLOYERS

Advertising Is Used Against Labor

By LELAND OLDS.

The figures of the advertising bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association reveal the enormous hush fund lining up the newspapers of the country solidly behind the employers in every big industrial crisis and inducing them to poison the public mind against labor's effort for decent standards.

The report shows 100 typical corporations whose 1924 support of the press thru paid newspaper advertising totals over $43,000,000. Official estimates make this only one-fifth of the amount spent by corporations. Altho making sales is the ostensible motive of this expenditure, it is in reality the newspaper publisher's only substantial means of support. Newspapers today are a parasite on the employing class and are not likely to bite the hand that feeds.

Who Owns the Press?

Among the 100 corporations listed the following spent over $1,000,000 each on newspaper advertising in 1924.

1924 Newspaper Advertising.
General Motors (partial)	$2,935,000
Ford Motor	2,000,000
Victor Talking Machine	1,900,000
American Tobacco	1,600,000
Liggett & Myers Tobacco	1,500,000
Standard Oil of Indiana	1,500,000
Calumet Baking Powder	1,400,000
Wrigley Chewing Gum	1,250,000
Dodge Brothers Motors	1,200,000
Paige Motors	1,000,000

Other contributors listed are Postum Cereal $875,000, Corn Products $800,000, U. S. Rubber $750,000, Heinz 57 Varieties $600,000, Hart, Schaffner and Marx $500,000, Union Pacific $570,000, Quaker Oats $400,000, Shredded Wheat $350,000.

Food corporations contributed over $6,000,000 of the total, the auto industry over $9,000,000, tobacco $3,700,000, oil $2,820,000 and railroads $1,480,000. The compilation represents only a small portion of the newspaper advertisers many of whom spent just as much as those on the list.

Workers Foot Bill.

Altho these funds are spent to persuade you to buy a Ford instead of a Hupp, Pepsodent instead of Pebecco, or gum and tobacco instead of food and clothing, the effect makes the press entirely subservient to the capitalist interests. The enormous stream of news and comment which issues each day to form public opinion is subsidized to support the employers. Labor cannot get its side adequately presented, particularly in times of crisis.

And here's the joke. The workers are paying this subsidy thru the advertising charge which enters in the cost of every advertised product they buy. They are supporting the press which poisons the public mind against their cause.

Coolidge Approves British Rule Over Palestine Arabs

JERUSALEM, April 3.—Representatives of the United States government have again indorsed the oppression of the 600,000 Arabs in Palestine, by approving the English manipulation of the Zionist movement to perpetuate control of Palestine by British imperialism.

Oscar C. Heiser, United States consul in Jerusalem, took part in the opening of the Hebrew university here on behalf of the United States government. The opening of the school was made the occasion for a demonstration by the British imperialists, who sent Lord Balfour to officiate.

The Arabs were on strike in protest during the ceremonies.

KOPP GOES TO TOKIO TO SPEAK FOR UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS

(By Rosta News Agency.)

MOSCOW, April 3.—Victor Kopp has been appointed ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to Tokio.

Kopp was born in 1880. His diplomatic career started in 1918, when he was called to the post of counsellor of the Russian Soviet embassy at Berlin. Then, from June, 1918, to May, 1921, he was representative of the Russian Soviet Republic in Germany. Kopp is a member of the collegium of the people's commissariat of foreign affairs of the U. S. S. R.

SHIPPING BOARD SALE TO DOLLAR IS RESTRAINED

Five Steamers Sold at One-Sixth of Cost

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Justice Hitz in the district supreme court here today issued a restraining order against the United States shipping board, preventing it from selling the five liners now operating in the Pacific to the Dollar Shipping Lines. The restraining order was sought by the Pacific Mail Steamship corporation, which now operates the vessels under lease from the government, and which bid for the purchase of the vessels.

The transaction was accepted by the shipping board by a vote of 4 to 3, those voting against it demanding that the government keep the ships, which cost $30,000,000 and which were sold for five million dollars.

Creates Monopoly.

Commissioner Frederick Thompson, who voted against the deal, declared that the sale to the Dollar company "created a monopoly of American flag passenger service in the Pacific-Orient trade under one control."

Vice-chairman of the shipping board E. C. Plummer declared that the ships were worth at least double the amount to be paid for them. He showed that the profits last year were two million dollars, after paying all commissions, brokerage charges and operating expenses.

Dollar Open Shopper.

R. Stanley Dollar, who bought the ships for his concern, is one of the richest capitalists on the Pacific coast. He was instrumental in sending Thomas J. Mooney to jail for labor union activity, and inaugurated the open shop drive to smash the labor unions on the Pacific coast.

WAR MINISTER QUITS IN FIGHT ON ARMY BILL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, April 3.—The minister of war in Premier Mussolini's cabinet, General di Giorgio, has resigned, following violent opposition in the chamber of deputies to Mussolini's army bill. Mussolini was forced to request postponement of a vote on the bill.

Another Fist Fight.

Another riot broke out in the chamber when Deputy Viola charged that the government had concentrated fascisti troops at the polls in the recent election in the Caserta commune, thus intimidating voters and throwing out votes against the fascist candidates.

Deputy Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, who is in favor of extreme violence against the opposition, took occasion to again attack the Communists, but he was soon quieted.

Sees French-British Menace.

In the senate, Mussolini made a short speech, urging Italy to increase its navy and army against the British and French. "Today Britain brings her fleet into the Mediterranean and France has her naval program, which includes the spending of five times as much as Italy," Mussolini said. He urged a "security pact" with Germany.

The proposal to reduce the standing army was made by de Giorgio, at the instance of Mussolini. The proposal was that the term of military service be limited to three months. This would have made the fascist militia the dominating force in Italy, and give an excuse for increasing this force.

The government was about to be defeated until Mussolini's plea that the vote be postponed.

Deputy Viola is the deposed president of the veterans' association. It is thought that the army bill will not be pushed again unless Mussolini can make sure of mustering the votes to pass it.

Kluxer Held on Five Counts for Kidnaping Girl

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3—Five indictments were returned against David C. Stephenson, 33, ex-grand dragon of the ku klux klan in Indiana, by the Marion county grand jury today following his arrest for an alleged attack on Miss Madge Oberholter. The indictments charge assault and battery with intent to kill assault and battery with intent to commit a criminal attack, malicious mayhem, kidnaping and conspiracy to

Herriot Dumps His Finance Minister to Save His Own Neck

Leon Blum, parliamentary leader of the French socialists. It is significant that all elements in the chamber, outside of the Communists endorsed his appointment. De Monzie was one of the most outspoken opponents of Herriot's vatican policy, in the left bloc. He favors having the charge d'affaires at the vatican for the whole of France and not for Alsace only.

The entire Herriot ministry is expected to resign shortly and it would not surprise political observers here to see Caillaux finance minister in the next government as a preparatory step to his assumption of the premiership. De Monzie is by no means satisfactory to the big capitalists, tho their representatives voted for him owing to his position on the vatican question. He took the lead in the negotiations that led to recognition of Soviet Russia.

In Desperate Condition

What led to Clementel's resignation was the finance minister's statement in the chamber, that the treasury was in a desperate condition and that a new issue of bank notes to the tune of six billion francs was necessary. This information threw the bourgeois and socialist deputaties into an uproar and the resignation of the Herriot government was immediately called for. Herriot tried to calm the storm but his words failed to reassure the politically excited solons, neither did they please Clementel who could see himself being led up the mountain a la Abraham's son, to give up his political life as a sacrifice to the exigencies of Herriot's administration.

The inclusion of de Monze will not affect the financial puddle in which France is in. It is reported that a French commission is about to visit the United States with a view to seeking a way out the desert. There is talk of a Dawes plan for France, and with England and the United States turning the screws it is hard to see what the French bourgeoisie can do except bow the knee to Wall Street. The only alternative to the Dawes plan is the workers' and peasants' government and the rule of the proletariat.

Herriot Swallow Hard

That Herriot ate a full dish of crow on the vatican question is proven by the statement of minister of the interior who said that the cabinet intended to withdraw from the budget the section dealing with the vatican and would consider the appointment of a charge d'affaires for France.

So desperate is the financial situation that the advocates of a state lottery are gaining new adherents The franc fell off six points when Clementel's proposal for a new paper issue was made public, hitting a new low of 5.17¾ cents.

Take Your Choice

PARIS, April 3.—The French foreign office made the following comment on the vatican situation.

"The government's vatican policy is unchanced. De Monzie accepted the ministry under the condition that the government would study the vatican question further, thus giving De Monzie an opportunity to attempt to convince the cabinet of his views."

Another Story

PARIS, April 3.—De Monzie is reported to have accepted the post of financial minister with the understanding that the governments policy against maintaining an embassy of the vatican would be changed.

"I obtained satisfaction on the vatican question before accepting the ministry," de Monzie told newspaperman.

German Socialists Support Catholic Party in Election

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, April 3.—The official count of the ballots in the recent German presidential election gave the Communist Party candidate, Ernst Thaelmann, 1,870,000 votes.

Dr. Marx, the coalition candidate of the socialists and catholics, is expected to be the next president. Dr. Jarres will be the candidate of the fascists, monarchists and conservatives.

Ernst Thaelmann will again be the candidate of the Communist Party. The candidate securing the largest number of votes in the new elections, to be held April 26, will be elected, according to the German presidential law. In the first election a majority of all the votes cast was necessary to elect.

Otto Braun, the socialist, was selected premier of Prussia today, thus consummating the political deal between the socialists and catholics whereby Braun was made premier in return for the socialist votes for the catholic candidate for president, Wilhelm Marx.

BIG BUSINESS CONTROLS CAL, SENATOR SAYS

Wakes Up to "Plot" in Practice for Years

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Charging "big business" with campaigning to control the government, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, independent republican leader, issued a statement here today denouncing the United States chamber of commerce for attempting to organise a "national propaganda bureau."

Rich Dodge Taxes.

Norris declared he had information the chamber was sending out representatives to sign up new members for the "bureau" at $7 a head and that the money—which may total $15,000,000 a year—would be used to influence legislation in congress.

"In addition to sending out propaganda for the transfer of the tax burden from the rich to the poor," said Norris, "the national chamber of commerce has launched a new scheme to secure control of our government and its legislative machinery. It purposes building up an organization, on fees of $7 a person, to provide millions of dollars for propaganda purposes to be used in influencing congress in the disposal of Muscle Shoals, other similar natural resources, repealing income tax publicity, eliminating inheritance taxes and reducing sur-taxes."

Big Slush Fund.

Norris said he was informed the chamber sought to enroll at least 2,000,000 business men in the propaganda "bureau."

"That fund of $14,000,000 would be the most sinister influence for bad government in the whole history of our nation," he added. "It smacks to me of an attempt to buy out congress."

Norris appealed to business men generally to "keep out of the scheme" if they wish to continue "honest government in Washington."

Norris' speech appeared naive, in view of the aid already given big business by Coolidge, Hoover, Mellon, Weeks and the rest of the cabinet.

CHILD LABOR IN UNITED STATES STIRS GENEVA

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

GENEVA, Switzerland, April 3.—The rejection of any limitation of child slavery by the federal government of the United States is so scandalous that even the sleepy reformists of the ridiculous appendage to the league of nations which is known as the international labor office, is astir with chatter about child labor in the United States.

Why Not an International Strike?

Jan Oudegeest, president of the Dutch Labor Federation and Leon Jouhaux of France, president of the General Federation of Labor, urged publication by the bureau of all possible information on conditions in America. He expressed the belief that world public opinion thus could be brought to bear on the Americans and culminate in an improvement.

No Right to Interfere, Says Traitor Thomas.

Albert Thomas of France, who is director of the international labor organization, answering laborite delegates, explained that the governing board had no right to interfere in what the United States government or state governments were doing on the child labor question. He said it was the bureau's duty only to publish all statistical information.

The discussion of conditions in the United States was the sequence to the recent rejection by the Americans of an amendment to the constitution authorizing federal laws on the subject of child lbaor.

CONFLICTING REPORTS GIVEN ON MINE STRIKE IN WEST VIRGINIA FIELD

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 2. (By Mail)—Under the pretext that they could no longer compete in the market with the product of non-union mines, the 18 mines in this district employing union men have suspended operation, throwing 4,500 men out of work. This fact confused the evidence as to how many of the thousands who quit work in northern West Virginia are on strike, and how many are forced out.

Strike leaders assert that the call has has been answered by a large proportion of the non-union men. The operators reply that April is a holiday, it being the anniversary of the winning of the eight-hour day in the industry, and that they permitted a general lay-off.

It's the 8th Anniversary of the American Entry Into Morgan's World War

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, with muffled appeals, the fascist American Legion calls for "fitting ceremonies" in celebration of the eighth anniversary of America's entry into the world war, April 6, 1917.

James A. Drain, national commander, issues the command to all posts and departments "to request churches, schools, fraternal and patriotic organizations to join in the observance," but all he gets is a bare dozen-line notice in the New York Times, that is supposed to be "the record" of the achievements of American capitalist imperialism.

For the workers and poor farmers, the only "fitting ceremonies" in memory of the American entry into the world war would be mighty exposures, at ten thousand demonstrations this coming Monday, of all capitalist wars; especially the wars threatening as a result of the growing ambitions of American imperialism.

• • • •

The last world war, 1914-1918, brought only increased agony to the workers of the United States and of all other capitalist nations, victors and vanquished.

In the United States, today, 2,000,000 continually jobless; 10,000,000 part-time unemployed; renewed attacks on the Communists, especially in the Michigan syndicalist case; redoubled war of the open shoppers against the labor unions; defeat of the anti-child labor amendment; intense propaganda for state cossacks before the legislatures, accompanied by attacks against legislation seeking "one-day-rest-in-seven" for all workers and the eight-hour day for women; three million more bankrupt farmers; new assaults against foreign-born workers; wage cuts everywhere against the workers' diminishing pay envelope.

But for the great capitalists! The right to organize into ever greater mergers; the most recent being the absorption by Standard Oil of Doheny properties. Increasing profits on every hand for the already great rich. The whole power of the American government in support of American exploiters' schemes abroad; like the Dawes-Morgan plan in Germany. Naval maneuvers in the Pacific to be in readiness against attacks of foreign imperialists; in this case against Japan, for the benefit of U. S. imperialism.

• • • •

America's entry into the war may best be remembered by the workers of this country as almost coinciding with the withdrawal of the Russian workers and peasants from the European slaughter pits. America's workers, therefore, might not only celebrate the quitting of the war by the Russians, but also propagandize the whole American working class with the Russian workers' reasons for quitting.

The Russians learned that the war was not in their interests. They learned that it was war in the interests of Russian bankers, landlords, the industrialists and the aristocracy, the pillars of the czardom. They quit and the czardom fell. They won their great victory by turning against the war.

• • • •

America's workers, in the great mass, have yet to learn that the last war was also for the interests of the Morgans, Rockefellers, Duponts, Garys and Mellons of the United States. They have yet to learn that the next great war, in which the United States participates, will be fought by the American capitalist government in the interests of the same bucaneering profiteers. The war's anniversary is a good time to awaken them to these facts.

America's workers and poor farmers must also be enlistet for the war against capitalist wars; the war of the oppressed for the taking over of all power into their own hands. April 6th offers an opportunity for "fitting ceremonies" for a Communist inspired American working class as well as for the American Legion, wrapped in fascism's bloody mantle.

BIG FAMILY UNABLE TO LIVE ON $20 A WEEK GETS MOTHER IN COURT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., April 4.—Mrs. Frances Cisler propounded a problem to Judge George S. Lightner that stumped him. Mrs. Cisler had been arrested for keeping her 15-year-old daughter, Malta, out of school.

"We have nine children, my husband and myself in the family, and my husband earns $20 a week. Will you tell me how we can live on that amount, unless some of the children work?" Mrs. Cisler asked the court.

"That is your problem," replied Judge Lightner. "I'll admit I can't solve it."

Mrs. Cisler has some difficulty in raising a $50 bond to keep from going to jail, where the court had threatened to send her with her baby.

Victims' Relatives Compensated.

SULLIVAN, Ind., April 3—Dependents of forty-eight of the fifty-one miners killed in the recent catastrophe at the City Coal company's mine here, to day received checks from the state industrial board totalling $182,825. The state awards were granted under the workmen's compensation act.

The mine victims not represented in the money had no dependents, it was stated.

debt and a redivision of some of the colonial territories.

In the same way the debts of Italy and Belgium to the United States will be used to exert pressure on these countries to support such a conference.

Mask Is Dropped.

The American capitalists succeeded, thru financial pressure, in curtailing France's navy during the last arms parley, and it is now planned to make a drive on her air fleet, which is the largest in the world. France's submarine fleet is also said to be the largest.

The mask has been dropped from the Coolidge government. The mealy mouthed terms of "world peace" and "good will" are being dispensed with and intrnational capital is engaged in a wild scramble to secure as much of the world's natural resources as possible and each imperialistic country is trying to secure financial, economic and military power over the other.

POLISH WHITE TERROR MAKES DRIVE ON REDS

Socialists Support Police Brutality

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WARSAW, Poland, April 3.—In the recent months white terror in Poland is attacking with increased energy. Thus for instance, in connection with the numerous Lenin memorial meetings arranged by the labor organizations in the Dombrow Basin, in Dombrow, Bendsin and Tschedads over 30 workers were arrested.

The Warsaw police arrested two workers, the 20-year old worker of a wall-paper factory, Waltschak and the worker, Beberski of the union of the communal workers, on account of putting up red flags at telegraph and telephone poles with the slogans: "We demand the liberation of Comrade Lanzusky" and "Shame on the slanderers against Comrade Kruilhowski." The authorities have no evidence whatever against these arrested innocent workers.

Mass Arrests

Mass arrests have taken place among the members of the socialist students' organization, Schism. Some weeks ago the authorities had undertaken searches in the offices of the students' organization. After this five students were arrested. Recently five more students have been arrested. Against all of them prooceedings have been taken on account of Communist propaganda and distribution of illegal literature.

The Warsaw court has reconsidered the case of a workers' group which is accused of having participated in the electoral campaign of "The Proletariat in Town and Village."

The court in Samostjo had sentenced these workers to one and one-half years of prison each. The appeal court of Warsaw considered this judgment too small and increased the sentence to five years hard labor.

Expose Frame-Up.

In Petkovo the trial against the workers who are accused of plotting against the state according to paragraph 102 of the penal code has ended. In the trial the provocations of the authorities and of their false witnesses were exposed. The greatest number of those accused were sentenced to three years' hard labor each. At the same time the Lodz court sentenced 16 accused workers to one and one-half to five years' hard labor.

On account of offending the social-democratic party of Poland the worker, John Franke, was sentenced by the Warsaw district court to one year of imprisonment. He was accused of having agitated on a journey as follows: "The socialist leaders have gone into the camp of the bourgeoisie one can only trust the Communists because they fight really for the cause of the workers." Policemen who traveled in the same carriage arrested Franke and delivered him to the court.

Police Brutality.

Nearly every arrested worker is subjected to brutal maltreatment. The recent interpellation of the white Russian parliamentary fraction states unheard of facts on the maltreatment of the inhabitants of the frontier districts:

"Visenz Lweiko, a white Russian of 18 years of age"—the interpellation states—"was arrested by a Polish frontier guard and taken to the estate of Rodiwtschiana. There the policeman maltreated him with the accusation that his mother had complained of the theft of food. Loweiko was then led to Janow. On the way his face was put into the dirt of the street, then he had to kneel down and his hair was cut off with a bayonet. In Janow Loweiko was again forced to kneel for a considerable time. Then he was transported to Sachat where a police agent maltreated him again; he was thrown to the floor and trodden upon till he finally made the wrong statement and admitted that he had complained of the theft of food."

IRISH PEASANT COMING TO UNITED STATES FROM FAMINE REGION TO SPEAK IN CHICAGO ON MAY 8

John P. McCarthy who is coming to the United States from the famine district in Ireland on invitation of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, will be the principal speaker at mass meeting in Chicago on May 8. The meeting will be held in North Side Turner Hall, near Chicago avenue.

Recent advices from Ireland indicate that the famine situation is growing worse. McCarthy comes from Killorglin, County Kerry, near the place where Roger Casement was captured by Bitish officers on his arrival in a German submarine, immediately before the Easter week uprising. This is one of the distiets most severely hit by the famine.

The Labor Defense Council which is co-operating in Irish famine relief work will hold its next regular meeting at 722 Blue Island avenue on Friday, April 10, at 8 p. m.

CITY GETS JUNK FOR SKY PRICES UNDER CAR BILL

Workers Party Has the Only Real Plan

The Dever traction ordinance, which will be voted on by the workers next Tuesday, proposes that the city shall pay at par value the traction bonds which have a par value of $67,000,000, while these same bonds ar quoted on the market at $46,000,000.

The securities which the Dever ordinance provides the city shall buy at par value, $31,000,000, are now quoted on the market at $32,000,000.

Ten Per Cent Fee.

The ordinance provides in addition that the bankers negotiating the sale to the city shall be paid a brokerage fee of 10 per cent, or a commission of $50,000,000 on the entire project.

The city, under the ordinance, guarantees to pay $162,702,535 for the traction certificates, and to pay five per cent on these certificates. There are $140,000,000 outstanding bonds of the surface lines due in two years, and there is only $20,000,000 on hand to pay for them.

Demand Workers' Control.

The transportation system will be turned over to the city in bad repair, much of the elevated structures being practically junk.

It is noticable that the politicians opposing the ordinance have offered no plan to meet Chicago's traction problem.

The Workers (Communist) Party, on the other hand, has demanded that the traction system be confiscated by the city, and that the employes running the traction lines be put in complete control, thru committees of the union employes.

Economists Recognize Economic Progress of USSR Says Commissar

MOSCOW, April 3.—Addressing the plenary session of the council of congresses of exchange trade, Comrade Sheinman, people's commissary of internal commerce, dwelt on the main tasks actually facing Soviet trade. Pointing out the notable economic progress of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the speaker stressed the fact that there is not one serious economist in Europe or America today who does not recognize the fact. The successful carrying out of the monetary reform, the lowering of the prices, the greater productivity of labor, the lowering of the primary cost of industrial products, and the relative stability of the grain market—all this proved that, in spite of partial crop failure, the situation was well taken in hand. These successes, the speaker declared, ought to be a basis for further achievements.

Report Shows Trade Between USSR and Norway Has Gone Up

MOSCOW, April 3.—The Communistblad, organ of the Norwegian Communist Party, published at Oslo (Christiania), reports that trade between the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and Norway increased three times in 1924 as compared with the previous year, the purchases made by the Union reaching a total of about 50 million Norwegian crowns, which is about the pre-war level.

Accurate payment by the Soviets has definitively eliminated any apprehension that may have been felt in some of the Norwegian business quarters, and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics enjoys full credit among these quarters, which no longer ask, as they had to do before, for any guarantee on the part of the Norwegian government when selling on credit to Soviet trade organs and firms. All the banks, including the State Bank of Norway, now accept the bills of the Soviet trade mission.

It is interesting to note that complaints are heard among Norwegian merchants and industrialists that Norway's trade with Poland is done at more or less considerable losses.

General Strike of French Students Ties Up Schools

PARIS, France, April 3.—The strike of the students in the University of Paris has spread and a general strike of students in the universities at Nancy, Bordeaux, Clermont, Ferrand and Caen have joined the Paris students.

The protest occurred when students objected to the appointment of a Herriot politician to the lectureship in international law. The dean of the school was suspended because he manifested sympathy with the demonstrators.

Most of the professors, in sympathy with the students, have declared that they will not teach classes during the strike.

The Communist students, who have been expounding Communist principles during the demonstration, have a large following among their fellow students.

The strike is 90 per cent effective, the few students who enter the school building being heavily guarded by police.

March Building Permits Increase Over Last Year

Permits for more apartment and residence construction were issued in March than in January and February according to Chicago building commissioner, Frank E. Doherty. In March 1925 permits were issued for the construction of 566 apartment buildings, while permits were issued in March 1924 for 561 apartment buildings. In March of this year permits were issued for 1,074 residences, compared to permits for 891 residences last March.

JOBLESS MOTHER IN MILL TOWN SELLS HER BARY

Advertises for New Mother in Paper

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 3.—On front page of the Lawrence Tribune, issue of March 18, appears this advertisement, "Pretty three months old baby girl for adoption. Mother not working, too poor to support. For further information write Box J-326, Box 627, City."

The mother, three months after the birth of her first child, has been going from employment office to employment office. Her husband left town to look for work in another city. He could not find it.

The textile mill barons of this town have been laying off thousands of workers, slashing wages, and putting other workers on part time. Genevieve was born in the heart of the struggle between the starving mill workers, and the child exploitaing mill owners.

Begged For Work

Her mother has begged in vain that the mill owners give her some work, no matter how long the hours or poor the wages; no matter how degrading the work.

But the mill owners are locking the workers out. Genevieve's mother cannot sell her strength, her labor, to the industrial lords of Lawrence.

"The poor house for you," they tell Genevieve's mother, "and take your brat with you. In a dozen years we will help her. When she is ten or twelve years old we will put her to work in the mills."

The textile mill owners, who weave expensive clothes for the Fifth Ave. shops, like to take the employes young. "Mill broke" is the name that is applied to immature boys and girls who have had the spirit and ambition for education ground out of them at an early age.

In the same page of the Tribune that the advertisement appears is a story about Genevieve. "In a hundred perhaps a thousand homes in Lawrence there are Genevieves." But it would not do for this rag which is always at the service of the mill owners to admit that it is the shadows of the textile mills which hang over Genevieve.

Capitalism Inflicts Blight

So the kept sheet of the textile bosses invents an excuse for the poverty of Genevieve's mother. "Genevieve's father hasn't provided for her as other fathers have," says the kept newspaper.

But the citizens of Lawrence know that unemployment stalks abroad in the New England mill country, and in the other big industrial centers. And the starved workers are talking of making over industry and abolishing the profiet system.

The advertisement on the front page of the Lawrence Tribune is an indictment against the Lawrence mill owners, a badge of the blight the capitalist system inflicts on the working class.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

country is doing or trying to do. Only workers who struggle against the capitalists are dealt with mercilessly. Doheny and Sinclair have been traveling around the world since they were indicted, but thousands of workers are held in jail for merely being members of a working class organization. This is true particularly of members of the I. W. W. who are thrown into the jails of California on the slightest pretext.

SINCE the Teapot Dome scandal broke loose, a very important development has taken place in the oil industry. The Standard Oil company has gobbled up most of the Doheny interests and it seems that Sinclair has walked into the Rockefeller parlor. This means that Standard is now the unchallenged king of oil on this continent and that means something. It is significant that the oil indictments were quashed a few days after the announcement of the new oil merger was made. When the inner history of the Teapot Dome scandal is written, it may be learned that Standard Oil was rather pleased than otherwise, at the predicament in which its competitors found themselves. It may even be possible that John D.'s industrial octopus had a hand in instigating the Teapot storm.

ADMINISTRATIONS do not always act impartially for capitalism as a whole. Sometimes a powerful group like the Standard Oil company, or the steel trust or several powerful groups working in harmony, decide to crush their rivals. The average worker believes he is having a lot of fun and that "his" government is "whipping the money lenders out of the temple," in good old J. Christ fashion. But this is a delusion. It is quite evident in the Doheny-Sinclair case. The Standard Oil company undoubtedly has the inside track in the present administration. It represents big, big, business. It is established and holds sway by divine right. If the Dohenys and Sinclairs think they can play a lone hand, so much the worse for them. If they refuse to join hands in the big game, voluntarily, ways and means must be found to bring them to book. Hence the Teapot Dome indictments.

SINCLAIR OIL and Standard Oil were scrapping in Persia. But no longer. They have buried the hatchet. The burial took place since the Teapot Dome flurry. Doheny was the uncrowned king of Mexico. He shared power with King George of England, even while he was president of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, on the nomination of De Valera. His father was a Fenian and Mrs. Doheny is highly honored by the pope for her benefactions to the Mexican church, which by the way, came in very handy to Doheny in keeping the Mexican peons walking the ways of the lord and rendering unto Caesar that which Caesar says is his, in this case Doheny. Therefore, the oil king was a good Irish republican.

DOHENY purchased the Mexican government outright, endorsed Calles a few weeks after that worthy paraded thru New York's east side with red banners flaunted by Morris Hillquit and other socialist leaders who organized the parade. The wise Doheny evidently assumed that, Calles being yellow enough to suit the socialist party, should be quite safe for oil. While government lawyers were shadow boxing with Doheny's lawyers over the legality of the oil steals, Doheny was in Mexico, advising Calles. Evidently Standard Oil used the legal club to shake Doheny down, and having gone as far as decency would permit, told its rival that if he signed on the dotted line, Rockefeller would call off its dogs and find a judge who would detect some flaw in the indictments. Doheny signed and turned over his kingdom of Mexico to John D.

THIS is not the way empires were fought for and won in olden times. Had a battle for such rich booty been waged six hundred years ago, Doheny's head would now adorn John D.'s pike on the portals of the gate leading to 26 Broadway and John's retainers would quaff the flowing bowl and revel over the oil baron's conquest. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., would not waste his time, teaching Sunday school, but would very likely carry Doheny's daughters—if he has any—into captivity, slay his wife and his mother and boil all Doheny's male progeny in their father's oil. The world does move just the same.

HAVE YOU MADE YOUR PREPARATIONS?

Detroit to Have Real Mass Demonstration on May Day

By EDGAR OWENS.

THE Daily Worker organization in Detroit plans to celebrate May Day by making a mass distribution of DAILY WORKERS, before the factories. The goal aimed at is a 20,000 distribution and there is every reason to believe that this goal will be reached. Some of the branches have already pledged substantial amounts to be applied towards the cost of the papers and others will be heard from soon.

The recent distribution of a special Detroit Edition of the DAILY WORKER went to prove what can be accomplished by this method. It advertised our paper and laid the elemental basis for an approach for subscriptions. At this moment Detroit's sub list is at the highest point since the DAILY WORKER was established. A mass distribution such as is contemplated for May Day will go a long way in assuring that we will reach our quota in the national sub drive which is now under way.

There will be special articles dealing with the industrial and political situation in Detroit which will give the May Day edition a local appeal that will be of great benefit to the party here as well as to the DAILY WORKER

Members and branches are urged to keep in mind the importance of the May distribution. As a method of effective propaganda the distribution will overshadow anything yet attempted. While the mass meeting on the evening of May 1, at which Comrade J. W. Johnstone will be the principle speaker will draw a record attendance, it cannot be compared with the agitational effect of the distribution. The mass meeting will be attended by comrades and sympathisers. The distribution will reach many thousands who have not yet been touched by the revolutionary message of Communism.

THE COMMITTEE REQUESTS—

The Detroit DAILY WORKER Committee takes this opportunity to urge a whole-hearted support from the branches and the entire membership in this great undertaking. Get advertisements. Make individual and branch contributions to cover the expenses involved. Get the report in of what your branch is doing as soon as possible. Funds should be remitted not later than April 25th, so that there will be plenty of time to inform the DAILY WORKER of the number of the May Day editions Detroit will use.

NEW YORK—(FP)—April 2—Yielding to the pressure of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Secretary of Labor Davis has agreed to cancel the appointment of Dr. W. A. Plecker, special agent of the department. Davis announces his decision in a letter to the association, replying to their protest against Plecker's anti-Negro propaganda.

The gravity of Plecker's offense was intensified by his use of the free mailing (franking) privileges of the department. In a pamphlet he distributed mail free in wholesale quantities occurred such statements as the following:

> "Thee mental and moral characteristics of a black man cannot even under the best environment and educational advantages become the same as those of a white man.
> "Let us turn a deaf ear to those who would interpret christian botherhood to mean racial equality."

Davis said he didn't know what Plecker was up to and said that the latter, because of his official position as registrar of vital statistics for Virginia, had been designated as special agent without salary, but that his federal appointment had been cancelled on receipt of the association's communication.

Labor Gets Slapped by Illinois Solons Who Obey Employers

SPRINGFIELD, Il., April 2.—Labor measures in the Illinois legislature are encountering rough roads, particularly the injunction limitation bill and the woman's 8-hour bill

The anti-injunction bill, which forbids issuance of injunctions in labor disputes except to prevent irreparable injury to property, fell in the house of representatives by 74 against to 69 in favor. A motion to postpone indefinitely by Representative Soderstrom of the Typographical Union makes it possible to call it up again if the outlook becomes more favorable.

The woman's 8-hour bill, specially sponsored by the women members of the legislature, had so few friends in the committee that it was sent to the floor of the house without recommendation. This indicates shipwreck ahead.

Colorado Against Child Labor Bill

DENVER, Colo., April 2.—The Colorado house of representatives has voted down the bill providing for ratification of the proposed amendment to the federal constitution giving congress the power to limit the hours of labor of children under 18 years of age.

Number One--

Is a task of no small importance.

Getting a sub for the DAILY WORKER from your shop-mate or member of your union is a task for the very best kind of a Communist organizer.

You must state, prove, convince—you must place before the uninformed worker every argument as to why he should subscribe to The DAILY WORKER—and to the Communist principles it advocates.

But it is the task of every Communist.

This is the field in which are found not only the future members of the Workers (Communist) Party, but also—

This is the field and work in which are developed the highest type of Communist Organizers.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub is a task of no small importance! Try it on your shop-mate—it will make a better Communist of you!

For every $6.00 worth of subs ($8.00 worth in Chicago) we will gladly send you a leather binder with patent clasp making all sheets detachable; with pocket for receipts and note paper for your use—containing a full descriptive catalogue of all Communist books and publications from "The Source of All Communist Literature in This Country"—the DAILY WORKER, 1113 West Washington Blvd., Chicago, Illinois.

Number Two--

Is just as important—but it's easier.

The second task that is asked of every Communist—in or out of the Workers (Communist) Party—in the Second Annual Sub Campaign is very much easier.

You have no doubt tried to convince; you have surely stated the Communist principles and program to many workers you have met.

You did this as the task of a Communist.

But where you may have not as yet succeeded—let the DAILY WORKER do it; you can do it better with "Our Daily."

Pay for a subscription out of your own pocket (if you can) to the worker whom you want to convince.

With the aid of the best expression of Communist principles and practice in the DAILY WORKER reaching him every day —you will surely "Make Another Communist."

The Communist Press and Latin-America

San Salvador, March 19, 1925.

Comrade Editors:

Each week I have been receiving the daily that you publish, The DAILY WORKER, also the copies of the magazine supplement and a copy of the Workers Monthly.

We are very pleased for these favors, because, altho they come in English and there are only a few here who translate from English, nevertheless I give them to some comrades who belong to the executive here and work as organizers of the Regional Federation of Workers of Salvador.

These have given close accounts of your activities and sincerely admire your fight for Communism and the dictatorship of the proletariat, and your adherence to the teachings of Vladimir Lenin, the greatest of the heroes of our time, who knew how to lead the most colossal struggle in the history of humanity—the fight between the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie and the dictatorship of the proletariat which will inevitably end in the reign of Communism.

Down with the false anarchists, such as Emma Goldman!

Comrades! Address your greetings to the Federacion Regional de Trabajadores of Salvador, which is the only proletarian union organization in Salvador.

Yours Sincerely,
David Ruiz.

The above letter shows that the influence of the DAILY WORKER is not confined to the United States and that the fight it makes on American imperialism is not a mere shouting which does not reach beyond the boundaries of this nation.

Every statement of the party, every act of the workers here against the Wall Street domination of Latin-America is read by and finds a response in the hearts of the most militant of the Latin-American workers.

The DAILY WORKER is uniting the advance guard of the Latin-American workers and peasants with the Workers (Communist) Party for the struggle. The American Communist press is the most effective weapon of the workers of both nations.

Some day we may have a Latin-American edition. Stranger things have happened.

The Freiheit's Third Anniversary

The Freiheit, the only Jewish Communist daily in America, celebrates its third anniversay today.

This is a bald statement of fact, but it carries with a world of meaning to the Jewish workers of America and the working class movement in which they play so large a part.

The three years of the Freiheit's existence have been years of struggle and achievement. It came into the life of the Jewish workers at a time when the labor and revolutionary movements were suffering from the effects of the socialist betrayals and at the same time struggling to learn the great lessons of the Russian revolution.

Out of confusion it created clarity and the recent repudiation of Abramovich by the Jewish workers of the United States is proof that in its three years of existence the Freiheit has understood and worked unceasingly at its task—that of bringing the masses of Jewish workers to the Communist Party and the world revolution.

In the trade unions where the Jewish workers predominate—the needle trades—the Freiheit has been the sole voice of the left wing organized around the Workers (Communist) Party and the Trade Union Educational League. Against the counter-revolutionary Forward, organ of every capitalistic and corrupt element in the labor unions and working class movement, it has waged a campaign that has destroyed the influence of the Jewish counter-revolutionists among large masses of workers.

Handicapped by lack of funds, depending solely upon the workers, the Freiheit has nevertheless conducted a campaign for its own building and plant that has rallied to its support the best elements in the Jewish labor movement in every city in the United States and that will make it independent of capitalist printing concerns.

The struggle of the Freiheit for revolutionizing that part of the working class which it reaches is just beginning. Its third anniversary opens an era of new efforts, new problems and new victories.

To the Freiheit on its third anniversary the DAILY WORKER extends its Communist greetings. The DAILY WORKER is little more than a year old and the experience of the Freiheit, gained thru its longer life, has been of immense value to it. Both carry the same program to the workers, the revolutionary program of the Workers (Communist) Party of America. Both fight for the world revolution, for the victory of the working class expressed by the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Both are young, but all the more virile for that.

The Belgian cabinet is all set to resign, but who cares about a little thing like that nowadays?

The French Cabinet Crisis

The failure of the negotiations between France and England for a security pact against "German agression" could not fail to result disastrously for France. The expected has happened and another cabinet crisis, precipitated by the proposal of Finance Minister Clementel to issue 6,000,000,000 francs in paper currency, has occurred. Clementel has resigned.

During the stormy scenes in the chamber of deputies that preceded Clementel's resignation, the Dawes plan came in for bitter denunciation. It is not getting results quick enough to save the imperiled credit. French capitalism and the franc totters on the verge of a precipice.

Once more the French government turns to the House of Morgan. Another loan is needed and from this source alone can it be secured. The French financiers who speak so arrogantly to Germany will be quite humble when they approach the Morgan throne.

They will get some financial aid—at a price—because American imperialism does not want a financial panic to add to the chaos in Europe; especially does it not want additional confusion at a time when the German elections are in the offing.

But the terms will be heavier this time. France will be brought still farther into the circle of American imperialist influence, and the way paved for some sort of a Dawes plan that is intended to make the House of Morgan the dictator of French finance and foreign policy.

Right at the present moment the French ruling class sweats huge drops of blood every time it thinks of what will happen if the House of Morgan calls a few of its short term notes. It may yet occur that French capitalism will make the desperate gesture of war in a mad effort to free itself from the clutches of American finance-capital.

Another invasion of Germany would seem to be utter insanity, but more than one straw shows that this is the way the wind is blowing in France. Individual bankrupts often commit suicide. That the French ruling class might so decide is not beyond the bounds of possibility.

Two Police Bills

The utter futility of the methods used by the labor officials in the state of Illinois in their attempt to defeat the state constabulary bill is shown by the nature of the "compromise" measure that the struggle in the legislature has produced.

If passed, the proposed law will create a force of "highway police" whose functions are somewhat vaguely described, but who are nevertheless real policemen with all the usual powers—which means in the United States that they occupy a position somewhere between a district judge and the president.

This bill is the Small administration concession to the labor leaders who supported him and if it passes will be recorded as another "victory" for non-partisianism—until strikers encounter these highway police protecting scabs—as will occur inevitably.

The Communists are described by the more honest labor leaders as individuals slightly cracked because they say it is better to fight for something you want and not get it than to fight for something you do not want and get it. No worker wants the state police in any form, but a lot of labor leaders are urging the passage of the Small bill which will give them something the workers do not want.

It seems that it never occurs to the misleaders of the labor movement that it is far easier for the capitalists to make a deal with Small or any other capitalist candidate than it is for the unions.

The Small bill may not be all that the bosses want, but they will find some way to make it serve them.

Disarmament and the Franc

"Disarmament Conferences Increase Danger of War," might well be the headline for the story of the conflicts arising out of the international discussion of military and naval reductions tentatively proposed by Coolidge.

France, with her ring of vassal states closing in around Germany, with her air fleet a real menace to Great Britain, dare not reduce her forces. Her only hope for stalling off her British creditors is by a threat of force, yet if she refuses to make certain reductions she faces an assault on the franc that may mean disaster.

Her whole social structure depends now on force and force alone. If she is unable to give Poland, Roumania and Czecho-Slovakia the military assistance on which her alliance with them is based she cannot dominate central Europe.

Her American creditors are also pressing her. Armaments cost money and the House of Morgan would like to see some of the military appropriations used to pay the overdue interest on enormous loans.

France is in a bad way. Her dilemma is part of the process by which she is being brought into the circle of American imperialist enterprise. Once that process is completed she will be allowed within reason to arm, just as she allows her vassals to arm—for war against the enemy of the overlord across the channel.

Implement Trust Does Well

The International Harvester company, after charging off everything it could think of, including its investment in its Russian plant, made a profit of $13,037,395.08 last year.

This will be good news to the farmers, a large part of whose increased returns from higher prices went into the treasury of the implement trust.

The board of directors of the trust, in making public the financial statement congratulates the farmers on a return of prosperity.

Congratulations are the only thing the harvester trust dispenses free of charge.

OLD ARBITRATION TRICK PLAYED ON UTICA STRIKERS

Rob Textile Workers of Their Victory

them a leader of the scab American legion and a preacher. They are William Ross Lee, Moses G. Hubbard and Rev. Philip S. Bird.

Arbitration to Rob Striker of Victory.

This committee had not the slightest notion of restoring the ten per cent taken from the pitiful wages of the workers and over which the strike was being fought and won. They ignored the strike committee of 13 members and were directly aided in their betrayal by Organizer White of the United Textile Workers, who made no effort of insistence that the strike committee be a party to any and all discussion between the mill owners and the "arbitrators."

Instead of this, Organizer White did all the talking himself with the mill owners and his good friends, the mayor's committee. What his share in the benefit to the mill owners may be can only be conjectured, but his share in putting the betrayal across is not the subject of any doubt. The militant union members are demanding that the union discharge him in disgrace and refuse to approve of the terms.

Putting the Deal Across.

However, White managed to cover his traitorious tracks with a camouflage of seeming "approval by the membership." By separating the different crafts, each meeting away from the others, he contrived to put across the agreement after reading it and telling the strikers in a speech before each meeting that they must accept. By this trick he got a vote of 426 in favor and 259 opposed to the agreement.

The terms of the agreement in brief are that the wage cut of ten per cent shall be reduced to a wage cut of five per cent, until May 30; that between now and May 30 conferences—"for the purpose of improving productive efficiency . . . whereby production may be increased, waste eliminated or the cost of productive labor be decreased, and if they result in a decrease of 10 per cent in the cost of productive labor, the wage scale in effect prior to January 26, 1925, shall be restored."

The terms provide for an examination of the company's books by a supposed "impartial" accountant, and if the report shows that the company made money during 1924, the wage cut shall be revoked. The joker comes in the ability of bookkeepers of the corporation to prove anything they wish with figures without the workers or even the accountant detecting the deception.

Back to Where They Started.

Then, the agreement says, "If the report shows that the company lost approximately $250,000 in operating its plants for the year 1924, the employes on June 1, 1925, shall accept a further wage reduction of five per cent, making a total of 10 per cent."

The three gentlemen who engineered this dirty deal magnanimously volunteer to stick around and arbitrate any difference until the final adjustment is made.

In the afternoon of the day the agreement was reached, White and the "arbitrators" met with the strike committee of 13 and the strike committee for the first time heard what treachery White and the arbitrators had been busy with. The "arbitrators" insisted that they had "worked hard" for both sides!

Bouzan Urges Rejection.

James J. Bouzan, militant member of the strike committee urged the rejection of agreement and refused to sign his name to the paper which he regarded as a betrayal of the strike which the textile workers were winning. He said:

"I was elected by the workers to represent them in any arbitration, just as the rest of the strike committee was elected for to arbitrate with the bosses, but I have never been called into conference with the mill owners on this agreement, and neither have the strike committee. The agreement is a betrayal of the strike which the workers have won. Now this mayor's committee comes in to save the mill owners and to do nothing else."

ORIENTAL NEW YORK PARTY BRANCH DONATES PRIZE TO DAILY WORKER

The Oriental Branch, which won a hundred dollar radio outfit in the recent subscription contest for selling the largest number of subs per member, has voted to donate the amount of this prize to the DAILY WORKER insurance fund. The branch has no headquarters of its own, meeting at the rooms of its members, but is very active in various lines of work. The members of this branch are constant contributors of Communist propaganda to Japanese papers, and their influence is felt even across the ocean. They look upon the DAILY WORKER as a necessity, and feel that by donating the prize to the DAILY WORKER they are best serving the Communist movement.

Olgin Gives Second Lecture on Russian Literature, Tuesday

NEW YORK, April 3.—Moissaye J. Olgin will give the second lecture in his series on "The New Era in Russian Literature" on Tuesday, April 7, 8 p. m., at the Workers' School, 108 East 14th street.

In the first lecture, Comrade Olgin discussed pre-revolutionary literature, and showed how the Russian revolution marked the turning point in literary conceptions and achievements. Next Tuesday's lecture will deal mainly with present-day Russian literature. Comrade Olgin will take up the outstanding writers of the Soviet Republic, take up their works, and describe how the new-found freedom of the workers and peasants of Russia, the new organization of society, the revolutionary Communist ideology, is reflected therein.

Olgin's lectures on the Russian revolution have been meeting with great success. Militant workers of New York should not miss the opportunity of hearing him.

COMMUNISTS JOIN WITH AMERICAN KUOMINTANG IN MEMORIAL MEETINGS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SEATTLE, Wash., April 4.—Memorial meetings arranged by the Workers (Communist) Party of District 12 are being held in the cities of the Pacific northwest, in honor of Sun Yat Sen, the great Chinese revolutionist.

Tomorrow Norman H. Tallentire, district organizer of the Workers Party speaks at a Sun Yat Sen memorial meeting in Portland, Oregon. On Sunday April 12, Stanley J. Clark will speak at Tacoma at a similar meeting, and the Seattle meeting is being arranged in expected co-operation with the Seattle branch of the Kuomintang.

All these meetings will be devoted to the subjects of the life work of Sun Yet Sen and the significance of Soviet policy in the Far East.

Ukrainians Hold Mass Meeting Denouncing Polish Atrocities

ALLENTOWN, Pa., April 3.—Many Ukrainian residents of this city and vicinity gathered at a mass meeting in the Hungarian Hall, 520 Union St., where resolutions were adopted protesting against the Polish occupation of Eastern Galicia. The meeting which was sponsored by the members of the Solidarity Society, was addressed by prominent Ukrainian speakers.

The following resolution was adopted:

"We, the Ukrainian workers of Allentown, Pa., have discussed the tyrannical conditions under which our brethren and countrymen are living on territory occupied by Polish imperialists, and

WHEREAS, The Polish occupation rule holds in enslavement ten million of Ukrainian workers and peasants and the Ukrainian productive masses are forced out by violence from their home by the tyranny of the Polish colonists on Ukrainian soil, and,

WHEREAS, In political life the Ukrainian citizens are all dependent upon the Polish usurping authority and are terrorised during the national elections, and

WHEREAS, In cultural life they are oppressed by the Polish authorities who have suppressed the press, libraries and other educational institutions, and

WHEREAS, The prisons are full to capacity, filled with Ukrainian workers for the mere reason that they have different beliefs or have dared to criticize the Polish authority, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That in the light of this oppression and tyranny we are raising a voice of protest, asking the workers and citizens of all countries to assist our brethren and fellow citizens of Western Ukraine who are now under Polish domination. We are also asking the assistance of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republic to use their influence to effect the freedom of Ukrainian workers under the Polish regime.

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

CAL'S GANG FREES OIL BANDITS

Doheny and Fall, but the judge alluded to the separate indictment of Sinclair on similar charges, and the quashing of Sinclair's indictment along with the rest was included in the court's order.

The court upheld two contentions of the government and two of counsel for Fall, Sinclair and Doheny.

The challenge of the oil men that Pagan was unlawfully in the jury room was upheld on the ground that the senate resolution authorized the appointment of special counsel to prosecute the Teapot Dome and Elk Hill cases had taken away the privilege of the attorney general or any of his assistants to appear before the grand jury. This was the chief reason that motivated McCoy in quashing the indictment.

The court is of the opinion that Pagan had no authority to appear before the grand jury as an attorney for the government, McCoy said.

In answering the attack upon the indictment because it was signed by Pomerene and Roberts as "special assistants of the attorney general," the court held that so long as the indictments were endorsed by the foreman of the grand jury the signatures of counsel were not necessary.

Burglars Enjoy Booty.

These are the technical reasons given for quashing the indictments. But every normal person in Washington is commenting on the coincidence of the decision coming on the heels of the announcement that Standard Oil has gulped down the Doheny oil interests in Mexico. Whether the government will make another attempt at prosecution is a political question. If it does, the gesture will mean nothing and Doheny, Sinclair and Fall may enjoy their loot in peace. Such is capitalist justice!

MEMBERSHIP MEETING IN ELIZABETH, N. J., TAKE UP SHOP NUCLEI

On Wednesday evening, April 15, at 8 o'clock sharp a very important party membership meeting will be held at Lutwin Hall, 39 South Clark Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey. The question of the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei will be fully discussed. Federation secretaries and branch organizers are urged to co-operate in every possible way to make this meeting a success. The discussion will be led by Comrade Israel Amter, who recently returned to this country from Russia. He will give his experiences with the Russian Communist Party organization which is based on shop nuclei and will explain why our party must reorganize on that basis. All members of the branches that belong to the city central committee of Elizabeth are urged to be present at this meeting.

SPECIAL MAGAZINE SUPPLEMENT
THE DAILY WORKER

SECOND SECTION
This magazine supplement will appear every Saturday in The Daily Worker.

APRIL 4, 1925.

British Leaders Urge Trade Union Unity

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith the second instalment of extracts from the Special Supplement to the Monthly Circular of the Labor Research Department of the British Trade Union Congress devoted to furthering world trade union unity.

The Special Supplement began with a preface by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam) and is composed largely of original documents; correspondence between the Red International of Labor Unions and the Amsterdam right wing officialdom, reports of conferences, etc.

The publication of this Special Supplement, the very frank and militant announcement of its purposes by the president of the Amsterdam International, the complete exposure of the treacherous and disruptive tactics of the right wing which it contains, all are indicative of the tremendous hold that the slogan of World Trade Union Unity has gained upon the British trade union movement, the most powerful section of the Amsterdam International.—Ed. Note.

The Attitude of the Trades Union Congress.

On September 1, Mr. A. A. Purcell, delivering his president's address to the Hull Trades Union Congress, at which a fraternal delegation from Russia, headed by Tomsky, was present, referred to the decisions of the Vienna meeting, and used one or two phrases, of which the most significant was:—

> We must assuredly make the most of every opportunity, dignified or otherwise, to bring every national trade union center within the four corners of a genuinely united and avowedly anti-capitalist International Federation of Trade Unions.

This was taken up by Mr. Pollitt and Mr. Hallsworth in the discussion of the British delegation's report on the Vienna Congress. An all-in congress was suggested. Finally, the Trade Union Congress unanimously agreed to the following statement made from the chair by Mr. A. A. Purcell:—

> I think I ought to take this opportunity of impressing upon Congress the significant fact that we have now received from practically all those Continental nations where the labor movement is in a disturbed condition indications that they are looking to the British Trades Union Congress as a demonstration of that unity which it appears to me is so vitally necessary. From Italy and Germany, and now from France, the dissident sections have intimated their desire for unity, and if our movement is to fulfil its great destiny, something might be done to consummate that desire. In no country is unity so firmly established as in Great Britain, and it seems incumbent upon this Congress, without any formal resolution or indulging in long discussion, to take such steps in bringing together the different elements of the labor movement in Europe in an effort to establish that solidarity which will make for world peace. I, therefore, suggest to Congress that they empower the general council, through the International Federation of Trade Unions, to take all possible steps to bring the parties together.

Immediately after the Hull Congress, a meeting of the executive committee of the I. F. T. U. was held at Amsterdam on September 11. The British delegates put forward proposals, and as a result a letter was sent to Moscow:—

To the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions, Moscow.
Amsterdam Sept. 11, 1924.

Comrades,

Our executive committee, at its meeting on the 11th Sept. considered your letter of the 26th July, and instructed us to reply as follows:—

The desire for the restoration of the organizational unity of the trade union movement, for the destruction of which we are not responsible, has always been present with us, and has been repeatedly expressed by us. We also agree with what you say: "That the struggle between labor and capital, which is becoming more and more acute, can be successful only when the forces of the economic organizations of the proletariat will be concentrated, and the unity of the international trade union movement achieved.

It must, however, be realized that between the policy that you recognize as the basis of trade union activity and that to which we adhere, there is a fundamental difference, which is much wider than that of more or less radical policy. To bring these widely different lines of thought into agreement can be no light task, but we are willing to strain all our powers to perform it.

Before we can consider entering into negotiations as proposed by you, it is in our view desirable to have something in writing as a basis for discussion, so that we may see where agreement on principles and policy is possible. We would therefore request you to make written proposals, from which we can judge whether a common basis of agreement can be found.

As you know, the instructions which we received in Vienna, in regard to any negotiations as to unity that might take place, were quite definite, but ths queston can be left for the time being. We need not emphasize the fact that the executive committee could not, in this most important matter, take any binding decisions that exceed the instructions we received at Vienna without consulting our general council, and possibly even another congress.

Looking forward to receiving your reply, With international greetings,

For the Executive Committee of the International Federation of Trade Unions:
A. A. Purcell, chairman,
J. Oudegeest, Secretary.

The reply to this came in a long letter (given below), despatched from Moscow on October 23. In this note the desire of the I. F. T. U. for "something in writing" is met by full and explicit statement of principle, together with a proposal for an all-embracing World Congress of Labor as the best means of obtaining unity.

To the International Federation of Trade Unions, Amsterdam
Moscow, Oct. 23, 1924.

Dear Comrades,

We received your letter, of date the 11th of September, on September 20, but as the Presidium of the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions only met in full session on the 23rd of October, we had no opportunity of replying to you.

It was not without satisfaction that we learned of your declaration that you, too, were desirous of creating organizational unity in the trade union movement.

It appears to us to be out of place here to go into details with regard to the party on whose shoulders blame must be laid for the split in the international trade union movement. We would only wish to point out that in reality a united, all-inclusive and firmly welded international trade union movement has never hitherto existed.

Only our present—as we suppose—common efforts will lead, we hope, to an end being put to the split.

We willingly fall in with your wish that you receive something in written form which would serve as a basis for the coming negotiations.

We on our part are striving to create unity within the trade union movement on an international and national scale, that is to say, as far as possible to get the closest unification of all trade union organizations, those affiliated to the Red International of Labor Unions or the International Federation of Trade Unions as well as those standing completely aside from any international federated bodies, on the necessary condition that these organizations standing apart from these federations recognize the principle of the class struggle.

We think there is no need to explain why we are striving to achieve this unification, this alliance of trade unions with an orientation genuinely anti-capitalist. You know as well as we do that the unity of the international trade union movement is the very first precondition to a successful fight both against the offensive of capital and the fascist reaction and against the capitalist order as a whole.

We hold that the best means of attaining unity and being able to create one single Trade Union International would be the convening general joint congress, of a world congress of labor. As to how, when and where this congress could take place would not be a difficult matter to agree to during the course of the negotiations. We note your view that between "the policy" which we lay down as the basis of our work in the trade unions and yours there exists a fundamental difference, that here there exists a profound abyss, "much wider than that of a more or less radical policy."

The significance of this phrase is not quite clear to us. For as a matter of fact those differences which exist as between us are nothing new—they have been in existence for a number of years now and were probably known to and taken into consideration by the Vienna Congress of your Federation. It is self-understood that in the proper place and at the proper time we will be ready to discuss in all details the differences in opinion which divide us from you. In any case we are pleased to confirm the fact that there is a desire on your part—no matter what may be the real divisions between us—to do all that lies in your power to find a common line of action.

As we on our part have the same desire, we declare that the chiefest and most important guiding principle in the activities of the trade union and workers' organizations, as we hold, is to get free of the irreconcilable contradiction in interests between labor and capital, this demanding a class war to the knife between the wage-slave and the capitalist classes for the final abolition of the capitalist system and the emancipation of the proletariat from the oppression of capitalist exploitation and the beggary, barbarism and slavery which it brings in its train.

Hence the reason for our proposal: a complete break with every form of class collaboration with the bourgeoisie, a common fight of the workers and their organizations, on a national and international scale against world capital—and thanks to this, the full readiness of all genuine militant organizations fighting for the emancipation of the working class might be rendered possible.

We await your reply and particularly notices as to when and where in your opinion the first negotiations between your representatives and ours might be held.

Although we for our part are also ready to continue, as far as this might be necessary, correspondence on the question of unity, it seems desirable to us, however, and it would be more useful as far as the business itself is concerned, if with the aid of the first exchange of views and opinions—even if such a meeting were not to bear any kind of binding character whatsoever—the way was to be prepared for all further steps towards the goal we have in view.

With comradely greetings,
President of the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions:
M. TOMSKY,
Secretary of the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions:
A. DOGADOV.

To this again a reply was sent from the Bureau of the I. F. T. U. on December 1, George Hicks being present as British delegate in the absence of Purcell and Bramley in Russia. The wording of the I. F. T. U. letter is as follows:—

We gather from your letter of July 26, and also from this last letter, that you do not appear willing to affiliate with the I. F. T. U. on the basis of its rules and resolutions. Instead of doing so you propose the convening of a joint general congress, a world labor congress, to which would be invited not only the organizations affiliated with the I. F. T. U. and the R. I. L. U., but all other organizations outside these Internationals which recognize the principle of class war.

We have already called your attention in our letter of September 11 to the fact that the Vienna Congress gave us definite directions for the opening of negotiations on the question of affiliation of the Russian trade unions to the I. F. T. U.

It is for our general council which together with the executive committee, constitute the two bodies competent to interpret and execute the decisions of our International Congresses, to consider and define its attitude regarding your new prop-

Engels and His False Friends

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE un-Marxian Marxists of the United States and particularly that collection of hothouse theorists, segregated under the banner of the socialist labor party, have unearthed every stray remark, and debauched the literature of pre-war socialism in an effort to prove that Marx and Engels were not revolutionists but blind worshipers of the tool of production to whose progressive march alone could be attributed all the forward leaps of civilization and to which the emancipation of the working class could be trusted without the exploding of a fire cracker or even the scratching of a finger.

Let the tool of production do the work! The reformists masquerading under the camouflage of revolutionary socialism would observe its progress and carefully note down every development, branding all those who insisted on working class organization for the overthrow of capitalism, as crazy adventurers.

Communists have all the admiration in the world for the tool of production and they know that its development is more responsible for the changes that have come over the face of society than all the kings and princes, generals and statesmen that ever lived. But this world is composed of human beings as well as inanimate instruments of production and destruction. The master class are in possession of both and when the working class refuse to work the productive machine at the terms dictated by the bosses, the latter will turn the destructive machines on them with damaging effect. Hence the need of capturing the governmental power which controls the tools of destruction.

The reformists spurn revolutionary action and hold that no permanent progress can be made unless it is done according to the laws of civilization—whatever they are. In other words, the workers are advised to watch the social panorama go by with folded arms and wait until capitalism digs its own graveyard and drops peacefully into it. Whereupon the working class, led by the hothouse theorists will appear, issue a proclamation and declare that the co-operative commonwealth has arrived.

Marx and Engels, the two outstanding giants in the intellectual galaxy of social revolution, up to the time of their deaths and until the star of Lenin appeared over the horison, received lip service from the many bodies of the reformists until the revolutionary implications of their theories rose out of the seething cauldron of world war like a pillar of fire. And when the Russian Bolsheviki began to translate Marxism into action under the leadership of Lenin, all the pseudo-Marxists who worshipped at his shrine while he remained the harmless pedagogue scurried like rats into their cellars and came forth with little odds and ends that they hoped would prove that Marx and Engels did not believe in the use of every servicable weapon with which to overthrow capitalism, but confined themselves to the ballot alone, which was touted by the reformists as the high water mark of civilization.

One of those cave prowlers, an old fossil employed by the socialist labor party to make the teachings of Engels fit the mild mannered socialist patriotism of that organization, emerged from his search with a piece written by Engels in 1895 as an introduction to Marx's Class Struggles in France, 1848-1850, in which Engels is represented to have renounced the idea of force as a "pacifist adorer of legality at any price" as Engels puts it. How this crime was committed against the veteran Engels is shown by letters written by Marx's co-worker to Karl Kautsky long before the latter turned traitor to the social revolution.

In view of the many attempts made by the betrayers of Marxian socialism to pose as the logical successors of Marx and Engels and transform the revolutionary lions into pacifist lambs, the following excerpt from Kautsky's book should prove of interest.

A. M. Simons omitted this part of the book in his American translation. In this book Kautsky renounced the claims of the revisionists before he himself turned away from Marxism. This passage from Kautsky's book refutes the claims of those who would make a babbling pacifist and a legalist mumbler out of the intellectual collaborator and founder of modern socialism, Karl Marx:

It is being attempted, among other things, to set me in opposition to Frederick Engels, who formerly indeed, so it is said, felt likewise very revolutionary, but became reasonable shortly before his death, recognized the untenableness of his revolutionary standpoint, and also acknowledged it.

Now it is correct that in 1895 Engels, in his well-known preface to Marx's Class Struggles in France, pointed out how much the conditions of the revolutionary struggle had changed in comparison with 1848. We must, in order to be victorious, have great masses behind us "who understand what is to be done," and we, the "revolutionaries," the "overthrowers," were prospering far better by legal methods than by illegal means and overthrowal. But let it not be forgotten, he meant that only for the situation of that time. Whoever will know how Engels' propositions are to be understood, must compare them with letters of Engels to which I recently referred in the Neue Zeit (XXVII., 1, p. 7). From these one learns that he protested vigorously against the appearance of being "a pacifist adorer of legality at any price." In that passage of the Neue Zeit I wrote:

"The introduction to Marx's Class Struggles is dated March 6, 1895. A few week after that the book appeared in public. I had asked Engels to let me have the copy of the introduction for publication in the Neue Zeit. Thereupon he answered me on March 25:

"Your telegram at once answered: 'With pleasure.' Per wrapper follows the text in proof with the title: Introduction to the reprint of Marx's 'The Class Struggles in France—1848-1850,' by F. E. That the contents of the copy consist of the old articles out of the 'N. Rh. Z.' ('Neue Rheinische Zeitung'), is stated in the text. My text has suffered somewhat from our Berlin friends' apprehensive doubts about the revolution bill, to which indeed I was obliged, under the circumstances, to accomodate myself."

To understand this, one must remember that the so-called revolution bill, which, in order to render more difficult the socialist propaganda, proposed severe additions to the existing laws, was on December 5, 1894, laid before the German Reichstag, which on January 14 referred it to a commission, where they deliberated upon it over three months' long. Exactly at this time the introduction of Engels was written.

How seriously Engels regarded the situation, is evident from a later passage of the same letter, where he wrote:

"An electoral reform, which brings us into parliament, I hold in Austria for absolutely certain, unless a sudden general period or reaction sets in. For such they appear to be working violently in Berlin, but there, unfortunately, they do not know, even from day to day, what they want."

Already earlier—on January 3—immediately before he set about the composition of his introduction, Engels had written to me:

"You are having, so it seems, a right lively year in Germany. If Herr Von Koller so continues, nothing is impossible: Conflict, dissolution, coup d'etat. Of course, they will also put up with less. The junkers would be quite satisfied with augumented presents, but in order to obtain these, they will appeal to certain appetites of personal ambition, must to a certain extent give way to these wherever the factors of the opposition then come into play, and then enters into play the contingency, which is called the involuntary, the incalculable. In order to make sure of the presents, one must threaten with conflict—has it gone one step further, then the original object—the presents—becomes a secondary matter; then stands crown against reichstag, bend or break, then can it become merry. I am just reading Gardiner's 'Personal Government of Charles I.'; things often agree to the point of absurdity with the Germany of today. Thus the arguments in respect of the immunity of the acts committed in parliament. Were Germany a romance land, so would the revolutionary conflict be inevitable, but so—we don't know nothing for certain, as Tollymeier (Schorlemer) says."

Thus grave and fraught with conflict did Engels regard the situation at that time when the revisionists make him proclaim, that the era of unconditional legal and peaceful development has dawned and is forever assured; the era of revolutions lies behind us.

But when the Vorwarts, in order indeed to influence favorably the commission's deliberations over the revolution bill, put together and published some pieces of the introduction in a way that, taken by themselves alone, they conveyed the impression which, according to the subsequent assertions of the revisionists, was intended by Engels, then the latter flared up in hot anger. In a letter of April 1, he wrote:

"To my astonishment I see today in the Vorwarts an extract from my introduction, printed without my previous knowledge and rigged up in such a way that I stand forth as a pacifist adorer of legality quand meme (at any price). So much dearer to me it is, that the whole is now appearing in the Neue Zeit, in order that this disgraceful impression may be effaced. I shall speak my mind to Liebknecht about it very decidedly, and also to those, whoever they be, who have given him this opportunity to distort my meaning."

He did not suspect that soon afterwards intimate friends, who above all were called upon to protect his views from distortions, were to come to the opinion that this distorted view had been his real one, and that what to him seemed disgraceful, signified the most glorious achievemetn of his life; the revolutionary fighter had ended as "pacifist adorer of legality at any price."

Should these arguments not suffice to mark the standpoint of Engels towards revolution, then let us refer to another article, upon "Socialism in Germany," which, in 1892, but a few years before the introduction to Marx's Class Struggles, he published in the Neue Zeit. There he wrote:

"How often have not the bourgeois expected of us, that we should renounce under all circumstances the use of revolutionary methods and remain within legal limits, now that, the exceptional law having fallen, the common law is again restored for all, for the socialists also! Unfortunately we are not in the position to do the Messrs. Bourgeois this favor. Which, however, does not hinder that at this moment it is not we whom 'legality destroys.' On the contrary, it is working excellently for us, so that we should be foolish did we violate it, so long as things proceed thus. Much nearer lies the question, whether it is not precisely the bourgeois and their government which will violate law and status, in order to crush us by force? We will wait for that. Meanwhile: 'Shoot first, if you please Messrs. Bourgeois.'

"No doubt they will shoot first. One fine morning the German bourgeois and their government will grow tired of watching with folded arms the spring tide of socialism flowing over everything; they will seek refuge in illegality, in the act of violence. What will it avail? Force can smother a small sect in circumscribed area; but the power is yet to be discovered which is able to root out a party of over two or three million men, spread over a great empire. The momentarily superior power of the counter-revolution can postpone the triumph of socialism, perhaps for some years, but only in order that it may then become so much the more complete and final.

FOREST OF BANNERS.

By JOHN LASSEN

(Translated by Simon Felshin)

POVERTY is displaying its tatters and now the tatters are fluttering in the wind.
The sun glides with sparkling lustre over the tatters,
The wind turns up their red, yellow and blue colors:
Like a forest of banners they sway in the wind:
The workman's overalls, the little child's blue dress bleached from much washing, tattered stockings and sheets which are really only patch upon patch; torn union-suits are hanging here and khaki colored shirts, blood-red and dank blue handkerchiefs, decorated with white dots.
Oh, how many patches, how many patches! I am not lying, I say in all seriousness, that there are more patches than clothes.
And they are fluttering in the wind like war-tattered flags.
And that is what they are.
Work is a battlefield. An immense battlefield.
The shirts, the overalls, the union suits, the handkerchiefs and socks back from there mutilated . . .
And now they are fluttering in the wind.
An unemployed worker sets the phonograph to grumbling.
The machines whirr in the work-room. Under the low ceiling the air grows thick and envelopes the workers.
Only a tiny strip can be seen of the far, far sky.
How good it is that the wash is fluttering out in the yard.
Thus you learn that at least outside there is air, and you see that the sun pours out its radiance with a sparkling freshness of spring. You learn that . . .
For poverty is displaying its tatters.

"Mammonart" by Upton Sinclair

(A Review)
By A. G. BOSSE.

"MAMMONART" is a scientific expedition into hitherto unexplored regions. It attempts to prove that all art, and especially literature, is propaganda. In Sinclair's words, ". . . from the dawn of human history, the path to honor and success in the arts has been thru the service and glorification of the ruling classes; entertaining them, making them pleasant to themselves, and teaching their subjects and slaves to stand in awe of them." For a believer in this materialistic conception of history the mere statement of the case in these terms enjoins belief.

More narrowly stated the purpose of the book is; first, to show how artists have made their living, from whom, and what they had to do for it, briefly, the economics of art; secondly, to kill some of the "art lies" now prevalent, such as art for art's sake, art for the few only, art as unmoral, as entertainment, as non-propagandist, and art as tradition, chained to the methods and themes of the "masters." Sinclair more than proves his contentions, and covers the high peaks in the world's literature, art, and music in the process. Curiously enuf, he does not touch upon any living artists, perhaps due to lack of space, perhaps because he believes with Shaw that concerning the living one should speak no evil. Yet therein he would not be himself. However. Trotsky (Literature and Revolution") has handled contemporary currents in literature beautifully, and altho his writers are Russian, still their schools and theories exist everywhere. Kliuev, Yessenin, Pilnyak, and Biely are simply the Andersons, Lowells, Barbusses, Conan Doyles of Western Europe and America.

A clever device which Sinclair uses again and again is that of starting with a quotation from one of his books, and shading off into quotations from Juvenal, Balzac, Moliere, etc., to show that "great" writers said just as "terrible" and as true things of the ruling class as he did. For the sake of those comrades who still believe that literature is sacred and the one thing immune from materialistc dialectics, I may quote one or two bits from Sinclair.

"The great poems, Shakespeare's included, are poisonous to the idea of the pride and dignity of the common people, the life-blood of democracy. The models of our literature, as we get it from other lands, ultramarine, have had their birth in courts, and basked and grown in castle sunshine; all smell of prince's favors." So thinks Sinclair, beg pardon, Whitman, of writers and the ruling class. "And the artists producing art will not be, as now, merely a few people selected from a small section of the nation, members of the upper classes or their hangers-on, but will consist of all those gifted members of the whole people who prove capable of, and are inclined towards artistic activity." So thinks Upton Tolstoy of the art of the future. And when Sinclair berates the world's greatest painters, such as Raphael: "What is esthetics? The art of praising or belittling works of art. What works of art must be praised? Those that glorify the upper classes. Therefore Raphael and Michaelangelo are the most famous artists, for they glorified the religious falsehoods of the upper classes. Shakespeare magnified kings, and Goethe magnified himself, the writer of the upper classes. But how about other works or art? There must not be others." So does a writer of the working class regard artists. And Strindberg knew his fellow craftsmen. A few other of Sinclair's arguments might be quoted from Brandes, Shaw, Heine, Chatterton, Thompson, Nietzsche, Spencer, Johnson, Ruskin. (See the section on The Poet in his "Cry for Justice.")

One more quotation for those Communists who are devout disciples of Marx and Lenin till it comes to art and literature. For them I have a word. "In a society which maintains itself by the power of money, and where the mass of the workers lack the necessities of life, there is no real liberty. Are you free in relation to your bourgeois publisher, my writer friend? Again, are you free in relation to your bourgeois public, which demands from you pornography and prostitution as a supplement to 'sacred dramatic art'? . . . The freedom of the bourgeois writer, or artist, or actress, is a mask of independence concealing a real dependence on the money of parasites and souteneurs" (those who "keep" them) . . . We socialists tear aside this hypocrisy and unmask their false standards, not to arrive at a literature 'above class' (that will be possible only in a socialist society, in a society without classes), but to oppose to this so-called free literature, which is really allied with the bourgeoisie, a literature bound openly to the proletariat." So wrote Lenin in 1905, and those who see the truth in it, must likewise believe the thesis which Sinclair sets forth to prove.

Sinclair begins with the art of the caveman, and ends with Anatole France. His hypothetical placing of the savage artist makes an interesting addition to Bogdanoff's theory of primitive tribal Communism. His treatment of biblical literature is original, and he carefully points out the dual propaganda of the bible, in some books the worship of kings and priests, and in others, the advocacy of their overthrow. He contrasts allegorically ancient and modern times, and is very fair in his treatment of the difficult (for a socialist partyite) subject of Russia: "If he is shocked by stories he has read about the Cheka and its torturing of prisoners, I invite him to consult Lea's 'History of the Spanish Inquisition' . . . it is safe to assert that for every human life sacrificed by the Soviet revolution in Russia, a hundred thousand lives have been taken in the name of the gentle and lowly Jesus."

One finds the book extremely interesting from the point of view of statistics and generalizations. Unconsciously almost one tends to classify and group the artists treated. A rough draft which I drew up is as follows:

Artists of beauty and those of power is one classification Sinclair mentions. By the first he means the art produced for a ruling class firmly established, wishing to be entertained, and desirous of restful, flattering, serene art, well matured, and well manured, technically perfect. Such art is produced by leisure-class artists or poor hangers-on who sell themselves. Examples of these are, (to choose but a few, tho he deals in detail with at least thirty), Sophocles, Aristophanes, Virgil, Gothe, Shakespeare, Raphael, Boccacio, Racine, Balzac, James, Twain, Conrad. The artist of power is one of the class struggling for control, urging on to action, stressing substance rather than form. Instances of this type are, to name but a few of the dozens mentioned, Euripides, Juvenal, Moliere, Beethoven, Schiller, Milton, Burns, Heine, Michaelangelo, Shelly, Dante, Voltaire, Hugo, Isben, Tolstoy, Swift, Verhaeren, Crane, London, Whitman. Many, like Wagner, who helped build barricades in the streets of Dresden, sold out, and their art declined. Wordsworth, Southey, Corneille, Coleridge are some examples of the same thing. A few, like Byron, turned from leisure-class refinements to revolution. Some admired rebels, but dared not revolt: Mark Twain is the most pitiful example of this, and O. Henry is another. Others actually fought in revolutions, and turned their art to the cause of revolution; Milton, Dante, Michaelangelo, Byron, Hugo. Shelley was a revolutionist, ideologically, and Keats, potentially. It is tragic to see how idle, vain daughters of the ruling class ruined the lives of Beethoven, Heine (who was driven to syphilis), Neitzsche, Keats, and innumerable others.

The mass of facts, interestingly interpreted, with which Sinclair buttresses his arguments, makes the book fascinating. It is worth looking into the relation between Wordsworth as the seducer and deserter of a young French girl, and as a paragon of piety and an arch-enemy of French immorality and revolution; or the connection between Bernhardt as the mistress of Edward VII and as the "great" actress of the bourgeoisie; or between the catholic "expurgation" of the Decameron and the church as the pure arm of feudal and bourgeois reaction; or between Shelley's advocacy of free love and revolution, and the literarians' sabotage of his really vital work; or between Raphael's mistresses and his madonnas. It might also profit us to compare the poetry of Dryden with the propaganda of Byron. The former soothes a pockmarked patron:

> "Each little dimple has a tear in it,
> To wail the fault its rising did commit."

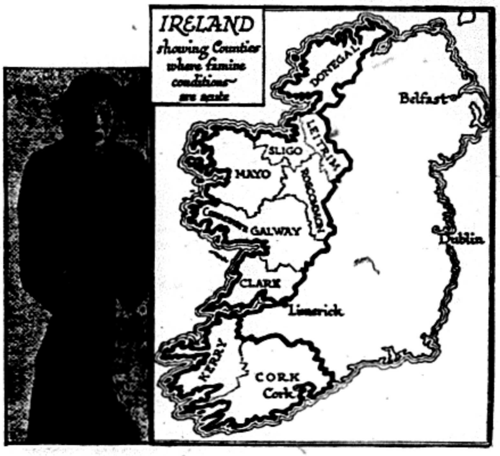
Byron urges on to revolt an oppressed race:

> "Hereditary bondsmen! know ye not
> Who would be free themselves must strike the blow?
> By their right arms the conquest must be wrought?"

The last quotation is disqualified as poetry by the academicians because, perhaps, it sounds too much like Marx's battlecry. When the reactionary artists have become mere names in mouldy tomes, the rebels will still inspire and vitalize. Only a few weeks ago, Heine's "Silesian Weavers" was dramatized by the Young Workers at Madison Square Garden.

In any pioneer work there are bound to occur some things that displease. In "Mammonart," I found a few. Sinclair's social(ist)-patriotism crops out on page 83. His concessions to the bourgeois liberal (Mrs. Ogi), become irritating, his apologies annoying. His choice of Bierce, Meredith, Davis, Ward, Thackeray, rather than of a da Vinci, Tschaikovsky, Chaucer, Butler, Gorki, or others is a bit puzzling, unless one explains it on the supposition that they were particularly vulnerable. However, I realize the unfairness of criticizing "absentee" subjects, and of complaining because an author did not write his book as I wanted him to. I shall leave it to the liberals to condemn "Mammonart" because he speaks of Wagner as still living, or because he defines propaganda from the Standard dictionary rather than from Webster. The most interesting thing about "Mammonart" will be the squeels in the reactionary and liberal press. And the hardest slams will be at the last chapter, "A Text-book for Russia" because there he appeals for action, not merely for passive agreement. He has found the same fault with art that Marx found with philosophy: "Philosophers have only interpreted the world differently, but the point is to change it." But the greatest menace in the book is the promise of another, dealing with contemporary art, and the guardians of the status quo will move heaven and earth to ward it off by "killing" this one.

The Irish Famine District



Both Fuel and Food Is Needed Here.

Chicago

By SIMON FELSHIN

This is a world city
If you go by statistics.
But look at its drabness.
Bits of light in places,
No relief from the flatness.

Here is the rooming house district.
Plenty of women to be had
At all prices—
Chicago has an extra big quota.
Cheap cabarats open all night,
And plenty of booze.
Pawnshops and Greek restaurants.
The races of the world are here,
And the prostitutes are impartial.

Rivers carry lake boats through the city.
Seagulls come from the Lakes.
Ships go to the Lakes.
The bridges collapse before the ships.
Then they are resurrected,
And the process begins over again.

Here is a factory district,
Through the smoke
Look massive blocks.
Trains cut through them,
And under the bridges.
That monster is a grain elevator,
That other holds coal—
Strange shapes.

There is strength here,
And even symmetry.
But look at the dinginess around
Where the poor live.
Rubbish in the alleys,
And swarms of rats at night.

How can they tolerate
That stench from the Stockyards
Spreading over the city?

It is a drab city
With hardly a relief.
Bits of light in places,
And darkness all around.
This is no world city,
Unless you go by statistics.

INTERNATIONAL NOTES

Germany's Communist Candidate.

BERLIN.—Comrade Ernest Thaelmann, the presidential candidate of the German Communist Party, was born on April 16, 1886, in Hamburg. At an early age he began his revolutionary activities, entering the social-democratic party at 16 and the Transport Workers' Union, of which he is still a member, at 18. At first he worked as a docker, then as a sailor and finally as a transport worker. Even after he had entered military service he kept up his work both in the union and in the party, and was denounced to the military authorities as a red by informers. After his military service was ended, Thaelmann was for a number of years a member of the Hamburg Committee of the Transport Workers' Union, and delegate to the Hamburg Trades Council; in the party, in addition to his local activity, he held the position of delegate to the national organization.

Because of his knowledge of various trades, and with the purpose of detaching him from the political activity in which he was very definitely felt to be a force to be reckoned with, Thaelmann was offered the post of manager of a large Hamburg concern, on condition that he would abandon his political and trade union work. He refused the "honor"—and thanks to Thaelmann's energetic work this same enterprise became one of the leading revolutionary strongholds of Hamburg, and 100 per cent organized.

At the outbreak of the war, Thaelmann fought bitterly against the chauvinism of the social-democratic leaders. Called to arms, he continued his revolutionary propaganda in the ranks, being finally tried by court martial for treason and thrown into prison.

After his release, Thaelmann continued the fight. Ordered by the Spartacus organization to remain and lead the left fight within the independent socialist party to which he then belonged, he carried on this work with such energy and skill that largely owing to his efforts, 95 per cent of the Hamburg section went over to the Communists.

Later, as president of the Hamburg section of the Communist Party, for many years Thaelmann led all the political and economic struggles in which the Communists participated As leader of the Communist fraction in the Hamburg town council, and later, of the Communist fraction in the reichstag. Thaelmann kept up a constant fight on behalf of the German proletariat, and ever since the Hamburg insurrection of 1923, efforts were made to have his parliamentary immunity as reichstag deputy set aside.

Thaelmann has aided tremendously in the development of the German Communist Party, and was one of the first to war on the ideology of Brandler, the leader of the right wing in the party. The magnificent organization of the "Fighters of the Red Front" is also greatly due to his efforts.

In choosing Comrade Thaelmann as red candidate in the presidential elections, the German Communist Party has done this in the knowledge that his revolutionary life, tireless effort the love that he bears the proletariat, his unshakable faith in revolutionary force are the living expression of the force, the ideological clarity and the tenacious revolutionary will of the German Communist Party.

The Halle Massacre.

The full facts of the Halle massacre, in which seven unarmed workers were killed and 40 wounded are now reaching this side.

Over 10,000 Communist workers gathered in the People's Park Hall to hear Thaelmann, the Communist presidential candidate and president of the "Fighters of the Red Front," which is strongly organized in that city. A French and an English speaker were also on the program, and the social-democratic chief of police, Runge, objected to their speaking. Three hundred armed police surrounded the hall, and as soon as the translation of the English comrade's speech began, the police lieutenant, Pietzker, leaped on the platform, flourishing his revolver, and forbade the translation to proceed. The translator continued, and Pietzker declared the meeting dissolved. A storm of protest arose. Suddenly the police opened fire. All exits save one were closely guarded, and terrible scenes ensued.

This latest move in the campaign to terrorize the German workers, and at all costs to keep them from following Communist leadership in the strikes that are breaking out in industry after industry, and from supporting the Communists in the elections, has thoroly infuriated the masses. In all the industrial centers great protest demonstrations have been held at one of which, in Berlin, the police again fired on the crowd, killing one and wounding several workers. On the day of the funeral of the Halle victims, as on the day after the shooting, tens of thousands struck work in the big shops of the city. An immense crowd, bearing hundreds of red banners, accompanied the red-draped coffins to the cemetery. At the head marched the "Fighters of the Red Front" of Halle, and the Young Communists.

The Halle Federation of Shop Committees met to discuss the situation passing resolutions censuring the Halle social-democratic paper for coming out in defense of the police chief Runge, and demanding his immediate recall, the arrest of Pietzkner, an investigation participated in by representatives of the shop committees and, finally, that in future the police should keep away from all workers meetings.

The Communist fractions in the reichstag and the Prussian landtag demanded that measures be taken against all officials connected with the massacre; and that the state pay compensation to the families of the victims, and the funeral expenses. The dismissal of the social-democratic chief of police, Runge, has already been forced thru.

Dissolve Youth Union.

BERLIN—The bureaucracy of the A. D. G. B. (All German Federation of Trade Unions) has at last carried thru its scheme to liquidate the militant trade union of the youth of Breslau, because it dared to pass resolutions calling for struggle for the realization of the demands of the young workers.

It is a second Gotha. It will be recalled that the A. D. G. B. arbitrarily dissolved the local union of Gotha, which laid down the demands which became the basic program of the revolutionary trade unionists of Germany. The only difference consists in the fact that this time the great majority of the union of the youth of Breslau are not Communists, but belong to the opposition in the social-democratic party.

Polish Bureaucrats Sabotage Unity.

WARSAW—The Polish Trade Union Confederation has refused the invitation of the Central Federation of Trade Unions of the U. S. S. R. to send a delegation to Russia to study the economic situation of the Russian workers, on the pretext that, under existing political conditions, it "does not believe that liberty of action will be assured the delegation in the U. S. S. R."

In the course of their answer the U. S. S. R. Confederation writes as follows:

"The refusal signifies that the Polish Trade Union Confederation has refused rapproachment with the Russian workers and trade unions. This refusal cannot take from us the right to address ourselves directly to the Polish workers, who, just as the Russian workers, desire a united front of trade unions and the friendship of the proletariat of these neighbor states. Our invitation still holds good."

Session of U. S. S. R. Executive.

TIFLIS—In accordance with the new plan for holding the sesisons of the central executive committee of th U. S. S. R. in the various constituent Soviet Republics in turn, the recent (March) session, was held in Tiflis.

M. I. Kalinin's Speech.

M. I. Kalinin, in his opening speech jointed out that the Soviet Union was founded on the equality and mutual confidence of all the nationalities included in it. To realize this equality it was necessary that not only the central authorities, but that all the local authorities and people should understand clearly the aims, activities and the methods of work of the Soviet government. Turning to the question of the peasantry, Kalinin pointed out that in the early days of the revolution, there was no special peasant problem, as both peasant and worker had been mainly concerned with assuring the triumph of the November revolution. Now, however conditions had become more settled but they had also become more complex. The government was meeting this problem among the peasants by an endeavor to improve the machinery of local Soviet government, by increasing expenditure on education, and now that the improved economic position of the country warranted it, by a reduction in taxation.

A particularly interesting report on Transcaucasia was given by M. Orakhelashvili, president of the Transcaucasian council of people's commissaries, in the course of which the reporter painted a remarkable picture of progress during the last few years. The success achieved in the restoration of the oil industry of Transcaucasia is well known. This progress is being maintained, and the Azneft is about to construct a new oil pipe line between Baku and Batum and to erect a new oil refinery. The Zangezur copper mines have also been set into operation, and already 1,500 workers are employed in them. Powerful electric stations are being built, and the leather and textile industries are being rapidly restored. It is proposed to lease the Chiatura manganese area as a concession on the usual principle of the Soviet concession policy. Fifty-five per cent of the Georgian budget is spent on education. The number of children attending school is more by 150 per cent as compared with czarist days and by 79 per cent as compared with the menshevist period. The number of teachers is now 12,000 as compared with 5,000 under the mensheviks. Similar results have been attained in Armenia and Azerbaidjan.

Electrification of U. S. S. R.

This year should conclude the first five years' program of work on electrification laid down by the commission on the electrification of Russia, set up in 1920. This program provided for the construction of the following regional stations: the Volkhovstroi, Kashira, Nizhni-Novorod, Shterov, and Kiezelov, and the completion of the Utkin-Zavod (now known as Krassny-Oktiabr) station near Leningrad. It will be remembered that it was one of Lenin's most earnest desires that the electrification of Soviet Russia should proceed as rapidly as possible, because only by the application of electricity to industry and agriculture could he visualize the real liberation of the workers.

British Miners' Unity.

LONDON.—The movement towards an alliance of workers in England's key industries is now well under way. In a recent address before the Fife miners, A. J. Cook, militant secretary of the Miners' Federation, and an energetic fighter for unity, said that the results of the meetings of the miners' executive with those of the National Union of Railroad Workers, the Transport Workers' Union, and the Engineering Unions would be fully reported to the coming miners' conference. Further meetings would take place, he said, and he was confident that, with the aid of the rank and file in every union, the movement would, in 1925, arrive at an agreement which would give to the general council of the Trades Union Congress the right and power to co-ordinate activities so that all the unions would act together.

Speaking of the effort on the part of the bosses to offset the fighting propaganda of the minority (left) movement in the unions, and, with the aid of the yellow union leaders, get the men to submit meekly to wage cuts and longer hours, Cook said:

"I notice that the prime minister is opening a revival campaign for peace and tranquility. Let Mr. Baldwin come to earth and face the present situation."

Indication of Class Struggle.

That campaign was, at any rate, an indication that there was a class struggle.

It was no use for the premier to pretend that peace was possible under present conditions. Peace was possible only with economic security.

The conservative party was fortunate, Mr. Cook declared, in having a leader who could make such a speech when there was every appearance of strife and turmoil, but the true test must be by results.

Just as the league of nations was breaking down because, thru its lack of realism, it could be nothing more than a league of nations, so the prime minister's plea for peace would not be realized because conditions governed men's actions and hungry men were angry men.

Mr. Baldwin had suggested that the miners should purchase and run a colliery.

That, at any rate, was an admission of the failure of the class to which the prime minister belonged to run the mines of the country.

It was the intention of the miners to have the whole of the mines, under public control, and they would not start with one pit at a time on the instalment system.

The miners could not forget Tonypandy and 1921. While the workers had only the weapon nature had given them to use in their defence, Mr. Baldwin's party and his class had used the army, navy and police to support the masters in every struggle against them.

Overthrow Capitalist System.

The miners would go on preparing their organization so that it would be ready to act, first, to secure wages sufficient to live, and secondly, to take control of the industries of the country, to overthrow the capitalist system and usher in a co-operative commonwealth.

"I am glad to notice," remarked Mr. Cook, "that the prime minister does know something about Marx, but I am afraid he has not studied Das Kapital, or he would have to admit that the present situation was prophesied there, and that the Marxian law of value had been proved absolutely correct in practice."

Shop Nuclei and the Communist Parties

By M. K.

THE chief organizational question with which the E. C. of the C. I. and all its sections is concerned is the reorganization of the Communist parties upon the basis of factory nuclei, the consolidation of the nuclei where they are already in existence and working and the organization and consolidation of Communist fractions in the various workers' and peasants' organizations.

What concrete results have we obtained in the reorganization of the Communist parties upon the factory nuclei? Let us consider these gains according to the individual countries.

Germany: The reorganization of the Communist Party of Germany began before the Fifth Congress. The question of the reorganization received nowhere such a thoro discussion as in the C. P. G. According to the report of the central committee of the Germany party submitted to the organizational department of the E. C. of the C. I., 1,092 factory nuclei were formed up to August 1, 1924. At the present time this number is much higher. The factory nuclei carry out all the functions of the lower party organs in the workshops. They occupy themselves not merely with general party questions but also with the needs of the workers in the respective factories. They attempt to take over the leadership of the struggle against the exploiters and in this way to win the sympathy of the masses of the workers. The fact that the recent terror elections brot such comparatively good results for the German party must be ascribed to the work of the factory nuclei.

830 factory nuclei in Germany have their own newspaper (Today this number is still greater). The extent to which the idea of factory newspapers has been adopted in Germany is shown by the following facts: there are two police and one military nuclei papers issued (the latter is of course strictly illegal). Almost all nuclei papers in Germany are printed. The material for them is supplied by the workers themselves. The circulation of these papers is continually increasing. The managers and foremen of factories search for the editors of these papers energetically, and if they discover them immediate dismissal follows. The social democrats and even the fascists have recognized the great importance of the factory newspapers and here and there they themselves have undertaken the issue of such papers.

The largest factory nuclei endeavor to get in touch with nuclei of the Russian Communist Party, in similar factories and to carry on an exchange of letters with them.

Those Communists who do not work in factories (domestic servants, porters and the like), are organized in street nuclei. The main share of the party work, however, is already concentrated in the factory nuclei. The Young Communist League of Germany has already carried out the reorganization upon the factory nuclei basis in Berlin, in Thuringia, in the Ruhr district, in Cologne and in Halle-Merseburg. There are approximately 600 nuclei. These factory nuclei of the youth also issue their papers which are for the most part hectographed. There are over a hundred of such papers.

France: Since the Fifth World Congress the C. P. has achieved great success in the reorganization upon the factory nuclei basis. In the Paris district is has been carried out completely, the former "sections" no longer exist and all comrades are organized in the factory nuclei. The territorial nuclei have been almost completely abolished in the Paris district. In this district there are over 500 factory nuclei and 30 sub-districts. In the north there are 80 factory nuclei functioning. In other parts of France the reorganization has been similarly taken in hand. Thanks to the factory nuclei, the party work has been considerably enlivened. All nuclei members are drawn into the work. Contact with the non-party masses is being established. Thanks to these circumstances the French C. P. has won 3,000 new members since the Fifth Congress.

The French factory nuclei have also commenced to issue their own factory papers. In the organizational department of the E. C. of the C. I. there are approximately 80 different factory nuclei newspapers from Paris. In the north there are about ten factory newspapers issued. It must, however, be remarked that the French papers are behind the German in many respects. They are edited mechanically and often contain no notice whatever of the life in the shops. The workers take very little part in the production of these papers, but nevertheless, the work is going forward.

Czecho-Slovakia: Altho the question of reorganizing the C. P. on the basis of the factory nuclei was energetically discussed even before the Fifth Congress, actual nuclei were formed only in Bratislavia and in Reichenberg.

The decisions of the Fifth Congress spurred the C. P. to greater activity in this direction. The discussion inside the party which commenced after the Fifth Congress, gave the question of the factory nuclei a great impetus. The party conference adopted new statutes on a Bolshevik basis (factory nuclei as basis of the party, the activity of all members, democratic centralism etc.) Naturally. we are still very far from a complete reorganization of the party on the basis of these statutes. According to the information of the Rude Pravo there are already a few hundred factory nuclei in existence. According to the decision of the central committee of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia, the reorganization upon the new basis must be completed by May 1, 1925. Up to the moment only one newspaper has appeared from these nuclei. Even for this the workers of the particular factory have apparently made very little contribution.

Italy: The reorganization of the party is being carried out under illegal conditions. Therefore, it was not possible to achieve such success in the time as in France. However, even here considerable success has been achieved. In Turin the formation of factory nuclei was commenced before the Fifth Congress and this work furthered the influx of new party members, at the same time the number of members in other towns permanently decreased. After the Fifth Congress the formation of factory nuclei was undertaken all over Italy. At the present time there are 40 factory nuclei in Milan with 450 members. The entire organization in Milan has a thousand members. Approximately half of the membership is organized in street nuclei. The Italian factory nuclei are somewhat different from the street nuclei in other countries for not merely are they composed of party members, but also of sympathizers. This looser form in the Italian nuclei hinders them without doubt in their efforts to become real Bolshevik party nuclei. However, the factory nuclei carry on a far greater activity than that of the old "groups." Thanks to the revival of the work of the C. P. I. and the general strengthening of the anti-fascist movement, the membership of the party has doubled itself in the last few months and has now reached 25,000.

Great Britain: The C. P. G.B. is directing great attention to the reorganization of the party upon the factory nuclei. The formation of nuclei is made very difficult by the numerical weakness of the party. Despite this however, there are 17 factory nuclei in existence in Great Britain. A plan for the reorganization of the whole party has been drafted.

U. S. A: A great discussion is taking place in the Workers Party of America upon the question of the reorganization upon the basis of the factory nuclei. The reorganization meets with great difficulties on account of the various nationalities among the American workers, and on account of the fact that the immigrants can oftentimes not understand the English language and because of the numerical weakness of the American Party. At the moment the party actually represents a federation of national sections loosely bound together in which the immigrants are dominant. In consequence of this the reorganization must be proceeded with very carefully. The organizational department of the E. C. of the C. I. is of the opinion that the national sections must be maintained, their functions must however be confined to agitation and propaganda work amongst the workers of their particular nationality. The chief political work and the party work in general must go thru the factory nuclei which must organize all Communists of a particular factory without distinction of nationality. Despite hindrances there are already a few factory nuclei in the United States. The Young Workers' League is already almost completely reorganized on the basis of factory nuclei. (This is inaccurate, but the Y. W. L. is working hard to this end.—Ed. Note.)

Scandinavia: 1. Norway: The Norwegian Workers' Party, from which the Communist Party of Norway originated, was built up upon the basis of collective membership of the trade unions and individual membership was quite unknown. Whole trade union sections have affiliated to it. This circumstance in reality placed the trade unions above the party and was not able to promote the development of the actvity of the party members. Therefore, the first task of the C. P. consisted in carrying out the change from collective to individual membership. This has already been practically carried out. Work is now proceeding for the formation of factory nuclei. In Oslo (Christiania) there are 38 factory nuclei organized in various districts. The party members not working in the factories are organized in street nuclei. There is also one factory nucleus paper.

2. Sweden: In Stockholm there are factory nuclei in the larger industrial centers. Under the old party leadership and up to the split there only existed upon paper. The new central committee is devoting all its attention to the carrying out of the decisions of the Fifth World Congress relating to the reorganization of the party upon the basis of factory nuclei.

The Baltic States. The Communist parties of Finland and Lithuania are, for the greater part, and the Communist Party of Esthonia, completely, built up upon the basis of the factory nuclei system. In Latvia the party of the Bolsheviks was organized upon the basis of the factory nuclei, in independent Latvia, however, the factory nuclei disappeared in consequence of the lack of large-scale industry. They are now being organized afresh.

Poland: There were factory nuclei in the old Polish social democracy and also in the Russia Social Democratic Workers Party (Bolsheviki.) However, under the old leadership of the C. P. of Poland the skeleton of the party—the factory nuclei—completely disappeared in many districts and in their place came the loosely organized and not very active "free" circles, to which not only party members but also sympathizers belonged. Unfortunately, the new leadership of the C. P. which devoted all its forces to the overcoming of the opportunistic deviations in the party, does not pay sufficient attention to the reorganization of the party upon the factory nuclei basis. The Young Communist League of Poland has achieved much greater success in this connection. The "free circles" and the few women's circles have been completely liquidated. The factory nuclei of the Y. C. L. of Poland shows great activity.

Austria: The Communist Party is weak and it is continually torn by fractional struggles. According to the reports submitted to the organizational department of the E. C. of the C. I. there are six factory nuclei in Vienna, including one in the Warchalowski locomotive works with 600 members.

The Balkans: Bulgaria: The C. P. quickly adapted itself to the new conditions of work, the conditions caused by the fascist terror and the complete illegality. The organization of the party on the basis of factory nuclei is in process but has not yet ended. The party members not working in the factories are organized in territorial and village nuclei.

Jugo-Slavia, Roumania and Greece: The reorganization of the Communist parties has begun. Factory nuclei exist in all these countries.

From this short survey we can see that the reorganization of the Communist parties upon the basis of factory nuclei is still in its opening stage. At the same time the endeavor is being made to utilize all party members in the activity. In this connection, as we have seen, certain results have been obtained, but much work still confronts us. We know what great efforts this cost in the Russian Communist Party. It will cost still greater energy in the west and in America, but nevertheless this work has begun and is proceeding, if only slowly, forwards.

Social-Democracy Strips Itself Naked

THIS is the last instalment of the exposure of the treason of the German social-democracy contained in their own testimony—speeches and letters.

TWO crowning acts of betrayal are shown in these brief documents: The arrest of Rosa Luxemburg and the letter of loyalty to the scion of the royal house.

OUT of their own mouths . . . .

Our Model: Noske.

HEINE: It was our whole endeavor to act as Noske acted so that all violence was prevented, with the exception of the loss of a very new officers' lives, and as Noske acted when he succeeded in saving the life of Prince Henry of Prussia." (Rote Fahne, 21 Dec.)

Heine is competent, for in his capacity as member of the state court of justice he has already imposed a hundred years of penal servitude upon workmen.

Heine: "I myself, as member of the state court of justice, am a judge, and have the right to speak there in political cases every few weeks. I know very well how pleasant a task it is to judge mildly.

"But I know equally well that the main end of justice is to protect the social order, to maintain and firmly establish the state. There can be no deviation from justice, but it is the duty of a judge to consider the political effects of a verdict." (Rote Fahne, Dec. 21.)

The Denunciation of Rosa Luxemburg by the Leaders of the German Social Democratic Party.

IN the Magdeburg Ebert case General Wriesberg declared on oath that the German S. D. P. induced the authorities, during the war, to arrest Rosa Luxemburg, The Vorwarts denies this statement, and sees in it another proof of German nationalist and Communist conspiracy.

I should thus like to call upon the editors of the Vorwarts to look up the 1916 volume of the Chemnitzer Volksstimme, edited by Noske and Heilmann. In June and July 1916 Rosa Luxemburg and I were there repeatedly accused of high treason, with the openly published substantiation that we were issuing illegal leaflets and newspapers. These denunciations on the part of Noske and Heilmann were promptly followed by the arrest of Rosa Luxemburg on 10th of July, 1906, and by my arrest about two weeks later.

If Noske and Heilmann could publish such denunciations openly for weeks, without being prevented by the committee of the S. D. P., is it not likely that the party committee itself was co-operating?

I thus await with pleasure a fresh lawsuit for libel from Messrs. Noske, Heilmann, Ebert, Wels, and by the S. D. P., and on the collaboration with the military authorities during the war.

Berlin, December 17, 1924.

Ernst Meyer.

The Letter Sent by Ebert, Bauer and David, to Prince Max of Baden.

YOUR Royal Highness!

On the occasion of the first anniversary of the memorable day which brought the German people the greatest turning point in their history, the leaders of the Reich feel themselves impelled to recall the faithful assistance rendered by your Royal Highness in those hours of world historical importance. It will then be clear to all it was just the tried and tested political leaders chosen by the people who, clearly realising the real possibilities and the lesson of a thousand years of history, though they Co. I shall then be pleased to serve them with a fresh selection of material on the denunciations spread abroad stood for the abdication of the then bearer of the crown and for the throne renunciation of the crown prince in the unforgettable hours of November 8, both in the interfractional committee and in other places, none the less.

stood just as energetically for the retention of the monarchy and for the regency of the Kaiser's grandson.

Your Royal Highness is aware, as nobody else is aware, that neither you nor the representatives of the people are to blame for the unexpected catastrophes into which our suffering people has been plunged, the revolution and the republic.

As an outward sign of gratefulness and recognition for the great services rendered by your Royal highness to the people and the Fatherland at that critical period, a special session of the Reich government, held this morning, resolved to abandon the previous decision of expropriating Mainau Castle for people's welfare purposes, and to present this magnificent ancestral seat of your family to you as your permanent and unassailable property.

San Carlo Singers Render Carmen in English with Success

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

Exactly fifty years and twenty-seven days after Bizet's Carmen was first performed the San Carlo Opera company put it on at the Auditorium theater. This fiftieth anniversary performance, which took place last Wednesday afternoon, was a notable one in several ways. It was performed with a cast mainly of Chicago people. It was sung in English; the first time that Charles Henry Meltzer's translation has been sung here. And it brot out a consummate Carmen.

No columns of complex raving can do justice to Lorna Doone Jackson's interpretation of the name part. It was magnificent, masterful, ideal.

Only two other performances, however, were really good. Herbert Gould, as Zuniga, the dragoon captain, looked a little like the sergeant of police in "The Pirates of Penzance," but he has dramatic ability, voice, and one could understand every word he sang, which distinguishes his performance from all the others. The Pavley and Oukrainsky ballet did some excellent and spirited work in the first part of the fouth act.

Charles Hart as Don Jose was adequate vocally but not dramatically Joseph Interrante, as the toreador was a flivver in every way. His rendition of the world's most famous tune had about as much of the spirit of joy in it as an obituary notice.

This matter of singing opera in English is a significant and excellent manifestation. It requires a number of things all of which make the performance more difficult. First it requires a good translation of the libretto. Second it requires singers trained to sing the English language well, and most opera singers are not trained to sing the language at all Its advantages are obvious.

The San Carlo had an A1 translation. Meltzer has done an excellent job, and has not hesitated to use familiar, simple American words. Of the enunciation of the singers not so much can be said. One could understand most of what Miss Jackson, Mr. Hart, and Miss Kargau, (who sang an attractive interpretation of the role of Micaela) had to say. Mr Interrante, the minor principals, and the chorus one could not understand at all. Mr. Gould's work has been spoken of above. On the whole one got a pretty good idea of what was going on on the stage and was not stumbling in the Stygian darkness of a performance in Italian or French.

It would be superfluous for this writer to praise Carmen. But the impressions of the work recorded by a composer whose music is the direct opposite of everything Carmen stands for may be of interest. Says Tchaikovski, the master of gloom and tragedy:

". . . behold, a Frenchman comes on the scene, in whom the qualities of piquancy and pungency are not the outcome of effort and reflection, but flow from his pen in a free stream flattering the ear, but touching us also. It is as tho he said to us: 'You ask nothing great, superb or grandiose—you want something pretty here is a pretty opera' . . . I can not play the last scene without tears in my eyes; the gross rejoicings of the crowd who look on at the bull fight, and side by side with this the poignant tragedy and death of the two principal characters, pursued by an evil fate, who come to their inevitable end thru a long series of sufferings.

"I am convinced that ten years hence Carmen will be the most popular opera in the world. But one is a prophet in his own land. In Paris Carmen has had no real success." (That was in 1880 that Carmen was unsuccessful in Paris—A. C. F.)

And let us rejoice that Tschaikovski's conviction has proven a true one.

Verdi's "Aida" Is First Presentation at San Carlo Opera

The San Carlo company opened its run at the Auditorium last Monday night with Aida, the Verdi opera.

Since most of the kick of the opera occurs in scenes having nothing to do with the theme of the story it is not necessary to give that story except briefly. Rhadames, the Egyptian general, is in love with an Ethiopian slave, Aida. Rhadames captures Aida's father, who forces his daughter to get from Rhadames the secret of the tactics of the next Ethiopian campaign. Rhadames is discovered by Ramfis, the high priest in the act of escaping with Aida and her father, and the two are buried alive.

With the exception of one character, the performance was in every way satisfactory. Anna Roselle, as Aida, made a lovely picture of the slave girl, and she sang the part with much depth of interpretation and a beautiful quality of tone.

Stella de Mette, as Amneris, daughter of the Egyptian king, had a difficult role and got away with it in fine shape. Pietro de Basiola as Amonasro, Aida's father, was every inch the vengeful, excited king. He is gifted with a voice of huge volume and quality.

Gaetano Tommasini was not so good as Rhadames. He sang the part, and that was about all.

The chorus was on the pitch at times.

Miss Nemerov of the Pavley and Oukrainski ballat company put over some Egyptian dances in approved Ziegfeld style. There was some good dancing by unnamed blackface dancers, too.

Scenery and costumes are better than can be expected of a traveling company. But one episode, due to lack of personnel, fell flat. When Rhadames returns from the war he is supposed to bring with him a huge horde of prisoners, whom he turns loose. When he turned to his prisoners in this performance and told them to go, all four of 'em got up and went.

Fulgenzio Guerrieri was the conductor and a good one. He uses neither baton or score, often not beating time at all, but expressing the melodic line by means of unconventional gestures. And he gets the results.

Two Great Jewish Theaters in Moscow

By MICHAEL GOLD.

AMONG many of the American intelligentsia it is a common belief that the Soviet revolution has killed all art and culture in Russia. This charge has been repeated so often that even friends of Russia credit it with some truth.

But it is not true; it is merely another of those strange, malicious slanders that have been so freely circulated to give Russia a bad name. Time will disprove this mean lie, as it has disproved so many other lies about Russia. Time will show that the revolution was not a destruction of culture, but the great renaissance of a nation and a world.

In ten years artists and students from all over the world will be thronging to Russia just as in the middle ages young intellectual Englishmen and Germans, like John Milton and Erasmus, went to Italy, for new ideas. Russia will be the world's fountainhead of all free and bold modern thot during the next few decades.

There are Jews all over the world, for instance, and they have powerful communities in New York, London Paris and Berlin. I have been in all these cities, and have seen the Jewish life in them, but in my judgment the heart of Jewish culture and art exists today in Moscow.

The two greatest Jewish theaters in the world are now playing in Moscow They are the Jewish Kamerny theater and the Gabima theater. Of them one cannot write calmly—they are a revelation to a student of stage-craft. They are marvellous laboratories of the theater, and they are also the finest blooming of the long-suppressed Jewish race-spirit.

The Gabima theater gives productions in classic Hebrew, the only theater of its kind in the world. I saw the two plays in its repertoire, namely: Gadybuk, and the Eternal Jew, by David Pinski.

The Gadybuk is one of the standard pieces of the Jewish stage and has been given many times in America. But it has never been given with the genius with which it has been clothed at the Gabima in Moscow. There it becomes a rich, glamorous epic of the Jewish folk, a blend of Jewish poetry mysticism, music, melancholy and dancing as well as benighted Jewish superstition and bigotry.

Vahtangov, a young Armenian regisseur of the Moscow Art theater who died a few days ago, was the director of both pieces played at the Gabima. He was one of the great regisseurs of Russia and even tho he was not a Jew, his Semitic blood gave him an instinctive understanding of Jewish life that makes his productions as authentic as if they had been born in the mind of a native of Palestine.

The Gabima is the spiritual center around which a great deal of mystic Jewish Zionism and nationalism revolves in Moscow. I am not an adherent of Jewish nationalistic mysticism, any more than I can yield myself to the Irish national mystics like Yeats, or the catholic mystics of the stage like Claudel. These mystics write nobly of infinity, god, the soul, the cosmos, but when one goes under the purple and gold of their imagery one finds the skeleton of the same 100 per cent patriotism and nationalism that has plunged the world into so many ugly, bloody wars. To grow mystical over one's nation or one's race is to join hands with the ku klux klan of one's nation and race.

One cannot apply a political test to the Gabima, however. It is a great art theater, and a poet and artist finds himself ravished by the beauty of its perfect performances. About one-third of the audience at the Gabima is made up of Russians who do not understand Hebrew, but who come to this temple of pure, noble art, out of devotion to the spirit of great art.

The Jewish Kamerny is no less a theater of genius than the Gabima, but it is more in the main stream of modern life. It is not slow and stately and majestic with the biblican grandeur of the Gabima; it is swift, satirical, full of energy, boldness, youth, laughter—the spirit, not of the bible, but of young Communism.

The Jewish Kamerny, under the direction of another great regisseur, Granovsky, has fused many of the tendencies of the new Russian theater into a synthesis that is something so new that it is almost impossible to write about. It must be seen and heard to be understood. I despair of making it clear, it would be like trying to tell anyone that the greatest living singer could be heard in Russia, if Chaliapin had not come to America to convince skeptics that he really was the world's greatest singer. The Jewish Kamerny will soon visit America, too; and perhaps will convince skeptics here more than any words of mine.

I saw three productions of the Jewish Kamerny; Goldfadden's old play, The Witch, and a play called "200,000," and a group of one-act parodies on the methods of other Jewish theaters. Of these plays I thot The Witch the finest.

The Witch has been often given at Jewish theaters in America, but in Moscow it was not the sentimental tale of the poor little silly orphan girl over which so many Jewish matrons have shed their plentiful tears All the vulgar sentimentality and cheap music-hall hokum has been eliminated from the piece; only the fantasy and humanity of the story have remained.

The production cannot be compared to anything we have yet seen in America. The Moscow Art theater and Balieff's Chauve Souris are not fair samples of modern Russian theatrical art. They are remnants of the old; in Russia the Moscow Art theater is regarded by the younger men as a sort of museum, where ancient modes of acting and scenery are presented by old people who have learned nothing since the nineteenth century.

The Jewish Art theater models itself on this old school of photographic art, and therefore its performance of Goldfadden's Witch that I saw in New York was as unoriginal and dull as a play mounted by Belasco.

At the Jewish Kamerny in Moscow however, the play has been made into a theatrical symphony. Everything is in the key of young, vigorous fantasy. The costumes, the scenery, with its planes and levels the dancing, the singing, the speech, the gestures, all have been planned and harmonized. Nothing is left to chance; each move on the stage, every word uttered, is as skilfully planned in advance as a ballet is planned.

Granovsky's ideal has been the synthetic theater of which Gordon Craig and other aesthetes have dreamed. He has achieved the synthetic theater; a theatre where word, movement, music, gesture and dance are woven into a unity from which one cannot eliminate anything; not the gesture of a hand.

Only in very technical terms could one convey the great work of Granovsky. I prefer not to attempt a description, but to let the Jewish Kamerny speak for itself when it comes here. All I can do is prophesy that it will create a revolution in the minds of the younger American dramatists, actors and musicians. Many of them have been feeling their clumsy way toward work like this; and the performances of the Jewish Kamerny will give them a clear picture of what they have wanted in the theater. It will start a new epoch on the American stage.

DANCE FOR BENEFIT OF WHITE RUSSIAN PRISONERS IN POLAND

The Workers' Home, together with the White Russian Peoples' Society will give a concert and dance this Sunday, April 5, at Schoenhofen Hall, corner Milwaukee and Ashland avenues, for the benefit of the political prisoners in Poland. Many of the White Russians who are fighting for the liberation of the territory forcibly annexed by Poland and which is in fact part of the Soviet Republic of White Russia, are suffering in the jails of Poland. Only a few days ago, the capitalist press reported how two of such prisoners who were on their way to be exchanged for Polish prisoners in Soviet Russia, were shot down by the Polish chief of police.

All who are in sympathy with the liberation movement in Poland are invited to attend this affair and thereby help the victims of the Polish bourgeoisie. The concert will start at 4 p. m.

The Little Red Library

The first two numbers of this little pocket-size library, destined to become the most popular of any working class publications ever issued in this country, are now being sold by all Daily Workers Agents thruout the country.

No. 1
Trade Unions in America
By Wm. Z. Foster, James P. Cannon and Earl R. Browder
Is, with a brief statement of the American trade union movement, a history of the development of the left wing and an explanation of the structure and program of its guiding spirit—the Trade Union Educational League.

No. 2
Class Struggle vs. Class Collaboration
By Earl R. Browder
Is a splendid study of the methods of labor bureaucracy to divert the workers from militant struggle thru the B. & O. plan, insurance schemes and workers' education. A most valuable number for the thinking worker.

If you have not as yet seen a copy of this splendid little propaganda giant, and have not enjoyed the valuable reading in each, be sure to ask your local Daily Worker Agent for a copy—or a dozen copies. (They are twelve for $1.00.)

SELLING THE COMMUNIST PRESS

By H. C. FILLMORE

I have just come in after attempting to sell DAILY WORKER subs from door to door and want to record my impressions while they are still fresh. Let us begin by facing the fact that it's a real job, this haling a stranger to the door and actually selling and getting the money right away for a sub.

Bourgeois firms, selling by agent have understood this so well that almost invariably nowadays, the agent says, "you don't have to pay to-day" and "pay the postman or agent upon delivery." In present day America anyone who is at all easy to sell to, had better crawl in a hole and hide if he wants to survive. To fail to see this, to fail to understand something of the annoyances visited daily on householders, particulalrly in large cities is to fail to see life.

PERSONALLY I am rather hard-boiled and anyone who sells to me from the door step will earn his sale. The idea of this campaign is to distribute the DAILY WORKER from door to door every night for a week and then go around on Sundays and pick up the subs.

Subs may come slowly, but one does make contacts, hears the ideas of people outside the party and the experience is invaluable. We went in two's a man and a girl comrade together and took turns leading off.

ANYONE who thinks there are no classes in America and that the way you get your living, does no largely determine your ideas, your manner of living and even your facial expression ought to try this.

There we interrupt an old boy eating his dinner, nice black clothes, gold watch chain and charm, hands that have long ago lost their callouses if they ever had any, conservative written all over him and he pompously admits seeing one copy of the paper "would just as soon we didn't leave any more." He "don't think there is any call for such a publication."

WE tell him we are just tickled to death to have his opinion, that there is a growing army of workers of a different belief, that its a mighty nice spring day and then we leave him to go back to his lunch, we hoping that his appetite is spoiled.

Next we get a liberal lady, the daughter of an old time temperance physician who says her family has been reading off the orthodox track for years, says she liked some things in the paper, very kind and sympathetic, pleads stress of work, for not subscribing. Sinclair and Nearing about her calibre.

NEXT a young working girl to whom we promise to send a sample Young Worker or two. (Note, have them with you strike when the iron is hot, some other time may be no time). The member of the sheet metal workers, old 1922 strike? knew the old Weekly Worker and liked it, out of work and broke, probably we have revived interest here. He knows who owns America all right.

Then the two friends, a Russian and an Armenian—the former a reader of Novy Mir the latter illiterate, both out of work and with an idea that "American workers are 50 years behind." We say, "Not 50 of the kind of years Europe has had since 1914, our turn here is coming, read the DAILY WORKER to help prepare you for it."

THEN the maid who asks if it is a church paper and when assured that it is not, feels, confident her mistress "would not be interested."

The pleasant faced landlady who says she gave the papers to her roomers, and will ask them about it when they come in, could probably be approached herself, if we had carried something of special interest to women, I think, a pamphlet, written in simple common language, illuminating the great improvement coming to millions of such women with the advent of Communism, would be in order at such times.

MORE contacts at more houses. These are average however. We may all see one trouble, these blocks are too much mixed, these folk have different ideas because they have lived differently, maybe a first class hypnotist could hold them in conversation long enough to study them, and to come to understand them.

Perhaps this is a drawback of all large cities. One idea would be to get a block where one kind of workers were living, mine or mill or some industry where they were feeling the capitalist pinchers.

GET their stories and slap 'em in to the DAILY WORKER. the way they told them, let 'em be raw, who cares?

Of course, summing their part up in the world labor movement but make this plain, these are not yet Marxists. Then, by golly, an agent would be armed with something that had a punch to it, if the workers don't take an interest in our stuff, it's the method that's wrong. We have to "sell" Communism to the masses, the fact that we know these ideas are for their own good doesn't mean that they know it yet.

British Leaders Urge Trade Union Unity

osal for the convening of a world labor congress.

The date fixed for the meeting of our general council is February 5, 1925, and the following days.

It will be seen from the above correspondence that in the course of the six months there was (presumably as a result of the British Trade Union Congress declaration in September) a distinctly more cordial tone in the letter sent by the bureau on September 11. On the other hand, there is a perceptible stiffening of the tone in the letter of December 1. The last letter would, it seemed, definitely preclude any further move towards an entente; and postpones any further consideration to the meeting of February 5. Undoubtedly this was due to the fact that the negotiations at that time (November and December) proceeding between the British trade unions and the Russian trade unions had placed a new complexion on the situation. To these Anglo-Russian negotiations, we must now turn.

COMMUNISM ENLISTS THE WOMEN

By KARL RADEK.

A FEW years ago the well-known theatre director, Reinhardt, presented "Lysistrata" by Aristophanes, at the Deutsche Theater, the play in which the old scoffer and opponent of Athenian democracy depicts a woman's conspiracy to end the war. All Greece was tired of war and the women decided to end it by a demonstration of solidarity. What could that be? A sex strike. And this sex strike, depicted with ingenious humor, entertains the bourgeois ladies and gentlemen in an extraordinary degree. Old Aristophanes had known gifted women, Aspasia, for instance, the wife of Pericles. His Lysistrata is also represented as a clever woman. But the masses of women who follow her are depicted as pretty kittens who have no other weapon than the ability to love.

This representation does not even correspond with the role of woman in ancient times; she was a mother and mistress of the home, that is, she did a great necessary social work. But as mother and mistress of the home, she was restricted in her activity to the domestic circle, to her family, and therefore she could not engage in concentrated mass activity. Since this time the world has radically changed.

Women are working in factories, workshops and offices. The typewriter alone represents a technical revolution. Without the ridiculed lady typist the whole of modern industry and of modern trade is impossible. During the war woman's importance as a worker increased ten-fold. That is why in many countries the war with one full sweep granted suffrage to women. The war is over. Millions of women who played a revolutionary role in 1919 have retired from politics, but they could not retire to a peaceful home for this peaceful home was destroyed. Thruout Europe there is a tremendous housing crisis which is undermining the roots of the bourgeois family.

The situation of the working woman has become worse. She is the first victim of the capitalist offensive. Her wages are the first to be cut, and when a reduction of employes is made, she is the first to be thrown on to the pavement, and therefore the working women will play an increasingly greater role in the class struggle as the years go by. The bourgeoisie laughs itself sick over the idea of love as a fighting weapon, but it will learn to know of hate as the fighting weapon of the working women.

The Communist women's movement is in its first stages, and that is the best evidence of how young and weak the Communist movement in general still is. Only the movement which embraces that half of humanity, the working women, can revolutionize the world.. International Women's Day was therefore created not only to mobilize the women, but also point out to the Communist men that they are betraying their cause if they do not support the movement of the proletarian women with great fervor and with great earnestness. The winning over of the masses of working women into the Communist movement will give it an enormous offensive power. The working woman as a Communist guarantees victory even in the most difficult circumstances.

The spirit of the fighting workers in difficult situations depends on the spirit, the endurance, the energy of women, for in a difficult situation a dependent woman might cause a defeat.

Therefore, all energies to the fore in the fight for the soul of the working women.

YALE UNIVERSITY

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

TWO prohibition agents accustomed to seeing their comrades fall for a twenty or a twenty-five dollar bribe, were swept off their feet a few years ago when two bootleggers jammed a wad of bills—$4,000 in all—underneath their smelling organs on condition that they be deaf, dumb and blind so far as the load of liquor said bootleggers were unloading, was concerned. The prohibition boys were rendered unconscious by the size of the bribe and—how could they remember anything? The sequel to the tale was told before one of Chicago's judges recently. The poor fellows are now in the cooler.

* * *

THE boys admitted that they had done wrong, but "how," they pleaded to the judge, "could two Americans be expected to turn up their noses at such a respectable bribe?" The assumption is that had the bootleggers offered them a five-dollar bill, in return for looking the other way, they might have him arrested for contempt of court, less majesty or something, but could a $4,000 dollar proposition be treated except with anything but respect? But the judge had just read in the papers that Albert B. Fall, who, while secretary of the interior turned over the naval oil reserves to Doheny and Sinclair, for a couple of hundred thousand dollars was freed on a technicality, looked with scorn on the pair of pikers in front of him, and snarled, "to the can with the vile caitiffs!"

* * *

THE prohibition agents had a good argument but they didn't have the money. How could a 100 per cent American turn down his thumbs on a $4,000 bribe? He wouldn't be a one hundred percenter if he did. But the cost of Americanism is going up faster than the cost of living and perhaps His Honor thot that the two specimens in front of him were a disgrace to the tribe. They got a year in the coop and a $300 fine, the rest of the dough, probably went to the lawyers. It is likely that A. B. Fall will write of his adventures in the department of the interior. Crooks who have failed to make good, could do worse than purchase a copy, that is, if they have the price. But perhaps Fall is as good a sport as old Doheny, who used to stake his old pals, when they were down and out.

IT should not be assumed that we have any desire to gloat over moral frailty, even when exhibited by prohibition agents, evangelists and professional patriots. But the news must be commented on. Lyell L. Rader is an evangelist, so much so that he was sponsored by William Jennings Bryan. Rader, declared America's perennial presidential candidate would prove "a strong ally in rescuing science from materialism." Adrian Joyce of Cleveland, will now admit that Rader knows the "science of materialism" thoroly, at least what is vulgarly termed materialism. Rader now has $25,000 that Joyce once called his own.

* * *

AT that, Rader is away ahead of the fallen prohibition agents. One must admire ingenuity. The evangelist, knowing that the bourgeoisie are on the lookout for an opportunity to add to their wealth, informed Joyce that he had a scheme for making gas carbon black, by a process cheaper than is now generally used. In order to convince his victim, that his story was not an imaginary flight, the evangelist produced specimens al-

POLISH WORKERS PROTEST MEETING IS BIG SUCCESS

Denounced Murder Reign of White Terror

The bloody crew of executioners who now run the Polish government, were roundly denounced and their crimes against the working class exposed at a rousing protest meeting held last Friday evening, in Schoenhofen Hall, under the auspices of local Chicago of the Workers Party.

The speakers were B. K. Gebert, secretary of the Polish Federation of the Workers Party; Earl R. Browder, secretary of the Workers Party; Barney Mass, acting secretary of the Young Workers League and T. Radwanski, editor of the Polish weekly organ of the party. Comrade J. Kowalski was chairman.

Most Successful Meeting.

It was the most successful meeting on the Polish question held in Chicago for several years, and the Polish comrades are very enthusiastic over the prospects of arousing the great mass of Polish workers in Chicago to the necessity of organizing against the exploiters.

The following resolution protesting against the reign of terror now existing in Poland was passed unanimously, the few Polish fascists who tried to create trouble early in the evening having been silenced by the speeches of Comrades Gebert and Radwanski.

Denounce Polish Government.

We, the workers of the city of Chicago, gathered in protest meeting at Schoenhofen Hall, on April 4, 1925, adopt the following resolutions:

We denounce the Polish government for throwing into prison over 6,000 workers and peasants for the sole "crime" of participating in the struggle for bread and freedom.

We denounce the Polish government for their terrible persecution of these prisoners, many of whom were beaten to death, while others died while on hunger strike, or committed suicide to escape torture which was past bearing.

We denounce the Polish government for the murder of Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz, whom they shot while on their way to the Russian border to be exchanged for counter revolutionists.

MC CARTHY OPENS IRISH FAMINE TOUR IN NEW YORK

Comes Directly from Stricken District

NEW YORK, April 5.—The truth will out. Jack McCarthy is coming from the Irish famine district and will tell the workers of New York the facts about the Irish famine situation. Let the capitalist papers continue to deny that there is a famine. McCarthy will tell the workers the gruesome facts about the starvation of the Irish workers and peasants. He will tell them the causes—the exploitation by the capitalists, the ruination of the fishing industry by British fishing syndicates, to the flooding of the potato and oat fields and the impossibility of the workers and peasants getting any fuel.

The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, New York section, will hold a meeting at Central Opera House, on Wednesday, April 15, 1925, at which McCarthy will speak. Among the other speakers will be Gurley Flynn, Joseph Manley, Ben Gitlow and P. Cosgrove. Workers of New York, come to this meeting and hear the truth about the Irish famine. Show your solidarity with the starving Irish workers and peasants. Admission to the meeting is free.

AMERICAN THREAD COMPANY HAS SPEED-UP SYSTEM THAT WRECKS THE LIVES OF TEXTILE WORKERS

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., April 5.—In a recent article, the wages of the Willimantic strikers were shown to be very low, textile wages being the lowest of any industry in the country. Dressers tenders, the aristocrats of the mill, getting $32 a week before the ten per cent cut. Women workers were getting as low as $9 a week; the dyers got $24.90. Men running assembling machines $18 to $23 a week.

But this is for a full week, and the textile workers have not had regular full weeks for many years. For a whole year, from 1921 to 1922, there was

CROUCH GETS 40 YEAR SENTENCE FOR RED VIEWS

Persecute Hawaiian Soldiers for Opinions

(Special to Daily Worker.)

HONOLULU, Hawaii, April 5—Private Crouch, U. S. army supply clerk, was sentenced to forty years in prison by a general court martial for declaring his Communist views to his fellow soldiers at Schofield Barracks, near here.

Three other soldiers were given "dishonorable discharges" from the United States army.

The evidence against Private Crouch was furnished solely by an army spy, who charged that the Communists were "plotting to overthrow the government by force and violence."

A printed letterhead of the Hawaiian Communist League, giving the names of Privates Walter Trumbull Walter Nadeau, and Crouch as the executive committee of the Hawaiian Communist League, and a letter stolen from the mails by the spy, which applied for admission to the Communist International, were furnished as "evidence."

Private Crouch was charged with "preaching Communism." Walter Trumbull will face the court martial on a similar charge on Monday.

The military authorities in charge of the Schofield Barracks sent the spy among the soldiers when letters from the privates defending Soviet Russia were printed in the Honolulu Adevrtiser.

All Communism Crime.

The case is a brazen declaration of the United States army officials that the private soldiers are committing a criminal offense when they express their opinions. The generals and war department officials have talked over the radio and on public platforms denouncing the workers of Russia, and urging larger war forces but the soldiers are jailed for forty years when they dare to have personal beliefs.

The only charge against the soldiers is that they are Communists. In the eyes of the United States government, it is a crime for a soldier to be a thinking human being.

The members of the Hawaiian Communst League were arrested on March 10, and the army officials maintained the utmost secrecy about the entire affair. The full story was first printed in the DAILY WORKER.

OSCAR NELSON REBUKES 'FITZ' AT LABOR MEET

Abruptly Orders Chair to Put Question

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor had an embarrassing moment at yesterday's meeting of that body, when Oscar Nelson, ward-heeling politician and vice-president of the central labor body, interrupted the chairman in the midst of his remarks on the traction ordinance referendum, and ordered him to put the question without further comment.

The body had briefly discussed the referendum report when the incident occurred. Secretary Nockels read the report of the vote taken, which showed that out of 225 locals affiliated with the federation, only 35 sent in a report of their action on the referendum submitted to them by the central body. The committee on transportation had made an unfavorable report on the Dever ordinance and this is what was before the locals.

One of the locals voting for the Dever ordinance and against the committee's report was Local 134 of the electrical workers.

members voted for the traction scheme, but Nockels announced that only 3,000 of the 13,000 votes cast were for the Dever plan. This aroused the curiosity of the delegate from Local 134 and he asked a question. Nockels in reply stated that Local 134 pays per capita only on 1,500 members, and could not be given credit for 5,000 votes.

Told to Shut Up.

Oscar Nelson wound up the discussion from the floor and then President Fitzpatrick thot he might add something to the discussion. He stated that the two executive officers

EXPULSIONS IN SEATTLE STIR BIG PROTEST

Unions Thruout State Denounce Ruling

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SEATTLE, Wash., April 5.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor confirmed the ruling and upheld the corrupt procedure and violation of the council's constitution by John Jepsen, president of the council when Jepsen last week, at the last moment of adjournment, ruled the unseating of six Communist delegates, J. Havel, W. H. Jones, H. Price, M. Hansen, Paul Mohr and C. J. Carlson were unseated by a bare majority vote notwithstanding the fact that council's rules require two-thirds vote to unseat any delegate.

Will Prolong the Struggle.

The approval and ruling of Green to uphold Jepsen's corrupt procedure and violation of council's constitution will prolong the struggle in the local labor movement for some time and until the rights of members of the working class to represent their respective local unions regardless of their personal political opinions and convictions have been restored by the council, for the Communists, their friends and a large number of local unions' trade unionists and delegates are determined to carry on the fight

Cuban Strike Closes Big Sugar Mills, Halts Railways; Call All Workers Out Next Week

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HAVANA, Cuba, April 5.—Traffic was almost completely tied up today on the Cuba and north coast railroads as a result of the labor strike called on those roads several days ago.

Labor leaders have called a general strike for next week. It is believed that all railroads on the island as well as other industries thruout Cuba will be tied up.

The Chappara and Delicias sugar mills, two of the largest on the island, are at a standstill as a result of the strike.

The strikers are demanding higher wages.

FARRINGTON OPENS WAR ON MEMBERS

Illegally Ousts Thompson of Sub-District 4

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 5.—The new warfare of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, and Freeman Thompson, rank and file leader, president of sub-district No. 4, took an added [illegible] Thompson's defiant announcement he would continue to act as president after the Farrington state machine had declared John A. Walker elected to Thompson's post by more than 200 votes majority.

Coupled with Thompson's defiance came the sensational action of John A. Walker's own local in adopting resolutions repudiating Walker and announcing its members unanimously voted to stand with Thompson.

The resolution also branded the ouster proceedings against Thompson as "illegal" and demanded a sub-district convention April 12 definitely to settle the strife.

Thompson charged that in answer to the resolution, Farrington said he would not call a convention if every miner in the state signed the petition.

STRIKING SHOE WORKERS BRING BOSS TO TERMS

Klein Shops Agree to Pay Scale

NEW YORK, April 5.— Klein's shoe shop has agreed to the demands of the union.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The shoe repairers in New York have just rounded out a systematic organization campaign with a short and effective strike, announces Pascal Cosgrove, organizer of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union. Until recently these workers who work exposed to public gaze in the front windows of repair shops, were among the worst exploited in the city, being compelled to work 69 hours a week for the princely stipend of $25.00. Unorganized, they were helpless to win better conditions, and necessity forced them to get together.

They then presented a united front to the bosses in Klein's, the B. and B., the United, and the American Shoe repair shops for a reduction of working time to the 44-hour week with four hours more at double pay, and a ten dollar increase in wages, with full recognition of their union.

Strike Effective.

After a short struggle the smaller shops have all come to terms on this basis, but Klein's refused to have anything to do with any union and offered a five dollar increase in wages instead. This the men of course, refused, and called a strike yesterday on all Klein's shops which was one

HERRIOT FALL PREDICTED BY NEW SPLIT

New Finance Minister Is Vatican Friend

PARIS, April 5.—A wide divergence of opinion has developed in the senate over the appointment of Anatole de Monzie as minister of finance to succeed Etienne Clementel, who resigned.

The left and the democratic group composing a majority of the senate met this afternoon to discuss the question. The opposition to de Monzie is based on his attitude toward the vatican, he being in favor of establishing a French embassy there.

Other members of the group were said to be strongly opposed to a capital levy, such as Premier Herriot is said to be contemplating at the demand of the meeting, a delegation was named to confer with Herriot.

Herriot Policy

PARIS, April 5.—Premier Herriot's policy [illegible] ency [illegible] spokesman for the French foreign office.

"The Herriot government has absolutely no thought of raising money by new loans, but in a few days, when it has satisfactorily balanced the budget, the government will propose financial reform laws which will include some sort of a long maturity tax on capital," said the spokesman to newspapermen.

"The cabinet will receive the suggestions of the new finance minister, de Monzie, in regard to the vatican, with respectful attention. The French government however has no intention of sending a French ambassador to the vatican. Herriot feels that if his cabinet must fall, he prefers to have it go down on straight-forward issues rather than to side-step equivocal measures."

Reply to Germany

Herriot, it was announced, will begin this afternoon a study of the reply France is to make to Germany in regard to a peace security pact.

A new financial project will be submitted to the cabinet Sunday, Finance Minister de Monzie announced. President Doumergue will preside at the cabinet meeting Tuesday when the project will receive final approval. It then will be sent immediately to the chamber of deputies.

French Capital Levy.

PARIS, April 5.—The new French finance minister Anatole de Monzie will propose a capital levy aimed to produce 2,000,000,000 to be levied against fortunes over $10,000.

The new finance plan will not be labeled "capital levy" but like Woodrow Wilson's "voluntary conscription" act, will be called a "national conscription." Of course, if those who are expected to contribute do not do so, a fine may be inflicted on them.

Weeks Now Has Fine Excuse to Quit Post

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5.—Further improvement was noted today in the condition of Secretary of War John W. Weeks, who suffered a slight stroke Monday, causing partial paralysis.

Because of his illness it is expected that Secretary Weeks will resign his cabinet post some time before June 30.

Charles D. Hilles, republican national committeeman from New York, who is among those most prominently mentioned as likely successors to Weeks, was at the White House today, and his presence there led to reports that he has already been selected by the president to take the war portfolio.

This gives point to the recent (em yers') industrial conference board tement that the ability of industry produce more with the same or n decreased employment is one the "most encouraging signs" in re t industrial history. Encouraging whom? Evidently not to labor, for means hundreds of thousands onically unemployed. The conference board statement is a clear ex ple of the inevitable conflict of in rest between the owning and work g classes.

The gain of somewhat more than 1 r cent in employment between Jan ry and February is seasonal and rresponds closely with gains in 23 and 1924. In 1924 this gain was ll thru March. Then followed the pid descent into unemployment. Decreases in number employed and ount of payroll compared with Feb ary, 1924, are shown by the percent ge figures:

ercent decrease om Feb., 1924	Employment	Wages
ood products	5.0	4.5
extile products	2.6	2.5

Paper and printing showed an increase of 1 per cent in employment and 2.1 per cent in wages.

Decreases in employment in individual industries reflecting the ability of consumers to buy include meat packing 7.6 per cent, men's clothing 6.4 per cent, shirts and collars 5.2 per cent, millinery and lace 6.6 per cent, hardware 7.4 per cent, machine tools 11.4 per cent, cement 10.4 per cent, stamped and enameled household utensils 6.5 per cent, automobiles 16.6 per cent, electrical supplies 10.1 per cent.

Industry as a whole operated 93 per cent of full time with 83 per cent of a full normal force. It averaged about 77 per cent of capacity with production running ahead of consumption.

Students Demand Union Label for School Magazine

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 5.—The Young Workers League school nucleus has just scored an important victory in one of the leading preparatory schools of Philadelphia. The school has been publishing a literary magazine and the first thing the young comrades noticed was the capitalist ideology of the articles and absence of the union label. A school nucleus was organized and a fight started to make the magazine an expression of the young workers who attend the school. Many battles were fought over publication of working class articles, but the nucleus succeeded in putting in a number of these with the result that the magazine secured the support of the proletarian element.

The next fight was on the union label and the management refused to budge or compromise on this matter. The Communist nucleus however had the support of the vast majority of students who work in the shops during the day and has made them to understand the significance of the labor unions. An ultimatum was issued that unless the magazine was printed in a union shop the class conscious students would refuse to support it. The result was that the magazine was suspended for several months. This week the manager of the school anounced that the magazine will be issued again with a union label. For almost three months the Y. W. L. school nucleus has made the subject of labor unionism an outstanding issue in this school.

Red Baiter a Forger.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5.—Gaston B. Means, fromer right hand man of attorney general Daugherty and William Burns in their persecution of radicals was indicted for forgery by the district grand jury. Means is charged with forging senator Smith Brookhart's name to a letter to himself, commanding Means to turn his documents over to the congressional committee investigating the department of justice.

Means, who has already been convicted of conspiracy to defraud the government, and sentenced to two years by a New York court, was released on $1,000 bail.

NEW YORK CITY POLICE NOW WARRING ON UNION MEETINGS

NEW YORK, April 5.—New York City police are acting for the employers in place of hired thugs, organized labor charges and a delegation consisting of the executive committee of the Central Trades and Labor Council and two representatives of the teamsters' union are going to bring their charges directly to Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright. The teamsters complained at the Central Trades meeting that their strike meeting was interrupted by members of the "strong arm" squad of police who refused to allow the meeting to continue.

Plenty of Police Protection.

Police were at a recent meeting of the Structural Iron Workers' Local which is conducting a strike against the Iron League. Other intrusions of the police, acting as the "paid guerillas" who were formerly employed to break up strike meetings, were noted by the Central Trades body and protest against continuance of such action by the police voted.

BORAH SPOUTS PATRIOTIC BUNK IN SPEECH HERE

Hurray for America, Says Senator

Senator William E. Borah, speaking here before the Izaak Walton League at the Hotel LaSalle made a plea for one hundred per cent Americanism states rights, the payment of foreign war debts to the United States, and for keeping the constitution of the United States as it is.

Borah's speech contained not one new idea, and might have been made by Cal Coolidge, or any other politician who uses his office in the interests of big business.

The chairman of the foreign relations committee made no mention of the recognition of Soviet Russia. He spoke against an international outlook, declaring "our eyes should look inward." Borah then harked back to civil war days when he made his plea for states rights and less centralization of the government at Washington.

He decried the Teapot Dome and other governmental scandals, but declared we should entertain no thot of a change in the form of government or of the constitution.

Borah's speech was a traditional fourth of July flag waving talk, glorifying American institutions.

OSCAR NELSON REBUKES 'FITZ' AT LABOR MEET

Abruptly Orders Chair to Put Question

of the federation, Nockels and himself had kept very silent on the traction ordinance, not wishing to embarrass the rank and file perhaps. However, he wanted to explain why Nockels did not give Local 134 credit for 5,000 votes and was about to delve into a maze of figures when Nelson suddenly jumped up and asked angrily, "Mr. chairman, what is the motion before the house?"

Fitzpatrick replied that the motion was to the effect that the returns from the referendum showed that the local unions endorsed the report of the committee on transportation, which meant that they had voted against the Dever ordinance.

"In which case," said Nelson, "why not put the question instead of bringing up a lot of figures that have nothing to do with the matter, except to create confusion." Fitzpatrick was visibly embarrassed. The delegates did not know what to expect. Perhaps "Fitz" might come back in his old style and show Nelson that he was not yet the head of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Would the chairman continue to talk? Or would he "shut up" as ordered by Nelson. He shut up.

Knuckled Down.

"I will put the question," was Fitzpatrick's only comeback. He did. The committee's report was endorsed almost unanimously, but the chairman was so embarrassed that he forgot to announce the vote. Secretary Nockels reminded him of this technical requirement and he said loudly "Thank you, Brother Nockels."

Delegates whispered to each other all over the hall. What they said to each other is their secret, but those who saw Fitzpatrick battle against Nelson and the Gompersite forces in the past could not help contrast the "unhappy position" he now finds himself in with the old days when he had the radical and progressive forces behind him. Oscar Nelson evidently believes he has Fitzpatrick where he wants him and cannot resist the temptation to humiliate him publicly. This is Fitzpatrick's reward for playing the role of a red-baiter during the past two years.

DEPORTATION BILL CONDEMNED AT NEW YORK MEET

Speakers Explain Aim of Bill 11796

NEW YORK, April 5.—An enthusiastic meeting was held in New York under the auspices of the Labor Defense Council which had only one slogan "Kill the New Deportation Law."

All the speakers emphasized the significance of this new attack on the working class of the United States. "This bill is not directed against the foreign-born workers alone. It is a bill against the whole working class. This bill is not directed against the house of representatives Feb. 8 by a vote of 213 to 39 and now goes to the senate. According to its provisions any alien convicted of "criminality, physical or mental incapacity" may, if sentenced to one year's imprisonment, be immediately deported from the country.

Purpose of Law

The purpose of the law is clear. It is to bring in a division among the workers: here American-born, there alien. There are 14,000,000 aliens in this country, of whom 6,200,000 are naturalized, 1,200,000 have their papers, 4,365,000 are aliens. First is was the American workers against the foreign-born. Then it is the Jewish against the Italians; the Croation against the German, etc. etc. Then the white workers against the black.

This law will unable the capitalists to reduce the standard of living of all workers by holding over the head of the foreign-born the threat of deportation.

So why this attack on the foreign-born worker? These workers dig the mines and subways; they do the hardest work in the steel mills and iron foundries; they build the railways, wherever there is hard and difficult work to do the foreign-born workers are used.

This bill is directed particularly against the Communists—the Workers (Communist) Party. The capitalists knew that the Communists are leading the fight everywhere in the interest of the workers and poor farmers.

We shall not rest content until all deportation laws are wiped off the statute books, till all oppression of the working class has ended, till all over Europe and Asia and in the United States, too, there are established Soviet governments of the workers and farmers, on the road to Communism.

All the speakers—Comrade Baron, who acted as chairman of the meeting, Amter, Weinstone, Wexler and Dmitrishen, Zam—emphasized these points. The meeting enthusiastically adopted unanimously a resolution condemning the new deportation bill and calling on the workers to "mobilize and not cease their fight until, through their concentrated strength, the capitalists are forced to remove the bill from the statute books."

THE ku klux klan, was very much in the news up until the last presidential elections. The DAILY WORKER, has always pointed out that its leaders were as unscrupulous a bunch of crooks as ever traded on the ignorance and bigotry of the population. That charge has been amply borne out by the record of the K. K. K. since its organization. There is no crime, from rape to murder that its leaders have not been guilty of. The latest of these scoundrels to make the front page, is the former grand dragon of the "realm of Indiana" one of the wealthiest men in the state, and a large coal operator.

THIS "protector of pure womanhood" is charged with taking a girl to some place in Indiana indecently assaulting her and almost beating her to death, because she resisted. The girl took poison after the incident and may die. And this is not an isolated case. Our professional moralists are usually degenerates and our professional patriots are accomplished crooks who rob right and left under cover of the flag which they pretend to love. Prohibition agents, evangelists, patriots,—you might drop a nickel on a public park full of these fakers and feel safe in assuming that it dropped on the head of a rogue. Yet these are the vermin whose voices are loudest in arraigning the revolutionists who would put an end to the social system that breeds this corruption.

STOCK GAMBLERS TO GET BENEFIT OF DEVER STEAL

Vote on Car Bill Tomorrow

By CARL HAESSLER,
Federated Press

CHICAGO, April 5.—If the voters of Chicago approve the traction ordinance April 7 the stocks and bonds of the companies affected should reveal amazing upward leaps. Studies made by responsible financial houses of the securities involved in the $272,000,000 purchase by the city, if the referendum is favorable, show enormous discrepancies between the present market price of the stocks and bonds and the value if the city bites.

Stock Will Jump

In some cases there is a fourfold increase in value. Certain preferred stock of one of the street railway companies now quoted at 7 will be worth 28 under the adopted ordinance, the experts' figure. Certain other traction company paper will be doubled. If stock and bond gamblers could know in advance that the election will turn out favorably to the investors they would clean up tremendous profits. The straw votes show voters' opinions about equally divided.

Advocates of the scheme, like the Chicago Tribune, are having their old records thrown in their face. For example about two years ago the Tribune editorially stated that the surface lines "are headed for the junkheap. A surface line system is not a system but an obstruction." Now the Tribune favors paying $163,000,000 for the "obstruction."

Federation Against

A number of labor officials have been falsely reported as favoring the ordinance but have been unable to get redress in the papers that misquoted them. The Chicago Federation of Labor traction committee report characterized the measure as a brazen steal.

A leading streetcar corporation official assures his unperturbed stockholders that the measure provides neither municipal ownership nor operation.

NATIONAL GUARD USED TO SCAB ON UNION BANDS

Exploit Soldiers at Non-Union Pay

Competition on an unfair basis of the national guard regimental bands with union musicians will be an important issue before the annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians, according to Secretary E. A. Benkert of Local 10, Chicago. The convention opens in Niagara Falls, N. Y., for a 6-day session on May 11.

"The most obviously unfair factor in the militia bands," Benkert says "is that the charge for their music is included by the national guard when it rents its armories for dance and other occasions. If people renting an armory want good union music and engage a union band for their events they get no reduction from the armory management but have to pay the full rental. The effect is that many people accept the non-union music because they have to pay for it anyhow. The situation in Chicago is acute. Our convention will work out means of combatting this competition."

The national convention last year in Denver took no action on the radio effect on organized musicians, beyond leaving the matter to each local. Chicago had already fixed a scale of additional wages for musicians whose work is broadcasted and every radio station broadcasting music in Chicago is under union agreement.

Three delegates go to the Niagara Falls convention from Chicago.

GIRL NEAR DEATH AS KLUXER FACES CHARGE OF CRIMINAL ATTACK

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 5.—David C. Stephenson, 33, Indiana politician and former representative of the ku klux klan, when he answers charges of criminally attacking Miss Madge Obenholtzer, 28, on which he stands indicted, will enter a plea of not guilty at the arraignment Monday.

At the Obenholtzer home, where the girl is near death from the effects of poison she swallowed after the alleged attack by Stephenson, it was said no change had been noticed in her condition since the blood transfusion which, physicians hoped, would save her life. The young woman's father, George Obenholtzer, mail clerk, said, "I am going thru the fight for the sake of other fathers and their daughters."

Borah Should Stick to His Logical Arguments for Soviet Recognition

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the tug-of-war in Washington, over the question of American recognition of Soviet Russia, develops in intensity. "Silent Cal" announces for the steenth time that he hasn't changed his mind on the subject, while Senator Borah is out over the country making speeches and giving interviews demanding that Soviet rule be recognized. Every time that Coolidge declares he has not changed his mind, the capitalist press restates its claim that the president is hostile to Soviet recognition. But Borah is the head of the senate foreign relations committee, which has a lot to say about this question, in fact, it often speaks louder than the White House tenant.

• • • •

Borah has just finished making two speeches; at Bridgeport, Conn., and Chicago. The senator stressed the recognition issue in his eastern address advancing, however, some new reasons for desiring to deal with the workers' and peasants' government at Moscow. He said:

> "I favor recognition of Russia, not because I believe in confiscation or Bolshevism, but because the only way to destroy Communism and Bolshevism is to bring the nations of the earth in touch with those people. Bolshevism is an economic disease. The only way to get rid of it is to adopt such a policy as to bring about a condition of affairs which will bring prosperity and a sane course of conduct to 140,000,000 people."

Perhaps Borah thinks that is a good way of breaking down the prejudices of great financial interests and winning over their political lackeys in Washington. It is not conceivable that he believes what he says. If he did, he would, naturally, have something to offer the workers and peasants of Russia in return for the surrender of their power.

• • • •

Borah is a great believer in "America,"—in American "patriotism." He is one of the loudest "America First!" statesmen in Washington. He is opposed to the world court. He thinks that the Morgan-Dawes plan is "a god-send to Europe," remedying all the evils of the Versailles peace. He kids himself into believing that the Harding-Hughes disarmament conference brought peace a little closer to the world. So he wants another conference.

But all this is poor bait for the Russian masses. They know that "America First!" means "The Dollar First!" that the Morgan-Dawes plan is a slave plan for the German workers, to be fought by labor everywhere; that disarmament conferences will continue to be standing jokes as long as imperialist ambitions strive for world rule.

Borah speaks of the American capitalist state, that he would offer the Russian workers for their Soviet rule, as follows:

> "As a result of well organized and venal propaganda on the one hand and sheer political expendiency on the other, we are building up a bureaucratic form of government—the most expensive, the most burdensome, the most inefficient and the most arbitrary form of government which thus far has ever been permitted TO TORTURE THE HUMAN FAMILY."

Then the following:

> "It is often charged that there is a conspiracy somewhere in this country, well organized and subtly active, to bring this government more and more under the control of the few, under the domination of great wealth."

• • • •

It is easy to laugh in the face of the Idaho senator as he tries to cloak that charge, that capitalism rules in Washington, in a mantle of mystery. He would almost have us believe, it seems, that the whole Teapot Dome scandal passed entirely over his head, just to mention one chapter in Washington's dollar statesmanship.

Borah had better stick to his other, more olgical arguments for the recognition of Soviet Russia, and there are plenty of them. There is nothing in the whole American capitalist system, in the grip of the Wall Street profiteers, that appeals to the Russian masses. All that Borah charges against American capitalism, was true of Russian czarism,—BUREAUCRATIC, BURDENSOME, INEFFICIENT, ARBITRARY,—torturing Russian labor. It fell. Soviet rule took its place.

Of course the Russian workers and peasants desire recognition of their Soviet Republic, even by the American capitalist government. But there is something they would like more,—a Soviet Government in power in Washington. Recognition by Wall Street and Washington of the stability of Soviet rule at Moscow, will not alter by the smallest iota the Russian desire for a Soviet America.

American capitalism has nothing worthwhile to offer the world's workers but an invitation for its own destruction. Soviet rule on the other hand leads the way for the liberation of labor in all lands.

Hindenburg, Ebert's Friend, May Run for German President

BERLIN, Germany, April 5—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, German monarchist, may be the candidate of the right bloc in the presidential elections April 26, instead of Dr. Jarres it was announced here. Hindenburg is a friend of the former kaiser's family, and is known as a strong monarchist. He co-operated with the socialist Ebert, dead president of Germany, during the world war. The two collaborated to break a strike of munitions workers.

If the right bloc under the leadership of Hindenburg, were elected, the fascist-monarchist group would control the country, allied with foreign capitalists.

Dr. Marx will be the candidate of the socialist-catholic bloc, and Ernst Thaelmann, the only candidate representing the working class, will be the candidate of the Communist party.

POLISH WORKERS PROTEST MEETING IS BIG SUCCESS

Denounced Murder Reign of White Terror

rades Segala and Dyfetski, for membership in the Communist Party.

We denounce the Polish government for delivering over to the bourgeoisie courts three Ukrainian deputies for speaking against the colonization of the eastern part of Poland by Polish cossacks.

Savage White Terror.

We denounce the Polish government for the savage white terror that they are directing against the minority nationalities — Ukrainian, White Russian, Jewish, German, and Lithuanian, dwelling in Polish territory.

We denounce those vile traitors to the Polish working class, the Polish socialist party, the party of the Second International, which has been giving steady support to the hangman's government of Poland.

We send greetings to all those who are fighting for the liberation of the working class to those against whom the bloody Polish government is employing every weapon of torture and persecution.

We pledge our moral and our material support to those who are carrying on the fight for bread and freedom for a Soviet Republic in Poland.

Long live the Workers (Communist) Party of America which is leading the American workers in their protest against the white terror in Poland.

Down with the white government of Poland!

Freedom for all political prisoners in Poland!

Hail to the Polish proletariat for its fearless and unremitting struggle against the bloody government of landlords and capitalists.

Not the First Crime.

Comrades Gebert and Radwanski spoke in Polish. They pointed out that the murder of Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz was not the first crime of its kind committed by the Polish white guardist government. It was revealed that the two murdered prisoners were not Communists, but left wing Pilsudski followers. They were prominent officers in the Polish army at the time of their arrest. The fact that the Soviet government was willing to accept non-Communist Poles in exchange created a very favorable impression among the Polish masses who were convinced that Soviet Russia is the new land of freedom where the right of political asylum is given to all those who fight against oppression.

On a previous occasion, agents of the Polish government murdered a trainful of prisoners, and the perpetrators of the crime were only given a jail sentence of one year. The speakers pointed out that the murderers of Baginski and Wieczorkiewicz will be treated with similar leniency.

The bourgeois Polish papers in Chicago gave the meeting considerable space and were vigorous in their denunciations of the Communists.

Chinese Textile Strikers of Shanghai, 35,000 Strong, Win Big Fight

(By Rosta Service)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26—(By mail)—Today, at 4 o'clock of the afternoon, an agreement is to be signed between the owners of the Japanese mills and the representatives of the strikers' committee, with the participation of the Chinese commissioner of foreign affairs at Shanghai, the Japanese consul-general and the Chinese chamber of commerce of Shanghai.

The strikers' committee presented the following main demands: first, prohibition of corporal punishment; second, the wages must be raised two per cent; third, accurate payment of wages; fourth, there must be no unwarranted dismissals of workers; fifth, the workers who went on strike must not be dismissed; sixth, these workers whose turn it is to enjoy a holiday must not be detained because of fines being imposed on them; seventh, release of all those arrested in connection with the strike of the textile operatives.

Altho the strikers have failed to secure satisfaction on the second and fourth of the above-enumerated demands, the view prevalent in Shanghai labor circles is that the strike has ended in a victory for labor. The trade union of textile workers, which has been formed during this strike wields influence amidst the labor circles here and will continue to exist. There have been 35,000 strikers out.

Belgium Cabinet to Quit.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 5—The parliamentary elections today will mark a new government in Belgium, as Premier Theunis and several of his ministers have announced their intention of resigning tonight.

There is little likelihood of any political changes in the elections. The catholics, who now have a majority, will probably maintain their lead.

ERGER'S PAPER SLYLY BOYCOTTS DEBS' LECTURE

Advises Socialists Not to Crowd the Hall

MILWAUKEE, April 5. —Debs' lecture in this city was arranged by liberal women. The Milwaukee Leader in its editorial asked the workers not to crowd the hall in order not to annoy the sick "Gene." A crowd of only 200 people attended the Debs' lecture. He made a sentimental appeal for socialism, reiterating the old stereotyped phrases about the inevitability of socialism as the natural process of the evolution of the human society.

It was very tragic to observe that Debs did not touch upon the burning issues of today, but made the same speech he delivered in 1912, before the world war and before the tremendous struggles of the European workers shook capitalism to its base. One could clearly see that Debs lives in the past. He is blind to the problems and struggles of today.

Dees Not Hate Enemy

Debt stated that he did not hate capitalism, that he wanted socialism for the benefit of the capitalists, in order that they may enjoy the beauty of nature. When the capitalist looks at the three he sees lumber said Debs. One had a strong desire to tell Debs that class struggles comes not as a result of the desire to give capitalists, better cultural life but as a result of the brutal class struggle against the unhuman exploitation of labor, and that the introduction of the new society will come when the workers will overthrow the capitalist system and through the proletarian dictatorship, and not thru the debate with capitalist on the respective merits and the demerits of the new social order.

Debs Dees Not Hate Wilson

"I do not hate Wilson" said Debs. In his christian serenity Debs seems to overlook that society can not forgive man for taking part in the bloody world conflagration after the promise to keep the nation out of war. The entire appeal was based upon the sentimental phrases of christian socialism and brought the feeling of dissapointment to the hearts of class conscious workers who attended the meeting. While forgiving the Wilson administration Debs seems to have some grievance against the Communists because he believes they did not help him while he was in jail.

While the socialist party failed to arrange a meeting for Debs, Mrs. Berger, a worthy mate of her husband, is arranging a special home reception for Jeanette Rankin. Mrs. Rankin will be a speaker at the peace society, and also at the banquet.

Perfectly Consistent

The action of the socialist party officials in entertaining capitalist politicians is in line with the entire activity of the socialist administration. The socialist party is now pursuing the policy of "reward your friends and punish your enemies." They openly support the capitalist politicians and capitalist measures. In their marvelous maneuvers on the tax questions they shifted their support at the different times from the right wing of the republican party to the so-called left wing. The socialist party always finds justification for its action, because there is always something worse then the measure they advocate.

In the state of Wisconsin where the workers have an opportunity to see the utter bankruptcy of the social democratic party and their political opportunism, the Workers (Communist) Party should build up the strongest organization.

Fleet Maneuvers Strike at Japan, Coolidge Is Told

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5.—Proposed American naval maneuvers in the Pacific are designed to intimidate Japan, says a pacifist organization here, in a current bulletin. It protests against this joyride of the American battle fleet to Australia, on the ground that the expedition "is essentially an anti-Japanese demonstration and will be so regarded both by he Americans and the Japanese."

The pacifist body urges its friends to send messages to President Coolidge, begging him to veto the trip, which would be "provocative, unnecessary and wasteful." It calls attention to the bitterness created in Japan by the recent exclusion act and by the speeches of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur who threatened the Japanese with "cold steel."

AMERICAN THREAD COMPANY'S SPEED-UP SYSTEM RUINS WORKERS

only one day's work. And ever since, the manufacturing department has averaged only 3 to 4 days a week, and the finishing department 4 to 5 days.

But Profits Come.

Yet dividends have been paid, at the rate of 20 per cent on capitalization prior to 1919. How is this possible? With the workers on short time, how could the American Thread Co. pile up enormous profits? The secret is found in the low wages paid, and in the speeding up system.

All possible improvements in machinery have been introduced, which speed up the worker, and compel him to turn out a larger product. In addition, much more work is expected from a man than before, irrespective of machinery. Twenty years ago when C. B., a dresser tender, began slaving for the American Thread Co. in Willimantic, Conn., it took 14 hours to get out a set of thread. Now it takes seven hours.

In making a shuttle bobbin, there is a new method, which consists of punching on a cardboard, which simplifies the process, and increases the output.

The Buhlman Dye Machine.

There is still some dyeing done by hand, two men being required to pull the skeins thru the water, hot tho it is. But the machine is coming in. The Buhlman machine, according to men who work on it, has increased the output tremendously. Four men on that machine, of German make, can do as much as 30 men previously.

In the American Thread Co., one of these machines was put in three years ago, another nine months ago, and still another is being installed. As a result, many workers were laid off. Now two men tend 30 rolls or pins.

The Buhlman machine allows 13 different dyeing operations to go on at the same time, each of the 13 boxes containing a different wash. The machine is about 40 feet by 15 feet, with rows of boxes (or wash tubs) on the outside, the regulating machinery being on the inside. Partitions separate the various boxes. These partitions can be raised, thus increasing the size of the box, when the material to be dyed comes in greater amounts, thus being put on more pins.

There are seven boxes on one side, and six on the other, of various sizes. The skeins of thread are placed on the pins, about a dozen on each pin, the pin revolving, automatically passing the skeins thru the wash. The machines in use at the American Thread Co. have sixty-five pins each. The machine can be used, too, for rinsing operations. It has revolutionized the dye room.

These are only a few instances of capitalist introduction of more complicated machinery, to attain greater production. It can be duplicated in most departments.

Making Men Do More Work.

On the bobbin press, where formerly four presses were run by two men, before the strike was called, seven presses were being run by two men. In the shuttle bobbin department, six months ago, four embossing machines were run by one man. But before the cut, one man was running six machines, and was lucky enough to escape having two more wished on him, because they were out of order.

A worker doing fancy bleaching told me that he used to do 300 lbs. at a time. Now he often does 400 lbs., and even up to 550 lbs. And for this work, this strong, well developed type of man gets $23.40.

Years ago, by hand in bleaching, two men did 400 lbs. together at one time, getting $25 and $26 a week respectively. Now one man must do the work alone, doing 500 lbs., and for this gets $23.40.

These are first hand stories told by the men themselves to the writer. They are not taken from books or from my imagination. When I spoke at the strikers' meeting on Friday, March 13, I gave figures on profits of the American Thread Co., taken from Moody's Manual of Investments. At that time, the strike leader, Miss Kelleher, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, complimented the writer for the speech, and accepted the figures as correct.

But when Communist propaganda began to make headway, the fakers began to attack the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Party, and Miss Kelleher reported on my speech of March 13, "the figures were fair, but were taken from a hearing on the 48-hour bill hearing." Comrade Ida Rothstein and the writer had appeared before the legislative committee on labor at Hartford, and had made use of figures, but not these.

The deductions on stock manipulations and concealment of profits were not in any book, but the timid soul which is running the strike in Willimantic wished to discredit the Communists, and she made this pitiful attempt. Lest any such attempt be made again, I wish to repeat, that the figures in this article, and in the previous one on wages were furnished by workers on strike, and taken down by the writer as they were given.

Man Against Man.

Using one worker against another is the basis of their method. Incentive, emulation, competition are the fine names given to this exploitation method. A new man is used to speed up on a job, and the others expected to equal his record. Then, if the newcomer is unable to continue the killing pace, an old hand is called in, and expected to come up to the mark of the newcomer.

"Take it or go home," commands the boss, and if you are in a town where "you work in the mill or you work nowhere," few there are who run away from the prison. The company aims to have workers able to do more than one job in that department, so as to have a reserve labor force, to use when necessary. They therefore keep shifting the workers from one line to another in a department. This is particularly true of the dye house.

The foremen check up on the time for a roll, thus doing the despicable work of an efficiency expert.

The speed-up system is brought about by piece work, 60 per cent of the women doing some form of piece work. At ring spinning they handle from seven to ten frames, and are paid so much a frame.

Protests.

Occasionally men protest. No one works in the mill, if he can help it. Some lucky ones are able to escape. And they brag about it. A Polish worker told me that his son worked on a farm, anywhere but in the mill. And his son later told me (I have met him often since) that when he tries to work in the carding room, he becomes dizzy. He tried it three times, but had to quit each time.

An American born worker spoke with pride of the fact that he refused to submit to the grinding oppression of the American Thread Co. and quit.

And even in the mill, they protest. Men were handling rows of reels, carrying only 100 pounds. Later they were given reels carrying 200 pounds, at the same wage. Extra reels would have called for more wages. So the same amount of reels was kept, and the weight of each doubled. The men on this work kicked. The campany was forced to get other help to do this dirty work. They could get them; mill slaves are in abundance, families with a large number of children receiving the praise of priest, politician and profiteer.

Three years ago, a worker was asked to tend a bleaching machine. It was heavy work and he asked $35 a week for it. He intended to get a helper, too. But the company said: "No. This is a one man's job." And it became a one man's job, someone else doing it. But despite protests, the system of speeding up has been introduced. When workers are worn out by extraordinary toil, there are always others ready to take their places.

Efficiency—thy name is the American Thread Co.

FOUR SOVIET EXPERTS IN IMPORTANT TRADE CONFERENCE IN PARIS

PAIRS, France, April 5—Four Soviet representatives are now here for negotiations with the French government. The Soviet mission will discuss Franco-Russian trade.

The Soviet Russian representatives includes M. Preobrajensky, of the Soviet concessions committee, M. Reingold of the finance commissariat, and Professors Liubmoff and Tchlenoff of the University of Moscow.

The Herriot government will soon set a date for the first meeting.

Kellogg and Coolidge, Miffed by French, in Quandary Over Russia

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Secretary of State Kellogg and President Coolidge are keenly resentful of the refusal of the French government to have anything to do with a conference this year for further limitation of naval construction.

Kellogg insists that he has not, even informally, asked the French what they think about the scheme. That they should go ahead and tell the public that they disapprove of the first move made by the new head of the state department is a circumstance that almost bowls Kellogg over.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee has never believed that the conference could be arranged until France had assurances of security in Europe. Further, he has argued with Coolidge that France could get no genuine security until Russian recognition by the United States had been granted, and until the economic life of Europe had been secured by the restoration of international credits to Russia, either direct or thru Germany.

President Coolidge reacts to his disappointment by declaring that American private loans to Europe should be withheld in all cases where the money would be used to build up further armament or to maintain armies. He wants every American dollar which may be sent abroad to go to work in an industrial or transportation enterprise, to earn profits for American capitalists.

TEXTILE BARONS CAL'S 1ST CHOICE FOR AUDIENCE

D. A. R. 100 Percenters Also on List

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Ending a month's silnce in so far as public utterances have been concerned, President Coolidge next week will make the first of a series of speeches bearing on major domestic issues which have been planned to carry him well into the summer months.

His first address will be before the National Cotton Manufacturers' association, in convention here on Monday night.

Ten days later, Coolidge will open the women's world fair in Chicago, speaking over the radio direct from the White House.

All Set For D. A. R.

On April 20, the executive has contracted to appear before the opening session here of the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The next speech, according to the schedule thus far arranged, is the annual decoration day address at Arlington national cemetery. This occasion probably will bring forth a discussion of foreign policy and the contemplated arms conference.

Still under consideration is the possibility of a journey to Charlotte, N. Carolina, on May 20, in connection with the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Mecklemburg declaration of independence.

Goes to Twin Cities

The first definite out of town speaking engagements falls in early June, probably the eight. The president has promised to address the Norse-American centennial celebration at St. Paul-Minneapolis at that time.

Then comes a tentative engagement on June 16, in Boston on the occasion of the 150th anniversary the battle of Bunker Hill. Mr. Coolidge will speak either there or at Cambridge, Mass., on July 3. The latter occasion being in commemoration of the date upon which Washington assumed command of the continental army.

The president expects to start upon his summer vacation soon thereafter.

GIRL, ALLEGED KLEAGLE VICTIM FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Said to Have Taken Poison After Attack

INDIANAPOLIS, April 6.—Interest in the case of D. C. Stephenson, 33, former klan organizer, charged in five indictments with mistreating Miss Madge Obenholtzer, 28 centered today around the little white bed in the Obenholtzer home where the girl apparently was fighting a losing battle for life.

Girl's Condition Serious.

The girl's condition, it was said, resulted from her swallowing a slow poison on March 18, after Stephenson, an Indiana political power is alleged to have attacked her in a sleeping car enroute to Hammond, Ind.

Meanwhile, it was learned, Earl Klenk, former deputy sheriff, and Earl Gentry, one of Stephenson's bodyguard, both of whom were indicted with the politician on the conspiracy count, prepared to return here to answer charges. Arrangements have been completed for their bonds.

Klenk and Gentry have been associated with Stephenson since the latter's days as a klan organizer, which were terminated some time ago when he broke with Atlanta klan officers.

Engineer and Fireman Killed in Collision on Rio Grande Road

PUEBLO, Colo., April 5.—Engineer Edwin Riley was killed and fireman O. C. Smith probably fatally injured today when Denver and Rio Grande western passenger train number 16 eastbound, ran into an open switch near Canon City. The locomotive overturned pinning the crew underneath. The baggage car and express car left the tracks but remained upright. None of the passengers was hurt.

Food in Prison.

In the Missouri state pennitentiary where one of the war prisoners was held, she was given spoiled food to eat. "Our meat was filled with maggots," she writes, "the oatmeal and dried fruit infested with worms, the macaroni full of bugs, the beans inhabited by weevils, and the cornmeal supported a thriving population of meal-worms . . . Our food was prepared by convicts who were overworked, unpaid, sullen, and infected with tuberculosis and veneral diseases." The state gives a very low food allowance, but prison officials even see a chance to graft part of this by buying rotten food cheap.

UNSEATING SEATTLE COMMUNISTS RAISES STORM IN STATE UNIONS

for years if necessary, until the rights of Communists to sit in the council has been restored.

Will Carry Question to Membership.

Already Machinist's Local 79 has appointed a committee to visit every union and present the true side of the real issue. The same local has asked and was granted by the council the roll call vote taken. The machinist's committee consists of Rube Holland, George Mitchell and C. B. Ward.

Defendants under expulsion have announced their decision to appear before local unions and present their side and will also speak at several mass protest meetings.

Communists Make Wide Protest.

The Workers Party his issued a call for mass protest meetings all over the state and announced the distribution of thousands of leaflets exposing the attempted disruption of the council.

The first protest meeting will be held in Seattle on April 11, to be addressed by the defendants and followed by weekly meetings.

Central Bodies Denounce Ruling

An upheaval of general condemnation of the corrupt tactics and procedure and condemnation of expulsions is becoming state wide. Everett council most vigorously denounced expulsions, also protest is being made by Tacoma delegates.

Bitter feeling and general resentment against expulsion and particularly condemnation of Jepsen's ruling are being expressed by members in most local unions and by a large number of delegates. The defendants' locals have already given notice to the council that they will send the expelled delegates back to represent their respective unions.

Delegates State Changed View Prevails.

Many delegates who have voted for the unseating declared they have done so against their own conviction because the locals they represent had, at the time when the council went on record in favor of trials of delegates, on the spur of the moment endorsed the council's action.

The wire from Green read at council's meeting Wednesday night, follows:

"It is my opinion that the ruling and decision of President Jepsen of Seattle central body regarding unseating of six delegates against whom charges were filed by building trades council (Note: charges were filed by business agents as delegates from the building trades) is in accordance with parliamentary procedure and parliamentary law. I, therefore, officially approve and indorse the ruling of decision of Chairman Jepsen. This ruling and decision will continue in force and effect pending an appeal by individuals affected to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, providing such appeal is later taken."

The decision and procedure was being characterized by delegates as a conviction of defendants before hearing and trial.

Jepsen ruled that when the council decided to instruct the strike and grievance committee by a vote of 93 to 33 that this then constituted a two-thirds vote.

Jepsen's Queer Arithmetic.

However, that is not true, for the trial took place when the council heard the report and the defendants, in the face of vicious steamroller corrupt procedure, defended their position and the vote taken, 78 to 71, constituting a bare majority and would not and will not now be a majority for conviction, but if another vote was taken, would be an overwhelming majority against expulsion.

Therefore, delegates and trade union members say that Jepsen and his friends had to appeal to Green for support, as his decision would not only be repudiated by the council, but has become the ridicule of the local labor movement.

"Unseated" Delegates Report.

When the resolution of the machinicts asking for the roll call vote taken last week was up, J. Havel, one of the defendants under expulsion, asked for the floor to speak on the motion, the chair informed him that he was no longer a delegate, but Havel insisted vigorously that he still was and held forth for five minutes.

Price followed and was told the same by the chair. Amidst this insistence, another delegate obtained the floor, and after the amendment to table lost, the motion that a copy of the roll call vote be granted the machinists, carried.

Under reports of delegates, Paul Mohr began to report for his local union, Jepsen informed him, "You are no longer a delegate."

Paul Mohr Clashes With Jepsen.

Mohr vigorously insisted that he was a member of the council as that body has not expelled him according to vote. "I am not going to pay any attention to your ruling. I am going to have my rights. I am going to report for my local union," he persisted forcefully.

Jepsen kept up denying him the floor. Mohr, angered by the chair's refusal, told him in most determined terms: "You are crazy. You mean you are not going to let me report for my local?"

Jepsen, quivering and stuttering, replied, "I have instructions. A wire from Green."

In the meantime a delegate appealed from the chair's ruling, but he refused to entertain the appeal.

Immediately after the report, Jepsen asked the secretary to read the wire from Green. Havel then announced that the facts as wired to Green were not correct.

All defendants under expulsion will be sent back by their locals as previously announced.

All Six Illegally Unseated.

The three defendants, Mohr, Hansen and Carlson were included by the committee in their report after signed statement of the six was made. All six defendants delivered eloquent speeches on arbitrarily limited time of ten minutes each at the previous meeting when Jepsen made his decision at the very close of the meeting.

When the adoption of a new constitution came up on Wednesday night, after the reading of Green's wire, more than half of the delegates stampeded out in disgust, some protesting, "What is the use having any by-laws?"

ANDY CARNEGIE'S DOLLARS WORKING FOR WALL STREET

Peace Foundation Is Doing Its Stuff

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 5—(FP)—Painless separation of Latin-American republics from their interest in the league of nations is contemplated in a new scheme drawn up by James Brown Scott of the Carnegie Foundation for Peace, on the request of the Pan-American Union, to be presented to the commission of jurists which will meet next winter in Rio de Janeiro to attempt a codification of American international law. Thirty draft conventions, whose object is the outlawing of war and the establishing of uniform policy in foreign relations among all nations within the Pan-American Union, are offered. One of the proposed treaties forbids the cession of territory to any non-American nation. Another forbids temporary occupation of the territory of one nation by another, whether with the consent of the government of the occupied country or not, if the occupation is intended to exercise sovereignty.

In case of danger of war between any two American countries, the scheme provides that appeal may be taken to the Pan-American Union in order that "an exchange of views" may be had.

The Pan-American Union, nominally a council of the representatives of all sovereign nations in the western hemisphere, is in parctice a gathering of Latin-American diplomats in Washington to ratify the opinions expressed by the secretary of state of the United States, and to promote investment of North American capital in Latin America.

Cal Leaves Track Clear for Bankers' Railroad Merger

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Approval of the Van Swearingen rail mergers based on the Nickel Plate, Pere Marquette, Erie and Chesapeake & Ohio lines, when it comes before the interstate commerce commission, seems to be assured. Woodlock of the Pere Marquette has resigned his directorate to take office as a member of the commission, and a comfortable majority of that body will approve in advance any policy which President Coolidge may be led by the railroad bankers to endorse.

Back of the Van Swearingens, according to information credited in railroad circles at the capital, are some of the most powerful banking interests in New York. They have explained to the administration that the merger is in line with the Esch-Cummins act, which called for the merging of trunk lines into a few competing systems.

Plasterers' Strike Still On

Efforts to end the plasterers' strike on the new Palmer House have failed, it was reported at a meeting of the plasterers' union. The strike is said to be the result of jurisdiction trouble between the bricklayers' union and the plasterer' union over the right to do stucco work. The strike has been on for two weeks.

The Little Red Library

The first two numbers of this little pocket-size library, destined to become the most popular of any working class publications ever issued in this country, are now being sold by all Daily Workers Agents thruout the country.

No. 1
Trade Unions in America
By Wm. Z. Foster, James P. Cannon and Earl R. Browder

Is, with a brief statement of the American trade union movement, a history of the development of the left wing and an explanation of the structure and program of its guiding spirit—the Trade Union Educational League.

No. 2
Class Struggle vs. Class Collaboration
By Earl R. Browder

Is a splendid study of the methods of labor bureaucracy to divert the workers from militant struggle thru the B. & O. plan, insurance schemes and workers' education. A most valuable number for the thinking worker.

If you have not as yet seen a copy of this splendid little propaganda giant, and have not enjoyed the valuable reading in each, be sure to ask your local Daily Worker Agent for a copy—or a dozen copies. (They are twelve for $1.00.)

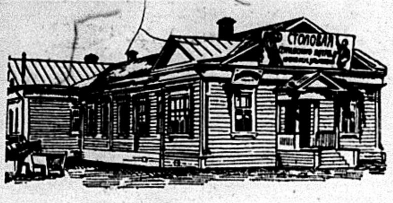
CO-OP DINING ROOMS IN RUSSIA



In the "good olden times" under the czarist government the workers of the Dulevsk works of Moscow gubernia did not know anything about theaters, dispensaries or dining rooms around the works. But since the workers lead by the Communists captured power things have changed. The factory is now called "Pravda" and they have many new things around there. For instance the new co-operative dining room which was recently organized, and is proving very popular. Not only single people but whole families are patronizing it.

The dining room was organized last November and during the first month it was patronized by 9,000 workers. The next month, in December, there were 18,000 customers, and in January the figure grew to 27,000!

The fame of this new venture of the workers spread all over around the country. The peasants from the nearby villages heard about it and soon began to patronize it while on their way from the village to the city. As is the usual custom with the Russian workers nowdays, there is a local wall newspaper in the restaurant where all the local news is given. There are also regular newspapers to be had. The walls are decorated with pictures of the revolutionary ledders.

On holidays the restaurant is especially crowded, for it serves as a club house, rest room, etc. One goes there to get a glass of "chaj" (tea), to hear the latest news and to have a talk with friends.

Yes, things have changed considerable around the Dulevsk works since the Soviets rule the country.

The restaurant carries the name of M. I. Uljanova in honor of Comrade Lenin's sister. M. A. S.

Many Trade Unions Are Labor Defense Affairs Supporting Chicago

In additions to the organizations directly affiliated with the Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief, and those making direct money donations, there are a large number of local unions and workers' fraternal organizations which show their support thru the purchase of tickets for the motion picture shows and other undertakings of the local council.

A list of those which have very recently given this form of support follows: Bakers' Union Local 237, Electrotypers, Amalgamated Clothing Workers No. 6, Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Fund Nos. 232, 332, 282, and 49, Mailers' Union, Slovak Workers' Benevolent Society Nos. 36 and 24, Slovak Socialist Federation, Bakers' Union No. 2, Lithuanian Workers' Literary Society Nos. 92, 182, 41 and 671, Amalgamated Clothing Workers No. 38, Workmen's Circle Nos. 129, 96, 376 and 516, Carpenters' Union No. 54, Machinists No. 337, Amalgamated Clothing Workers No. 39, Metal Polishers' Union, Machinists No. 89, Painters No. 275 and Teamsters No. 712.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 5.—Three organizations of Friends of Russia Children have been formed in Los Angeles and vicinity as a result of four days' lecture work by Anna Louise Strong (Anise), DAILY WORKER Russian correspondent, now touring America to enlist aid for the children's colonies of Russia.

Los Angeles, Pasadena and Long Beach units are planning picnics and entertainments to raise money for the colonies.

Miss Strong spoke at the university of California, southern branch, and the city club, as well as other groups. Many new friends were made for Russia by her graphic description of the courageous way the orphan boys and girls are overcoming obstacles in their efforts to aid in developing the workers' republic.

Alexander Bittelman Speaks Tonight at North Side Branch

Alexander Bittelman, member of the central executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party speaks tonight at the North Side branch at Imperial Hall, corner Halsted and Fullerton Aves.

His subject, "Leninism in Theory and Practice" is of interest not only to those who would learn of Communism and its principles and practice, but also to the members of the party for clear understanding.

To this meeting beginning at 8:15 every worker is invited and no admission charge asked.

Activities of the Russian Section, W. P.

The activities of the Russian section Workers Party since its convention which was held in the middle of February, have been redoubled. The daily paper, Novy Mir, is becoming popular with the masses. It is now being read by people who did not care to read it before. The new editorial board is doing its share to make it a real live newspaper for the masses, but the labor correspondents in the different parts of the country are mainly responsible for the growth of the circulation. There isn't any important happening in the shops, mines or factories of the country which does not find its reflection and explanation in the pages of the Novy Mir.

In Chicago there is a group of correspondents of about 15-17 comrades, all of them workers in the shops and factories. Chicago has a special section in the Novy Mir which is printed two or three times a week. There is a correspondent in the Pullman car shops who is closely watching the wage cuts and other attacks against labor in Pullman. There is a group of correspondents in the steel mills of Gary, Ind., another in Kenosha, etc. The more news there is printed from the different towns the bigger grows the circulation.

The new central executive bureau of the Russian section has organized a tour over the country for Comrade Alexander Chramov, one of the co-editors of the Novy Mir. At present he is in the Pittsburgh district and will remain there until April 16. Between April 17 and May 2 he will be in the Cleveland district. Between May 3 and 11 he will cover the Detroit section, May 12 to 26—Chicago district and May 27 to June 10—the St. Paul district.

All who may have any connections with unorganized Russians in these districts are invited to communicate at once with the central bureau, 231 East 14th Street, New York City, or the Chicago office Novy Mir, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Comrade Chramov has in his possession phonograph records of speeches by Comrades Lenin, Trotsky, Lunacharsky and other active comrades of the Soviet government. These records will be played at the banquets and parties that are being arranged for the benefit of the Novy Mir.

Since the new district committee was organized in the end of February there were arranged 14 mass meetings or lectures in the Chicago district at which speakers of the Russian section W. P. spoke. Two moving picture shows, a Russian performance and a lecture for Comrade Olgin who will speak in Russian in Chicago Friday, April 17, were also arranged with the aid of the district committee. Other lectures, meetings and affairs are being arranged.

MOISSAYE OLGIN TO SPEAK IN RUSSIAN IN CHICAGO, APRIL 17

What promises to be one of the most interesting lectures given in Chicago in the Russian language is the lecture to be given by Comrade Moissaye Olgin, co-editor of the Russian Communist daily, Novy Mir. He will speak at the Workers' Home (formerly the Soviet School), 1902 W. Division St., on Friday, April 17, at 8 p. m., on "What did the Russian Revolution Give to the Workers and Peasants?"

Comrade Olgin was in Russia a few times during the revolution as delegate to the Comintern. He is the author of "The Soul of the Russian Revolution," and other works about the revolution. He is an excellent speaker and it is expected that he will draw a big crowd of those who understand the Russian language. Admission is only 25 cents.

LECTURE ON LEFT WING COMMUNISM TO DOWN TOWN BRANCH

NEW YORK, April 5.—Comrade Kesslar will deliver a lecture on "Left Wing Communism" to the members of the Down Town English branch at the headquarters of the Workers Party, on Wednesday evening, April 8, at 8:30 sharp.

Join the Workers Party!

Joseph Babiak Wins Trip to Convention

COMRADE JOSEPH BABIAK of the Ukrainian Downtown Branch is winner of the first prize in the recent subscription contest in New York, and will have his expenses paid to the next national convention of the Workers Party. He will be a guest of honor of the DAILY WORKER during the convention and will have a "ringside seat" during the festivities. Comrade Rappaport of the Jewish Downtown Branch received second prize, a $25.00 library of Marxian and Communist literature. The two comrades tied in number of subs reported sold personally, each having 81 to his credit, but Comrade Babiak succeeded in organizing his Branch and selling over five hundred subscriptions, whereas no other member of Rappaport's branch is credited with selling any. The committee therefore unanimously announced Babiak as the winner.

The following comrades were awarded bold and silver plated Lenin watch charms: Leon Corduner, Jewish Bronx No. 1, 50 subscriptions; C. O. Peterson, Scandinavian South Brooklyn, 48; H. Milner, Jewish Bronx No. 1, 38; Lillian Michaels, Y. W. L. No. 2, 30; Bella Dobish, Jewish Harlem, 27; Tessie Leibowitz, Y. W. L. No. 22, 25; L. Kling, English Bronx No. 1, 25; M. Horowitz, English Bronx No. 2, 25.

The complete list of comrades who sold subscriptions is not yet on hand. All branches that have not yet furnished their lists of subscriptions sellers are requested to bring them to the New York Agency at once, so that the news of the comrades may be published at an early date.

Now Is the Time if Ever it Was

This Is the Time For Action!

THE Communist movement is being mobilized. Every worker convinced of the principles of Communism—whether in or as yet out of the Workers (Communist) Party—is being asked now and until June 15 to aid in building up the standard bearer of Communism in this country—the only English Communist daily newspaper in the world!

The goal is 15,000 NEW SUBSCRIBERS by June 15 and it can be reached by a very simple task for determined Communists: the task of getting two new subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER.

You, a convinced Communist—are asked to get where it will do most good. In the shop and the union there is one worker who will make good material in the ranks of organized, intelligent, revolutionary labor. With his sub on this brick you can "Make Another Communist." Clip, determine—and send it in!

The second part of the task assigned is better done if it can be accomplished like the first. If you can't do that—do this:

Pay for a sub out of your own pocket (if you can) to convince another worker. "Our Daily" reaching him every day of the week, giving him the inspiration of the action of revolutionary labor the world over—and the principles that guide it—will surely make still another Communist.

THESE ARE TWO THINGS THAT YOU CAN DO—and this is the task of every Communist until June 15 that will add at least 15,000 new subscribers—future members of the Communist ranks who will make 15,000 other Communist who in turn will add greater strength that will lead eventually to working class power.

What have you done to accomplish such a simple task for so great an accomplishment?

And While You Build the Labor Movement—

For every $6.00 worth of subs ($8.00 worth in Chicago) we will gladly send you a leather binder with patent clasp making all sheets detachable: with pocket for receipts and note paper for your use—containing a full descriptive catalogue of all Communist books and publications from "The Source of All Communist Literature in This Country"—the DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

FASCIST RULE WADES IN BLOOD OF BULGARIANS

Workers Fight Guns of Zankov

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SOFIA, April 5.—From the great number of attacks of the authorities against the workers and peasants in Bulgaria we mention the following cases:

In Varna the Communist members of the municipal council, Mitoff and Stanko Kaltschaff were arrested and taken to Sofia. No reasons of the arrest are mentioned.

In the office of the unemployment support committee in Sofia a search was undertaken. Altho the search was completely without results, the secretary of the committee, Maximoff was arrested. In Varna a worker was sentenced to ten years of imprisonment on account of participation in the September revolt. In Burgess three workers were sentenced to 12 years' prison each for the same offence.

The editor of the Sofia labor organ Naschi Dni was interned in order to make the appearance of the paper impossible. The paper was confiscated because it had criticized sharply the policy of the Zankov government.

Even students were suspected and arrested. The police came into the college in Sewliowo during the lessons and arrested eight students without giving any reasons for the arrest. The arrested students are accused of belonging to an illegal youth organization.

The fascists are working hand in hand with the hangmen's government. The trial against the Communist member of parliament took place. Maximoff is accused of having incited to revolt. This accusation was completely destroyed during the trial so that the court was compelled to acquit Maximoff. In the same evening fascists undertook an attempt against the lawyer of Maximoff. During the night they threw a bomb into his house. The next morning a piece of paper with the inscription, "Death to teh traitor!" was found on the wall.

MILLIONS OF WORKERS NOW BELONG TO INTERNATIONAL RED AID, STARTING 3rd YEAR

Two years are a short time. However, when the International Red Aid looks back on its achievement during these two years it can state with great satisfaction that at the beginning of its third year of existence, it has taken its place in the ranks of the international mass organizations.

It is certainly not only to the merit of the leaders of the I.R.A. that it was possible in these 24 months to gather an army of four million members around the banner of the I. R. A. One of the Russian sections—the Ural section—said with justification in its telegram to the executive committee that it was due to the devotion and true international solidarity of the workers and peasants themselves which made it possible that the small group of old Russian Bolsheviks who formed the I. R. A. were able to build up in this short period such a powerful stronghold of the world revolution.

Everyone who really wants to support his imprisoned comrades and in whose bosom a revolutionary heart is beating and who wants to join our ranks, should today throw a glance at the road which the I. R. A. has gone.

Many Class Prisoners.

The I. R. A. is no invention of individual comrades, but it is the "legitimate" child of its time, for never has the proletariat had so many victims as now, in the "peaceful post-war period," in the time of "reconstruction" and "reparation."

The I. R. A. was formed by a group of old Russian Bolsheviks who suffered themselves the tortures of the czarist prisons and Siberian exile. It is natural that the activity of the I. R. A. found a specially favorable ground in the Russia of the workers and peasants. While in the capitalist countries the white terror is not only directed against the "high traitors" and the "political criminals," but begins also to attack those who dare to support these "traitors," the wave of general sympathy for the fighters of the world revolution grow in the Soviet Union. Already, one year after its formation, the I. R. A. had 500,000 members in Russia and at present its membership in the Soviet Union has grown to approximately 3,500,000. Still more significant is the growth of the collected sums. In January, 1923, the Central Committee of the Russian Red Aid received 300 roubles and in December, 1924, this sum had increased to 250,000 roubles. In the following months about the same amounts were collected. At present there is no locality in Russia without a branch of the I. R. A.

Overcame Difficulties.

The activity of the I. R. A. in these two years was certainly not carried on under favorable conditions. On the one hand, it was hampered by the continuous attacks against the revolutionary organizations and on the other hand by the extreme pauperization of the workers of the Central European countries where the Red Aid is particularly needed.

However, despite these difficulties, the work progressed for the unlimited white terror, particularly in the Baltic states (Esthonia, Lithuania), and in Poland forced the proletariat to form its own protective organization.

In order to combine the work of the individual sections internationally, in July, 1924, the first international congress took place. At this congress 20 countries were represented. The congress' decisions provided the basis for the future activity. With regard to the practical experiences in the Soviet Union, the organizational principles of the Red Aid of the Soviet Union were made the example for the activity in other countries. Formation of mass organizations, with nuclei in all shops—this is the present task as the congress has formulated it. It is not sufficient to awaken the international proletarian solidarity among the workers—this feeling of class solidarity must take concrete forms. The congress stressed in its resolution that the work of the I. R. A. should not be neglected for a moment. The congress endorsed at the same time the decision of the Executive Committee of the I. R. A. that the 18th of March should be in future the Day of the Political Prisoners.

Large Membership.

The activity of the I. R. A. in the capitalist countries entered a new phase after the congress. In most countries the establishment of the membership organization was started so that at the end of last year alone in Germany 200,000 members had been organized.

The week from the first to seventh of December, the I. R. A. Week, led new fresh forces into our ranks. In Russia, a further million of members was gained by our organization. In other countries the organized support of our cause by many revolutionary fighters proved that no persecutions are able to strangle the gigantic force, which is called International Solidarity. This solidarity does not only consist in material support provided by the masses to the politcal prisoners. This material support is undoubtedly very considerable. In the two years of its existence, the I. R. A. has collected a total sum of over $1,000,000 which was used for the support of the imprisoned comrades and their families.

However, a similar and even sometimes greater help for the political prisoners is that moral which is given to the victims of class justice when they see that the proletarian masses take care of them with love and attention.

May the second anniversary of the International Red Aid strengthen our organization, may the great manifestation of the solidarity with the political prisoners be at the same time a manifestation for the uniformity of our forces, for the unity of the International Red Aid.

NEW YORK MEETING OF WORKERS' SPORT ALLIANCE, APRIL 15

NEW YORK, April 5.—A membership meeting of the Workers' Sport Alliance will be held in New York City, on Wednesday, April 15, at 8 p. m., in the Ukrainian Labor Home, 15 East 3rd St., Room 2.

The meeting has been called to discuss the problems of the Workers' Sport Alliance, and to plan the local campaign for the summer. All members should be present.

Jugo-Slavia Leans on British Banks

BELGRADE, April 5—The Jugo-Slav state monopoly has just completed arrangements with a consortium of English banks for a loan of £1,000,000, secured on the tobacco monopoly stores, for the purpose of financing this year's crop.

Last year's loan for the same purpose was only for £300,000, for which the terms were more stringent.

Much interest also is shown in the announcement of the agreement reached between Messrs. Blair & Co. of New York, and Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., the Jugo-Slavia subsidiary of Herman, Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., for co-operation in a financing and construction contract under the external gold law of 1922, authorizing a $100,000,000 loan for construction of the Adriatic railway and other works.

WAGE CUT AND OPEN SHOP IN DISTRICT 18

Scab Scale Posted at Hillcrest Mine

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

HILLCREST, Alberta, Canada, Mar. 30—(By mail)—At a special meeting at Bellevue tonight a motion carried by 82 to 123, to elect a committee to interview the manager on geting more work. This means that the sub-district is gone, unless it can be stopt. A lot of the men are willing to take what they can get.

This knocks on the head the action taken at the mass meeting in Blairmore, where the whole sub-district No. 2 met. The miners paraded from Coleman, and Hillcrest and demonstrated their solidarity against further wage cuts of the operators.

The Hillcrest mine has closed down, with a new wage scale posted up. This includes not only the wage scale but also the constitution of the so-called union the miners are to have. Some of the miners now realize what a company union will mean to them if they accept it..

This begins the drive on the sub-district. If one camp accepts, as Bellevue now accepts, it means only a matter of time for the whole sub-district to go.

At the Blairmore meeting joint committees were formed, also a press commitee to offset the company propaganda.

President Sherman, the fake progressive was at the meeting, and denied the rumor that Lewis was negotiating a new contract, but Sherman gave no hope of help to the miners in their defensive action against the onslaught on them by the operators.

The new wage scale with the cut, was read and met with no approval at Blairmore. It is now in effect at Fernie and Michel, in British Columbia. Things are as bad as they well can be, considering that last year it was a well-organized field with a union shop. About 300 men are locked out at Hillcrest.

TRADE UNIONS RUSH RELIEF TO STORM VICTIMS

Trainmen Lose 54 Members in Tornado

CHICAGO, Ill., April 5.—Relief to the victims in southern Illinois of the recent tornado is going down from many agencies of organized labor. Railroaders have established a committee with headquarters at Murphysboro, the town worst hit by the storm. The brotherhoods have sent large donations, including $3,000 from the railway carmen, $1,000 from the railway clerks, $2,000 from Labor, the rail unions' weekly and other amounts from the engineers, firemen and trainmen. The trainmen report 54 of their members killed or injured by the storm.

The carpenters are raising $50,000 to rebuild homes of members. The Illinois State Federation of Labor solicits relief for the district from all affiliated unions, Secretary-Treasurer Olander acting as custodian.

The Chicago Labor Defense Council is also appealing for funds to be distributed especially to the stricken militant miners thru the International Workers' Aid.

Southwest African Revolt May Spread to Other Colonies

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, April 5—The revolt in Southwest Africa is likely to spread, it is thot. Since the war Southwest Africa, which was previously a German colony, has lost what independence the natives had under German rule. The rebels have appealed in vain to the league of nations for support.

The revolters are called the Rehoboth tribe. They are now well armed. Administrator Hofmeyer will attempt to crush the revolt, and has left for the scene with an armed force which includes three airplanes.

Under German rule the Rehoboths had their own parliament, but since the war they have been denied independence.

Jugo-Slav Parliament Meets.

VIENNA, Austria, April 5—The Jugo-Slav parliament has verified the credentials of all but six of the new deputies. The parliament approved the fascist Pashitch government's loans negotiated with the Blair group of Wall Street bankers.

Belgian-German Treaty Signed

BERLIN, April 5.—The great world war faded farther into the background of history when Germany and Belgium today signed a commercial treaty whereby commerce between the two nations will be resumed.

BUILDERS AT WORK

THE MINERS STILL LEAD!

Detroit, Milwaukee and Philadelphia Climb.

The miners of Pittsburg, Kansas are still in the lead. But last week shows signs of new leadership in prospect.

Detroit particularly, by getting 30 new subscribers, has reached 10 per cent of its quota and a special May Day edition of 20,000 copies, besides a mass meeting for the DAILY WORKER on May 10 are sure to immediately place this city near the "top o' the heap." To date Detroit with 50 has turned in most new subs.

Philadelphia by bringing its quota to 14.8 per cent with a total of 32 new subs has risen to ninth in the standing with action in prospect that according to Comrade Lena Rosenberg, city agent, "will wake-up this sleepy burg to the fact that the best working class paper has arrived to stay."

40 Years for Class Conscious Soldiers

Had Private Paul Crouch of the American army of occupation in Hawaii been located somewhere in the United States when he formed a Communist league, he would probably have received a "bobtail" discharge and perhaps a short jail sentence.

As it happened, he was in one of the colonies of American imperialism and was given 40 years.

Private Trumbull, another active member of the league, yet to be tried, will probably receive the same brutal treatment.

These soldiers are charged with no overt acts—simply with holding certain political beliefs of which the militarists do not approve. In other words they are members of the workingclass first and soldiers only incidentally. Even in the homeland this is considered a serious matter but in areas like Hawaii, set apart for intensive exploitation and for use as naval bases, such a frame of mind is met with the severest punishment.

The army is a special instrument of robbery and oppression. It is an organization on which the ruling class depends for its protection from the outraged workingclass.

The trial and sentences of our soldier comrades in Hawaii shows clearly the class nature of this armed force of the capitalist state.

There must be set on foot in the United States a movement of agitation and protest for the release of these soldier-workers. It must be linked up with the open preparation for another war by the militarists seen in the flood of propaganda released thru the capitalist press, the movies, the radio and the magazines.

Surely if admirals and major-generals are allowed to urge the masses to slaughter one another we can arouse the same masses to action for the protection of soldier-workers who refuse to be mere machines which imperialism set in motion to mow down the workingclass.

The French Crisis

The election crisis in Germany is followed by a cabinet crisis in France.

The French government is forced at last to consider what it has been trying to avoid ever since the war—a taxation scheme that will give the French budget something more than the Alice in Wonderland character it now has.

A capital levy is proposed on fortunes of $10,000 and over which is expected to raise $2,000,000,000. The mere consideration of this plan is an indication that the receipt of large sums from German reparations is considered an outside possibility and that the French population is to be told that it will have to bear the burden of the war debts.

A striking illustration of the contradictions which prevent any liquidation of the economic and political crises in Europe is contained in a recent dispatch from France wherein one M. Dardel, a manufacturer of railway equipment, urges the cessation of German reparation payments in kind on the ground that they are ruining French industry. Railway rolling stock, says this capitalist, cannot be sold to England and America but only in the Balkans where there is no prospect of payment. Yet if the French market is closed to German commodities the reparations go glimmering. So drastic taxation, the most hated word in the French language, is necessary.

The hand of the House of Morgan begins to show itself. It will be recalled that shortly before the Dawes plan was put into operation a levy was made on German capital and the proceeds used to stabilise the currency. Taxation was increased all along the line. The German government railways were handed over to a syndicate of private owners.

The French debt of $6,000,000,000 to America and Great Britain has now become, like the German reparations were, the major factor in internal politics. The House of Morgan and the British bankers will act more or less as a unit in forcing some kind of financial reform on the French government—Great Britain because she will no longer allow France a free hand in building a military machine that threatens her supremacy, the House of Morgan because it wants to extend American hegemony over western Europe. If the French internal situation tends more towards chaos the House of Morgan will be able to exact better terms for its next loan.

Postponed by juggling of the budget, the negotiation of loans at a suicidal rate of interest, by encouraging the belief that the German reparations would liquidate the indebtedness, by dreams of military conquest, France is at last called upon to pay the piper.

Whether the Herriot government falls and new elections are held or whether it receives the backing of the chamber and the senate, the French people have been jolted rudely out of a trance wherein was seen the pleasant vision of the conquered bearing the full cost of the war.

This is of immense significance of the French Communist Party and the whole revolutionary movement.

Intellectuals as Informers

Leo Wolman writing in the April 3rd issue of the Advance, organ of the Hillman machine in attempting to prove that the Freiheit and the DAILY WORKER distorted and falsified the story of the Chicago Amalgamated meeting of March 23, simply proves that not only the capitalists but their labor agents are able to hire mental prostites.

He admits that members of the Amalgamated were taken from their jobs for distributing the leaflet sent out by Local 5 of New York and then notes a fact that no one has ever denied, that the Chicago local of the Workers (Communist) Party of America paid a deposit on Temple hall for the meeting called by the blacklisted workers, many of whom are party members.

Wolman says he was at Temple hall and saw the huge crowd but no sluggers. Yet it was necessary for the manager of the hall to pull a gun to prevent the forcible entrance of a gang of sluggers there to wreck the building. The manager wanted to call the police but the party members present would not allow it.

Wolman echoes the capitalist press and assists the frame-up of young Foster by saying that: "The coat of a worker in the shop was cut with a knife as a result of his efforts to stop the distribution of the circulars. . . . Foster was held at $1,000 bail for carrying concealed weapons."

The boy had no weapon, he was arrested on a street-car as he was escaping from the attack made on him by a gang of sluggers and the coat of the Hillman tool was cut either by himself or one of his fellows.

This co-operation with the police is given the highest endorsement by Wolman, who "happened" to be in Chicago the night of the meeting.

He happenes also to be, as his article shows, a liar, an informer and the willing agent of anyone who will pay him a salary.

Changing Its Tune

The Chicago Tribune has discovered a great change in Soviet Russia. To the story, which fails to show any specific retreat of the workers' and peasants' government it gives first page prominence in its Sunday issue. It generalizes about more liberal treatment of private traders but the New Economic Policy, allowing private trade in retail lines and permitting the peasants to sell their grain direct after the government tax has been deducted, has been in force for a long time—so long that most people have forgotten that the capitalist and socialist press hailed its introduction as the surrender of the revolution.

Much water has passed under the bridge since the introduction of the NEP. The Soviet government has grown stronger by virtue of the complete acceptance of it by the Russian masses following the liquidation of the counter-revolution. Abroad, it has forced recognition from every great power with the exception of the United States. In the Far East it has concluded treaties with China and Japan. The Chinese Eastern Railway, the connecting link between Soviet Russia and China, is operated jointly with actual control vested in the Soviet government.

Japan has evacuated Saghalin island under the terms of the treaty and has entered into active trade with Soviet Russia. The working masses of China and Japan see in Soviet Russia a great friend and ally against the exactions of western imperialism.

These are a few of the reasons why the Chicago Tribune finds great changes taking place in Soviet Russia—changes which make possible American recognition.

The changes that are taking place, however, are not the kind that the capitalist press would like to see but it is forced by the pressure of foreign policy growing out of the imperialist rivalries, to lay the ground for a complete reversal in the attitude of the state department towards Soviet Russia.

The changes that are taking place in Russia have strengthened the dictatorship of the workers and peasants, strengthened the Communist Party of Russia, the iron core of the Soviet government, and strengthened the Communist International, the leader of the world revolution.

World revolution and Soviet recognition are much more closely connected than many ingenuous people think.

The Course of Empire

South Africa has abolished the preferential tariffs that gave British-made goods the edge on the products of other countries and another link in the chain of empire has been seriously weakened.

All talk of the genius displayed for ruling by the Anglo-Saxons is pure bunk. Colonies and dominions are dependent politically upon the imperialist nation when their economy and finance is dominated by the colonial power. When this condition changes as it has changed in Canada, Australia, South Africa and to some extent in India, domination sooner or later becomes a question of battleships and armies—not of ability to rule by kindness and understanding.

The course of empire was on the upgrade until the world war. Then it hit the toboggan as the abolition of preferential tariffs by white colonies and the continual armed uprisings of the colored peoples prove.

The American marines are still in Haiti. The British imperial government has just sent machine guns, airplanes and tanks to crush an uprising of 600 Rehoboth tribesmen.

Both are christian governments and hate and fear Communism.

The colonial peoples do not share this hate and fear because they have found the Communist International and its powerful parties to be their allies in their struggles for liberation.

British Leaders Urge Trade Union Unity

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith the third instalment of extracts from the Special Supplement to the Monthly Circular of the Labor Research Department of the British Trade Union Congress devoted to furthering world trade union unity.

The Special Supplement began with a preface by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam) and is composed largely of original documents; correspondence between the Red International of Labor Unions and the Amsterdam right wing officialdom, reports of conferences, etc.

The publication of this Special Supplement, the very frank and militant announcement of its purposes by the president of the Amsterdam International, the complete exposure of the treacherous and disruptive tactics of the right wing which it contains, all are indicative of the tremendous hold that the slogan of World Trade Union Unity has gained upon the British trade union movement, the most powerful section of the Amsterdam International.—Ed. Note.

The All-Russian Trade Union Congress and the British Delegation.

The scene now shifts to Moscow to the Sixth All-Russian Trade Union Congress there, at which a fraternal delegation from the British Trade Union Congress was present. The definite atmosphere of friendliness created during the visit of the fraternal delegates from Russia to the Hull Trade Union Congress, evidenced by the extremely warm reception of the Russian delegates over and above all others, was carried further by a return visit on the part of the British. The fraternal delegation (which left London on Nov. 7, 1924, and was away six weeks) was composed as follows: Messrs. A. A. Purcell (president of the I. F. T. U. and chairman of the delegation,) Fred Bramley (secretary), John Bromley Allan Findlay, Herbert Smith, Ben Tillett, and John Turner.

Here negotiations resulted in a further proposal towards unity, such as the formation of an Anglo-Russian commission. This was strongly supported in his speech as fraternal delegate by Mr. A. A. Purcell and other British delegates. The British delegation held several consultations, and finally this letter was sent by them to Tomsky:

Novo-Moskovskaia, Gostinitsa,
November 17, 1924.

M. Tomsky,
President, All-Russian Trade Union Congress.

Dear Comrade Tomsky, In reply to your letter, dated Nov. 16, which you handed to me, I have to inform you that the British delegation met this morning and directed me to reply to you as follows:

1. The British delegation desire to place on record their appreciation of the action taken by the Presidium of the Russian "Trades Congress for the purpose of promoting international unity in trade union organization and action, and welcome the opportunity for consultation.

2. In recognition of our representative capacity and being responsible to the Trades Union Congress General Council as representing the all-British trade union movement, we will convey the proposals submitted to us for the consideration and decision of our council.

3. We declare our intention to move quickly with regard to the project and trust that the joint action of the Russian and British trade union organizations will stimulate the progress towards international trade union unity.

We are prepared to take the responsibility of agreement with the Russian trade union movement such agreement to make provision for the promotion of the following:

To request the Amsterdam International to agree to a free and unconditional immédiate conference with representatives of the Russian trade union movement.

2. To secure for the presidium of the Russian movement and the General Council of the British Trades Union Congress, full power to act jointly for the purpose of promoting international unity.

With fraternal greetings and good will to yourself and your colleagues, on behalf of the British delegation,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) FRED BRAMLEY.

The All-Russian Congress of Trade Unions considered these proposals and the whole question of international trade union unity. After a full discussion the congress unanimously agreed to a declaration made from the chair by M. Tomsky. This declaration declared it to be the duty of the Sixth All-Russian Congress to meet half-way the steps taken by the Hull Congress of the British trade unions. It gave full powers to the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions (after negotiating with British T. U. C. General Council) to form an Anglo-Russian commission, and expressed the earnest desire of the congress that said commission should be formed not later than January The congress expressed pleasure at the declaration of the British delegation that they considered this step to be expedient, and would advocate it before the British trade unions. Finally it was declared that in this co-ordination of British and Russian activities there lay a guarantee of the success of the international unification of trade unions, and of closer relations between the workers of Great Britain and the workers of the U. S. S. R.

"I have to state also (added Tomsky), on the basis of a personal letter received by me from the president of the British delegation, Comrade Purcell, that they, likewise, conceive of unity as a unification of all trade union organizations, whether affiliated to any international, or standing quite apart from this or that international."

The British delegation returned to London on Dec. 19. On Dec. 29, at a meeting of the General Council of the Trade Union Congress the attitude of the British delegation to Russia was unanimously approved, and their letter of Nov. 17, quoted above, was fully endorsed.

It will thus be seen that the British and Russian Trade Union Congress, each the leading body of their respective internationals, had traveled far as a result of these negotiations towards their common aim of unity. They had agreed to the idea of a "free and unconditional immediate conference" and had bound themselves to act jointly for the purpose of promoting unity. The Russian congress had in addition, set a definite time limit—January, 1925—as the date by which they considered it desirable that the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee should be set up. No definite date had as yet been fixed by the British Trade Union Congress. The British General Council met again a month later, on Jan. 29, and finally and formally decided to urge an immediate conference at the forthcoming meeting of the I. F. T. U. This decision was conveyed to the bureau in the following letter:

The Trade Union Congress General Council,

London, S. W. 1,
January 31, 1925.

Dear Mr. Oudegeest,

The Trade Union Congress General Council at their last meeting considered the correspondence which has been passing between the I. F. T. U. and the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions at Moscow, and have instructed us to inform you that the council are deeply impressed with the importance of a conference between the representatives of the I. F. T. U. and the All-Russian Council at Moscow being held as speedily as possible.

The General Council are also convinced that there should be no waste of time in attempting to settle differences prior to such a conference taking place, as the main purpose, from our point of view, of such a conference, is to settle differences, and for this reason we strongly press for the convening of an unconditional conference for informal discussion purposes at which both sides would be free to express their representative opinion without being tied to any formulae or constitution, it being understood of course that the findings of such a conference should be considered as a preliminary to a mandatory conference, to follow after reports of the preliminary discussions had been given to the body responsible for the final conclusions.

The council further directed their representatives to raise this question at the executive council meeting next week and trust you will, therefore, make provision for it on the agenda.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) A. B. SWALES, Chairman.
FRED BRAMLEY, Secretary.

Mr. J. OUDEGEEST,
International Federation of Trade Unions, Teeselschadesraat, Amsterdam.

Before considering what happened at Amsterdam when the British delegates put forward their point of view in pursuance of the above decisions we must first consider a number of other circumstances which had played their part in the preceding two months.

Letters From Our Readers

A Stable Government.

To the DAILY WORKER: Roger N. Baldwin, The New Leader, and others declare that since Soviet Russia is now a "stable government" there is no longer need of suppressing criticism of the government or its methods. But there are several considerations left out of their reasoning. In the first place, it is a "stable" dictatorship. Quite an important item in the calculation.

In the second place, the government is "stable" in the midst of hostile surroundings and internal opposition, which is a tribute to the policy of "dictatorship."

In the third place, the government is still in the transition stage from capitalism to a Communist society, with the whole outside world, and many inside elements, opposed to the transition. In other words, it is an unfinished revolution, and as such, like all other successful revolutions, it is bound to force its way to the goal.

Social-democracy at the present stage, as a block in governmental affairs, would invite and inspire all sorts of opposing intrigues and united fronts in favor of bourgeoisie and capitalist representation in determining public policy. And naturally, in a year or two land the country in Morgan's Wall Street dictatorship with the rest of the so-called democracies.

Our American socialist party says it has "demonstrated to the workers its entire freedom from dogmatism." That is to say, it no longer emphasizes any particular idea or policy, but is free to join any labor element that has cut loose from the old paties, and is headed—no matter where. What would such an attitude amount to in a revolution? And what is the opinion of such tacticians worth?—L. D. Ratliff, Los Angeles.

The Spirit of the Communists in Northern Minnesota.

To the DAILY WORKER: In a country where the boundless, gloomy forests of Nothern Minnesota repeat the angry song of the frozen Canadian hills, together with the spring, grows and increases the influence of Communism. The bosses and their lackeys, exasperated, beat the alarm. When, five months ago, their local newspapers wrote that the red propaganda, after the big miner's strike in 1917, is dead in the iron range (altho in the same time we organized our English branch in South Hibbing) they were celebrating the victory of the reaction. Poor bosses! Soon their illusions had to die and the newspaper pointed out the opposite, altho their police were watching the actions of the Communist leaders very close.

The fifty-two branches in Saint Louis county, the heart of the mining industry, are awaking, their activity has been stimulated by the trip of Comrade C. A. Hathaway, district organizer. The language branches are uniting their efforts instead of being disunited as before. The comrades of one branch didn't know that in the same town there are one or two other branches.

It is natural that in such a state of affairs their activity will be weakened. There was no consciousness that the growing of our party and its influence depend on our co-operative actions.

After the first public meeting in Chisholm I was surprised at hearing a few unknown workers calling me: "Hello, Comrade."

The result was workers joined our party. Each Communist effort, each action is not without results and knowing that we have to double our energy.

Of course, the reaction don't sleep and that is why we have to be ready to meet it.

Is there any power to stop a real Communist? No! There is a fresh example—Comrade Stanislav Lanzutsky.

Geo. Zaickov.

"A Wonderful Paper"

To the DAILY WORKER:—While I am also a subscriber for the Workers' Monthly and feel that I am getting much more than my money's worth, yet I find the Daily almost indispensible for labor news. You are getting out a wonderful paper, well balanced, newsy, incomparably excellent editorials and a "columnist" in O'Flaherty that makes me often want to laugh and cry and swear at the same time.

Perhaps you know all this already, but, considering that I have had several years experience at "Goose Step" journalism on a daily paper and have at various times been mixed up with several propaganda weekly propositions I see you getting out a better paper than I ever dreamed of.

Don't let me miss an issue of the Daily. Fraternally yours,

Thos. J. Davis,

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 5.—The house of delegates of the West Virginia legislature has rejected the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution. The vote was 66 to 19.

O My Love Is for Red Russia Now!

(Air: My Love's Like a Red, Red Rose.)

O, my love is for Red Russia now,
Where workers rule the land;
O, the Soviet's like a melody,
All workers understand.
As free art thou, dear bonnie land
So deep in love am I,
And I will love thee still, dear land;
Tho for that love I die.

Tho for that love I suffer must Imprisonment or death,
O, I'll sing thy praises thru the land
While I've a living breath.
We pledge our solidarity,
While at the foe we smile;
We clasp your hands across the sea,
Tho it be ten thousand miles!

FIRST OF MAY BELONGS TO LABOR!

"The First of May Is the Workers' Own Holiday!

"Whether the bosses like it or not, we the workers, must take it.

"Whether the capitalists and their strike-breaking government permits or forbids, no wheel must turn, no hand must be laid, no back must bend to labor on the First of May!

"Stand erect, men and women of the working class! Leave the factories, mines and shops stand empty on May Day.

"Put aside the needle, the hammer, the drill, the machine and all instruments of labor by which the capitalists rob and exploit you! Onto the streets on the FIRST OF MAY."

The above is from the leaflet: "Down Tools on May Day" issued by the national office Workers Party, for distribution on or before May 1st. Order a supply now. ATTORNEY GENERAL SARGENT is expected to be a firm law enforcer but he "will not harrass business unnecessarily." This is just what we expected. What this little hint means is that the workers will get the heavy end of the club, while business, when it steps over the chalk line drawn by itself, will be gently tickled under the chin, with a tail feather from a Vermont turkey. Cal is doing very well for Wall Street, even if he does not say much. He keeps on sawing wood.

OUR American socialists had the reputation of being anti-militarists, but if that is a virtue it appears their European brethren have lost even that. The socialists supported their governments vigorously during the war, as most pacifists did; but in the piping days of peace, they do not seem to have any desire to return to their former dissipation. Herr Bauer, leading Austrian socialist, thinks the Austrian army is small enuf and can stand no further reduction and made the further astounding statement that social democracy would spread over the whole world, if necessary, by force of arms. We thot only Communists talked so shamelessly of the use of force!

STRIKING printers, stereotypers and mailers formerly employed on the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a Hearst publication, are still on strike. The strikers are still holding out, but the local labor movement, now officially controlled by the reactionary elements is not giving them any material assistance. The officials of the Seattle Labor Council are expending their surplus energies and the little brains they possess trying to run the Communists out of the council. In the meantime the employers are raising the devil with the rank and file. That's how the battle goes in Seattle.

ENCOURAGED by the fight conducted against the Communists in Seattle, by the labor fakers, the Ohio state legislature has opened war on "pink" teachers in state universities. The resolution introduced in the legislature has the following paragraph: "Whereas the labor unions are expelling Communists from their membership, notably in Seattle and Minneapolis, where they have at times been in control." The resolution in question would bar the payment of salary to any professor who "has been publicly active in any socialist, atheist or Communist or any other organization of revolutionists." The fakers are giving their paymasters the lead, no doubt as the result of a prearrangement.

ROSEN URGES CENTRAL LABOR CHECK POLICE

Fakers Stall Fight on Scab Aid

By SYLVAN POLLACK.

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 6.—At the last meeting of the Central Trades and Labor Council, representatives of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs' and Helpers' appeared before that body. Their spokesman said as follows:

Use Police to Break Union.

"Chairman and Brothers: There is a serious question that I want to bring to the attention of this body. At the present time Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright are using the city police as a guerilla gang to break up our organization, including strikes that we conduct. Not only the Teamsters' Union, but organized labor thruout the city is being dealt with in the same manner.

"In the past the Central Trades and Labor Council had taken a stand to protest against the denial of labor's rights, that is, in years gone by, but today this assembly wastes its time discussing petty politics of the democratic, republican and socialist parties, while the labor movement is forgotten. That is one of the reasons that attendence is so small.

"This body is a powerful voice in the labor movement and may be of a great deal of good, therefore, I ask the delegates to take a stand against the present administration which is using the police as a guerilla gang. At one time the bosses had to pay money for thugs, but at the present time the police are being used instead."

Rosen Urges Protest.

After he finished speaking, two other members of the Teamsters' Union also spoke along the same lines. They were immediately followed by a Tammany Hall politician who exclaimed: "Why didn't you tell us about this before? All of a sudden you come here and tell us this."

Rosen, of the Carpenters' Union, was then recognized. On taking the floor he made a motion to protest to Hylan and Enright on the using of the police to break strikes and interfering in union meetings. The motion was eagerly seconded. He pointed out that it is the duty of the workers to oppose any administration that fights the working man and uses the police as a strike breaking agency, irrespective of what political body is in control.

Lefkowitz Stalls.

He was followed by Lefkowitz of the Teachers' Union, one of the allies of the local socialist party organization, who said that the motion just introduced was too weak. So he made a substitute motion to elect a committee to interview Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Enright, and inquire into the matter, the committee to report back to a future session of the assembly before any action was taken.

The substitute motion immediately found favor among the delegates who are members of the Tammany Hall political machine which has control of the local labor movement. Many of their henchmen took the floor and spoke in favor of the substitute motion.

Motion Scheme to Dodge Issue.

On the other hand about six delegates took the floor and spoke in favor of the original motion of Rosen. Lapidus of the Carperters' Union said: "This is a scheme to stall and dodge the issue. When the committee would report back it would be a dead question."

Another delegate stated: "We should protest as men, not crawl. We must show our independence." Kivowitz of the Carpenters' Union, said he saw politics in these motions. Both of them should be passed and make action as strong as possible. He was loudly applauded by the delegates.

President Sullivan asked the representatives of the Teamsters' Union which motion they prefered to have passed. Seeing that the officials and Tammany Hall-Lefkowitz socialist group supported the substitute motion, they lost heart, and said they too supported it, and it was passed. Nothing is settled and the fight must go on.

STOCK EXCHANGES OF ITALY ARE CLOSED DOWN FOLLOWING SLUMP CAUSED BY MUSSOLINI DECREE

WINSTON SAILS FOR FRANCE TO COLLECT MORGAN'S MORTGAGE

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Further indication that the government is planning immediate steps to collect some of the outstanding $7,000,000,000 foreign debt was seen this afternoon in the treasury department announcement that under-secretary Winston, new secretary of the debt funding commission, will sail Friday for London and Paris.

NEGROES FIGHT FOR RIGHT TO VOTE IN TEXAS

Contest State Law in Courts

NEW YORK, April 6.—A court attack upon the Texas "white primary" law, which specifically debars Negroes from voting in the democratic primaries and which will constitute the opening of a general attack upon disfranchisement of colored people in the south, has been started here.

F. C. Knollenberg and R. H. Channell of El Paso will conduct the case in Texas courts.

Negro Votes Thrown Out.

The present case arises out of the denial to Dr. L. A. Nixon, qualified voter, of the right to participate in the primary election at El Paso. The act of May, 1923, passed by the Texas legislature states that "in no event shall a Negro be eligible to participate in any democratic primary election held in the state of Texas and should a Negro vote in a democratic primary election, such ballot shall be void and election officials are herein directed to throw out such ballot and not count the same."

The Negroes contend that under the system of one-party dominance in southern states, where candidates for office are virtually elected in the primaries, to debar any class of voters from the primaries is in effect to disfranchise them. The constitutionality of the Texas statute and of other similar statutes thruout the south is involved in the case.

Appeal Case.

The case of Dr. Nixon is now being appealed from the adverse decision of the federal district court.

BANKRUPT FRANCE MAY OVERTHROW HERRIOT REGIME

Reaction Aids New Finance Minister

PARIS, April 6.—The new finance minister, de Monzie, who was aprpoved by unanimous vote in the parliament, with the exception of the Communists, evidently is relying upon the support of the reactionary national bloc to aid him in a possible overthrowal of Herriot, should the latter prove obstinate in the measures de Monzie proposes and insist on his own remedy, a capital levy. These measures are as follows:

Financial Inflation.

First—He will issue 45,000,000,000 francs ($2,250,000,000) worth of new money in a special form, based on the needs of commerce, which will be retired from circulation as soon as possible. This amounts to inflation, which M. Herriot has steadfastly announced he will not sanction.

Second—De Monzie, to bid for the support of the radicals, proposes to use "severe measures" to collect the long overdue taxes from the wealthy war profiteer class, which has brazenly refused hitherto to pay anything. However, this is recognized merely as a gesture of de Monzie, in the nature of an election promise—made to be forgotten.

To Increase Cost of Living for the Masses.

Third—Consumers' taxes on commodities used by the masses, tobacco, sugar, etc. This will strike at the poor and force a reduction in the standard of living by increasing prices.

To Turn State Industry Over to Private Capital.

Fourth—De Monzie proposes to abolish government ownership of railways, telephones, telegraphs, and all industries now operated by the government. This is directly in line with the desires of the reactionary national bloc, and more particularly of the American bankers, chiefly the

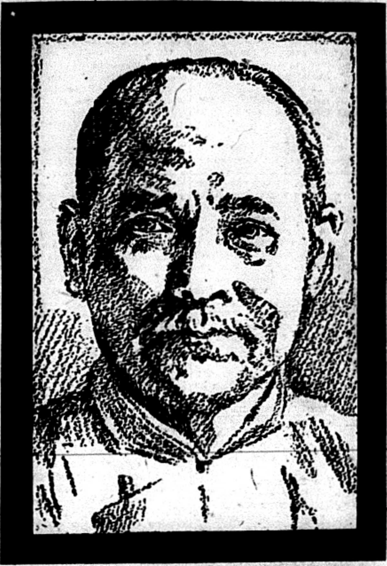
SUN YAT SEN



SUN YAT SEN CHARGED KUOMINTANG TO FIGHT AGAINST IMPERIALISM

The following is a manifesto of the Communist International on the death of Sun Yat Sen.

TO the workers of all countries!—The many millions comprising the working masses of China have suffered an irreparable loss. The great leader who devoted his whole life to the cause of the emancipation of the Chinese people from the heavy yoke of imperialism is dead. Sun Yat Sen, who fought unweariedly against the enslavement of the working masses of China, is no more.

The revolutionary proletariat of the whole world sinks flags before the open grave of the fighter for the independence of his people, whose fate is closely bound up with the revolutionary movement of the international proletariat.

Altho not a Communist, Sun Yat Sen realized the common interests of the suppressed working masses of China and of the working class of the world, and had the profoundest sympathy with the revolutionary ideas of emancipation which inspired the advance-guard of the world proletariat.

Sun Yat Sen was not only a friend of the Chinese people: he remained right up to the end of his life a friend of the workers of the West and of the toiling masses of the East. This love for suppressed humanity was confirmed by Sun Yat Sen in the farewell messages he sent immediately before his death, in which he charged the Kuomintang Party to carry on the fight against imperialism and warned it against making any compromise with the imperialist oppressors.

Comrades, working men and women! In view of the death of the courageous fighter for the freedom of the suppressed, close your ranks and render support to the national liberation movement of the workers of China. Do not permit your bourgeoisie to rend and tear the Chinese people. Be united in the defense of the 400 million toiling people of China who are suffering under the foreign yoke!

Long live the relentless fight of the working masses against world imperialism!

Long live the international solidarity of the workers and peasants of the West and of the East!

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

MINERS' MEETING PROTEST TERROR REIGN IN POLAND

Congratulates Lanzutsky on His Release

NEFFS, Ohio, April 6.—The miners of this locality held a mass meeting here on April 1, to protest against the death sentence imposed on Stanislav Lanzutsky, the Polish Communist deputy, by the fascist government of that country. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

We, the coal miners of Neffs, Ohio, protest against the attempt of the capitalists of the world to crush the working class movement by putting the best fighters and leaders of the working class into jail.

We are happy that the demonstrations, held all over the world under the leadership of the Communist International has resulted in the freedom of Comrade Lanzutsky, who was arrested by the Polish hangmen of French imperialism, who tried to send him to the gallows because he delivered a speech before the railroad workers of Przmysl.

We extend our congratulations to Comrade Lanzutsky and to the Polish Communist Party and are sure that they will continue their work for the liberation of the Polish working class from capitalism.

Frank Sepich, Chairman.

WEST VIRGINIA STRIKE STILL IN DISPUTE

Real Support Needed to Unionize Field

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., April 6.—Both Van Bittner, international organizer in charge of the strike called by him for April 1 in the ten northern counties of West Virgina, and the head officials of the Coal Operators' Association, express themselves as "satisfied" with the situation, confused tho it is.

Union Committees Report.

A meeting was held here Friday evening of committees from many mining communities and reports there are claimed to be very encouraging to the union. This is the official statement of the international officers.

The operators, of course, tell a different story. George S. Brackett, executive vice-president of the Northern West Virginia coal operators stated that 113 out of the 126 open shop mines in the Fairmount region were in operation Friday, the third day of the strike, designed to call the non-union men out.

FARRINGTON'S OUSTING OF FREEMAN THOMPSON AROUSES MINERS IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 6.—Efforts of the Farrington-Lewis reactionary machine to break the backbone of the opposition within the United Mine Workers' Union to the Jacksonville wage agreement, that is wrecking the organization, is seen in the desperate move now on here to oust Freeman Thompson from his position as president of Illinois Sub-district No. 4, with headquarters here.

Thompson is still holding on to his office here today in spite of the fact that Illinois District President Frank Farrington has arbitrarily ordered the banks to refuse payment on checks, and has ordered the miners' union locals and the coal companies not to deal with him. Thompson has the hearty co-operation of the sub-district secretary-treasurer, John J. Watt, who was today forced to pay the rent of the union's office out of his own pocket.

Members With Thompson.

The local unions in the sub-district are standing solidly with their president, Thompson, in spite of the fact that they know they are fighting not only the district organization headed by Farrington, but also the International Union headed by President John L. Lewis, at Indianapolis.

Local Union No. 413, the local of John A. Walker, that the Farrington-Lewis machine is trying to put into Thompson's place, had published in full two columns display in a local daily newspaper a resolution denouncing this move of the Farrington reaction; pledging their loyalty to Thompson, and calling for the holding of a mass demonstration next Sunday afternoon, at Reservoir Park, to discuss the situation, including the unemployment problem growing out of the Jacksonville agreement that finds nineteen out of thirty-five mines in this sub-district idle.

Declined Invitation.

President Farrington, Vice-president Harry Fishwick and Secretary Walter Nesbit, district officials, have all been invited to address Sunday's gathering, but they have been quick to reject the invitation, knowing that the membership is solidly against them.

Thompson is one of the leaders in the U. M. W. against the surrender to the mine owners contained in the Jacksonville agreement that failed to shorten the workday and surrendered to the mine owners' suggestions that the best way to remedy the problem of the mine worker was to drive 200,000 members out of the organization and close down many of the mine properties. Thompson has consistently fought for the shorter workday, better wages and a militant struggle against the mine owners,

BIG BUSINESS DIVIDES PROFIT OF COMING WAR

Gary and Morgan Dish Out Advance Orders

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 6.—Minute planning for the next war—for big business' part in it—did not cease for Judge Elbert Gary of the U. S. Steel corporation on mobilisation day. Gary, as chairman of the ordnance advisory board is now busily apportioning out orders for the rapid production of artillery, rifles, machine guns, ammunition and the rest of the death-dealers to a selected group of New York manufacturers.

These "chosen people," in the event of war and upon receipt of confirmation from Washington, will be ready to produce specified amounts of war equipment immediately.

Morgan Men Want War.

The make-up of the ordnance advisory board suggests what members of big business will monopolize the profits in the next big fight of nations: P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central raildroad; John L. Downey; M. Friedsam; S. Parker Gilbert, agent general of reparations in Germany; General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio corporation of America; Herbert P. Howell; Samuel McRoberts; Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel corporation; Guy E. Tripp, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co.; William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry Co.; and Colonel James L. Walsh. Gary is not the only Morgan men in the group.

Drawings, specifications, samples and designations of large quantities of ordnance allotted for production to New York manufacturers by the chief of ordnance in Washington were exhibited at a recent meeting of a hundred New York producers who received their advance orders for the next war's materials from Gary.

FASCISTI WOULD FREE KILLERS THROUGH KING

The Matteoti Trial Worries Mussolini

ROME, Italy, April 6—The fascist party is trying to induce King Victor Emanuel to follow the usual custom of Italian monarchs and declare a general amnesty this year, to mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of his reign. The fascists are anxious by this method to get rid of the embarrassment of the Matteoti murder trials.

The fascist leaders, Dimini, Philipelli, and others are now in prison in Rome awaiting trial. Mussolini has been much embarrassed by the evidence implicating him in the Matteoti murder. It has been shown that Mussolini ordered the murders, as well as the manhandling of Deputies Amendola and Misuri and other outrages.

Senator Accused of Complicity.

The fascist senator, de Bono, has also been accused of being an accomplice in the murder of the socialist deputy, and the whole case is now before the high court of the senate for examination.

The recent trial in Bologna assizes, where the fascist Regazzi was pronounced not guilty, despite overwhelming evidence that he murdered a socialist farmer, shows how the courts are controlled by the fascisti today.

RECALL OF CHINESE MINISTER TO AMERICA A SHOCK TO COOLIDGE

(Special to The Daily Worker).

PEKING, April 6.—Alfred Sze, Chinese minister to the United States has been ordered by the Peking foreign office to leave Washington May 9 and return to China, according to the newspaper Chen Pao here today.

• • •

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Reports that Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese minister, has been ordered back to China were received with considerable surprise today. Both at the state department and the Chinese legation, it was stated no cause was known for the reported recall of Dr. Sze.

"I know nothing about it," Dr. Sze said.

There have been reports that Sze will become foreign minister in the new Chinese government.

REVOLUTIONARY POLISH WORKER TO TELL STORY OF WHITE TERROR ON INTERNATIONAL RED AID TOUR

The International Red Aid and its Polish section, the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland, are organizing a series of meetings with Comrade Tadeusz Radwanski, veteran leader of the Polish revolutionary movement, as the principal speaker.

Comrade Radwanski will speak in Polish. The purpose of these meetings is to expose the white terror of the Polish bourgeoisie, which is brutally handling thousands of working class prisoners who have been thrust into

BOSSES PRAISED FOR STORM HELP OF THE WORKERS

Force Donations to Get Advertisement

How the large non-union industrial corporations are wringing forcible contributions for southern Illinois storm relief from their poorly paid employes, in order to get advertisement is revealed in the story of the workers in the Pullman palace car shops, 110th St. and Cottage Grove avenue.

The Pullman corporation, of which J. P. Morgan is a director placed contribution boxes thruout the car shops, over which were hung large signs announcing that the company was contributing $2,500 in the name of the employes, and this sum must be raised.

A Non-Union Shop

At the end of the day the officials of the company took down the boxes and counted up the money. The Pullman employes are poorly paid. The company immediately fires all union men, as soon as they are found. A general wage cut for all piece work has just been introduced and the men have been ordered to "speed up." So the men had no money to give. And the contribution boxes were found to be nearly empty. Seventy cents were found in one, a dollar and a half in another, and so it went.

The Pullman officials were furious. The next day, the workers report to the DAILY WORKER, they were told that every man must work exactly until the whistle blew, even tho they were on piece work. Two men were reported fired from the carpenter department of the steel shop for quitting work one minute before the whistle blew. The Pullman officials were "getting even."

Cheap Publicity

Watchmen were placed thruout the plant to intimidate the men. They were allowed only two minutes in the toilets, which were also guarded.

The large corporation thus force the workers to contribute to any cause which will bring the company advertisement, and the papers write the donation, "Pullman employes' contribute $2,500." This has been found a cheap way for the employers to gain publicity.

"We don't mind contributing for the workers of Southern Illinois," one Pullman employe told the DAILY WORKER, "But we like to do it in our own name. And these non-union corporations pay as much low wages we can't afford very much."

BANCRUPT FRANCE MAY OVERTHROW HERRIOT REGIME

Morgan interests, who have been putting pressure upon France for some time to surrender the French nation to much the same kind of a foreign financial control as the Dawes plan now squeezing German workers.

In fact it is in line with the open hints that there ought to be a "Dawes plan for France," made by various American financial interests in the last few months.

Dictatorship of Financial-Industrial Capital.

But the big thing de Monzie proposes is a practical dictatorship of the big industrialists and bankers, thru a "grand council" of these gentlemen who are to be the collective bosses over the parliamentary government in practice by proposing "programs" which their combined pressure can force the parliament to approve. This again is analogous to the control over the German government quietly but surely enforced by the closely allied big industrial and banking interests of Germany.

It is evident that over these issues a split is coming between Herriot and de Monzie, the latter counting on the support of the national bloc to force Herriot out, crushing the socialist support of Herriot and installing de Monzie as premier in his place.

"France Is Bankrupt" Says Herriot.

Against this program, Herriot is fighting by lifting the veil of secrecy which has hitherto covered up French bankruptcy. At a speech made at Fontainbleau, Herriot declared:

"The time of illusion is past. The country must know the truth. On the internal debt alone the government owes its citizens 278,000,000,000 francs ($13,900,000,000). Add to that the foreign debt, whereon we have held pourparlers with England. A country possessing such a floating debt no longer holds the entire liberty of its domestic policies." Afraid, however, of frankly recommending such drastic remedy, Herriot only hinted at the need of a levy on capital.

DETROIT CARPENTERS' DISTRICT COUNCIL AGAIN UPHOLDS WILLIAM REYNOLDS AGAINST HUTCHESON

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., April 6.—On Thursday evening, April 2, General Executive Member Potts appeared before the Detroit District Council of Carpenters as the official hangman of the inquisition. Early in the evening he was granted the floor and read a communication from Hutcheson instructing him to submit the following proposition to the district council: That the District Council conduct orderly meetings and that one William Reynolds be excluded from participating in any of its meetings. It was further stated that unless the district council voted to accept these conditions Potts was to immediately suspend the district council pending reorganization and take steps to amalgamate the various local unions into one.

Delegates were warned that in voting against this ukase they not only laid themselves liable to suspension, but jeopardized their locals.

In reading the communication Potts said he had no comment to make except that he wished that some one else had his job. Evidently even Hutcheson's agents find it difficult to do his dirty work.

Reynolds Makes Statement.

When asked for a statement, Reynolds said that the fight was still a fight to preserve the constitutional rights of members and the constitution itself was the foundation of the Brotherhood. He said that such had been, is and would be his position until the constitution was restored regardless of how many or how few supported him or how long drawn out the fight might be. He pointed out that Hutcheson ordered them to violate the law of the land as outlined by the court decision which he (Hutcheson) had "prayed" for.

The letter from "Czar Hutch" mentioned the suspension of Reynolds altho every previous communication said expel. The crawfish in Indianapolis are looking for a hole to crawl into.

The Evidence.

It developed from the discussion that the "evidence" upon which Reynolds was "expelled" was a letter from the Workers Party to its members said to have been signed by Reynolds. Reynolds is state secretary of the Workers Party and in that capacity writes letters to every county clerk in Michigan and the secretary of state. The Workers Party is running a full ticket in the spring election and Reynolds is a candidate for the office of regent of the university. It is obvious that unless his political rights are to be curtailed by Teapot Dome republican Hutcheson, the exercise of his official duties must not be made the basis of charges in the Carpenters' Union. The letter in question has never been submitted to Reynolds as "evidence" and it is likely a forgery.

Answer Hutcheson.

After extensive debate a motion to inform "His Highness" and the G. E. B. that the district council of Detroit intended to sustain Reynolds in his rights of membership and his privilege of participating in the meetings of the district council as a delegate from his local union, was carried by a vote of 23 to 4.

Again Hutcheson has his answer from the carpenters of Detroit. Some time it will seep thru his dense dome that the carpenters insist that the constitution be restored and observed. When that day comes perhaps he will withhold his dumb-bells from Detroit and settle this issue by quashing his frameup.

FARRINGTON'S TACTICS ROUSE ILLNI MINERS who are now diverting work to the non-union mines and closing down the union mines.

Faked the Returns.

An arbitrary change in the results of the vote cast for Thompson in the union elections is the basis of the attack on the miners' leader here. Thompson was duly elected according to the official report of the sub-district tellers by a vote of 2,194 to 2,103. Without granting a hearing to Thompson or any other sub-district official, in fact, denying them a hearing when they demanded it, the Farrington-controlled district executive board threw out enough votes to elect Walker, Thompson's opponent, by a vote of 3,094 for Thompson and 3,279 for Walker. This is one of the most characteristic acts perpetrated by the Farrington machine and the miners here are up in arms against it. The demand of the miners for a special sub-district convention is also being arbitrarily rejected by the Farrington forces.

Thompson Still in Office.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 6—John A. Walker, tool of the Farrington-Lewis machine, in its efforts to grab the office of Freeman Thompson, president of Illinois miners' sub-district No. 4, received his second rebuff today when he appeared to ask Thompson to turn the office over to him.

Walker appeared at the sub-district office shortly after Thompson had received a letter from Farrington notifying him to relinquish the office under orders of the Farrington-Lewis controlled district executive board. Thompson told Walker he had no intention of turning the office over to him. He handed Walker a copy of the official report of the sub-district tellers declaring that he, Thompson, was elected.

Walker was told to carefully study this report. Walker then left accompanied, as he had arrived, by his brother, Lance Walker.

Later Thompson declared: "I am in office. I shall remain in office until the membership of sub-district No. 4 tells me to get out."

was not such a bad job after all. Which is all to the gravy. But Mrs. George, perhaps after a few minutes consultation with her versatile husband threw the following neat little bombshell at the Herald, which you must admit makes a lot of noise.

"IF you are curious as to the real value of my lost necklace I can enlighten you. It was not worth one-fortieth and probably not one-fiftieth of the gift made to your leader when he was prime minister by one of his capitalist friends. I have no recollection that at the time of that princely gift, or since, you have rebuked Ramsay MacDonald as you do Lord Oxford and my husband. In that transaction he gave a betrayal of his class and the abandonment of the simple tastes of his youth."

• • •

THE lady said a mouthful. "Betrayal of his class!" That should sting like a little bag of pismires, but the political hide of a social-democrat is impenetrable. Wherever they secured office, they immediately picked up everything that was not nailed down or glued. The London Daily Herald lives in a glass house and cannot afford to throw any bricks at grafting capitalist politicians and their female parasites until it first applies the rod to its own favorites.

CARPENTERS TO FIGHT JENSEN IN ELECTIONS

Business Agent Beats Up Old Union Member

Like desperate gamblers who resort to gun play when they see their winnings being swept away, the Harry Jensen gang in the Carpenters' Union, are now resorting to physical violence against those who do not support their reactionary policies. The bullies, however, are careful not to tackle carpenters who can give them a run for their money. This was amply demonstrated last week, when a blustering ex-booze fighter, by the name of Mark Taylor, business agent for the district council, struck an old and infirm carpenter, causing him to fall down and being severely injured.

The old man who was beaten by the cowardly bully, Taylor, is Frank Larson, a member of Local 181, and a staunch supporter of the five brothers who were illegally expelled from the local by Jensen's lackeys. The attack was made at the headquarters of the district council.

Time to Ditch Jensen.

In view of this and similar incidents, not to speak of the collusion of Jensen and company with the contractors, the members of the Carpenters' Unions here in Chicago are beginning to feel that it is time to change officials and retire the ex-booze fighters to their favorite haunts in the corner saloon of the "blind pig" where they can indulge in their favorite diversion of fighting old John Barleycorn, who can stand more punishment than feeble old men. In the coming elections the carpenters are determined to let Jensen and his gang know that they have had enough of them, and it will take more than a juggler with figures to return Jensen as president of the district council, if the rank and file revolt against his tactics means anything.

Turn Larson Down.

At the last meeting of Local 181, a Hutcheson lackey made a motion that Inar Larson, the lying recording secretary of the local, and the new president be given a trip to Indianapolis to view the installation of "Czar" Hutcheson. This was in a nature of a reward for Larson, the gentleman who faked the records during the mock trial of the five "expelled" members and who turned himself into a prosecutor, jury and judge. The mover of the motion thot it was good strategy to include the newly elected president, hoping that he would carry Larson along. An amendment was made, however, excluding Larson from the trip and insisting that the president only be sent. The amendment was carried almost unanimously only three members voting to give the miserable tool Larson a junketing trip to Indianapolis.

If Larson is to receive any reward for his dirty work in Local 181, it must come from the "czar" himself. It is quite evident that Local 181 is thru with him.

S. L. P. Man With Fakers.

Local carpenters are commenting on the united front between Charles Sand, secretary of the district council and the Jensen gang. Sand is a former S. L. P. man and a foe of "reformists." But he is reported to be pulling along nicely with Harry Jensen who is looked upon by the carpenters as a labor tool of the contractors who use him to put low wage scales across on the membership. So the carpenters think they will give Mr. Sand his walking papers pretty soon.

There is a general feeling among the rank and file that they have the votes to get rid of Jensen and his machine. But they know from experience that hard work is required to pry these fellows loose from the treasury. From now on until the elections take place, the progressive elements in the Carpenters' Union are going to be very busy. They want a real fighting leadership, that will fight for higher wages and better working conditions for the membership and not a set of officials who spend their time expelling good trade unionists.

Seattle Workers to Hear Symposium on Heresy Hunting

SEATTLE, Wash., April 6.—On Saturday, April 11, the six Communist delegates to the Central Labor Council against whom charges have been preferred by reactionaries will conduct a symposium on "Heresy Hunting in the Seattle Labor Movement" at the Workers Party Forum, in Painters' Hall, Union Record Building, 1915 First avenue, at 8 p. m. In view of the interest aroused by the illegal expulsion of those comrades from the central body, the forum is expected to be unusually well attended.

Comrade Norman Tallentire, district organizer for the Workers Party will speak at the forum on April 17 and 24. His subjects will be, "The World-Wide Assault on Communism" and "The Assault on Communism in the Labor Movement."

There is no charge for admission to these lectures.

End of the Teapot Dome Scandal Is Good Display of Capitalist Solidarity

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Teapot Dome scandal is wafted out of sight as thin smoke into the air. The "black satchel" in which Edward L. Doheny, Jr., carried the $100,000 bribe to Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior at Washington, in the stealing of naval oil reserves, is carefully put away in the skeleton closet of American capitalism. The kept courts have spoken.

• • • •

With all the solemnity of American judicial harlotry, Chief Justice McCoy, of the District of Columbia supreme court, at Washington, proclaims that since Oliver E. Pagan, an assistant attorney general, appeared in the grand jury room while the indictment was being returned, therefore the legal attack on the oil profiteers must fall. Mind you, workers, this Pagan was an indictment "expert" in the pay of the department of justice, presumably fulfilling the duties of his office. The two special oil prosecutors, Owen J. Roberts and former Senator Pomerene, had actually invited Pagan into the grand jury room. But the judicial mountebank, McCoy, says, "No! Pagan should not have been in the grand jury room." So the whole legal attack on Fall, Doheny, Sinclair, Doheny, Jr., and the rest, breaks its frail lance on the stonewall of legal technicality that offers 100 per cent protection to capitalist crooks in their own courts.

• • • •

It well for workers to remember that it was this same "indictment expert," Pagan, who drew up the fraudulent charges against the political prisoners of the working class during the world war. Pagan was lauded by the yellow press as the cleverest expert on indictments in the land. He would surely leave no loop hole thru which the worker-war prisoners could escape. He didn't.

Take the attack, for instance, on the Industrial Workers of the World. Scores of lawyers, many of them not even sympathetic to labor, confessed that the testimony brought against the I. W. W. was of the flimsiest character, certainly not warranting a conviction. But Pagan's indictment against these workers not only stood as adamant, but a conviction was returned upon it by an ignorant and prejudiced ury.

The oil profiteers have never spent a minute in prison. The I. W. W., like other workers, were thrown into a foul jail immediately they were taken into custody under Pagan's indictment, the legality of which the courts never questioned. After their conviction and while the case was under appeal, these workers were sent to the Leavenworth prison, in Kansas, that is like all other prisons in that it has never held a Rockefeller, a Gary, a Fall, a Doheny, a Sinclair, or anyone else of the criminal rich. Prisons and jails are built for the working class.

• • • •

Look again, Workers! Judge McCoy, who found the legal loop hole thru which the oil millionaires escaped, is a democrat, appointed by Woodrow Wilson. The looting of the oil reserves took place under Harding's republican administration. Fall was a republican secretary of the interior. Thus a democratic judge comes to the rescue of his fellow thieves in the republican party; blood brothers in crime under the profit-plunder system. The sham political twins of Wall Street here stand naked.

• • • •

One more look at the "black satchel" and the $100,000 bribe. That little incident took place November 30, 1921, more than three years ago. The capitalist courts have what is called the "statute of limitations," which means that if the capitalist crooks can keep their crimes hid long enough, time makes them immune. There was a three-year limit on the "black satchel." But when workers are brought to trial, their whole past is raised against them in the hunt for something incriminating. Unless they are good and docile slaves it is even a crime for them to have been born.

• • • •

It is predicted that the civil suits in Wyoming will fall on a technicality just like the criminal proceedings in Washington. The most important witnesses did not even take the trouble to appear in the Wyoming trial. They took special care to stay away, including Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. He was off in Mexico and South America arranging for Standard Oil's purchase of Doheny properties in these parts of the world. Why bother about an oil scandal at home!

• • • •

Yet in February gasoline production was the greatest in record for the United States averaging 22,800,000 gallons daily. Stocks on hand now stand at the collosal total of 1,50,000,000 gallons. Yet that represents merely a 17-day supply.

The cry goes up over the world for "Oil!" It was for oil that Rockefeller's "Standard" opened commercial relations with Soviet Russia, greasing the way for recognition by the United States government itself. It was for oil that Japanese imperialism recognized Soviet Rule. It is for oil that the American, British, French and Japanese imperialisms growl at each, heralding the onrush of the next world war. thru the overthrow of capitalism itslef. That way his labor's

The wiping out of the Teapot Dome scandal shows the solidarity of American capitalist impernalism in its struggle for world empire. Against that well-organized enemy the workers of the United States, like labor everywhere, must consolidate its powers under the standard of the Communist International —"The International of World Labor's Victory." The way to triumph over the Teapot Dome profiteers leads thru the overthrow of capitalism itself. That way lies labor's struggle.

yet feel that without militant tactics already condemned by Van Bittner, and without any real aid being given the non-union miners by the U. M. W. of A. to organize them and aid them to fight the double foe of hunger and the company and state gunmen armies, little of permanent benefit will result.

The rank and file union miners are appealing to Van Bittner for real backing to unionize the non-union fields.

Why Limit the Strike?

The rank and file of the miners who are now organized point out the folly of calling out the non-union men in only the ten counties, and say tha if Van Bittner wanted to win any thing he would have called out th whole state and district.

They feel that under such reaction ary leadership as Van Bittner, a fail ure of this strike may destroy wha is left of the U. M. W. of A. in thi field, and open the way for the ne company union, which goes by th name of the Mine Workers' Associa tion. They are resolved to preven this company union getting control.

COAL MINE OPERATORS OF PITTSBURGH DISTRICT LOCK OUT MINERS TO FORCE CUTS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 6.—Union miners in the Pittsburgh district are being locked out to get them to consider a wage cut. Mellon's Pittsburgh Coal Co. is the leading producer in the field. Many operators began shutting down mines when the conference called by Ohio operators proved a dud and the union could not be enticed into discussing modification of the Jacksonville pact. The lockout was sent for April 1.

A Gentleman's Agreement.

The lockout will be informal. Bosses must not appear to halt production to gain more favorable conditions. As Black Diamond puts it: "While there is no agreement and operators have acted individually in reaching their conclusion, there is quite a consensus of opinion that the thing to do is to close until the relation between prices and cost of production becomes such that loss can be avoided."

Then it lets the cat out of the bag: "In a sense," it says, "the determination now reached is an outcome of the failure of the Cleveland meeting to occur. It is no secret that the promoters of the project fully contemplate closing mines if nothing should come of the overtures. Possibly they had in mind a plan to close at once when starting to make overtures and having the mines lie idle while the United Mine Workers' officials and members were thinking it over."

Operators Dodge the Word "Lockout."

The Pittsburgh & West Virginia railroad, after a canvass of the situation which showed that practically all the mines on the road were going to close, started preparations to close the road as far as coal traffic is concerned. The closing of mines in the northern part of the district is expected to be complete, in the rest of the district more or less so.

Black Diamond wants to be sure there is no suspicion that the operators are actually going on strike for better conditions. A lockout is not a lockout unless the operators call it a lockout. The journal says: "The operators who are closing their mines are not doing so in the spirit or form of a lockout, tho a practical result will be that the miners will lose what little employment they have had. The position is simply that of ceasing to produce because production is unprofitable."

That should furnish labor with a good precedent when the next big strike is necessary. The workers will not strike but will simply "cease to produce because production at existing wages is unprofitable."

Four Million in Profits Laid to "a Loss."

A glance at Mellon's Pittsburgh Co. which has closed and dismantled 16 of its 50 mines in the district shows that altho it claims a loss from last year's operations this loss is fictitious. With a production of 9 million tons the company paid all expenses, all interest, depletion and depreciation charges and had a profit left over for stockholders of $281,888. But this figure understates the profit. There have been excessive deductions for depletion since 1917 when the company had engineers revalue its coal reserves in order to put value behind the capital stock which was originally half water.

The actual income remaining to the owners in 1924 after paying the cost of production was $3,865,401 or 43c a ton. And the company can keep on paying dividends indefinitely out of stored up surplus profits which amount to over $78,000,000 or more than the entire par value of both common and preferred stocks.

Hoisting Engineers Strike Alone on St. Louis Jobs

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 6—The hoisting engineers have been on strike in this city since April 1st to enforce their demand for a wage scale of $1.65 per hour instead of $1.50. They have tied up completely some of the largest jobs in the city which includes the new Masonic Temple on Lindell Blvd., and the new Jewish Hospital at Kings Highway and Forest Park Blvd.

As usual, as in all craft strikes, the other trades remain at work, merely expressing their sympathy for the strikers. The carpenters, on April 2, came out on strike at the new Jewish Hospital.

This, however, was not in sympathy with the engineers, but was the usual Hutcheson jurisdictional quarrel against the sheet metal workers who had been given the work of installing metal window frames. Hutcheson would consider it revolutionary if the carpenters had struck to aid the engineers, and probably would have revoked their charter if they refused to go back on the job.

But as long as the carpenters are merely fighting the metal workers and not the employers then they will receive Czar Hutcheson's O. K.

STRIKE IN HOLYOKE TEXTILE MILL FOR INCREASE OF WAGES

HOLYOKE, Mass., April 6—Three hundred and fifty workers are affected by a strike at the Hadley mills for a 15 per cent increase in wages. Mill officials admit that the past year has been prosperous for them. The strike is under the control of the Holyoke Weavers' Union, an independent organization.

CONVENTIONS OF INTERNATIONAL UNIONS IN 1925

Left Wing Must Note These Dates

The T. U. E. L. groups will take notice of the following list of conventions which take place during 1925. Each group in their respective industry should prepare for thes conventions by supporting the nomination and election of left wing candidates who stand openly on the program of the T. U. E. L.

Each local industrial group should report regularly to their respective national committees of prospective delegates.

Where there are no national committees, these groups should report direct to the national office of the T. U. E. L.

Thousand Painters Strike.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—Delaying the new alliance of Washington builders, real estate men, bankers and commercial bodies which refused their demand for a raise from $9 to $10 a day, the 1,000 members of the local union of painters and paperhangers have struck.

MINERS WORKING IN WATER WHILE LAW IS SCORNED

Union Officials Give No Heed or Aid

McDONALD, Pa.—Miners' officials help to weaken the fighting spirit of the diggers and expose the organization to attacks from the operators, by refusing to take up the grievances, thereby playing into the hands of the coal barons. A favorite method of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. in attacking the men is refusing to drain water out of the rooms where the men work.

Here in McDonald we are forced to work in water because the company will not spend any money to install drainage. If you ever had to work in water you would know what it means either to dig or load under those conditions. Water splashing every time you strike with the pick or lift a shovel ful of coal.

Wet Every Day, All Day and All Over.

When we come out of the mine we are soaking wet from head to foot. In the winter our clothing freezes stiff and in many cases pneumonia is developed, which means death in some instances. But what do the operators care for the life of a coal digger and our officials agree with them. They claim there are 200,000 miners too many in the industry. This method is an easy way of eliminating some of the surplus.

Altho the mine laws of Pennsylvania plainly state that, "The mine foreman shall see that the water is drained out of working places before the men enter, and that the working places are kept as free from water as practicable during working hours,' yet the operators refuse to conform with their own laws or pay any compensation. Our officials do nothing either to have the law and the agreement enforced or force the payment for death or time lost as result of sickness from working in water.

Rank and File Must Clean House.

It is up to the rank and file miners to take the organization into their own hands. Officials must be made to fight for the interests of the miners and not the operators or we must throw them out and put men in these that will do so.

OKLAHOMA MINERS IN CONFLICT WITH BOSS OVER 1917 WAGE SCALE

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

OKMULGEE, Okla., April 6.—The superintendent of the B. and A. coal mine at Schulter, 10 miles south of here, is raising loud complaint because scabs are not "given protection" from the miners who refuse to go to work under the low wage scale of 1917. The mine has been forced to close down.

Ten days ago a flare up took place in which a scab was beaten and his supposed assailant arrested. Miners surround the workings and jeer the scabs when they quit work.

The superintendent complains, "One of our men was beaten up in Henryetta and threats of violence have been made against all of them."

"B. and O. Bill" Gives Left Wing Program an Introduction to Union

The activity of the Communists and the left wing in the Machinists' Union election is getting under the skins of the fakers. In a circular letter sent broadcast to every lodge in the country headed in large type "Note What the 'Communists' and the 'Anderson Group' are Doing," they make a flimsy attempt to discredit the left wing.

The letter is supposed to have been put out by District Lodge No. 48 at Portsmouth, Va., at least it is headed that way. But the envelopes in which the letters were sent are addressed by and addressograph with the number of lodge to which the envelope was addressed. Outside of the grand lodge there is very little possibility that any district lodge would go to the expense of having addressograph plates made for the entire country. The usual line of bunk and flag waving is contained in the letter. These mutton heads can not answer logic anywhere.

Thanks to their simple minds, the DAILY WORKER will be brot to the attention of every machinist lodge in the country. But, most of all, the statement of the left wing on the election and the candidates will be known to every active machinist. The entire statement which the DAILY WORKER carried, is reprinted in the above-mentioned circular letter. A few statements of bull about "B. & O. Bill" and that's all. This shows the utter bankruptcy of the officialdom.

POSTAL EMPLOYES' UNIONS NOT INVOLVED IN LOBBY SCANDAL; DEMOTED MAN WAS STRAW BOSS

William Sansom, the Chicago postoffice employe demoted for paying a senate clerk to help push thru the salary boosts, is not a worker in the trade sense of the word, but a subordinate boss. He was drawing a salary of $4,100 a year as assistant superintendent of delivery at Chicago until his suspension and now returns to the railway mail service at $2,450 a year.

With five other guilty higherups he is a member of the National Association of Supervisory Employes. Membership is restricted to bosses in first and second class postoffices. In private industry this association would be regarded as a managerial group.

The genuine trade unions of postal workers were not involved in the senate scandal which was exploited by the capitalist press of the country as an alleged stain on the organized postal employes.

Protesting against the whispering campaign the executives of the real unions issued a statement at Washington signed by Thos. F. Flaherty, secretary Natl. Federation of Postoffice Clerks; Edw. J. Gainor, president Natl. Assn. of Letter Carriers; Wm. M. Collins, president Railway Mail Assn., and Victor H. Stonesifer of the Natl. League of District Postmasters.

"The subordinate clerks, carriers, and other postoffice workers are not eligible for membership in this organization of supervisory employes," the statement pointed out. "These subordinate groups have separate organizations of their own, none of which are involved in these charges."

Being in the boss category the guilty men did not lose their jobs outright but were taken care of elsewhere in the service.

Left Wing Support of Anderson Slate Defeats 'B. & O.' Bill

The first returns in the election now under way in the Machinists' Union for general officers shows the Anderson slate, which is being supported by the left-wing, running ahead of the Johnston administration slate. In supporting the Anderson slate, the left-wing points out that they are not at all satisfactory to the militants, who accept the fighting program of the T. U. E. L. But as against "B. & O." Bill Johnston and his class collaboration administration, the Anderson group is preferable and they are urging the rank and file to support them.

At the last meeting of the Machinists' Lodge No. 199, the Anderson slate received 72 votes and Johnston 5. At the meeting of local No. 83, Johnston received 2 votes while the Anderson slate received 96. These are the first guns fired in Chicago district by the militants who are determined that Johnston shall be defeated in this industrial city.

Lumberjacks of Coos Bay Badly Exploited and Poorly Organized

By S. G.

COQUILLE, Oregon, April 2.—The Coos Bay Lumber company last year cut wages twice, first time 20 per cent, and the second 10 per cent, meanwhile raising the board from $1.05 to $1.25 a day.

Labor organization is very weak here, and only about 100 workers belong to the I. W. W. Last year when the Lumber Workers' Industrial Union 120 of the I. W. W. demanded that men be supplied with bedding, this was "given" but charged for.

When a worker walks all over the country looking for jobs, he has no chance to carry decent bedding or to keep it clean if he does. Now they furnish two sheets and two blankets, but force the workers to pay $1 a week for the laundrying of these.

There are about 10 camps of 200 workers each, and if one figures it up, the company collects about $8,000 a month for this laundry. The total wear and tear and laundry bill costs them about $1,000 a month; so the company makes the difference.

The bosses used to make money on us when were in the woods and awake, now they make money of us even when we are asleep. Ever since March 15, the camps have worked only five days a week.

Many of the workers, altho they complain that the union "don't do anything" for them, won't join the union and get action thru it. They expect somebody to come and do something for them, while they merely look on. They complain against paying dues to the union, but are the first ones into town—to lose all they have in a crap game.

Lumber workers, join the Lumber Workers' Industrial Union No. 120 of the I. W. W. and make it a union that will unite all lumber workers to fight for your interests. But no union can "get something for you" on a tray, the union is what you make it by your collective power. Line up and fight the bosses for more pay and better conditions.

BARBERS FORM T. U. E. L. GROUP TO AID UNION

Joseph Giganti Asks Aid of Progressives

Left wing movements, under the leadership of the T. U. E. L., are developing in almost every industry in America. The latest addition to this militant driving force that is determined to make the unions organs of struggle, is the International Progressive Barbers' Committee. Their proposed program of action is too long to print on this page, but the following are the main points covered, which show that this committee understands the class nature of the struggle.

1. Organize the unorganized.
2. Working agreements to be limited to one year.
3. International conventions to be held every two years.
4. Direct election of all international organizers and auditors.
5. Local officials to be elected yearly.
6. No racial discrimination in determining eligibility of applicants for membership.
7. Security against discharge without cause.
8. Admission of independent unions into the International.
9. Opposition to organizing the bosses (International officials give aid to barber bosses in organizing employers' associations.)
10. Job control.
11. Amalgamation.
12. International unity.
13. Free the class war prisoners.
14. Independent working class political action.
15. Recognition of Soviet Russia.

All those working in this industry and not in touch with this committee should write to Joseph Giganti, 656 No. Trumbull Ave., Chicago, Ill., who is secretary of the International Progressive Barbers' Committee.

OPEN SHOP HELD IN CHECK BY K. C. BUILDING TRADES

But Contractors Wait for Opportunity

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—In spite of jurisdictional quarels and lack of unity among the building trades workers in this city, the "open shop" drive, inaugurated by the Kansas City Builders' Association, has fallen flat. This is primarily due to the increase in building projects, a number of the largest jobs having to be completed at a certain time, with penalty clauses in the contracts if this is not complied with.

The arbitration proceedings reported some time ago, have been abandoned. Still the "open shoppers" are busy. Meetings have been scheduled for April 14th and 15th, and three speakers representing the American plan open shop conference will try to convince the Kansas City contractors that it is best to place Kansas City upon an "open shop" basis.

However, most of the large jobs, such as the $3,000,000 Sears and Roebuck plant, and the new President Hotel, must be completed within a given time and this can only be done providing there is no labor trouble. And so the Butler Bros., Chicago contractors, as well as other large contractors, have agreed to hire only union help.

This burst of prosperity is, of course, temporary. And Butler Brothers will mount the "open shop" band wagon when conditions become more favorable for the success of the so-called American plan.

Let's hope that the progressive movement within the building trades of Kansas City will strengthen its position before the next building season, so that instead of discussing arbitration as a solution of the problem they will be able to unite the building trades forces to frustrate by struggle any attempt to place Kansas City on an "open shop" basis.

Get $2 a Month Wage, Pay Fifty Cents to Government in Taxes

LONDON, April 6.—Native agricultural workers in Kenya (British East Africa) get less than $2 a month in wages and the British government takes one-fourth of this back in taxation.

Publication of this and other facts about British administration in this colony was termed "unfortunate" by under-secretary of state for the colonies, Ormsby Gore.

THE T.U.E.L.

Represents the Left Wing of the Labor Movement. Its Purpose is to Strengthen the Labor Unions by Amalgamation of Existing Unions, Organization of the Unorganized, and by Replacing Reactionary and Class Collaboration Policies with a Unified Program for the Transformation of the Unions into Organs of Revolutionary Class Struggle for the Overthrowal of Capitalism and the Establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government.

PLAN TO DISSOLVE INDUSTRIAL UNION IN I. W. W. OPPOSED BY RED INTERNATIONAL COMMITT

The Red International Affiliation Committee has previously asserted the I. W. W., where it is not utterly confused as to revolutionary th which must be the base of revolutionary practice, is following an anar tendency which is certain to destroy its effectiveness as a union by pac decentralizaton and an insane distortion of genuine democratic control b rank and file.

The Red International Affiliation Committee has many times pointe that the theories of anarcho-syndicalism are diametrically opposed to scientific theory of revolutionary industrial unionism, which was the cornerstone of the whole structure of the I. W. W. until—behind the smoke screen of lies about Soviet Russia and the Red International of Labor Unions, the anarcho-syndicalist misleaders captured the I. W. W. and steadily diluted this, its basic ideology.

Anarcho-Syndicalists Destroy Industrial Unionism.

The Red International Affiliation Committee has repeatedly called the attention of the membership of the I. W. W. that such fatally wrong theory, persisted in and carried into practice, would tend to disintegrate and destroy the I. W. W. because it removed its positive and firmly scientific foundation.

The anarcho-syndicalist leading group, consisting of some deluded fellow workers and some artful demagogues full of spleen as a snake is of poison have, in some instances, scoffed at our warnings or as in the instance of the petty-bourgeois fanatic who edits the Industrial Worker, endeavored to shift the blame for the admitted decay in the I. W. W. on to the adherents of the Red International.

A Stump Rancher in Distress.

It is true that he failed to explain how the Red Internationalists caused the decay in the organization when they hold no executive office anywhere in the I. W. W. It is also true that the frenzied editor fails to explain how it happens that he holds the adherents of the Red International up to scorn as a mere handful of wretches with impotent and worthless ideas in one column, while in another he pays tribute to our power and the force of our correct ideas as being so potent as to be responsible for all the ills from which he admits the I. W. W. suffers.

But if there were anything needed to prove up to the hilt that the cause of dissolution and decay, so far as it exists in the I. W. W., is chargeable directly to the anarcho-syndicalist theory and the leadership which follows it and of which the editor of the Industrial Worker is a noisy part, it is the publication in the third and fourth columns, page 2, issue of April 1, 1925, of the same Industrial Worker, under the editorship of the stump rancher anarcho-syndicalist editor, of a plan for abolishing industrial unionism in the I. W. W.

Confusion Upon Theory.

It is quite true that the plan was really adopted by a "mass convention" of General Construction Workers' Industrial Union No. 310 of the I. W. W., held in Seattle on March 23 and 24. That is the fault of the membership of I. U. 310 and indicates the complete confusion upon theoretical questions now prevailing in the whole I. W. W., with some honorable exceptions.

But it can scarcely be charged to the adherents of the Red International of Labor Unions that the plan finds space in the columns of the Industrial Worker, without a word of editorial criticism and with an approving headline about I. U. 310 advising "Organization on Job Lines."

Behold the Enemy!

This kindly "advice" to abolish industrial unionism in the I. W. W. was not printed by any of those terrible Communists or Red Internationalists. On the contrary it was given space by their bitter opponent. If a Communist had been editing the Industrial Worker, or even had an old-time revolutionary industrial unionist been its editor, he would have resigned rather than print without opposing comment the plan (which is to go to referendum in the union) for abolishing industrial unionism in the I. W. W., of which we give the essential parts as follows:

> "No. 1. The membership of Industrial Union No. 310 shall be guided by this convention ruling and the constitution of the Industrial Workers of the World."

In point of fact the "and" should be an "or," as the ruling conflicts with the I. W. W. constitution, also, if the ruling carried, "Industrial Union No. 310" would no longer be an industrial union, granting the doubtful matter that it is so now. But the meat of the plan is as follows:

> "No. 3. The offices of secretary-treasurer, general organization committee and the district offices shall be abolished and in their place there shall be branches. The said branches shall buy their supplies direct from > general headquarters at a > price."

Here we see the complete ne of industrial unionism. We s
"general headquarters"
"branches." That is all that be left of the I. W. W. and its bo industrial unions if this plan wi proval by the aid of the editor o
Industrial Worker. There are s teen other numbered paragrap this wondeful plan, but all only e ate the above program of liqui of industrial unionism. This twenty years of "education, org tion and emancipation!"

But not if the adherents of th
International of Labor Union prevent it! And it should be that the first voice to be raise only voice to be raised, in stre protest against this liquidation industrial unions of the I. W.
this article of the Red Interna
Affiliation Committee. And it s be noted that the anarcho-syndic are silent, and that even the el which wishes to be thought of a lutionary is silent, tongue-tied.

A Duty to Perform.

Only the Communists and R ternationalists in the I. W. W. care to uphold the key princi the I. W. W., the theory of r tionary industrial unionism.
where they must urge the memb of I. U. 310 to vote against th and to kill it overwhelmingly.

POLICE HOUND W. P. ORGANIZER TO AID BOSSES

Afraid Thread Strikers Will Read "Daily"

By WILLIAM SIMONS,
District Organizer, Workers Party.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., April 1.—By Mail.—As soon as the DAILY WORKER was sold in the American Thread Co. town of Willimantic, a campaign against the Communists began. Respectable businessmen hastened to the chief of police and appealed for protection against the red menace. I have definite knowledge that such complaints were made to Chief of Police McAthur.

The Police Get Busy.

My actions were watched. They tried to trace my movements. They asked for me in the news store. They watched the telegraph office. But this was not enough. They had nothing on me, but Communism must be kept out of Willimantic.

So insisted the company-influenced Willimantic Chronicle, which has not dared to back the strikers' demand for restoration of the wage before the 10 per cent cut. Editorially, it declared: "There is no room in Willimantic for Communism. Nor in this strike." It appealed to the strikers themselves to remove this menace from the city (yours truly).

Compelled to Move.

I left town Monday at 5 p. m. to attend a C. O. C. meeting of Local New Haven. As I rushed for the train, the Chronicle struck me: "Strikers want No Help From Communists—William Simons Under Surveillance of Police." The next day, this contemptible sheet wrote that I had left town, and implied that fear had driven me out. I was back Tuesday evening. When I came to the room that I had rented for a week (the week was up), I was informed that they were satisfied with me as a tenant, but they could not permit me to stay there any longer, because both the police captain and chief of police had instructed them to kick me out. I was compelled to seek other quarters.

On the March.

The prospect of being kicked from one house to another did not appeal strongly to me. I told the next one who I was. Nothing doing. He was dependent on others for his living. The next house I tried, no questions asked, no lies told. Two days later, when the landlady found out who it was she was harboring, I was told that when the week was up (the receipt was in my pocket) I was to out. In this town of churches, with ministers and priests in abudance, a worker is driven from house to house, his crime, the preaching of brotherhood of man on earth, the abolition of exploitation of workers by capitalists.

But there will be a merry chase. Communist propaganda will be carried on, despite the company's opposition, and that of the labor misleaders.

WORKERS OF NEW YORK TO HONOR CHINESE LEADER

NEW YORK, April 6.—The workers of this city will pay tribute to the memory of Sun Yat Sen, the noted Chinese rebel leader who for thirty years battled for his people against the forces of world capitalism and the native reactionaries, who are but the tools of foreign capitalists, at a mass meeting in Manhattan Lyceum, 66 E. 4th street, New York City, Friday, April 10, 8 p. m.

Sun Yat Sen was a sincere friend and admirer of Soviet Russia. He led the Chinese, poor and oppressed, upon the field of battle and broke down the solid wall of Chinese feudal reaction. Sun Yat Sen fought fearlessly against the imperialism of America, England and Japan. He was president of the southern Chinese republic and leader of the national revolutionary Kuomintang Party.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Workers Party, Local New York.

Letters From Our Readers

The Mask of Socialism Defined.

(The following is a letter from a worker to the treacherous socialist party which hits these false leaders squarely between the eyes. The letter is too good to require further introduction. Read it.—Ed. Note.)

Socialist party, Chicago,
Eugene V. Debs, chairman.

Sirs: In reply to your letter of March 17, 1925, appealing for financial help to reorganize the socialist party, I must frankly state that henceforth you cannot expect any help whatsoever from me; that, on the contrary, I shall do the best I can to tear down your false mask of socialism, so that the workers may see your true appearance behind the mask of socialism—the face of capitalism.

I became a socialist as soon as I began to think independently, and joined the party (in Europe) at the age of 14. Believing in the principles of socialism and believing that you represent the cause of socialism I have done everything to help the party. But I do possess the courage to admit my mistake. I have been led to believe that the socialist party represents the principles of socialism. Realising my mistake, I no longer wish to have anything to do with the socialist party—not that I am no longer a socialist, but because I have bound myself to the only party in America that represents the true socialist principles—the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

You claim to be Marxians! What irony! How false! It takes one only to read the Communist Manifesto to realize that you are the very opponents of the principles outlined in this great historic document written by Marx and Engels. This document raises the banner of revolutionary socialism and declares that the salvation of the workers lies in the hands of the workers alone. You have broken down this principle by making an alliance with the LaFollette middle-class capitalists.

In the leaflet, "Statement of Party Policy," you enclosed in your letter to me you state that "the socialist party has no regret for the part it played in the proceedings of that movement (LaFollette movement)." There is no question as to the truth of this statement. I believe you! Trotsky once said that the "socialist parties in Russia would be only too glad to forsake half of Russia," and I may as well add that the "socialists" of America as well as all over the world, would be only too glad to sacrifice half of the working class—sell them to capitalists, as LaFollette—in order to gain control of the other half.

It is true you have now broken with the C. P. P. A. But this is due to the fact that your hope to profit by selling the workers to middle class capitalists has met, as you admit, with disappointment. You believed that "those who sow that shall they also reap." Now you ought to realize that those who sow never reap and the reapers are those who never sow. The capitalist class in America is too strong to need assistance in their efforts to crush the working class. So, henceforth, the "socialists" in America will be compelled to do their working class crushing and radical baiting independently. It is only in Germany Austria, Poland, France, and even in England that the capitalists are obliged to accept the help of the "socialists" to crush the workers—hence their coalition with reactionary capitalist parties in those countries.

You "have no regret" for selling your party to middle class capitalists, for you will again in the future make alliance with the capitalists—as soon as they will need your help. As for the present the American capitalists find it more worth while that you stay without and work as "socialists" in the wrecking of the American working class. As "socialists" you have undertaken to wreck every true labor movement; expelling labor delegates from conferences whom you suspect of radicalism or Communism. What greater service could you do for the American capitalists?

You call yourselves "socialists!" You who have thrust the workers of Germany into the slavery chains of the Dawes plan framed up by Gen. Dawes, member of the capitalist international! Can you deny this? Have not the "socialists" given their consent to the Dawes plan? I fail to see the difference between the reactionary capitalists and the "socialists." The "socialists" like to play the role of opposition but wherever they gain control they continue the same oppressive and imperialistic policies of their reactionary capitalistic predecessors.

At the conclusion I wish to make the following request: Thht you change the name of your party to another. What right have you to call yourselves "socialists" when in reality you have nothing in common with socialism? There are in America the republican and democratic parties. There is the American Legion, the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Men's Assn., etc. So what does it matter if there's one more reactionary capitalist party or one less? Pray, call your party anything but "socialist."

That your party is not socialist can best be proven by the fact that the American capitalist press no longer attacks you, not because they have made peace with socialism but because they no longer see in you the representatives of socialism. They have found in the "socialist" party a loyal ally, a militant fighter for the capitalist system, and as such they give you every favorable publicity you desire.

The Chicago Tribune on March 3, in a correspondence from Berlin stated, unconsciously of course—were it consciously it would not tell the truth—that the "socialists" represent the "republican bourgeoisie," and speaks of the Communists as "true revolutionists." This is the very truth.

To those of the "socialist" party who have true socialism at their heart, I should like to say this: Open your eyes and look behind the mask of the "socialist" party, and, alas, you will find behind the mask hidden a powerful tool of capitalism. And then, when your hope is lost, you will suddenly find a relief—a relief to discover that there is one party in America to whom you can turn as the true representative of socialism—the Communist Party.

It is the Communist International vs. the capitalist international!

Respectfully yours,
S. Smulevitz,
East Chicago, Ind.

Quits Proletarian Party and Joins the Workers Party.

Comrade William Stepanoff, in a letter to the DAILY WORKER, declares that he has resigned from the Proletarian Party and has applied for admission to the Russian branch of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Editor DAILY WORKER:—Dear Comrade: As a candidate for membership in the Workers (Communist) Party, Russian branch No. 1, 1902 W. Division St., I wish to and do declare publicly thru the DAILY WORKER, the Communist organ, that I am no longer a member of the Proletarian Party, local Chicago, to which I belonged until this time.

Not Recognized by C. I.

I no longer recognize the legal existence of the Proletarian Party and do not accept its principles, which are in direct violation and opposition to the program and constitution of the Communist International, I believe.

The Proletarian Party has no definite position, is not recognized by the Communist International, as its section and the Communist Party of America, and such being the case, something must be wrong with the Proletarian Party.

According to the constitution of the Communist International, which, to my understanding the Proletarian Party does not accept, only one Communist Party can be recognized by the Communist International in a given country.

The national office of the Proletarian Party has a letter on file from the Communist International, which is a request that the Proletarian Party, as a revolutionary party, unite with the revolutionary Workers Party. I was not allowed to see this letter.

Time Wasters.

Altho the Proletarian Party preaches a world's united front, yet it would not take effective steps in favor of it. Instead, the membership of the Proletarian Party wastes time and energy criticizing and denouncing not only all the labor and political organizations, including the Workers Party, but the Communist International itself.

Therefore, from now on I sever all my connections with the Proletarian Party, and have nothing to do with same in the future.

Yours for the Workers (Communist) Party, the Communist International, and the workers' revolution.
William Stepanoff, 1608 W. Park Ave., Chicago.

HIBBEN BOOSTS SOVIET RUSSIA TO BROOKLYN FORUM

Brands Capitalism as "Mad Folly"

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW YORK, April 6.—"It is a certainty now that it is possible to conceive and to maintain a social order in which the waste, the exploitation, the ruthlessness, the mad folly of the system of selfishness in which we in America live today shall be replaced by something finer," Captain Paxten Hibben told the Brooklyn forum, referring to Soviet Russia.

Hibben recalled to his audience his experience in Russia during the famine year and of the "new faith in the future of mankind" which he saw in the faces of the Russians thru all the terrible sufferings.

Hibben says that he always stresses the "great fact that for the first time in history great masses of people really do control their own destinies, in Russia, and really have gained and kept unscathed the basic human rights for which the Russian revolution was carried thru." He deplored to the forum the presence in America at this time of impending recognition of Russia of so many anti-Soviet campaigners.

INEQUALITY BETWEEN SMALL AND LARGE CAPITALISTS SHOWN BY LIST OF INCOME TAXPAYERS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How long could you live and support your family without doing a stroke of work? Not long unless you boast an annual income of over $5,000, which you don't.

The sharp division between the great majority who must work to live and the minority whose ownership of property entitles them to live indefinitely on the work of others is reflected in the 1922 income tax statistics of the commissioner of internal revenue. His figures show that the average income of more than $5,000 includes at least a living derived entirely from property, while the income from property below that level would not provide even one month's rent.

The amount of income derived from property below that level would not provide even one month's rent.

The amount of income derived from property in 1922 increases from an average of $165 a year for the 2,471,181 persons who reported incomes between $1,000 and $2,000 to an average of $1,408,000 in the case of 67 whose net incomes were over $1,000,000.

Eighty-five Per Cent Must Work.

A total of 5,791,194 of the 6,787,481 persons reporting to the commissioner showed incomes between $1,000 and $5,000. In other words over 85 per cent of those who made reports could not possibly maintain a family without being of some use to society in return.

The table shows by income groups the average amount which flows in whether the individual works or not, also the average income tax paid:

1922 Income group	From property	Average tax
$ 1,000 to $ 2,000	$ 165	$ 11
2,000 to 3,000	298	10
3,000 to 5,000	721	40
5,000 to 10,000	2,200	180
10,000 to 25,000	6,900	818
25,000 to 50,000	19,640	3,570
50,000 to 100,000	42,900	12,000
100,000 to 150,000	83,000	32,800
150,000 to 300,000	140,000	74,700
300,000 to 500,000	264,000	111,500
500,000 to 1,000,000	483,000	239,000
Over $1,000,000	1,408,000	740,000

In the highest group are four individuals whose incomes averaged about $11,500,000, with over $8,000,000 apiece entirely from property. After paying their income taxes they still had well over $4,500,000 of property income left, not to mention the $3,000,000 which they got from stock gambling and other forms of personal "service."

Two Per Cent Are Cal's "Oppressed" Friends.

These figures show that the 1922 tax rate was not forcing any of Mellon's favored upper tenth to soil their hands with useful labor and that further reduction in their rate is not necessary to enable them to increase their wealth by further investment.

The fact that this small privileged class—just about 2 per cent of all listed by the census as gainfully employed—can live in comfort without ever lifting a finger toward assisting in the tasks of the community makes Coolidge's suggestion that they are being legally robbed by Uncle Sam as tax gatherer absurd.

University of Boston Objects to Babbitt Title; Editor Fired

BOSTON, Massachusetts, April 6.—Boston University objects to being called a "Babbitt university" and won't let its reserve officers' training corps be attacked in the school paper, The Bean Pot. Consequently, Henriette Perkins, editor, finds that freedom of the press is not in her school and is removed from office.

SEEK TO DEPORT GREEK RED IN SYDNEY PRISON

Sentenced to 6 Months for Communism

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SYDNEY, Australia, April 6.—Achilles Demetriades, a Greek Communist, is held in Long Bay prison serving a term of six months for organizing the Greek workers in Australia, and the capitalist papers are shrieking for his deportation upon the completion of his prison term.

Demetriades arrived in Sydney from Shanghai, China, having left Soviet Russia a year ago. On his arrival from China, Demetriades gave an interview on conditions in China, in which he declared, "The influence of Soviet Russia in China has become so perceptible that it is preventing realization of the rapacious imperialistic disposition again this land, which, being awakened, turns its glances to the country of the worker and the peasant, the only country which looks not to the frustration, but to the liberation of the oppressed peoples."

Joins Communist Party.

While in Russia, Demetriades was a member of the social democratic party, but later joined the Communist movement, and on his arrival in Sydney, became a member of the Greek branch of the Communist Party.

Demetriades formed a Greek Working Class Union in Sydney. The Greek consul then joined forces with the authorities in Sydney, and his arrest followed.

Demetriades is now being attacked by the newspapers. "Truth," one of the vilest of Sydney's kept press, declares, "Why should the Commonwealth government hesitate for one moment in its plain duty. It must deport Achilles Demetriades, foreign revolutionary and pervert. This creature is now in the hands of the law in Long Bay prison, packed and ready to be dumped back amidst the filth from which he sprang."

Comrade Demetriades has a broad knowledge of French, Russian and Italian. After attending the college of Samsoundas, he went to the University at Ekaterindar (Krasnodar), which he attended during the first period of the Russian revolution.

Now Is the Time if Ever it Was

This Is the Time For Action!

THE Communist movement is being mobilized! Every worker convinced of the principles of Communism—whether in or as yet out of the Workers (Communist) Party—is being asked now and until June 15 to aid in building up the standard bearer of Communism in this country—the only English Communist daily newspaper in the world!

The goal is 15,000 NEW SUBSCRIBERS by June 15 and it can be reached by a very simple task for determined Communists: the task of getting two new subscriptions to the DAILY WORKER.

You, a convinced Communist—are asked to get where it will do most good. In the shop and the union there is one worker who will make good material in the ranks of organized, intelligent, revolutionary labor. With his sub on this brick you can "Make Another Communist." Clip, determine—and send it in!

The second part of the task assigned is better done if it can be accomplished like the first. If you can't do that—do this:

Pay for a sub out of your own pocket (if you can) to convince another worker. "Our Daily" reaching him every day of the week, giving him the inspiration of the action of revolutionary labor the world over—and the principles that guide it—will surely make still another Communist.

THESE ARE TWO THINGS THAT YOU CAN DO—and this is the task of every Communist until June 15 that will add at least 15,000 new subscribers—future members of the Communist ranks who will make 15,000 other Communist who in turn will add greater strength that will lead eventually to working class power.

What have you done to accomplish such a simple task for so great an accomplishment?

A. C. W. A. TAILORS WIN WAGE RAISE IN BALTIMORE

Organization Campaigns Planned Elsewhere

NEW YORK, (FP)—Joseph Schlossberg, general secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers reports the strike of mail order factory workers of the city of Baltimore settled, with the strikers' pay raised an average of nearly fifteen per cent to union standards. More than 400 new members were taken into the union during the walkout. Fifteen hunred workers benefited. A side line activity of the union in Baltimore is the raising of funds ror an Amalgamated library in that city.

Organization drives are under way in Cincinnati and Cleveland, two markets the union is seeking to thoroly organize. In Cincinnati an organization meeting was held with every open shop represented by committees and it was decided to draw up a list of demands for each shop, the matter to be handled by the shop committees co-operating with the Cleveland joint board. In Cleveland, a better organized city, an enthusiastic mass meeting was held of the employes in the big Joseph & Feiss company plant, biggest openshop firm the union is fighting there. Sewing up of these two markets will strengthen the Amalgamated greatly nationally.

Panama Assembly Appeals to Cal to Save 2 Workers

BALBOA, Panama, April 6.—The Panama national assembly has passed a resolution protesting the sentence of two laborers to hang for an alleged murder. The sentence was imposed by United States district judge Guy Martin, under the Canal Zone law despite the fact that capital punishment is prohibited by the constitution of Panama. An appeal has been made to president Coolidge.

The two men, Teofilo Vasqus and Leiciades Mena Moya, are charged with killing Safurnino, whose body was found floating down the Chagres river. The people of Panama are incensed at the death sentence.

N. Y. Working Children Suffer Physical Ills

NEW YORK CITY, April 6.—Half of New York's working children of 14 to 15 years have physical defects aggravated by work they are doing, State Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton reports. Most of the children in industry went to work because their pay was needed at home. Those with flat feet must be on their feet most of the day; one-quarter of those with eye defects work under eyestrain; more than half of those with heart defects work under conditions of nerve strain.

STEAM LAUNDRIES PREY ON THE HEALTH OF WORKERS; HOURS LONG, WAGES LOW, CONDITIONS ROTTEN

(By The Federated Press)

NEW YORK, April 6.—"Work in a model laundry need not, per se, be injurious to health," concludes the special bulletin of the New York state labor department on hygienic conditions in laundries and their effect upon the health of workers. But the report shows that about 75 per cent of steam laundries in Manhattan and Bronx are the lowest class with worst conditions for workers and consequently much ill health among their employes.

Many Women Workers.

The Steam Laundry Workers' International Union is a comparatively young one but it has attacked the problem of organizing the thousands of unskilled and semi-skilled workers in this growing industry. There are many foreign and Negro workers, and most of the women are married. All of them work such long hours and are so fatigued at the end of the day that organization work among them is greatly hampered. The workers leave the laundries at six or later in the evening and hurry home with heavy bundles of their own wash usually. The laundries are in the worst sections of the city and generally in old abandoned loft or garage buildings.

Washing Department Worst.

Conditions are worst in the washing department. Here only husky men are employed because of the severity of the work. The floors of the washing rooms are almost inevitably flooded with water because the washing machines are filled too full. Over-filling also prevents adequate washing of the clothes but the laundrymen put so much work on the employes that over-filling is almost a necessity to finish the jobs by night. Lids are wrongly left off the machines so that the rooms are always steamy and damp. The workers suffer greatly from draft when doors are opened because of the over-heated room. The wash-room is almost always dark, often in the basement, so that eyestrain results and accidents are increased Ventilation is poor.

Long Hours.

Men in all but the best steam laundries (4 per cent of the total number in Manhattan and Bronx) work 13 to 14 hours on Monday; 12 or 13 on Tuesday; 9 to 10 on Wednesday; a few hours on Thursday and usually not at all the rest of the week. They must lift heavy loads and the majority of them come to suffer from high blood pressure and speeded-up pulse. Women do most of the work in the ironing department and work from 7:30 a. m. to 6 p. m. Monday thru Thursday and little on Friday; none Saturday or Sunday. Seats for them are the exception. Most of them wear sweaters all the time against drafts because of the over-heated rooms. There are no rest rooms and no lockers as a rule. The workers' street wraps are hung on nails and become steamed during the day.

Unsanitary Conditions.

The ironing floor is seldom swept and the walls never painted. Sometimes the floors are left to rot so that they cannot be cleaned. None too clean milk bottles full of water are kept near the girls to supply drinking water instead of having satisfactory bubble fountains. The women suffer more from colds than ordinarily and develop flat feet and varicose veins easily. There is considerable danger from carbon monoxide absorption from the gas-burning irons. Sorter girls are liable to contract various infectious diseases from handling soiled clothing.

Low Wages.

Wages for girls range from $9 a week for shakers to $24 for more skilled work, with much variation from laundry to laundry. Piecework on various ironing machines pays up to $40 a week, tho this is high. Men in the washroom make $20-$32 a week generally. The turn-over of labor in the industry is great, altho most of the workers tend to remain in laundries, shifting from one to another.

Carolina Mills to Continue Full Time

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 6.—The proposed program of curtailment of operations by Gaston county textile mills, set for April 10, has been abandoned, temporarily at least, it was announced.

New orders justifying continued operations on a full-time basis have caused the change in plans, it was said. Gaston county has ninety-seven cotton mills, operating 1,136,593 spindles and employing 20,000 persons.

AMALGAMATED CALLS STRIKE IN TEN SCAB SHOPS

Both Hillman and the Bosses for Delay

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 6—Altho they generally were advised against any action at the present time, the left wing element who control the local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in Pittsburgh decided that just now, while the busy season is on, is the time to strike to enforce the union demands in the shop of Mitchel, the Tailor, and the Leeds company. The strike involves 10 small shops.

Hillman Wants Delay.

Sidney Hillman, in advising against the strike, maintained for a negotiating committee for a little while longer until the slack season would fit in with no possibilities of a strike, and thus maintain "peace in the industry."

The left wing however, thought otherwise.

This strike grows out of a grievance pending since last year. Both concerns have persistently pursued the method of contracting a great deal of their work to outside and very often to unorganized places. Employment has therefore remained very insecure.

Bosses Want Delay.

Last year the union placed an agreement with the bosses for all the work to be done in the shop. The bosses continued to delay the definite reply until after the busy season.

Now these two companies have refused to sign this agreement until other shops in the city have been signed up. The strike is complete and it is being given full support from the joint board in Cleveland, the manager of which is being pushed ahead to give such support by the left wing of the union there.

SEVERAL STRIKES IN NEW ENGLAND TEXTILE CENTERS

NEW YORK, April 6.—Several scattered strikes of textile workers are still going on in New England. Three hundred and fifty workers at the Hadley mill, Holyoke, Mass., are striking for a 15 per cent wage increase. The workers have an independent union which is taking advantage of the mill owners' statement that they have been prospering. Rug workers at Stephen Sanford & Sons plant at Amsterdam, N. Y., are striking.

The cotton textile workers at Utica, N. Y., are reported to be returning to work under the mayor's committee's proposal that they accept 5 per cent reductions until May 30, by which time the committee expects to have ascertained thru accountants whether the Utica Steam & Mohawk Valley Cotton Co. is justified in cutting wages for its workers.

Agricultural Tax Reform Bill Passed by Soviet Executive

MOSCOW, April 6.—The third session of the central executive committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has been closed.

The committee has passed the agricultural tax reform bill introduced by the government. This measure will greatly alleviate the burden of taxation borne by the peasants. The reformed tax is to be about 40 per cent lower than the present rate. In figures, it means that about 300 million rubles will be levied in the coming financial year as against 470 million Out of the lump sum, one hundred million rubles are to be approtioned for the local village budgets. The tax arrears are postponed till next year, the arrears which have suffered from partial crop failure to be transferred on those which have fared better.

On the budget question, the session has resolved to pass a fixed yearly budget in 1925-26, with the provision that the further increase of the budget is to be based on the growth of non-tax income in connection with the development of state industries and commerce. The executive committee also passed a resolution recommending that cultural needs be allotted a large share in the expenditure part of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

After the closure of the session, the members of the Soviet government left Tiflis for a visit in Armenia.

BUILDERS AT WORK

WHAT WILL YOU DO FOR MAY DAY?

Make Your Decision Now!

The DAILY WORKER will have a special 12-page edition on May Day. Our editorial department is now making preparations to make this the best special issue the DAILY WORKER has ever had. There will be special articles, cartoons and features of all kinds to send a thrill of pride down the spine of a revolutionist on this May Day—a day for the working class—OUR DAY.

But what preparations have you made? What decisions have you taken, how large a bundle will you want for your meeting and to distribute before it?

Detroit is planning an order of 20,000. Other locals are sending in orders now and we want your order as soon as possible. Decide to make May Day the day on which you celebrate past accomplishments of our movement and a day on which you begin another year of work to build our Workers (Communist) Party.

Get your DAILY WORKER Committee and your local City Central Committee to decide a wide-spread city sale and free distribution. And be sure to get enough for your mass meeting. Let us make May Day—OUR DAY to build our movement by building "OUR DAILY."

Tell us how many copies you want. It will also help to secure new subs to fill your sub campaign quota.

SCAB SCHOOL TRAINING "NEAR EXECUTIVES" TO REFUSE RAISE TO THEIR KIND, NOW WANTS CASH

La Salle Extension University, the open shop correspondence business college, offers $1,000,000 of preferred stock at 7 per cent thru the open shop banking firm of Hell an' Maria Dawes, the Central Trust Co. of Chicago.

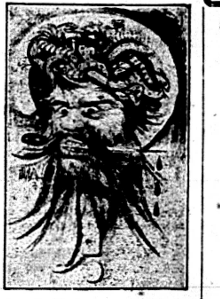
The La Salle is on the unfair list of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16 because most of its textbooks and other printed matter is done in what union printers know as rat shops. The school caters to "near executives" and other would-be businessmen, according to President J. G. Chapline, who says, referring to the volume of instruction by mail which the school is giving: "Annual gross sales for the past six years have averaged $7,242,770.88." The rakeoff each year to the promoters averages almost a million, according to Chapline.

Among the business problems that until recently were set to the aspiring "near executives" for answer by mail was how to turn down an employe who asks for a raise and deserves it, but to whom you don't want to give it. The student "almost-bosses" kept sending in various solutions of this important problem until the vexed puzzle was taken out of the curriculum.

Rather Contradictory.

A keen associate had pointed out to the La Salle executives and near-executives that such stuff would have a discouraging effect on the 90,000 white collars who were filled in other courses of the school with the business patter of service, vision, ideals, mutual co-operation and the rest. Vision and raises deserved but refused would not mix well, in the virgin craniums of embryo Napoleons of business and finance, it was convincingly demonstrated.

The million that is wanted from the investing public is to be used to retire loans, buy the factory building that houses the school and supply some ready money, known in the business world as "working capital."



B-r-r-r! He eats 'em alive! That's a Bolshevik; as represented in the capitalist press. But do you know how a Bolshevik really looks? THE STORY OF A PATRIOT
By Upton Sinclair.

A most interesting story by a master-propagandist, built around a red-blooded "he-man," a hundred-per cent American who turns out to be a spy of big business. A propaganda novel you can hand to your shop-mate to read after you have enjoyed it.

IRISH WORKERS FORCED TO FEED ON DRY LEAVES

Famine Victims Aided by Other Workers

NEW YORK, April 6.—The famine in Ireland is a fact, despite the denials of the capitalist press. 750,000 workers and peasants are living on dried grass. The cattle are dying and the sheep are all dead. There is no peat or turf for fuel, since the rains have made it impossible to dry it. The fishing industry has been ruined by a British syndicate.

Fed With "Hangmen's" Bill.

The Irish workers and peasants who have fought with arms in their hands against British imperialism, get their "freedom" in the form of the Free State. This Free State has just passed a "hanging bill," by which any person continuing the fight for Irish independence may be sentenced to death, any person sheltering anybody who speaks against the Irish Free State may be given a sentence of five years or more.

This same Free State tries to conceal the famine—while Colonel Westropp, leader of the Irish Farmers' Union, declares that the Irish peasants and workers are eating dried leaves.

Workers of All Countries Aid.

Only the workers are helping the Irish workers and peasants. The Russian, German and British workers are rushing aid to them. The Irish workers in the United States will help their brothers and sisters in Ireland, as they helped them in the fight against British imperialism.

The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee appeals to all workers in this country to contribute at once to the relief. Send all contributions to 19 S. Lincoln Street, Chicago, Ill. Get your organization to contribute. Agitate in the unions. The need is great; people are starving. Do your part.

Foreclosing on France

The Chicago Tribune suggests, in commenting n the French cabinet and financial crisis, that rance might well part with some of her colonial ossessions and thus liquidate, partially at least, er debt to America.

Early in our history this government bought he Louisiana territory for a song and immensely ncreased the exploitable territory of the nation.

The French islands in the West Indies and French Guiana on the northern coast of Southern America would probably be acceptable to our imperialists—on their own terms. The possession of these territories would make easier the penetration of Latin-America and, used as naval and military bases, bulwark American imperialism in the Caribbean.

By a process of foreclosure American imperialism can grab off valuable areas, not only in the western hemisphere but all over the world. But force or the threat of force is needed to make foreclosures effective. This force is now being displayed to the peoples of the Far East in the junket of the navy. It is not for mere pastime that millions are spent on the cruise of the biggest fleet ever assembled in the Pacific.

Capitalist press dispatches also announce that there is a feeling of irritation in official circles in Washington aroused by the dilatory tactics of the French government in reference to the foreign debts and contain more than a hint that some pressure is being brought to bear in Paris.

The French capitalists, now third-raters in world finance, in the midst of a first class crisis, are discovering that the memory of LaFayette is not going to be accepted as collateral or cash by the House of Morgan.

The present situation is full of promise for the French Communist Party which has shown such remarkable vitality in the last few months. The French masses have borne the oppression of their native capitalists, but they will not submit to a double slavery.

The Struggle in Seattle

The Seattle labor fakers have got themselves into a fine mess. They seem to have labored under the impression that when Communist delegates from unions are unseated in central labor councils that the fight is over.

The youngest member of a Communist Junior group could have pointed out this fundamental error—that this marks the beginning and not the end of the struggle.

If it were not for the war made on Communists by the tools of the bosses in the labor unions we would have to devote more time to picking out slogans and issues with which to go to the masses. Seattle is a fine example of how this works. From a purely local struggle the fight has taken on a statewide character and is a matter for discussion in all the units of the labor movement.

This suits the Communists fine. They have no fear of the result of such a discussion. It may not result in their reinstatement, but all questions touching the reasons for the war on the Communist Party will be brought to the attention of thousands of workers whom it would be hard to interest otherwise.

Communists want the unions to engage in a militant struggle for the daily demands of the workers—wages, hours, better working conditions, more job control—they want the unions to form the basis of working class power. So does every intelligent worker.

When the fakers fight the Communists they are forced to talk about concrete things, to descend from the plane of abstraction.

The fight for actual Communist leadership expressed in the election of Communists to offices in unions is only incidental to the main struggle for bringing the Communist program to the masses.

This the fakers will never understand.

Hylan's Police and the Unions

Supporting Tammany Hall in return for favors given their officials has not gained immunity for the rank and file of the New York unions from police persecution.

So intolerable has the persecution become, taking the form of dispersing meetings and protecting scabs, that the Teamsters' Union delegates were forced to protest at the last meeting of the Central Labor Union.

They wanted action, but the fakers gave their plea a cold reception. It was Morris Rosen, a Communist, who led the fight on the floor of the Central Labor Union for war on police brutality, and it was Lefkowitz, a LaFolletteite, who made the compromise motion usual in such cases—the appointment of a committee to interview Mayor Hylan.

New York labor can stop the open use of the police in strikes if it uses its power properly, but wearing out the carpet in Hylan's office is not the way to do it.

A few big meetings, agitation in all the unions, withdrawal of all support from capitalist parties, mass resistance to the breaking up of union meetings, will accomplish the purpose, but the whole labor movement must be mobilized for action.

Aside from the evidence of the extension of police powers in the metropolis in the protest of the Teamsters' Union, the incident is further proof that when in real difficulty with the bosses and their government even the most conservative unions find their readiest and most able defenders among the Communists.

The Cuban Strike

It is easier to stop all industry in Cuba than it is in the United States, but the theory is the same —solidarity of the workers against the capitalists.

In Cuba this solidarity of the workers is a fact as shown in our news of yesterday. The largest sugar factories and railroads are tied up and a general strike of all Cuban lbor has been called.

It will be recalled that last winter there were a number of deportations of "foreign agitators" carried out under the guidance of General Crowder, the representative of American imperialism in Cuba, and word went out that the Cuban labor movement had been purged of red influence.

It appears, however, that in Cuba, as well as in all countries, the workers rebel without any assistance from outside when the pressure from above becomes intolerable. The Cuban workers are giving us Americans a lesson in class consciousness as well as helping us by carrying the fight to the imperialists. The struggles of the colonial workers become more and more important to the American working class as our ruling class extends its fields of robber enterprise.

We owe to the Cuban workers the utmost support we can give them because they are fighting our battles as well as their own.

The American Siberia

If the Russian revolutionists had received in the years before and after 1905 a letter from Siberia of the same tone as that we published yesterday from northern Minnesota they would have felt, just as we should feel, that the spirit of Communism, the will to fight oppression, was not dead.

Northern Minnesota is the American Siberia—part of it at least. The Mesaba range country is the private principality of the steel trust and revolts of the workers have been crushed there just as brutally as were revolts of the Russian workers and peasants. The law on the Iron Range is the iron law of the steel trust. It crushes the feeblest attempts at ordinary trade union organization with the same ferocity with which revolutionary uprisings are put down.

Yet on the Iron Range the Communist Party members are working—educating and organizing. Compared to the might of heavy capitalist industry, their strength is little but capitalism decays while the revolution lives and grows.

The workers of the Iron Range, schooled in the bitter struggles they have been thru, will play a mighty part in American labor and revolutionary history before the present chapter is closed.

The Arica Plebescite

The preparations are being made for the plebescite of the population of the Arica district, ownership of which is claimed by both Peru and Brazil and the reports from there are much like those from Silesia when the masses there were about to decide between Germany and Poland.

A Chilean army is said to be burning and ravishing, terrorizing resident Peruvians and forcing them out of the disputed territory. Peru has asked for United States marines to supervise the ballot.

Marines may or may not be sent, but it is quite certain that American imperialism will profit from the enmity between the two nations. Divide and conquer is the slogan of Wall Street. In Chile, American capital has grabbed the rich copper mines and runs the government. In Peru it looks around to see what loot can be most easily secured.

Not by fighting among themselves but by uniting under the banner of the Pan-American Anti-Imperialist League will the peoples of South America secure peace, prosperity and freedom from robbery by the bandit power to the north.

The Paterson Case

The law passed in 1798 was resurrected in Paterson, New Jersey, the other day to railroad eight striking silk workers to prison for a pear.

The strikers held a meeting that was broken up by the police, a number of the strikers were arrested and the sentence is the result of the case to date.

If old laws can be found under which workers can be prosecuted, well and good. If they are not dug up by some enterprising research expert of the bosses, new ones are passed.

Law is a convenient thing—as long as workers respect the measures passed in the interests of those who rob them. When they no longer look upon law as an impartial code but as the expression of the will of the ruling class, as Communists do, all the laws under the sun will not save capitalism and its government.

Fortunately, the capitalist class, as in Paterson, is forced from time to time to give concrete examples illustrating Communist teaching on the role of the state. This method is hard on the victims, but it is the way we learn.

Boston University removes the editor of the school paper for using the term "Babbitt" too pointedly and criticizing the reserve officers' training corps.

Wasn't it in Boston where they threw a lot of the king's tea into the harbor and started the revolutionary war?

British Leaders Urge Trade Union Unity

The Press Attack.

The Russian Trade Union Congress had been held from November 11 to 18. The speeches made at that congress by the British delegation—in line with the formal statements quoted above—were repeated in the European and British press, especially the representative speech of Purcell chairman of the delegation. The new situation created by the cordial relations built up between the British and the Russian trade unions was commented on by several of the other trade union national centers. These comments, notably those from Switzerland and Austria, showed a striking tendency to look favorably, tho with reservations, upon the proposals of the British delegation. The press organs of the Second International, however, took up a very definite line, and, as will be seen in the sequel, by the time the matter came to be fully discussed two months later the continental trade union centers themselves had retreated from the tentative positions they had begun to take up at the beginning of December. Amongst the Second International organs the most important in its attitude was Vorwarts, the official paper of the German united social-democratic party. Vorwarts declared the report of Purcell's speech, of which the substance had been made public in England by the Moscow correspondent of the Daily Herald, to be a "forgery." Immediately Purcell, in a special message from Moscow, confirmed the authenticity of the report. Vorwarts, being unrepentant, a full transcript in both English and German was dispatched to that journal. The transcript was signed by Purcell as a proof of its authenticity. However, Vorwarts contented itself by publishing extracts from the report, adding that there must be mistakes in the shorthand.

This was the opening up of an attack on the British delegation which has continued almost unabated ever since. In this attack Vorwarts was joined by Het Volk, the chief daily paper of the Dutch social democratic party, in which there appeared a series of bitter attacks by Mr. Stenhuis executive member of the I. F. T. U.; while Le Populaire, the official fortnightly of the French socialist party, had a leading article with the headline, "The naive delegates of the trade unions will deceive no one." Again, in the International Press Correspondence of Feb. 11, a Communist publication, but one which on occasion is quoted by the secretariat of the I. F. T. U., we find the statement that: "The January number of the Hungarian social-democratic organ, Socialismus, has published a letter addressed by the German General Federation of Trade Unions to the Hungarian Federation proposing joint action against the English delegation."

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith the fourth instalment of extracts from the Special Supplement to the Monthly Circular of the Labor Research Department of the British Trade Union Congress devoted to furthering world trade union unity.

The Special Supplement began with a preface by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam) and is composed largely of original documents; correspondence between the Red International of Labor Unions and the Amsterdam right wing officialdom, reports of conferences, etc.

The publication of this Special Supplement, the very frank and militant announcement of its purposes by the president of the Amsterdam International, the complete exposure of the treacherous and disruptive tactics of the right wing which it contains, all are indicative of the tremendous hold that the slogan of World Trade Union Unity has gained upon the British trade union movement, the most powerful section of the Amsterdam International.—Ed. Note.

But quite as much prominence was given to this matter in the columns of the British capitalist press. The attack was begun by the liberal Manchester Guardian on Nov. 25, 1924, and pressed by the Daily News on Nov. 28 and Dec. 13. The Times, Morning Post and the Daily Mail also joined in the chorus, while the Daily Telegraph, Dec. 12, 1924, referred to the delegation's activities as "an almost incredible record of treasonable mischief."

Against that attack in the columns of the social democratic and bourgeois press of Western Europe the British Trade Union Congress had no means of defence. The delegation, wisely or unwisely, had pledged itself, before leaving for Russia, not to make any report, speech or written article individually until their full report had been submitted to and approved by the T. U. C. General Council. They had taken a pledge of silence, and (with one unfortunate exception at the end of January) their pledge was loyally kept. This pledge prevented also the official organs of the Trade Union Congress and of the British Trade Unions from answering the attack on their delegation—even when that attack was echoed in their own camp, such as the New Leader's remark on the delegation that "It is certainly creating incredible mischief on the continent where trade union and socialist papers are referring to Mr. Purcell's 'irresponsible and untimely statements.'" While refusing to enter into any controversy, Mr. Purcell, in an interview with the Daily Herald representative, characterized the campaign against the delegation: "The Manchester Guardian the Daily Mail, the Daily News, Vorwarts and Het Volk . . . when this strange press combination was most nearly in agreement, it was furthest from the truth . . . The German and British press—capitalist and alleged socialist alike—have vied with each other in distorting the delegation's speeches.

Joint Meeting of the I. F. T. U. and the Labor and Socialist International.

This press campaign continued then during the whole of December. On January 3 and 4 a joint meeting of the executive committee of I. F. T. U. and the bureau of the labor and socialist international was held at Brussels. The joint meeting was presided over by Emile Vandevelde, who delivered an attack on the British trade union delegation (not present at the meeting), and declared that it was necessary for the joint meeting to discuss their activities. This discussion was, however, postponed. On the second day of this joint meeting M. Vandevelde published an article in Le Peuple (central organ of the Belgian labor party), in which he said of the British delegation:

> They saw in Russia what they hoped and wished to see. Their hosts, past-masters at this kind of game, showed them the "Patiomkin villages"* of the Soviet Republic. Undoubtedly, unable, as they were, to speak a word of the language, they had no direct contact with the people . . . They saw; but they could neither ask questions nor inquire. But this does not prevent them declaring unreservedly that the Bolshevist regime has succeeded . . .

It has been shown, here and elsewhere—in the Manchester Guardian, for instance—that the optimism of Purcell and Bramley is flatly contradicted by the official reports of the Soviets themselves.

It will be seen from the section of this supplement dealing with the actual report of the delegation that these insinuations of M. Vandevelde are entirely unwarranted by the facts. The delegation had their own three interpreters with them as advisory delegates, men with some skill, and intimate knowledge of Russia and of the Russian language; one of them, George Young, formerly of the diplomatic service; one of them Captain Grenfell, a former naval attache at the British embassy at St. Petersburg; and one Mr. McDonell, who had not hitherto been associated with the labor party, but was actually, until recently, on the staff of the British foreign office.

This, however, is by the way. It will have been made clear from the citations given that what almost amounted to an organized campaign was being carried on in the newspapers, and by the officials of the Second International. This does not apply, on the whole, to the British representatives, on the Second International. This campaign was to have its effect on the subsequent meeting of the general council of the International Federation of Trade Unions at Amsterdam.

Political Murders in Bulgaria -

By G. DIMITROV
(Moscow)

ONE can truly say that in no other country in the world are political murders so frequent and numerous as has been the case in Bulgaria since the white-guardist government of Zankov came to power.

Even the fascist regime of Mussolini in Italy, the cruelties of Horthy in Hungary and the military dictatorship of Primo de Rivera in Spain are, in this respect, far surpassed by the terrorist regime of Zankov.

It suffices to relate the terrible fact that during the last few months 36 political murders and 151 other murders were committed in Bulgaria, in order to realize that Bulgaria has established a record as far as political murders are concerned.

Even the Zankov government perceives that its regime of uninterrupted bloodshed and of unending political murders is calculated to discredit it abroad. It is therefore endeavouring by means of well-paid agents abroad to flood the European press with articles and reports aiming at belittling the importance of these facts and representing them as the unavoidable result of the conspiratory arctivity, organized abroad, of Communists and "Moscow agents."

In addition to this the Zankov government has a defender in the Bulgarian section of the Second International. The social democratic party has never, either in parliament, in its meetings or in its press, considered it necessary to protest against the mass murders of the Zankov government.

Even today, when the Zankov government is seeking a way out of the cul-de-sac at which it has arrived as a result of its own terrorist regime, by an even greater intensification of the existing terror and by preparing a fresh provocation against the working masses, when this terrorist regime is demanding fresh numerous victims on an even greater scale, the social democratic party remains true to its treacherous and provocatory role.

The central organ of Bulgarian social democracy Narod issues the following explanation and justification of the cruel deeds of the Zankov government which is unexampled in its cyinicism:

"Before the war a human life was valuable, and the whole country was shocked when the press reported regarding any murder. Now, after the war, it seems as if we all, rifle in hand, are hunting down our fellow man. Our present society has been rendered savage, we have all become mentally sick, the spiritual values have been choked in blood. Our epoch is bloody, indescribably bloody."

But revolting as this base attitude of the Bulgarian friends of Vandervelde and MacDonald, of Wels and Barmat, of Fritz Adler and Otto Bauer is, one must admit that it is thoroughly consistent. The social democrats, during the time they were in the Zankov government, as well as afterwards when they were in "opposition," have participated in the bloody terrorist regime of the Bulgarian bourgeoisie against the working people of Bulgaria.

There exists not the least doubt that neither the lies of the white-guardist Zankov government, nor the "theoretical" explanations and justifications of the trerorist regime on the part of the white-guardist social democracy, will be able to hide the real objects of the political murders and of the bloody anarchy in Bulgaria, or as the actual responsibility for these horrors and atrocities from the eyes of the working people in Bulgaria and from the workers and peasants abroad. The indisputable facts are as follows:

1. The Bulgarian bourgeoisie overthrew the government of Stambulisky, which possessed an overwhelming majority in parliament, by the military putsch of June 9th, 1923 and organized the brutal murder of Stambulisky, Daskalov, Duparinov and many other peasant leaders with the immediate participation of all bourgeois parties, including the social democrats, in the new government.

2. In order to consolidate its power, the Zankov government has prevented the legal existence of two political mass parties—the Communist Party and the Peasants' League—destroyed their press, closed their clubs, confiscated their funds and arrested more than 2,000 members of the Communist Party and of the Peasants' League on no legal grounds whatever. It thereby provoked the September revolt of 1923.

3. The Zankov government (again with the participation of all the bourgeois parties including the social democrats) took advantage of the defeat of the working and peasant masses who rose in defence of their right and liberties, in order to massacre in the prisons without any trial, thousands of workers and peasants who took no part in the revolt. Among them were the following who will always be held in memory by the Bulgarian working people: Boris Sotirov, Dimiter Kandov, P. Savoff, St. Kiradshiev, A. Popov, Petrunov, N. Ginev, A. Schichkov, Maltchev, A. Chalatchev, D. Stoilov, Jenu Markovsky, Iv. Iliev and many, many others.

4. Later on, agents of the government murdered the former mayor of Samokov, M. Daschin, who after the September events was the only Communist leader of the workers in Samokov left alive. Petkov, a member of parliament and member of the Peasants' League was also murdered. During the court trial it transpired that the murder was committed on the order of the Zankov government. His successor in parliament, Comrade Hadji Dimov, was foully murdered in the open street. Three months ago the well-known Communist worker from Plevna, Karavassiliev, disappeared without leaving any trace behind him after he had been arrested by the organs of "public safety." Two weeks ago the well-known Communist from Sofia, Waltcho Ivanov was murdered after his arrest by the police. Dim. Zachariev, a member of the Chaskovo municipal council, was murdered, in the same manner. And lastly, the Communist member of parliament, Theodor Straschimirov, was murdered in the open streets of Sofia. Previous to this, Stojentchev a government minister had openly threatened him in parliament (in connection with his exposures of the terrorist regime of Zankov) that he would be murdered. According to the latest reports of the Bulgarian government agency itself, the women Communist Gitcheva, who was recently arrested, has committed "suicide" in prison. Thus we see—unceasing murder, murder and again murder of the working class and of the workers' and peasants' leaders.

5. In order to annihilate the Macedonian revolutionary organization and to smooth the way to an understanding with Pasic, the Zankov government made use of the Protogerov band, supported it in September 1924 with Bulgarians soldiers and murdered hostile Macedonian revolutionaries. Under the protection of the government and with the co-operation of the Bulgarian embassies in Vienna, Belgrade, Rome etc., this Protegeroy gang is carrying out death sentences on Macedonian and Bulgarian revolutionaries living abroad. It was in this way that the well-known Macedonian revolutionary P. Tchaulev was foully murdered in Milan.

6. The Zankov government has kept in prison since the 12th September (already 18 months), in addition to many other workers and peasants, the Communist member of parliament Chr. Kabatchiev and the former Communist members of parliament A. Ivanov and N. Penev without any trial, as it is generally known that the accusations against them are absolutely without foundation.

7. On the strength of the law for the defense of the state the prisons are being filled with Communists and members of the Peasants' League. Those lawyers who dare to appear before the courts to defend the accused Communists and peasants are subjected to terrible mishandling on the part of the officials and the fascist bands. Thus, after the trial of the Communist member of parliament Dr. Maximov, an attempt was made to assassinae his defender, Patev a bourgeois radical. A bomb was thrown into his house. The defenders of the accused workers and peasants of Lom, Dr. Dugmedshiev, Al. Athanasov and A. Mevorach and others were brutally beaten.

8. As a result of its regime of terror the Zankov government has roused the whole of the working people against it, and is now organizing, with the aid of the credits specially granted by parliament, the so-called "guerilla" for the persecution and innihilation of the "destructive elements" in the country. This "guerilla" possesses the right to arrest and to shoot without any investigation any one whom it considers to be a "dangerous enemy" of the state.

The above-mentioned facts suffice to show that the responsibility for the political murders and the increasing bloody anarchy rests solely and entirely with the terrorist regime of Zankov.

The Communist Party of Bulgaria is fighting with all its forces for the possibility of a legal existence and for the legal struggle of the workers and peasants. It rejects the method of individual terrorism, not from sentimentality but on account of its political futility, and relies for victory upon the collective united revolutionary struggles of the masses.

The method of political murder is the resource of the weak and desperate. It is precisely this method which the Zankov government is applying, as it is completely isolated from the people, as it has nine tenths of the people decidedly against it and, in spite of this, wishes to retain at all costs the terrorist power of the Bulgarian capitalists and profiteers against the will of the people.

AS WE

By T. J. O'Fl

SHOULD all the maimed, crippled and paralysed war veterans of Italy who fought and bled for King Emmanuel, follows the example of Giovanni Piroli, his majesty might have to take an organ around the streets and grind it for a living. Else he might commit suicide, which would be more befitting to his rank and perfectly satisfactory to us. What Piroli did was to appear before the king's gate tattered and torn, a mutilated wreck of what was once a man.

PIROLI asked to see the king, and unless we are being spoofed by a cub reporter, the gateman was unusually obliging. He hied forth to Emmanuel and told him what he saw at the portals. The next reel brought the crippled relic of humanity to the king's presence. The hero told his king what had happened and then made the polite suggestion that compensation for his valor was in order. He hinted that an iron cross or a new pair of Boston garters would not fill the bill.

• • •

THE best is yet to come. After Piroli returned from the war, at least all that was left of him, a greedy landlord came along and evicted him from his cottage. It appears that the landlord was selling hot dogs on the market place in Rome while the hero was ducking Austrian bullets. While the hero was away fighting for his king, the landlord was getting gloriously drunk but remained sober long enough to purchase the cottage in which the hero was born. There is a moral, right here if you care to paint or otherwise adorn it. Evidence that a man may accumulate wealth despite an occasional sniff at a whiskey glass, while many strict teetotallers die with dry whistles because they each lack the price of a glass of orangeade.

WHEN the hero returned he was so sick that he could not marry a munition maker's daughter or even a red cross nurse. In fact, this was his only gain from the war. The landlord forgot about the cottage for a few weeks while he celebrated the victory of Italian arms over Austria, but [illegible] began to get scanty, he wandered around to collect his rent. The sight of a paralyzed hero almost gave him the hiccups, but he smothered his desire to kill when informed in trembling voice that Piroli had no money, nothing but a breast full of patriotism. At that the landlord had a lot of patience.

THE landlord, exercising his constitutional right as an S. L. P. man would say, refrained from reverting to barbarism and realized that he was on the civilized plane. He did not kill his tenant, but evicted him without further discussion. Attempts of the tenant to point out that he was a wounded patriot kept the landlord's temper at the boiling point. Whoever heard of a patriot getting his reward anywhere but in the neck and Piroli got it twice in many different places.

• • •

SO much for the landlord. The curtain falls for a moment to indicate the passing of time and Piroli is shivering beside his sovereign after having told his ale. "What can I do for you?" said the sovereign between sobs, inwardly hoping that Piroli would be a decent fellow and ask for a drink and a Camel cigarette. But when the monarch was hit up for the

DEFECTIVE EQUIPMENT WRECKS ERIE TRAIN, KILLING THE FIREMAN

GREAT BEND, Pa., April 6.—J. K. Loohm, fireman, was killed and William McGill, engineer, was injured, and passengers in a west bound Erie passenger train were thrown from their seats here today when the locomotive plowed thru two cars that jumped the track from an east bound freight in front of the passenger train.

A broken brake beam caused the two freight cars to leap into the path of the passing train.

COMMUNIST IN TOUCHING STORY OF IRISH FAMINE

Peasants Dying for Want of Food

Robert Stewart, a leading member of the British Communist Party, and now secretary of the Workers' International Relief in Ireland has written the following story of conditions in the famine region in that country which shows the necessity for immediate action on the part of the American workers if thousands of poor peasants and workers are to be saved from death thru starvation and disease caused by hunger.

The DAILY WORKER urges its readers to get busy at once and send in contributions to the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee with headquarters at 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago.

By ROBERT STEWART

Thanks to the Workers' International Relief and their effective relief on the west coast of Donegal, many families face the perilous future with a little more hope in their hearts. I have just returned from a survey which included the area from Teelin to Dungloe, a stretch of mountainous country covering roundabout a hundred miles or more and taking in the villages and towns of Teelin, Kilcar, Killybegs, Ardara, Lettermacaward, Glenties, Dungloe, etc. Personal observation confirms the reports of our committees thruout the area. The people have been taugh to hide their misery and veil their poverty as a thing to be ashamed of or to furtively beseech their "betters" for a moiety of their charity.

The advent of the W. I. R. has changed that attitude. The surprising fact that people like themselves in other lands have heard of their trouble and have sent food, fuel and clothing to them, has awakened not only hope but courage, where only

RUMOR PERSHING SLATED AS NEXT WAR SECRETARY

Weeks to Be Out by Mid-Summer

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Rumors that Gen. Pershing would be named as the next secretary of war, to stimulte a fascist "loyal" spirit thruout the country, were afloat in Washington within an hour after it became known that John W. Weeks, present head of the war department, had suffered an attack of thrombosis (paralysis), and would probably soon resign.

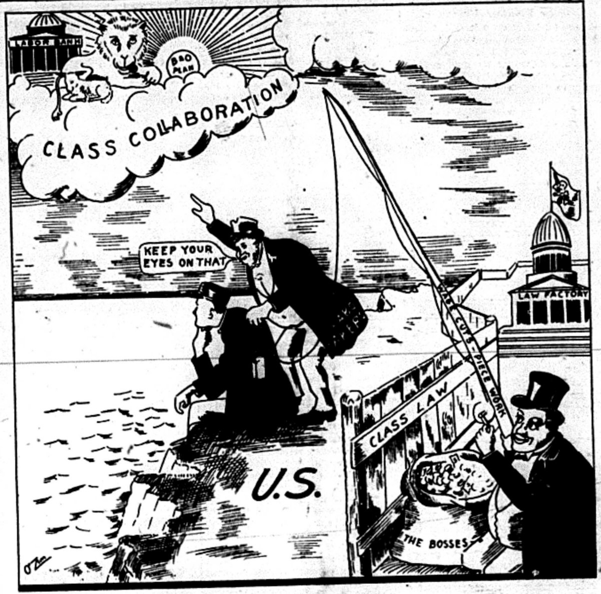
Later news of Weeks' condition indicated that he would be only temporarily crippled, and that he might be strong enough to serve out the present year, but it was admitted that he probably would be out of the cabinet by midsummer.

Pershing has been ordered to Peru to have charge of the Tacna-Arica plebiscite, in case the Peruvian protest at the Hughes-Coolidge award in that land-grabbing case does not become a flat rejection of the plebiscite plan. His selection to head the war department would require the appointment of another man for the South American job.

Traditionally, the secretary of war has been a civilian. This act may determine President Coolidge against the selection of Pershing. On the other hand, he may decide to set another precedent for enlarging the scope of choice to be employed by the White House. If he finds, however, that Pershing is a candidate for the presidential nomination in 1928, the general will go to South America.

France Coming Under Dawes Plan

"IN THE SWEET BY AND BY"



Capitalism's Mirage.

CONSPIRACY BETWEEN LOS ANGELES POLICE AND THE YELLOW SOCIALISTS FAILS; SO DID RAFAEL ABRAMOVICH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES.—(By Mail.)—Rafael Abramovich had a strong understanding with the police force of this city, but that did not save him from having his anti-Soviet lies stick in his throat when he took the platform at a meeting in the Central Labor Temple to slander the workers and peasants of the first workers' and peasants' government in history.

The collusion between the yellow socialists, the police and the capitalist press was apparent when, two hours before the meeting was scheduled to open, the notorious Los Angeles Times appeared on the streets with a headline: "Local Reds Plot Man's Death" and giving as the basis for this provocative falsehood, a fake letter alleged to have been received by Abramovich during the day.

The Fake Letter.

The fake letter threatened to shoot the yellow stoolpigeon as soon as he opened his mouth against Soviet Russia. Of course, the screed was written by one of the rats accompanying Abramovich on his tour or by the handy scribes of the department of justice who are adepts in forgery.

The meeting was called to order by Hassell, president of the Central Labor Council who announced that the officials of the Central Council and the socialist party made an agreement with the police department, which would insure adequate protection. Then the hypocritical C. J. Taft, of the Civil Liberties Bureau, spoke. He outlined the policy on the Abramovich question, which is the policy of the Jewish Daily Forward and of the yellow socialists.

Abramovich outdid himself in slandering the Russian workers and peasants. He said that 60 per cent of the women in Russia were prostitutes. This statement inflamed the minds of his audience and shouts of "Liar! Liar! Defamer of women!" were hurled at him from all over the hall. A young girl dressed in red stood up in the gallery and sang the International.

Used Clubs Freely.

From the time Abramovich started until midnight, he was not able to make himself heard beyond the second row of seats. The police used their clubs freely and were kept busy ejecting men and women from the hall who were pointed out by the socialists. One officer was heard to remark

WOMAN SLUGGED AND DRUGGED IN TRACTION VOTE

Gunmen Active in Car Steal Election

A woman election worker was slugged, bound, gagged and drugged, several alleged gunmen, said to have been creating a reign of terror in various districts where bitter contests had been waged, were arrested, and some cases of ballot stealing and lesser fighting were reported today as Chicago, in general, went lethargically to the polls to cast its vote on its much-heralded traction ordinance.

The woman victim was Mrs. Barbara Gileson, 30. She was found unconscious in the garage at the rear of her home. At a hospital she told police she had been struck down as she was about to take out her car to carry voters to the polls.

In the suburbs—Evanston and Oak Park—it was predicted from a canvass this afternoon that the Sunday movie and entertainment ordinances would be defeated 2 or 3 to 1.

The customary reports of gunmen touring various wards, kidnaping and slugging election workers, stealing ballots, and terrorizing voters, poured into police headquarters during the day.

CAPITALIST PRESS USING CRIPPLES TO BOOST SALES

Park Cork Legs Until Day's Work Is Done

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 7.—An instance has just come to my notice, where a one-legged cripple can be made to produce more profits than a man who has two legs.

For over two years the two largest Toledo papers, The News-Bee and The Blade, have been giving premiums for new subs.

Each paper employs a crew of solicitors, who were furnished with premiums to entice the reader to drop one bunk sheet and take the other one.

More Circulation.

It seems the circulation manager of one paper has been hard pressed with the necessity of getting more circulation and at the same time cutting down expenses in his department.

He has discovered by experimenting that he can increase circulation faster by using cripples as solicitors.

This came to the writers' notice in the following manner:

The writer answered the door the other day, when a cripple with only one leg asked me if I would not subscribe to The News-Bee, which he was soliciting for.

I have no use for the capitalist sheets, but I wanted to know how business was, so I asked the solicitor what premiums they were giving.

He said he did not get any premiums to work with and never had any trouble in getting business.

I thought perhaps The News-Bee had at last stopped giving premiums, so I inquired of other solicitors and was informed that they were all using premiums, but the cripples who had to work without them.

The other solicitors say that the crippled solicitors get twice as much business as they do with premiums.

This solicitor who is crippled has a cork leg that he puts on after he is thru working.

BRITAIN PUTS PRESSURE OF CREDIT AND FRENCH SECURITY ON HERRIOT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, April 7.—The French cabinet crisis today was holding up negotiations toward a security pact, as well as negotiations toward settlement of the French debt.

The foreign office stated it had received no information regarding the new French financial policy and could not confirm reports that France intends to settle her debts in order to restore her credit abroad.

INVITE HOWAT TO SPRINGFIELD MINERS' PROTEST

Kansas Fighter Ruled Off Ballot by Machine

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 7.—Alexander Howat, veteran leader of the Kansas coal miners, has been invited to speak at the protest demonstration, this Sunday, at Reservoir Park, to protest against the effort of the Farrington-Lewis regime in the United Mine Workers' Union to usurp the presidency of Illinois Sub-District Four, to which Freeman Thompson, spokesman of the militants, was regularly re-elected at the last elections.

Howat is himself a victim of the same vicious tactics that are being employed, in the attempted ousting of President Thompson, to break the power of the opposition in the miners' union to the betrayal contained in the long-time Jacksonville wage agreement.

Howat Candidacy Is Rejected.

But Howat's name was not even allowed to go on the ballot in the race for the presidency of the Kansas district; altho his name was placed in nomination by every local union in the state.

In order to maintain an appearance of legalism, an effort was at first made by the international machine to force the Kansas organization to keep Howat off the ballot. When this failed, then the Lewis-Farrington got busy and struck Howat's name off the Kansas ballot.

Springfield Miners for Thompson.

The Farrington-Lewis machine knows that the coal miners of the Springfield sub-district are of the same kind as their Kansas comrades. If there was any complaint against the election of Thompson, as president, it should have been lodged with the sub-district organization. This was never attempted.

Instead the Farrington controlled district executive committee, in star chamber session, and in violation of the laws of the organization, took up the attack on the vote cast by two of the militant local unions, denied a hearing to President Thompson, or any other sub-district official, and rendered its decision declaring its tool, John A. Walker, president of the sub-district.

Tell it to the Miners.

District President Farrington declares in a letter to Sub-District President Thompson that he must get out, let Walker take his place, and if he doesn't like the decision he can ask for an appeal.

Howat and others who have fought the Lewis-Farrington machine in the past know what it means to take an appeal against the decision of this crowd. The refusal to let Howat present his case before the last international convention of the United Mine Workers' Union was perhaps the greatest crime ever perpetrated against a member of the miners' union.

New and startling facts as to many other crimes of the Lewis-Farrington dictatorship in the miners' union will be revealed by the speakers at Sunday's demonstration, which it is expected more than 5,000 miners will attend.

MORGAN IS MOVING IN ON FRANCE

Herriot Favors Giving Up Roads and Post

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, France, April 7.—The chamber of deputies today referred to the chamber's committee on finance, the law proposed by the new minister of finance, de Monzie, which would enforce the Dawes' plan of the Morgan bankers on France.

Herriot Consents.

The consent of Premier Herriot was given to the law, which would give French finances entirely into the hands of the American bankers and the French industrialists, and the law was then submitted to the chamber this morning, after having been discussed and approved by the cabinet. The cabinet discussed the law at two conferences before submitting it to the chamber.

While the de Monzie proposal contemplates a voluntary contribution of ten per cent of all wealth, it likewise provides for a forced levy if the voluntary contribution is not forthcoming.

The de Monzie proposal would abolish government ownership of all industries now operated by the government; and established a practical dictatorship of the bankers.

Made Clementel Resign.

The de Monzie proposal adds fresh proof that Clementel was forced to resign as finance minister at the demand of the Wall Street bankers, showing the control over the French government held by Morgan and company.

'IF GERMANY PAYS WE ARE RUINED', SAYS FRENCHMAN

Dawes Plan Strangles French Industry

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 7.—The impossibility of making the Dawes' plan work is beginning to dawn upon the manufacturing interests of France. The latest complaint of M. Dardel, president of the syndicate of French manufacturers of rolling stock sums up the whole situation in the phrase. "If Germany pays we are ruined."

The industrial chiefs of France, foreseeing the ruin of Franch industries by the inflood of German goods received on the reparations account, are making representations to the government to accept only merchandise not interfering with products manufactured here.

An Unsolvable Dilemma.

In the case referred to by M. Dardel thru a letter written to the minister of finance, reference is made to the Weisbaden agreement providing for the delivery by Germany to France of 4,500 passenger cars, representing a value of 80,000,000 fr (about $4,000,000), which Dardel complains should have been spent with French industries.

The letter stresses the fact that France today is in a better position than ever to manufacture rolling stock and railway supplies, as during the war most of the factories in the north were destroyed and others were constructed in the south to take care of the war needs. Since the armistice the northern factories have been reconstructed bigger than ever.

Only Market has no Money.

The letter states that the French factories are able to build 5,000 locomotives annually, while the French roads do not need more than 100. It adds that the overproduction is accentuated by the German deliveries of many times the needs.

"We cannot sell to England, Germany and America," the letter says. "Our only clients are the Balkans, who cannot pay."

LEFT WINGER, TAKEN FROM JOB BY LEVIN, STUMPS AMALGAMATED OFFICIALS IN HOT CATECHISM

(By a Member Taken Off the Job.)

The reactionary officials of the Amalgamated in Chicago are making a hollow pretense of democratic and legitimate procedure in dealing with the militants taken off the job for having distributed the leaflets issued by Local 5 of New York. They are calling in the militants one by one, cross-examining them and trying to scare them into promising to "behave"; that is to quit fighting against the class-collaborationist policy of the Hillman-Levin machine.

This week I received a communication from the union notifying me to appear before the [illegible] of directors of my local union. On arriving at the

COMRADE RADWANSKI WILL MAKE FIRST SPEECH ON TOUR TO AID POLISH PRISONERS NEXT SUNDAY

The first meeting arranged by the International Red Aid and its Polish section, the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland, at which Comrade Radwanski will speak, will be held Sunday, April 12, 1 p. m., at International Workers' Home, 3014 Yemans St., Hamtramck, Mich.

There will also be English, Ukrainian and Russian speakers.

KLAN EMPLOYER HAD DYING GIRL IN HIS GARAGE

Took Her to Hammond on Forcible Joyride

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

INDIANAPOLIS, April 7.—The attention of the prosecution in the Oberholtzer-Stephenson case today was directed toward a search for Karl Gentry and Earl Klenck, both of whom were charged with the former klan leader on a conspiracy count growing out of the alleged criminal attack upon Miss Madge Oberholtzer.

Owns Factories.

The indictment against Gentry and Klenck, lieutenants of David C. Stephenson, who, besides being known as a strong political factor in Indiana, owns several large manufacturing plants, alleged that they held Miss Oberholtzer a prisoner for a short time in Stephenson's garage. This, according to the indictment, took place after Stephenson and the girl had returned from Hammond, Ind., where Mrs. Oberholtzer attempted to take her life by swallowing a slow poison.

Arraigned Yesterday.

Stephenson was to be arraigned today, probably late this afternoon. Several other important cases in criminal court might delay his pleading until tomorrow, it was said.

Eph Inman, counsel for Stephenson, said the court would be asked to quash the five indictments against his client, but declined to tell on what grounds this request would be based. If the annulment motion is overruled a plea of not guilty will be offered.

Girl is Worse.

Miss Oberholtzer who swallowed poison after the alleged attack in a sleeping car, again has lapsed into unconsciousness and physicians said she could not survive.

Abatement pleas probably will be argued in court next Saturday or early next week as the court indicated a congested docket would prohibit immediate consideration.

If the court finds the abatement motions do not contain sufficient reason for quashing the indictments the defendant will plead not guilty and an early trial asked, Eph Inman, defense counsel said.

County Prosecutor William Remy said he did not believe the grounds for the abatement proceedings were sufficiently strong to warrant quashing of the indictments. He expressed the belief that members of the grand jury were chosen legally and that the testimony of Dr. John Kingsburg, who treated Miss Oberholtzer, justified Stephenson's indictment.

The former klan leader and politician accompanied his attorney to the court room. His usually rully cheeks were pale.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 7.—David C. Stephenson, 33, former Indiana grand dragon of the ku klux klan, met today with Eph Inman, his chief counsel, and other legal aides to chart the course thru which he hopes to convince Judge James A. Collins, in criminal court that the five indictments charging him with criminally mistreating Madge Oberholtzer, 28, should be quashed.

No Foundation for Defense.

When his case is called for hearing, probably next Saturday, Stephenson will attempt to show the indictments were returned without the testimony of competent witnesses, and that the selection of the county grand jury was not in accordance with the law.

County Prosecutar William H. Remy said he was certain Stephenson's allegations were without foundation and that the defense's abatement motion would be overruled. In this event the former klan leader has made known he will plead not guilty.

Girl Unimproved.

After a restless night Miss Oberholtzer's condition was reported unimproved today. Her physicians said they were amazed at the vitality which has enabled her to withstand the effects of a slow poison since March 18. She swallowed the drug after an alleged attack in a sleeping car which she charged to Stephenson.

Earl Klenck and Karl Gentry, Stephenson's bodyguard, charged with him on a conspiracy count, surrendered to the sheriff and were released on $5,000 bonds each.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 7.—Attemping to avoid prosecution on legal technicalities, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, Klansmen charged with David C. Stephenson, Indiana politician and former ku klux klan leader, with alleged conspiracy to kidnap Madge Oberholtzer, 28, filed pleas in abatement when arraigned today before Judge James A. Collins in criminal court. Stephenson is charged in four other indictments with criminally attacking Miss Oberholtzer.

Judge Collins set next Saturday as the date for hearing the motions of all three. Pleas of not guilty will be entered by the defendants, Eph Inman, defense counsel, said, if Judge Collins overrules the motions to quash the indictments.

Miss Oberholtzer was hovering between life and death this afternoon, her physician announced.

GOSSIP OF THE NATION'S CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 7—Secretary of State Kellogg comands the most important source of news in Washington, outside the White House, when congress and the supreme court are in recess. Twice a day, for many years past, press correspondents have gone to the state department to question the secretary or his chief assistant, and generally they have seen one of the other of these officials. But Kellogg is now shutting down this gate against these interviews. He cancels one after another. Hughes in his least communicative moods would show himself twice a week, and his alternate could be seen once a day. Kellogg has dropped the use of Under-secretary Grew for these occasions, and is cutting down his own appearances to only about two a week. And even when he does come out into the big reception room he has nothing to disclose.

This failure talk to the press has become so marked as to start all kinds of rumors as to his actual grasp of the business of the department, and as to the degree of his hold upon the job itself. More often than not, when asked where the United States stands on a given matter, he puts responsibility on President Coolidge for his answer or lack of answer. He seems to consider himself simply a messenger of the momentary impulses of the man in the White House toward foreign affairs.

Charge Mental Bankruptcy.

Senate leaders have charged that there is today no American foreign policy. They say there is merely Calvin Coolidge, who has never had any taste nor aptitude for world politics or economics. Strong men come down from New York to spend Sunday with him, and push him into a position toward some British or French or Japanese proposal. Other strong men run down from Pittsburgh, or come from Chicago or Palm Beach, with different ideas. He listens, and then Dwight Morrow, of Morgan & Co., who gave Coolidge his own electric hobby-horse to ride, gives his old classmate the final sugestion. In cabinet meeting on Tuesday or Friday the president broaches his plan, perhaps, and Hoover offers amendments based on his own knowledge gathered by his thousand agents thruout the world. Coolidge seldom changes his decision to suit Hoover.

There is one cabinet member, however, to whom Coolidge turns with confidence. Andrew Mellon is Coolidges idea of a great American—he is immensely rich, is in control of great numbers of corporations and some big banks, and never deviates from his game of piling up more money for the interests in which his fortune is involved. Coolidge will not accept a suggestion from Britain or Japan or any other country until Mellon has pronounced it sound.

Coolidge Economy Unpopular.

These past few days have been unhappy ones for both Coolidge and Mellon, and grimly humorous for Hoover. Economy as preached by Coolidge and endorsed by Mellon has begun to hurt business. Patriotic standpat citizens have reduced their purchases. The court crier, speaking over the radio from Washington, has explained that the Coolidge gospel of economy did not contemplate that Bill Smith would fail to buy a spring hat as usual this year, or that Mrs Bill would forego that new calico dress marked down to 98 cents. After all, the factories can't make profits unless they run, and they can't run unless someone buys new hats and dresses. So, to the propaganda-dazed audience at the receiving end of the radio the administration gives its permission to go ahead and spend money again.

In this difficult time the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, rolling up millions in dues and "associate memberships" and subscriptions to its magazine, which is devoted to fighting public ownership and trade unionism and a higher standard of living for the workers, has taken a firm stand. It wants the government to repeal the federal inheritance tax law. It has prepared a referendum proposal to its membership, which will come back with an overwhelming majority, proposing that the federal government should drop this tax, now and forever, and "co-ordinate" federal and state taxes so as to relieve the poor rich and their estates.

Henry Ford, once hated by Wall Street as a dangerous radical, is preaching the same doctrine.

NEW YORK COMRADES TO HONOR SUN YAT SEN AT BIG MEMORIAL DEMONSTRATION FRIDAY EVENING

NEW YORK, April 7.—A meeting in honor of Sun Yat Sen, the leader of the national revolutionary Koumintang Party of China and president of the southern Chinese republic, will be held on Friday evening at 8 p. m. at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th street, New York City, under the auspices of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Sun Yat Sen was one of Soviet Russia's staunchest friends and a consistent and fearless fighter against the imperialism of England, America and Japan. He was a leader of the Chinese working masses and devoted his life to the cause of the oppressed and enslaved proletariat of China. Every friend of Soviet Russia, every worker exploited by world imperialism, should join with the Workers Party of New York in paying tribute to the memory of Sun Yat Sen.

Come to the meeting on Friday night and bring along as many workers as you can. Honor Sun Yat Sen. Demonstrate against Wall Street's war-breeding policy. Oppose war with Japan to grab China for Mr. Morgan and Co. Demonstrate against American militarism which exploits and crushes American workers. Prominent speakers will address the meeting. There will be appropriate music and singing.

Painters Fight for Raise.

WASHINGTON, April 7—Final demand for a raise in pay from $9 to $10 a day, effective April 6, has been served on master painters in Washington by the local union, representing 1,000 men. The bosses have rejected it.

that the socialists were the best informers he ever ran across.

The following arrests were made: Jennie Schwartz, A. Kemdver, Mrs. Esther White, Mrs. W. Smaller, Abe Walters, A. Rogat, Julius Rebalsky, Daniel Sigal, Lulu Levin, and Nelomoid Fink. The latter was charged with inciting to riot, while the others were booked on charges of disturbing a public meeting.

Socialist Swore Out Complaint.

Over $1,300 in bail money was raised on the streets within one hour after the arrests by comrades and sympathizers. A local socialist by the name of Weisenberg swore out a complaint. The trial was postponed from April 3 to April 29, and the accused will have individual trials.

Heart's local rag, the Examiner, gave the most biased report of the meeting, running bold type in telling of the alleged use of a hatpin on a detective by one of the girls placed under arrest. Abramovitch finished his coast-to-coast tour but he probably did not speak three-quarters of an hour at an open meeting since he left New York. At least he did not make himself heard.

POLICE FAIL TO STOP STRIKE OF THE DOUKHOBORS

NELSON, B. C., April 7.—Defiance of British school laws and hints at a nude parade such as occurred at Yorkton, Sask., and other parts of Canada a few years ago, were expressed by 2,500 Doukhobors at Brilliant, near here today, following a meeting called by Inspector W. R. Dunwoodie of the provincial police and School Inspector P. H. Sheffield, in an effort to break the school strike which has been in progress in the Doukhobor colony for some time.

As one man, the congregation shouted "No" in their Russian tongue, when Inspector Dunwoodie put the question direct, "Will you send your children to school?"

"You have power to seize our property for payment of fines," declared the Doukhobors' spokesman, "but if you do then all we can do is take off our outer garments," which was his method of suggesting a protest against British domination. Murmurs of approval came from all parts of the crowd.

Nations Race for North Pole by Use of New Airships

LONDON, April 7.—An air race for the North Pole was in the making today between Capt. Roald Amundsen and Grettier Algarsson. It will be run in May, if both explorers continue their present plans.

Algarsson will sail from Liverpool on May 1, and hopes to reach the edge of the polar ice within two weeks. There he will inflate the special airship and with three companions set out for the Pole.

Amundsen's expedition is enroute to Spitzbergen hoping to take off in two airplanes before the end of May.

TRUSTEES ARE QUESTIONED BY TEACHERS TODAY

Demand to Know Where Raise Will Come From

This afternoon the trustees of the board of education will receive a letter from the Chicago Teachers' Federation asking them where the money for the proposed raise in teachers is to come from. This letter was drawn up after a motion was passed at the special meeting of the federation at the Studebaker Theater. The meeting was called to discuss the petitions that have been sent around in the schools by the superintendent asking the teachers to agree to the wage boost.

Call Their Bluff

The questions to come before the board are:

In view of the figures given in the auditors report which show that the board of education is working on a deficit and in December 1926 will be completely bankrupt, where is the money coming from?

Is it the intention of the board to propose an increase in the tax rate?

We refuse to take a raise at the expense of the children and we refuse to allow some teachers to be thrown out so that others may get a raise in wages.

Why did you fall down on your promise to go after the taxable stockyard property that is at present dodging the taxations? The teachers will not be partners to a proposition to increasing the tax levy until taxable property that is escaping taxation is collected for.

Are you going to take it out of the building fund? We refuse to be partner to taking money that was specifically collected to relieve the present school congestion.

Miss Margaret Haley in speaking on the proposal for increasing salaries said "If today we had a board of education that would address itself to delinquent tax officials instead of addressing themselves to the children—if the board of education would take the big stick and chase the tax assessors instead of chasing the children they'd have the co-operation of the Teachers' Federation today."

The teachers also voted to reopen their campaign for $50,000 to continue their fight against the tax dodgers. Subscription blanks were circulated at the meeting.

price of a shanty, he almost swallowed his thyroid gland. "BRING me my royal wallet," he said to the general who stood by to protect him from the hero, should the latter be disappointed in his begging expedition. When the wallet arrived, the king turned it upside down, and 20,000 lire, twice the amount asked for by the hero rolled into his lap. And as the veteran departed, the generous king took 500 lire from his pocket, saying to the veteran: "Buy food with this." He must be a wonderful king, the kind of a king a fellow would like to almost die for.

THE facts here given are not vouched for. Anyhow, you will admit that it is a good story. Some time ago Mussolini suddenly took a notion that he would like to walk into a lion's cage. He did. A writer in The DAILY WORKER hazarded the guess that Benito was either crazy or very near it, or that it was a fable. Well, whether the story was true or not, Mussolini is crazy, a homicidal maniac. The capitalist system is crazy. It is crazier in Italy than in France, England or the United States, but not as crazy as it is in Poland. In other words it is weak in the head.

GIOVANNI PIROLI has a cottage, if the yarn is true. If not, the king got a lot of free advertising. But the story is worth a lot of money to the working class. It is as dangerous to the king as a T. N. T. bomb. There are tens of thousands of Pirolis in Italy. What would happen if they all appeared at the king's gate at the same time and said: "We fought and bled for you; now, come across." The king would take an airplane to the United States and spend the rest of his life entertaining our parasites.

BLAST IN FIRECRACKER PLANT KILLS ONE WORKER AND INJURES TWELVE

Figures Employers Are Proud of Show Workers Near the Poverty Line

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the big capitalists and their "labor lieutenants" hail the "era of democracy in industry" because the better paid workers, with a few nickles to spare, are buying a share or two of stock in some of the big corporations. Labor's reactionary officialdom even hails this insignificant phenomenon as a lever by which workers may pry loose increased wages, a shorter workday and realize some of their other demands on the job.

• • • •

But the National Financial News, in its current issue, gives some of the facts. The number of stockholders, it shows, has almost doubled during the post-war period from 1918 to 1925.

In a selected list of industries, in 1918, there were 2,537,105 stockholders, while this year these same industries have 5,051,499 stockholders.

But let us see how they have been distributed. In spite of the most intense campaigns possible, trying to tie the workers to their jobs with these new chains, only 338,760 stockholders are to be found among the so-called "employes." This compares with nearly one million stockholders—864,754—among "customers"; while the far greater number, more than a million—1,310,880—stockholders, come from the "general public." In this jamboree the interests of the workers are entirely submerged. Even among the "employes," it has been shown that the stockholders are mostly the better-paid white collar slaves, the most reactionary force in industry, the bosses' pet strikebreakers. To be sure, this includes the labor aristocracy, like the members of the great railroad brotherhoods, who have been urged by their own officials to invest any of their spare cash in railroad stocks. But the two other categories, "the customers" and the "general public," where they do not include the great capitalists, run up their totals among the "comfortable bourgeoisie," the middle class, one of the biggest mainstays of capitalism in its war on the working class.

• • • •

Take the railroads for instance: 70,262 stockholders among "employes," 45,003 among "customers," and 203,216 among the "general public." The sole aim of the railroad corporation is to make profits for the quarter million stockholders among "customers" and the "general public," in order that its stocks may register well on the money exchange in Wall Street; not to better the condition of the workers, not even of the 70,000 ,except as those 70,000 can be used to keep the other hundreds of thousands in slavery. Blocks of "employe" stockholders are good breeding places for scabs during strikes.

Perhaps the greatest propaganda campaign to sell stock to employes has been waged by the traction interests; yet the National Financial News is forced to admit that altho the number of stockholders in street railways in this country has doubled since 1918, "ONLY A SMALL PART OF THIS INCREASE HAS COME FROM EMPLOYES OR CUSTOMERS."

• • • •

The biggest reason why workers do not buy stock is, of course, that they haven't got the money to buy. This fact is neatly hidden away in the figures showing deposits in savings accounts. The promoters of "capitalist prosperity" argue hysterically that, whereas, on January 1, 1918, there were 10,631,586 savings accounts depositors; there were on January 2, 1925, more than three times that number or 38,867,994 accounts. But the big fact is that the average account in 1918 was about $1,115 while seven years later, this year, it has fallen to half that amount, or $549.

While the federal postal savings bank and the vast efforts of the private banks have drawn the workers' loose change out of the proverbial "stocking," it shows that even the worker who has a few pennies, the "thrifty" workers that the capitalists brag about, are only a few weeks or months removed from the poverty line. These small savings of $500 or $600, sometimes the savings of a lifetime, are quickly eaten up by periods of unemployment, sudden wage cuts, sickness or other disability for which American industry does not provide.

• • • •

The worker-investor is a myth. Some worker may take a plunge on a share of stock at $1 down and $1 per week, because as the National Finance News says, "The bulk of the stock sold to employes is bought on the instalment plan and the employe does not legally enter the list of stockholders until the period of instalment payments is completed. THIS PERIOD GENERALLY RANGES ANYWHERE FROM 21 MONTHS TO FIVE YEARS."

The worker doesn't invest because he needs every cent of his wages to provide the absolute necessities of life for himself and his family. The well-oiled American capitalist system allows him no surplus. Millions of workers will in time realize this situation. They will find the answer to this difficult problem in the teachings of Communism. They will be won for the fight of the Workers (Communist) Party against capitalism.

LABOR UNIONS FIGHT STATE SUPREME COURT RULING THAT PICKETING MOVIE IS ILLEGAL

'PAY ENVELOPES' HELP IN STORM RELIEF DRIVE

Workers' Aid Asks Contributions

In response to the call of the International Workers' Aid the local Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief is inaugurating a two weeks' drive for relief to the working class victims of the terrible storm that recently devastated Southern Illinois and adjacent districts. All who stand for the solidarity of the working class in time of need as in time of struggle are asked to contribute one per cent of their weekly wage, one cent on the dollar, toward this fund.

Thousands of pay envelopes are being circulated in shops and factories and union meetings to make easier the collection of this fund. The envelope bears the following appeal:

WORKERS' RELIEF OR BOSSES' "CHARITY"

WORKERS' AID IN WORKING CLASS NEED!

So that the recent tornado, which cost a thousand workers' lives in southern Illinois and vicinity shall not be used by the bosses' lief organizations to break the fighting spirit of the uni.n miners, I hereby give my bit, in this

House to House Canvass

The South Slavic branch of the Workers Party has already acted by arranging for a house to house canvass in its district on Sunday April 12th. Other branches are expected to follow suit and there is considerable speculation as to which will bring in the largest amount. Every Workers Party member is expected to take at least three of these envelopes and get them filled. Members who do not attend meetings will have them mailed to their homes.

Only two weeks' time is allotted to this campaign, the envelopes are to be distributed at one branch meeting, the contributions of the members immediately collected and sent to the local office, 19 S. Lincoln street. At the following meeting all outstanding envelopes are to be turned in and immediately forwarded, unopened, to the same address.

KLAN OFFICIAL CONFESSES PLOT TO KILL NEGRO

Degenerate Nordics' Gruesome Plan

NEW YORK, April 7.—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 69 Fifth avenue, has received reports from Houston, Texas, indicating that it was at one time the plan of the local ku klux klan to lure a Negro newspaper publisher into a doctor's office, cut him in small pieces and carry the remains off, each klansman taking a small part of the body.

Klan Idea of Nordic Superiority.

Testimony to this effect was given in a suit involving the klan, according to an account published in the Houston, Texas, Post Dispatch of March 20. George B. Kimbro, Jr., a former high official of the klan is reported to have testified as follows:

"McCall was obsessed with an idea of getting rid of a Negro newspaper publisher by the name of Richardson and at times suggested to me plans to get rid of him. One fellow suggested that we get the Negro up in a doctor's office and cut him to pieces and then each klansmen carry down a piece of him and destroy it. McCall jumped at the idea." Kimbro said he would not be positive who suggested the scheme.

Murder By Aid of Legal Authority.

Kimbro then testified concerning intentions of an alleged klan grand jury at Wharton to "get rid" of Richardson. The grand jury was to issue a subpoena to Richardson on the pretext of questioning him about something published in his paper, Kimbro declared.

Richardson was to be brought to Wharton in the hands of a sheriff. Two men, known as "crack shots," were to be placed at secret points near the court house, armed with rifles. The sheriff was to bring Richardson across the court house lawn and at a given signal step aside and permit the riflemen to shoot down Richardson.

Mr. C. F. Richardson is publisher of the Houston Informer, a colored weekly.

JUDGE AND LAWYERS OBEY CAL'S WISHES AND ALLOW TEAPOT DOME GRAFTERS TO ESCAPE THE COURTS

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Albert Fall, former secretary of the interior and center of the naval oil lease corruption exposed in the senate investigation fifteen months ago, has been freed from the criminal indictment brought against him in the District of Columbia.

Federal Judge McCoy has ruled that Fall, who received the $100,000 cash in a satchel from the younger Doheny at the order of the elder Doheny, was not legally indicted, because a special assistant to Attorney General Stone was in the grand jury room when testimony was being taken.

He finds that the presence of this government attorney was illegal because the senate had taken the case out of the hands of the department of justice when it required President Coolidge to appoint special counsel to prosecute the criminals.

Releases Grafters

Logically following out this act of grace for the man who became wealthy thru giving away the public oil lands to the oil companies, Judge McCoy finds that the Dohenys were not legally indicted, and that Harry Sinclair was likewise improperly brought into peril of trial as a corrupter of Fall. They all go free together.

This decision by McCoy, who used to be a congressman when Fall was a standpat senator, will probably save the four from ever going to trial on charges of bribery. The statute of limitations has run against the crime since the indictment—now nullified—was returned. They may still be tried and convicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, however, and the Sinclair and Doheny lawyers will proceed to build their future defenses against this possibility.

Cal's Lawyers Sabotage

No surprise is expressed in Washington at this turn in the oil scandal's developments. It is recognized that Fall's fate, and that of the Dohenys and Sinclair, is in the hands of President Coolidge, who first sought to appoint as prosecutors two of the most conspicuous lawyers connected with the oil interests—Strawn and Gregory.

When they were rejected by the senate, he named Roberts and Pomere, who had little familiarity with this branch of law.

At the first test they were found to have left upon a loophole of escape for the givers and the taker of the $100,000 black-satchel "loan." Official Washington has felt, all along, that any punishment of Fall and his co-conspirators would disappoint Coolidge and would interrupt the smooth course of whitewash which was anticipated by the administration.

INDIANA HIGHWAY HEAD STOLE WAR MATERIALS, IS CHARGE IN COURT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 7.—State Highways Director John D. The specific charge against the highways director was conspiracy to embezzle and accessory before the fact.

TEXTILE UNION HEADS ACCEPT A 5 PER CENT CUT

"Arbitration" of 10 Pct. Slash Ends Strike

UTICA, N. Y., April 7.—Settlement of the United Textile Workers' strike of 2,000 workers here on the basis of a temporary five per cent cut—pending investigation of the Steam Cotton company's profits by "arbitrators"—instead of the ten per cent cut the company demanded, does not leave everything quiet in the labor movement.

Division No. 580 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America is pressing its demand for insurance funds, providing $1,000 payments in cases of death or total disability besides doctors' fees and full wages for those disabled more than seven days.

Wage increases are asked on local and interurban lines as follows: New York State Railwaymen, 600 in number, a 62 cents instead of the 55 now paid; seven cents an hour raise is demanded by the Rochester & Syracuse, Northern and Auburn & Syracuse men and the Syracuse and Eastern workers ask 57 cents instead of 50 now paid.

The terms of the textile strike settlement disappointed the workers.

Retail Clerks' Union Secretary on Picket Line Is Assaulted

NEW YORK CITY, April 6.—Samuel Heller, secretary of the Retail and Dairy Clerks' Union of greater New York, was assaulted and badly bruised in front of the grocery of B. Miller, 34 Delmonico street, Brooklyn, by Miller's partner, Max Gitlitz, who was arrested but had his trial postponed to April 20.

The assault is a result of a long strike in this store, almost the only store in Brooklyn holding out against the union.

Heller has been conducting the strike vigorously, himself taking the picket line and holding open air meetings daily in spite of the police interference, the cops having up-to-date arrested 40 pickets. Their cases are coming up in court soon. But the union is confident that continuous militant tactics if persevered in, will soon win the strike.

NEGRO CHILDREN, BARRED BY MUSIC CONVENTION, RECEIVE OVATION IN PERFORMANCE FROM 2nd BALCONY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 7.—The Negro students of the Lincoln high school were not permitted to show their musical prowess to the convention of the National Music Supervisors, in conference here this week.

Negro School Left Out.

The Negro public school children, and members of the Lincoln high school, however, sang before the 3,000 music teachers and supervisors from their perch in the second balcony of Convention Hall, where they were forced to sit.

The chorus of 400 voices rendered Dett's "There's a Meeting Here Tonight," and after this introduction, they received an ovation. Their second number, Burleigh's "Didn't It Rain," was received with such enthusiasm that the Negro school children were forced to repeat the number.

No arrangement was made by the convention to hear the Lincoln high school band, glee club or orchestra, altho the Negro high school students have won wide recognition for their musical excellence. The Lincoln high school authorities applied for entrance into the contest to which all of the other high schools of the city were admitted, but the Lincoln high school musicians were not allowed to participate.

Praise Musicianship.

The Lincoln high school students arranged to perform at the high school hall, and many of the visiting teachers who were opposed to discrimination against the Negroes, attended and heaped praise upon the Negro musicians.

Barbers Talked, Ate and Puffed Cigars at Snappy Entertainment

The smoker and entertainment given by the Chicago Barbers' Progressive Group last Sunday night at 1902 W. Division street, was a great success. The program worked out as smoothly as a close shave and all present were treated to excellent music by Master and Miss Sugman, Miss Weiner, Miss Goldstein, and others. The eats and refreshments were a point of attraction to all present.

Much Smoke: Good Tea.

Comrade Ben Polk taking the smoker part of the entertainment literally almost suffocated the audience with the smoke from a real Russian samovar. The result however was the best Russian tea ever tasted by anyone. That's the consensus at least.

Joseph Giganti speaking for the International Barbers' Progressive Committee reported tremendous progress all over the country. A splendid collection was made for an International Progressive Barbers' Bulletin to be issued soon. Everybody had a rollicking good time. More entertainments were promised for the future.

Al's Commission in No Hurry to Make Final Report

NEW YORK CITY, April 7.—The governor's special mediation commission which was called into being last summer when New York cloakmakers threatened a complete tie-up of the industry is reporting at last the results of its investigations. In general it supports the union's and sub-manufacturers' association's contention that these sub-manufacturers, or contractors, should be limited so that shops will be larger and easier to maintain under union conditions. Hearings at which all interested parties will speak are to be heard before the commission makes final recommendations. Negotiations for the new agreement to begin in July will commence between the union and employers immediately after the final report of the commission.

THREE AUDIENCES HEAR ANISE IN PORTLAND, ORE.

Auditorium Closed by the Mayor as Usual

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PORTLAND, Ore., April 2.—(By Mail.)—At eleven o'clock Tuesday, March 31, at Reed College, Anna Louise Strong addressed the student body and a number of visitors, in the college chapel. The students and visitors sat breathlessly listening as she told them of the vicissitudes thru which Russia had passed, during and immediately following the world war and the internal wars and blockades, and related to them the method of its rebuilding and its new life.

Second Meeting in Labor Temple.

On the same day at 8 p. m., at the Labor Temple, she addressed an overflowing house, while at the same time the audience was not so large as the morning meeting due to the fact that the A. F. of L. had obliged her with the smallest hall in the building. However, the things she related found fertile ground.

The chairman of the meeting, who is a teacher in the Lincoln High school in the city, apologized for the size of the hall and explained that he had underestimated the popularity of Soviet Russia in Portland. This was the fourth meeting that Miss Strong had held that day having spent a portion of the afternoon before the Consumers' League where a collection of two hundred dollars was raised for the work she is sponsoring.

Mayor Closes Auditorium.

Our astute mayor, who always keeps his eagle eye on any progressive activities that might take place, as usual, refused the use of the city auditorium to this celebrated speaker. However, she closed another series of lectures on April 1, in one of the large halls of the public library, which has a seating capacity of four hundred.

More than two hundred people stood up to listen, while hundreds of others were turned away. The audience sat as if turned to stone as they drank in the information to be obtained from one who knew so well, of a land where the workers have come into their own.

To say the least, no more fortunate thing has occurred than this tour of Comrade Strong's since it is breaking down prejudice and bias.

Many intelligent and important questions came from the audience. The meeting may be recorded as a pronounced success.

St. Louis Firemen Dying from Crash of Speeding Trucks

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 7.—Three firemen are believed to be dying and three others suffering from numerous injuries in the city hospital today, following a collision between two speeding fire trucks at an intersection here last night.

Lieutenant James Myer, 41, hoseman Edward Havey, 29, all sustained fractured skulls. The backs of Myer and Havey were also broken. No hope is held for their recovery. The fire was in a string of fruit warehouses, the damage amounting to only $1,000.

Government Shields Millionaires from Publicity of Income

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Federal income tax collectors have been instructed not to make public income tax returns, until given authority by the internal revenue commissioner, Blair, the treasury announced today.

Returns will not be available to the public until after July 1, by which time it is expected the United States supreme court will have decided the constitutionality of newspaper publication of the tax lists. Blair will fix a uniform date for opening the tax books.

hall I found present nearly two score petty officials and their hangers on. I knew what they had assembled for; to have the pleasure and excitement of grilling a left winger, of "hanging something" on a person who threatened the security of their jobs.

An Example of Left Wing Spirit.

Feeling proud and confident of the principles and actions which I was about to defend, I took my place at the front of the room and prepared myself for questioning. The vice-president of the local started in first:

"Did you distribute the leaflets from Local 5?" he asked.

"Yes, I did," I replied.

"Who gave you the leaflets?"

"Why do you want to know? Do you want to take them off the job, too?"

This fetched a smile out of the roomful of job holders. They knew my question was well-aimed. The vice-president swallowed hard and went ahead.

"Did you know that the Amalgamated has a law against distributing leaflets?" he asked.

"I know all the laws of the Amalgamated. What law gives you the right to take me off the job, can you tell me?"

Here the vice-president lost his temper slightly.

"Listen, sister," he snapped, "you're here to answer questions, not to ask them. Understand?"

I didn't answer, so after a moment he went on.

"Then you knew you were going against the union when you distributed those leaflets?"

"I wasn't going against the union. The leaflet was against the unfair and illegal expulsion of Local 5. It was against our officials selling us out to the bosses. I was defending the interests of the rank and file of our unions and they are the ones—"

"Never mind, never mind," he interrupted. "Just answer my questions and that's all. You're not here to make speeches. Now, those leaflets you distributed came from New York. What right have you to mix in what's going on there?"

"Anything that goes on in the Amalgamated is my business. I, as a militant member of the Amalgamated, look at our union in a wider way than you. With me it is not only a question of the Chicago members, but of all the members of the Amalgamated, no matter where they are. The rank and file all over the country must get together in a united struggle against the bosses and the reactionary officialdom."

This was too much for the questioner.

"Say, sister," he said, "there's no use talking to you. You don't know what you're saying. That's all."

I smiled at him sweetly.

"Thank you," I said.

He glared at me. Then he turned to the other board members.

"Do any of you brothers wish to question her?" he asked.

One of the "brothers" said he did.

"Who paid for the leaflets and the hall?" was his first query.

"The members who were taken off the job and other militants of the Amalgamated."

"Did you pay?"

"I paid my share, of course."

"Oh, you did, huh? And why didn't you open the doors of the hall?"

"Ask Levin and his sluggers that question. They know."

The whole audience laughed at this reply, to the board members' complete discomfiture.

The "Fair Trial" is Ended.

"That's enough out of you," he shouted. "You're thru."

"Thank you. Good bye," I said, and left the hall.

In all probability the officialdom will herald this sham affair, and the others of a similar nature which they are conducting, as "thoro and impartial investigations." Thus far no definite decision has been announced as to the fate of the members taken off the job. Levin realizes that he has a real fight on his hands and that a large portion of the membership is incensed over his blacklisting tactics. In the shop where the militants were taken off, indignation is running high. In several instances committees were sent to Levin's office to protest.

The struggle which is going on has served to acquaint the rank and file with the general state of affairs in the union, as well as the left wing program for remedying the same. The members are beginning to realise that the class collaborationist policy of Hillman-Levin and Co. is destroying the power of their once militant union, and that only a well-organised rank and file revolt can save it.

'SOCIALISTS' ARE AGAIN FAVORING CAPITALIST WAR

Polish and Austrian Jingos Bluster

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WARSAW, April 7.—"When Lloyd George says that Germany will never be reconciled to lose Upper Silesia, and that Great Britain will never lift a finger to hinder Germany, it is an encouragement of war. Poland will be well armed," said a senator in the Polish parliament. And, though this may sound like rank jingoism from the lips of a capitalist, it came from the lips of a "socialist" member of Poland's senate, who spoke and voted for an increase in Poland's army to 500,000 men.

This is an increase of 170,000 men. It also illustrates the outstanding nationalism of the "socialist" Second International, and closely follows the speech by the Austrian "socialist" Bauer, who militantly proclaimed the necessity for that capitalist nation to arm itself to the teeth against its neighbors.

Austria is a vassal state, meanwhile, dependent upon the "charity" of the American banker bondholders. In Poland, the budget shows a deficit for 1925 already of $26,000,000. To offset this, Poland is increasing the cost of living by consumption taxes. This to allow the army to maintain the "frontiers laid down by the Versailles treaty."

NEW MEAT DEAL TO FOLLOW CAL'S WHITEWASHING

Giant Merger Planned After Jardine Ruling

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Final arguments were begun here today before Secretary of Agriculture Jardine on the legality of the merger of the Armour-Morris meat packing concerns which took place in 1923.

An imposing array of legal luminaries lined up to fight the government's contention that the combination of the second and third largest corporations in the packing industry was in restraint of trade.

Packing Trust on Hand.

Representatives of virtually every major packing concern were on hand, because of the belief that out of the contest will come the first definite indication in a decade of the government's attitude toward giant packing combinations.

Reports were in circulation that another big packing merger is in prospect if the government places the stamp of its approval on the Morris-Armour combine. The name of Swift figures in the rumored new merger.

Cal Appointee to Decide.

A decision by Jardine approving the merger would end the case, it was generally believed, while one adverse to the packers would result in an appeal to the courts.

The secretary of agriculture is empowered under the packers' and stockyards' act, to act as a lower court in cases where there are evidences of illegal combinations.

Cal Is Honored Guest of Cotton Kings Who Meet to Raise Prices

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7.—The opening shot in a new tariff war was fired here today when the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association met in annual convention to organize a drive for higher rates on textile products.

President Coolidge will address the delegates tonight and he is expected to touch upon the tariff. Director General H. M. Lord, of the budget bureau, will speak with the president.

Launch Airplane Carrier in Mad Armament Race

CAMDEN, N. J., April 7.—Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, wife of the secretary of the navy, is to christen the Saratoga, largest and speediest of floating airplane carriers, here this afternoon at its launching.

The Saratoga is 888 feet long, with a 105-foot beam. It has an oval [illegible] surface on which 75 airplanes may be carried.

Revolt on Turko-Persian Border.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 7.—The Kurdish insurrection movement has spread over the Turko-Persian border, it was admitted today. The Persian government has sent troops to the frontier to combat it.

The Little Red Library

The first two numbers of this little pocket-size library, destined to become the most popular of any working class publications ever issued in this country, are now being sold by all Daily Workers Agents thruout the country.

No. 1

Trade Unions in America

By Wm. Z. Foster, James P. Cannon and Earl R. Browder

Is, with a brief statement of the American trade union movement, a history of the development of the left wing and an explanation of the structure and program of its guiding spirit—the Trade Union Educational League.

No. 2

Class Struggle vs. Class Collaboration

By Earl R. Browder

Is a splendid study of the methods of labor bureaucracy to divert the workers from militant struggle thru the B. & O. plan, insurance schemes and workers' education. A most valuable number for the thinking worker.

If you have not as yet seen a copy of this splendid little propaganda giant, and have not enjoyed the valuable reading in each, be sure to ask your local Daily Worker Agent for a copy—or a dozen copies. (They are twelve for $1.00.)

CONFERENCE FOR SACCO-VANZETTI IS SUCCESSFUL

Workers Party Enlists Unions' Co-operation

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 7.—A well attended Sacco-Vanzetti conference was held at Trades Council Hall, 215 Meadow St., last night. Eighteen organizations were represented by 32 delegates. Among the organzations represented were the Workers Party, New Haven Trades Council, Workmen's Circle branches 56 (Lenin) and 589, Sons of Italy, Painters' Local 4. Typographical Union Local 41, Tobacco Strippers' Local.

Co-ordinated Work.

Previously, the work for Sacco and Vanzetti had been carried on by the radical organizations alone. The Workers Party called a preliminary conference of the anarchists, syndicalists and Communists, where plans were laid for the larger conference. District Organizer Simons of the Workers Party was delegated to appear before the New Haven Trades Council, which resulted favorably. A larger conference will be called for April 30.

Executive Committee Elected.

Speeches on the work of the conference were made by William Simons in English and Angelo Crisafi in Italian. Comrade Ida Rothstein was the presiding officer. On the executive committee are F. Alfano, V. Vitali, P. Malafronte, H. Maslow, Margaret Probeti, R. S. Kling, M. Puglia, A. Crisafi, and William Simons.

F. Alfano, secretary of Barbers' Local 215, and a delegate from the Trades Council, was elected chairman, and Angelo Crisafi, 639 Chapel street, of the Workers Party, secretary-treasurer.

Socialists Absent.

Just as in the anti-fascist movement in New Haven, the socialists are conspicuous by their absence. At that time they were too busy campaigning for little business angel Bob. Now they are too busy arranging for a meeting for traitor Abramovich. The Jewish branch of the socialist party of New Haven (that's all there is of them) and the right wing branches of the Workmen's Circle were invited but did not show up.

Bunco Steerers Keep Away from YWL Bunco Party Next Saturday

There is no bunk about the Young Workers League but there is a lot of bunco in it, according to a red ticket bearing on its face an invitation to participate in the festivities next Saturday evening, April 11 at 1902 West Division St. For the small sum of 25 cents, old and young will have the time of their lives.

The youths organizing the affair call it a bunco party and dance, but they assure us that there will be plenty of dancing. Where the bunc comes in we have been unable to learn.

The little Yowlette who dances with you, may explain the difference between a shop nuclei, street nuclei, and area branch as you trip the light fantastic with the aid of snappy music. Branch area No. 5 plays the host.

Philadelphia Social and Banquet Comes Off Saturday Night

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 7.—On Saturday night, April 11th, the Central English branch of the Workers Party will give a banquet and dance at 521 York Ave. Excellent entertainment and a noted speaker is announced by the arrangement committee. All class conscious workers should seize this opportunity to become acquainted with the Philadelphia comrades. The small admission fee of 50 cents entitles you to a luxurious banquet, with entertaining and interesting speeches as well as good music and dancing.

DENNIS BATT, EX-PROLETARIAN CHIEF, FIGHTS ORGANIZATION OF THE DETROIT STREET CARMEN ON INDUSTRIAL BASIS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, April 7.—At the last meeting of the Detroit Federation of Labor President Herbert Meeker of the local Street Carmen's Union brought in the report that his local was contemplating a general organization campaign of all Detroit street railway employes regardless of occupation. He pointed out in his report that the initial steps of organizing these men had already been taken and that of course they would not interfere with the trades already organized.

The present city administration is a somewhat friendly one and the street carmen who have had considerable trouble in the past with the municipally-owned lines of Detroit, naturally want to strengthen their position while conditions are favorable.

This report was commented upon favorably and otherwise by a number of delegates and finally a motion was made by Jimmy Carroll, the reactionary business agent of the machinists' union "to hold the matter in abeyance until a meeting of the business agents of the various Detroit unions could get together and discuss the matter." Dennis E. Batt, editor of the Detroit Labor News, delegate from Machinists No. 82 and ex-arch revolutionary arose to speak for the motion and against the proposition of allowing the street carmen to organize all Detroit street railway employes.

Speaks For Craft Unionism

After his customary alibi, that "individually" he was still an industrial unionist he proceeded to tell the delegates that the Detroit Federation of Labor and all those affiliated with it were operating under the constitution of the American Federation of Labor which was opposed to industrial unionism and stood for craft unions. He also pointed out that in some cities where all trades are organized in the Street Carmen's Union, the same plan as that under discussion, (Note Batt's consistency) the machinists were getting a lower scale than they would get it organized in the machinists' union. He said a good deal more all of which went to show how low this man has sunk who once accused the Workers' Party of being a centrist party and posed as a pure and unadulterated Marxist and revolutionist. Yep, gentlemen, yep; the honorable "Dinny" is sure slipping fast down the tobbogan slide of fakerism.

Delegate Mollenhauer from the musicians' union got up and stated that the miners' union, the street carmens' union in other cities as well as some other unions had been in the habit of organizing all the men in their particular industry regardless of craft and that they managed to get along quite well with the constitution of the A. F. of L. and that even though the machinists thus organized might get a few cents less than men organized in the machinists' union, they would still be better off than being completely unorganized as at present. Furthermore, Mollenhauer continued, it seems as if no one in the local labor movement was interested in the unionization of these men, but lo and behold, the minute the street carmen wanted to organize them the whole of fakerdom wanted their hand in on the per capita tax.

That "Dinny" is slipping in the central body is further evidenced in the federation election so recently as March 18, where he was tied for fifth place for executive board member and then on the seventh recount won on a fluke.

It can be seen from the above that Batt is slipping fast, and unless he is slipping into a bottomless pit, he has not much further to go. We wait for that day.

STANLEY CLARK ON FREE SPEECH IN PORTLAND, ORE.

PORTLAND, Oregon, April 7.—A lecture was delivered on Sunday, March 29, in the public library by Comrade Stanley J. Clark before a large membership of the Arts and Science Club.

Comrade Clark spoke on the question of free speech and censorship.

With keen and charming style the speaker pointed out the purpose of Communism, and the position of Communists under capitalism.

The address was received by eager listeners, loud applause marking appreciation as the speaker drove home point after point, showing the inevitable collapse of capitalism.

RUSSIAN EXPORTS TO DENMARK WERE DOUBLED SINCE TRADE TREATY

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Danish trade with Soviet Russia in 1924 was between 66,000,000 and 67,000,000 crowns, or 100 per cent more than in 1923, when the trade treaty between the two countries was negotiated, according to a report by the Danish Industrial Ass'n., received by the department of commerce.

Of the total, nearly 65,000,000 crowns represents Russian exports to Denmark. These consisted of sunflower cakes and other feed for Danish cattle. Denmark sent to Russia creamery and dairy machinery and barrel material. Danish shipping carried most of this trade.

Expelled Communists to Speak at the Seattle Forum Meeting, Apr. 11

SEATTLE, Wash., April 7.—The delegates who were expelled from the Seattle Central Labor Council are holding a series of meetings every Saturday night in the Painters' Hall, Union Record Building, 1915 First Ave. Stanley J. Clark of Texas spoke at the first meeting held last Saturday on the subject of the Red International of Labor Unions and the Industrial Workers of the World.

The next meeting to be held on April 11th will be addressed by all six defendants who will discuss the significance of these expulsions in view of the union busting open shop drive being engineered against the unions by big business in the United States at the present time.

All workers are extended a hearty welcome to attend the series of meetings. And the members of organized labor are particularly urged to come out in full force to hear these fighting members of the trade union defend their ideas and opinions.

Comradeship Instead of Nationalism to Reign at Bronx Ball

NEW YORK, April 7.—There may be nothing to the name "rose, which smells" as it does. But the name anti-nationalistic has a significant meaning for all internationalists. And you cannot substitute any other in order for it to have the same meaning.

Anti-nationalistic to internationalists means the opposition to the local patriotism imposed upon all in their resident nation. We internationalists are opposed to this imposition.

We have therefore arranged a special anti-nationalistic concert and ball in order to express our feelings. At this affair which is under the auspices of the Bronx English Branch One of the Workers Party, to take place on Saturday April 11, at 1347 Boston Road, Bronx, N. Y., only a comradely internationalistic spirit will reign.

We invite you to come and help make this spirit a mass spirit.

Letts Put on Play for Labor Defense

"The Victim," a play depicting life and love under capitalism, will be presented by the Lettish branch of the Workers (Communist) Party, on Saturday, April 18, 8 p. m., at the Finnish Hall.

Violin solos, recitations and songs in Russian and English will complete the program, after which a dance will take place.

All who are familiar with the dramatic art of the Lettish players are looking for a rare treat.

The proceeds of the evening go to the Labor Defense, as this is so urgent a cause at this time. Come on comrades and friends, let's help to make it a success. Let's go.—F. M. D.

Organizers Are Not Born They Are Made!

We Quote Wm. Z. Foster:

"... it is particularly appropriate to point out the field opened up to us by our English language daily paper for the development of organizers and for the organization of our party.

"Obviously one of the best ways to build the membership of the party is by building the circulation of the DAILY WORKER. In fact it is so obvious that in all too many instances this way of making the party grow has been overlooked altogether.

"But, although it is quite generally understood that by building the DAILY WORKER we are also building the Workers Party, it is not so generally understood that in extending the circulation of the DAILY WORKER there is an open road to the development of organizers for our party.

"Organizers are not born. They are made. They are products of active participation in the daily struggle. They are made in the process of doing real organization work.

"In our party we will develop the necessary organizers by putting the membership, so far as possible, systematically to work upon organizational tasks. There is no better school for organizers than in the building of the DAILY WORKER.

"This does not consist of filling the columns of the DAILY WORKER with theories of organization, but in putting effective theories into practice by the organized selling of DAILY WORKER subscriptions.

If you wish to immediately put "effective theories into practice"—send this brick to

BRITISH GUNS MENACE EGYPT'S FREEDOM MOVE

Fighting Continues in Arabia

CAIRO, Egypt, April 7.— The war between the Wahabis who are fighting for independence from British imperialism, and the British puppet king of the Hedjaz forces, is still going on in Arabia.

The army of the British backed king of the Hedjaz is suffering defeat after defeat near Jedda and Akaba. An army under the command of Abramhim Saud, the same army which captured Mecca and drove the British backed forces to Jedda, is besieging the Hedjaz forces in Jedda and Akaba.

Meanwhile the British army of occupation is still camped at Abbassia, five miles from this city.

Lord Allenby in charge of the British forces, declared here, "The army of occupation will remain until the British government changes its plans."

Build Barracks.

Barracks will be constructed next month, a sign that the British forces will remain in Egypt indefinitely. Zagloul Pasha, who has been opposed to the British imperialistic policy, recently gained a majority in the British parliament, but it was immediately dissolved by the British controlled government.

The British soldiers slink thru the streets of Cairo, and are at all times well armed. Allenby never appears on the streets unless accompanied by a large squad of British soldiers.

"Golden Rule" Nash Runs Business on Open Shop Basis

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 7.—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union is trying to organize the Cincinnati shops of "Golden Rule" Nash. The Amalgamated claims that the only way to have the golden rule in operation is to permit the workers to organize, which is not encouraged by Arthur Nash who owns the "golden rule" shops. He is an ex-minister from the south who has the backing of certain banks and uses the golden rule gag as an ad in his business, the organizers claim. The shops employ mostly widows. Labor representation is not permitted. Nash makes talks on the golden rule before college classes and then has campus agents take orders for suits from the students.

LUMBER BOSSES' SABOTAGE IS LEGAL, WHILE WORKERS LOSE THEIR JOBS AND THEIR LIVES

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 7.— The much-heralded prosperity for the Pacific northwest is further off than ever so far as employment is concerned. The reason for this is that the timber bosses of this country recently met in conference and decided that lumber prices could only be held up by shutting down most of the logging camps and operating saw mills on a 5-day week basis.

More Production With Less Labor.

This plan will be continued until the market eases and then the camps will work a while at break-neck speed until the workers have produced too much to sell at a profit—then another shutdown and the bread line.

A striking example of how the speed-up system works is shown by the fact that in the province of British Columbia, lumber workers last year cut more board feet of lumber than in 1923 with no more men employed in the industry. Total export lumber figures from British Columbia during 1924 were 639,156,324 board feet against 521,707,132 feet for 1923.

Lumber Work Most Perilous to Life.

Canadian lumber workers have paid for the increased production with their lives. The lumber industry holds the record for the greatest number of fatalities not excepting mining or railway operating. For the three months ending 1924 there were 312 fatal accidents of which 66 occurred in the lumber industry or more than one-fifth of all the fatal industrial accidents in Canada come from the lumber industry.

If the average number of fatal accidents is computed for October, November and December, 1924, it will be seen that the lumber industry claims the lives of two workers every week.

Traction Employe, Hurt in Wreck That Killed 7, Better

LITCHFIELD, Ill., April 7.—Unconscious for 18 days, R. W. Larrimore, Illinois traction system lineman, injured March 20, when seven persons were killed near Carlinville, in an interurban crash, slowly began to comprehend today the lapse of time since he saw the impending disaster and tried to warn his companions.

"Jump, boys, jump."

Those words, the warning fate had halted, burst from Larrimore's lips at the first dim flicker of consciousness.

Polikushka in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 7.—On Sunday evening, April 12, Poliqushka, a six-reel wonder film based on the story of serfdom by Leo Tolstoy, will be shown at Unity Hall, Grand corner Page. There will be two showings: hours from 7 to 9 and 9 to 11 p. m. Admission 50 cents.

This picture which was produced in Russia by the world famous Moscow Art Theatre has received high praise from art critics as well as enthusiastic appreciation from workers everywhere it has been shown. Don't miss seeing it.

COOLIDGE AND MORGAN AGENTS VISIT ITALY

Yankee Imperialism Up to New Trick

ROME, April 7.—Frank W. Stearns, who has been living at the White House as President Coolidge's "advisor," has created a stir in Italy by arriving at Naples on the same ship as Thomas W. Lamont, political banker of the Morgan financial interests.

Altho Stearns and Lamont both claim that they are coming to Italy merely as tourists, Italy believes that arrangements for an American loan to bolster up the falling lira on the world exchange surely must be in the wind.

This is offset, however, by the observation, recently made by Reynolds, the Chicago banker who visited here, but who did not speak of his conclusions until he returned to the United States. Reynolds remarked that he thought the regime of Mussolini would soon pass, and added significantly that the strikes of the fascist unions in Northern Italy had shown American capital that fascism was not to be depended on much longer.

Stearns and Lamont refused to talk on anything more political than the excellence of the food on the steamer which brought them.

Eight Years Too Late Christians Discover Capital Causes Wars

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MONTEVIDEO, Uraguay, April 7.—Even the sanctimonious christian "work congress," held here as a part of the general plan to bring "harmony" between American imperialist expansion in Latin American and its victims of that region, could not escape the question of the connection between war and imperialism.

On this subject, the report of the congress gives some interesting analysis, though of course the churchmen have no remedy for the evils they depict. Part of the report reads as follows:

"The capitalist organization of modern society as a cause of war needs special study. Many maintain that it is the principal cause of war and that the war system will continue until private capital is destroyed.

"Capitalists have close relations with, if not virtual control of, the governments. The resources of the various governments, such as diplomacy, armies and navies, are utilized by big business to get opportunities especially for their foreign investments.

"Our modern industrial system in its very nature is a faulty method of distributing profits and is also regarded my many as making was inevitable.

"To maintain employment, markets must be maintained thru diplomacy and be protected by naval and military forces. Economic and militaristic imperialism, it is contended, is an inevitable by-product of our modern scientific, industrial and financial system."

MAYOR HYLAN FIGHTS TEACHERS SALARY INCREASE

Compressd Air Slaves Win Concession

NEW YORK, April 7.—New York organized labor is counting up and making the balance sheet of its legislative gains and losses in the state legislature session just concluded. The greatest gain is the salary increase for New York City's 27,000 teachers, altho the elementary teachers, because they are most numerous, will continue to be the most poorly paid. The higher salaries will not equal the rate paid in 1900, according to Henry R. Linville, president of the Teachers' Union which fought for the increase. The purchasing value of the new salaries will be equal only to that of salaries in 1914.

The Teachers' Union is combatting Mayor Hylan's attack on the salary increase by stating accurately how much the city's budget is to be increased. Hylan claims $17,000,000 more will be added in his appeal for Governor Smith to veto the Ricca bill increasing salaries. The union shows that not over $11,000,000 more will be the city's burden, as the state shares one-fifth.

The "Sand Hogs."

Sand hogs, or compressed air workers who make the bores under rivers for New York subways and vehicular tubes, won a radical reduction of hours of work which their union expects will considerably lessen the number of cases of the "bends," their occupational disease. The 6-hour day, in two shifts, is provided for work at pressure 18 pounds over normal; instead of beginning at 21 pounds pressure. The 4-hour day starts at 26 pounds instead of 30, which gives most of the workers a 4-hour day; most of the work is done under 26 to 30 pounds pressure. Hours decrease with increasing pressure up to 48 pounds, when men can work only one hour a day.

The Compressed Air Workers' Union fought contractors' lobbyists before the legislature to win the reduction of working hours. The union showed that many cases of the "bends" were listed as rheumatism or not listed at all, so that workers were deprived of compensation. The bill goes into effect under Smith's signature on July 1. The governor is still considering whether to balk Mayor Hylan and sign the bill limiting the Staten Island tunnel to rapid transit or to veto it and allow the original plan of freight and passenger tunnel to go thru. The union threatened to do no work on this tunnel unless their conditions were met by the legislature.

Fails To Materialize.

The 48-hour bill for women which legislators had promised to New York voters at election time failed to materialize. A joker Joiner bill was introduced to offset the more satisfactory Mastick bill for which organized labor thruout the state was fighting. Women must still work 54 hours in this state.

The ratification of the child labor amendment likewise failed to materialize, altho the legislators had promised that also. A referendum vote of the state, which is deplored on the grounds of expense and delay, is to be held on the issue.

The New York state anarchy law, as all criminal syndicalism and criminal anarchy laws in these states, is still on the books with legislatures closing ignoring them. Benjamin Gitlow, convicted in New York under this war-time invasion of civil rights, is waiting decision from the United States supreme court on his case. The American Civil Liberties Union shows 89 criminal syndicalist prisoners.

But Even this Cannot Stop Socialization Evaporating "Values"

By CARL HAESSLER

CHICAGO.—The modern banker's fortress, constructed with a view to withstand popular assault rather than to resist the negligible safe-cracker, is given an added sidelight in advertisements now being run in the papers by the National Bank of the Republic

The advertisement does not describe the deep-sunk vaults of massive concrete, approached thru intricate narrow passages easily flooded or filled with gas where the bankers keep their own plunder. It simply calls attention to the safe deposit boxes for the common fry who pay a cent a day for the privilege.

"These safe deposit boxes," the bank announces, "are located in the vaults of our affiliated organization. The wall of the vaults are of steel and concrete construction and are almost three feet thick. At the entrance is a massive door weighing almost 30 tons, while thru and around the vaults is a delicate electrically sensitized alarm system that is a marvel of ingenuity. Nor is this all for—just as an added precaution—a night and day patrol system is provided that watches over the vaults from without, 24 hours a day."

As a mere outpost of the main fortifications, this is doing pretty well, as ruling class protection against popular resentment of exploitation.

BUILDERS AT WORK

LOCAL CLEVELAND MAY GET IT!

They Follow Local Detroit.

All indications point to the largest edition of the DAILY WORKER on May Day that has ever been printed in the existence of "Our Daily". Following the decision of local Detroit to mobilize the Detroit local for a distribution of 20,000 copies, local Cleveland follows this example with an inquiry about a special Ohio Edition of 5,000 copies at least.

These two locals mean Communist activity—and these two locals are putting over something that is not only going to build the party in their locality but is sure to bring subscriptions to fill their quota in the Second Annual Sub Campaign.

On this May Day—what is YOUR local going to do? Is it like Detroit and Cleveland completing details for making May Day a RED DAY in the history of your local? Bring up this matter before your C. C. C.—bring it before your branches and GET ACTION . . . to make this a day on which you will not only celebrate a great day of the working class but will also build it for power!

Bundle orders of this special 12-page edition will be at 2 cents a copy—and be sure to rush your orders.

THE RANKS ARE GROWING!

More and more subs are piling in with each mail to apply on the quotas of the various locals. These comrades, on Monday April 6, have sent in new subs to prove their activity in the Second Annual Sub Campaign:

Touching Story of the Irish Famine

ear and a fatal acceptance of fearsome conditions prevailed.

Willing Workers

Now that the W. I. R. is known, willing workers are coming forward to help us, and the tales of misery, poverty disease and death that they narrate give the lie to the smug and comfortable who minimize or even dare to deny the unwelcome fact that in this alleged "Free State," the land of saints and scholars, patriots and poets, children are certified as dying of tuberculosis when starvation, yes, just plain, stark death for want of food, is the real cause.

I have seen still more of the hellish misery which these fellow-workers of our contrive to survive amongst, and have listened to the heart-breaking, body-breaking cough of the sick and weak, who live in pain in low-ceilinged, rotten, leaky, disease infested cabins unfit—there is no word really to describe it—for anyone to live or die in.

No starvation! What of the child whose only food is to suck from an old teat the tea which has been stewed and stewed and stewed again; or the children breathing tuberculosis into systems debilitated for lack of food? Oh no! There is no famine in the first class hotels, in the vicarages; not even in the army camps of the Free State, but ask the fathers and mothers around Tirconnail, Glencolumbkille, Killybegs, The Rosses, Arranmore.

No Clothes For School

Here a family of eight, no food, a mug of cocoa could be got at school but the children have no clothes to go to school. Thanks to the W. I. R. clothes are on the way.

At Killybegs I talked in a laborer's cottage with the mother of a family of seven, only one old enough to work and no work to be found. The husband a fisherman, but nets torn, creels washed away by stormy weather. No return for cruel labor in a cruel sea off as cruel a coast as every fishers went sailing from. The grandfathers' old age pansion, the only assured income of which he pays 6 shillings weekly to the household. The boy of twelve, together with his father (as guardian) summoned to appear at court because the little fellow had cut some timber to warm the household. The timber belonged to the church!

So I might write on tales of misery unending and all of too damnably patient endurance, but space and time are pressing. We are taking charge of some two hundred families in and around Kilcar, of a hundred families in Glencolumbkille; we have started at Ardara and Dungloe. On the Isle of Arranmore a committee is dispensing relief. We will start at Killybegs and are now to branch out into Mayo where the situation, according to our correspondents, is as desperate as in Donegal.

Want Fishing Nets

And its finish. Tell your readers and all who may listen that we want fishing nets and creels or materials to make them. We want seed corn and seed potatoes. All the Free State government relief costs money which these people do not have. They must always pay a little, which to them means a lot. They must borrow—but how—by pledging their miserable crop to the money lender and facing the same bitter conditions year after year. Send and send again. The extent of our work is limited to the amount of our resources.

Up the Workers International Relief! One working docker at Sligo, when I told him what we were doing, said:

"Do you know what you're doing, Mister Stewart? You're laying the foundation for a real workers' republic, and ye may do more than even all our suffering in prison and fighting in the field. Good luck to you. To think that the workers have a relief of their own. What would Jim Connolly say," and he glanced with moist eye at the photograph of the Irish proletarian martyr in its honored place on the wall.

It's Workers' Own Holiday!

"Join hands with your fellow workers, shop by shop, organized and unorganized, and march by thousands and tens of thousands thru the streets of every city of America! On the street, in the meeting halls, everywhere, gather in masses to demonstrate on Labor's Holiday, that the working class, when united, is more powerful than the capitalist class which enslaves us!

"Demonstrate in masses that the working class, by whose hand and brain and aching toil all things useful and beautiful are created, will not forever live in poverty and suffer oppression from the idle parasite capitalists who live in luxury upon profits taken from our labor."

HUGH WILSON IS NEW ASSISTANT STATE SECRETARY

Has 14 Years of Foreign Service

CHICAGO, April 7.—Hugh R. Wilson of Evanston is to become assistant secretary of state to succeed John A. MacMurray, newly named minister to Pekin, according to dispatches from Washington received in Chicago today.

Wilson entered in the United States foreign service in 1911 and now is chief of the current information division of the state department. He has served in various secretarial capacities in Portugal, Guatemala, Buenos Aires, Bern, and Berlin. After the war he served with the American commission in Germany, then became counselor of the embassy at Tokio and later at Mexico City.

Wilson is 39 and was born in Evanston, he was graduated from the high school at Pottstown, Pa., and Yale University and studied at the Ecole Libre des Sciences Politiques in Paris.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 7.—Dr. Wolfgang Koehler of the University of Berlin, who is lecturing this year at Clark University on the result of his study of the ape is getting an insight into the influence of religious prejudices in educational research in America. He has been scheduled to lecture at the North Carolina University on "The Intelligence of Anthropoid Apes" but because the subject is closely related to the subject of evolution his engagement had to be cancelled. A similar series of lectures at the University of Tennessee was also dropped. The law in both of these states forbids the teaching of evolution in publicly supported schools.

Dawes Plan for France

We have been saying that a Dawes plan for France was in preparation and the latest news confirms this. Under-secretary Winston of the government debt funding commission has sailed for France, and de Monzie, the new finance minister, has already proposed that the railroads and the telegraph and telephone service, which in France is part of the postoffice department, become private concerns.

Taxes also are to be increased on many staple commodities if the de Monzie plan is accepted. These two measures are characteristic of the Dawes plan and it matters little by what name the scheme is called in France.

The pressure by the House of Morgan is applied relentlessly. The French ruling class may complain, but they are learning the old, old proverb to the effect that he who pays the piper calls the tune.

The French capitalist class are now or soon will be, vassals of American finance-capital. They in turn have their own sphere of influence in Poland and Roumania, but the circle in which they can operate becomes narrower. French foreign policy will now become the foreign policy of the House of Morgan. The job of the French rulers now is to placate the masses, to prevent revolt against the new rulers—the American plunderbund.

It is always harder to rule for an overlord than to rule in one's own right and for this reason the extension of American imperialist hegemony over France creates new and great possibilities for the French Communist Party.

Help the Irish Famine Victims

The article by Comrade Robert Stewart, secretary of the Irish section of the Workers' International Relief which appears in another column should convince the most skeptical that the need for help to the famine situation in Ireland is more than serious and that it is the duty of the class conscious workers of the United States to do something, and that immediately, in order to save thousands of working class lives that are threatened by one of the greatest disasters that ever visited a country referred to by August Bebel as the "classic land of oppression."

The DAILY WORKER has kept the famine situation in Ireland before its readers since news of the distress first reached us. We have given publicity to the work of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee. We have done this not alone because we want to see the sufferings of our brothers and sisters in Ireland alleviated but more important still, because we want to see the workers of all lands get into the habit of helping each other instead of allowing the robber capitalists to pose as saviors in the eyes of their victims with their cautious and degrading charity.

No reader of this paper, and particularly no Communist, needs to be convinced there is no better way of bringing the message of international solidarity home to the Irish workers than by coming to their assistance in their hour of trial, particularly as the capitalist class and their agents in the press and in the pulpit are ignoring the agony of the famine-stricken. Let the workers of all lands help each other! When they learn to do this, they will also learn to fight on behalf of each other.

Money, Munitions and War

What manufacturer of steel products but is for bigger, better, bloodier and more expensive wars when he is shown figures giving the approximate cost of munitions in the next gigantic conflict?

The list of heads of heavy industry acting as an advisory ordnance board in co-operation with the war department includes such well-known patriots as Gary and Schwab, Tripp of the Westinghouse concern and Woodin of the American Car and Foundry company.

Coupled with the need for markets and military protection for the exploiters is the assurance that huge contracts for munitions at war prices will more than make up for any temporary interruption of business. Then there are the loans by the finance-capitalists under whose terms the cash advanced is used largely for the purchase of goods from the imperialist nation. With an enormous navy and surplus of goods at home, enormous quantities of liquid capital and complete control of the national government, our robber class plots and dreams of conquest.

That the Pacific cruise of the navy is more than mere show is obvious when we connect it up with the militarist propaganda of the capitalist press, the howling of the admirals and generals, the trial mobilizations and training camps and the meeting of the ordnance advisory board with its personnel chosen from heavy industry.

The finance-capitalists have not yet succeeded in stopping the flow of gold into the United States from every corner of the capitalist world. Out of a total of approximately $9,000,000.00 in gold and bullion one-half is in this country. It carries with it a constant danger of inflation and calls constantly for re-investment. Since the first of the year huge loans have been made, but these in turn have created new spheres of exploitation from which increasing profits are derived. The increasing amount of foreign loans force the American government more and more to make foreign policy its major concern.

The extension of the power of the United States increases the rivalry between it and Japan, it and Great Britain. World politics for American imperialism takes on more and more the character of a war for the extermination of competitors. War is politics carried to its logical and inevitable conclusion.

What is the task of the working class movement and especially of its most conscious section—the Communist Party? It is to utilize every opportunity to arouse the masses of workers and farmers of America to the danger and to establish and maintain the closest connections with the working class of the nations threatened by American imperialism for joint action against the enemy—the robbers and war mongers.

Texas Is Typical

The fight of the Negroes in Texas for the right to vote in the primaries preceding elections, the story of which we carried yesterday, is not a very clear one, but is indicative of the feudal status of the race in the south. A Texas primary election in which but one Negro votes is by that fact illegal. This puts it up to the authorities to use their best judgment, as the saying goes. It means that no Negro will be allowed within gunshot of the polling places.

In Texas as elsewhere in the former slave states the right of Negroes to vote is purely theoretical. They are completely disfranchised and consequently unable to take any advantage whatever of such privileges as the franchise gives. Southern politicians therefore felt it necessary to do anything for the Negro masses. The mild reforms that the white workers have been able to force affect the Negro not at all.

In spite of this the Negroes, by mass migration to the north, have been able lately to secure slightly more consideration from the southern landlords and capitalists. Not all of them can migrate, however, and at best the cessation of some of the worst forms of persecution forced by this method is only temporary.

Like the white workers were forced to do, the Negroes must organize in the north and south. They must establish in one form or another a centralized body to combat all kinds of racial persecution and its first task must be to force from the white working class a recognition of the Negro as an equal and an ally in all struggles of the working class.

A struggle like that in Texas must be broadened out and given a national character, the isolated efforts made by the Negroes must be connected up into one mass movement in which the class interests of the great majority of the Negroes, workers and farmers, are recognized as such and made the basis for the program of struggle.

The leaders in such a movement, indications of which are already to be seen, will come from the class-conscious section of the Negro masses—they will be Negro workers who know that neither their race nor the white workers can never be really free while capitalism lasts.

The Thompson Case

Constitutions and by-laws, precedents and decisions, mean nothing to the labor fakers of the Farrington type when it is a question of crushing the left wing to prevent its interference with the plans of the officialdom which in the United Mine Workers include a scheme worked in conjunction with the coal owners to drive 200,000 miners out of the industry.

The attempted ousting of Freeman Thompson, president of Sub-District 4 of District 12, by Farrington, cannot be justified by any law of or precedent established in the union. On the contrary, decisions on similar cases uphold Thompson and not Farrington.

Two decisions by Farrington and one by Wright, executive board member, made on March 12, 1922, April 21, 1923, and April 20, 1923, are specific in stating that the district office is without power to decide controversies arising out of sub-district elections. Yet Farrington rules that Thompson is not entitled to hold office.

Accustomed to official corruption for years, the miners have become cynical, but this last instance is a little too raw. Even the local to which Walker, the Farrington choice for Thompson's office, belongs has unanimously repudiated this action.

The Thompson case is one on which the membership will fight. It is so easily seen that behind Farrington are the coal operators who have not been able to bend Thompson to their will that the question is really one of the life of the union in Sub-district 4.

We do not believe that the rank and file of the miners in this sub-district, the most militant in Illinois, are going to let Farrington or anyone else wreck their organization.

The Thompson fight is a fight of the whole left wing.

The Australian workers are threatening to boycott the American fleet when it reaches there as a protest against the criminal syndicalism and sedition laws in the United States. World solidarity of the working class is not such a utopian desire after all.

British Leaders Urge Trade Union Unity

(Concluded from last issue.)

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith the last instalment of extracts from the Special Supplement to the Monthly Circular of the Labor Research Department of the British Trade Union Congress devoted to furthering world trade union unity.

The Special Supplement began with a preface by A. A. Purcell, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam) and is composed largely of original documents; correspondence between the Red International of Labor Unions and the Amsterdam right wing officialdom, reports of conferences, etc.

The publication of this Special Supplement, the very frank and militant announcement of its purposes by the president of the Amsterdam International, the complete exposure of the treacherous and disruptive tactics of the right wing which it contains, all are indicative of the tremendous hold that the slogan of World Trade Union Unity has gained upon the British trade union movement, the most powerful section of the Amsterdam International.—Ed. Note.

What Happened at Amsterdam

Meeting of the I. F. T. U. General Council, Feb. 5 to 7.

We have now taken up the story at the point where the official letter of the Trade Union Congress had been sent to the I. F. T. U. urging an unconditional and immediate conference. The general council had also before it, at this meeting of February 5 to 7, 1925, a telegram from the All-Russian Council of Trade Unions making a similar proposal. The members of the general council who had to reach a decision on these proposals were as follows:

Bureau:

A. A. Purcell, Great Britain, president I. F. T. U. (in the chair).

L. Jouhaux, France, Th. Leipart, Germany, C. Mertens, Belgium, vice-presidents.

J. Oudegeest, Johann Sassenbach, John W. Brown, secretaries.

Management Committee:

F. Bramley, Great Britain.
M. Buisson, France.
R. Steinhuis, Holland.
L. D'Aragona, Italy.
F. L. Caballero, Spain.
K. Durr, Switzerland.
P. Grassmann, Germany.
R. Tayerle, Czecho-Slovakia.
C. Madsen, Denmark.
S. Jaszai, Hungary.
Z. Zulawsky, Poland.

International Trade Secretariats:

A. J. Cook, International Miners' Federation.

E. Fimmen, International Transport Workers' Federation.

G. J. A. Smit, International Federation of Commercial, Clerical, and Technical Employes.

The discussion on unity in the international trade union movement was opened by a speech from Oudegeest, who put forward the following resolution on behalf of the bureau:

> The general council regrets that the Russian trade unions are not prepared to accept the invitation of the Vienna Congress to affiliate with the I. F. T. U.
>
> The general council regrets that the Russian organizations keep up their hostile attitude towards the I. F. T. U. and its affiliated bodies.
> The general council is of the opinion that everything possible has been done on the part of the I. F. T. U. to induce the Russians to come in; and that the bureau should be instructed to notify the Russian trade union center that we regard the whole question as finished; and that we should refrain from any further correspondence.

This rather wild proposal, which would have bolted and barred the door against any further attempts at international unity, was not, it appears probable from subsequent events, put forward except as a stalking-horse resolution. It enabled other resolutions or amendments of the right wing of the meeting to take on the appearance of a midway course by contrast with it; and when its purpose was served it was withdrawn without having been put to the vote.

After Oudegeest had spoken, Fred Bramley, in a long and masterly spech, put forward the British proposal for an unconditional immediate conference.

After a long discussion a new resolution was put forward by Steinhuis and Smit, which ran as follows:

Steinhuis-Smit Resolution.

> The general council of the I. F. T. U. after having examined the correspondence between the I. F. T. U. and the All-Russian Council of Trade Unions instructs the executive committee of the I. F. T. U. to inform the All-Russian Council of Trade Unions that the I. F. T. U. is prepared to admit the All-Russian Federation of Trade Unions, when they express their desire to this effect.
> The I. F. T. U. also declares itself prepared to convene a conference in Amsterdam with the All-Russian Council of Trade Unions with a view to an exchange of opinions as soon as possible after the All-Russian council intimates its desire to be admitted to the I. F. T. U.

The British delegation strongly opposed this resolution, and pressed forward their T. U. C. policy, which was supported in speeches by Fimmen, Cook, and Bramley in his reply. The British proposal was then voted on and defeated by 13 votes to 6. The six were: Purcell, Bramley, Cook, Brown, Fimmen and Madsen. A similar resolution moved by Durr met with a similar fate. The Stenhuis-Smith resolution was then carried by 14 votes to 5, Madsen voting with the majority.

The British delegation, making the best of a bad job, then moved that negotiatory delegates be appointed under the terms of the resolution that had been passed. After some demur this was agreed to, and the bureau, together with Bramley, Fimmen, Grassmann and Zulawsky, were thus appointed.

It should be noted that the press correspondents' letters dealing with the meeting (notably the Manchester Guardian) were tendencious, and in some cases the correspondents had clearly been supplied with misleading accounts of what happened. Thus much publicity was given to the story that Purcell had repudiated the idea of a world congress. Mertens at the close of the discussion proposed that this alleged "repudiation" be recorded on the minutes, whereupon Bramley made it clear that the British had not repudiated the idea of a world labor congress; but simply were against it being called immediately.

The Meaning of Amsterdam.

What exactly is the effect of the Stenhuis-Smit resolution, carried against the opposition of the British delegates? Its tone has nothing of the blatant hostility of the Oudegest-bureau resolution. What of its substance? It drops the previous stipulation as to formal acceptance of rules and statutes and substitutes therefore "the expression of a desire" as sufficient preliminary for admission of the Russians to the I. F. T. U. More, it says that once this desire is expressed, they are prepared to meet the Russians in conference. That is all.

But, to speak paradoxically, its substance is found rather in the things it omits. Thus it makes no mention of the world labor congress, it leaves out—a significant omission—any reference to the declaration of principles and policy sent by Tomsky at the I. F. T. U.'s request, it is silent on the question of Anglo-Russian relations (a matter on which Mr. Stenhuis had been sufficiently vocal), and, most important of all, it quietly ignores the existence of the R. I. L. U., Tomsky's repeated references to the R. I. L. U. and the known public attitude of the Russian Trade Union Congress in support of the R. I. L. U. That is to say, by this sudden omission of the central issues of the controversy, and by its bland acceptance of a conference provided the Russians join the I. F. T. U., the resolution appears to throw the onus and odium of rejecting such a conference upon the heads of the Russian trade unions, while in reality it represents a reversion to the die-hard position of early 1924.

This then would seem to be the substance of the resolution. Nevertheless it is not quite a reversion to the situation of nine months ago. There are differences, differences only of wording perhaps, possibly differences of emphasis and meaning. But the extent to which the position is really altered in any way from that of June last depends on what weight is given to these subtle differences by those concerned, by the trade union leaders of Europe. That is to say, the distance travelled since last June is not a fixed measurement, it is a question of interpretation.

How do they interpret it? Fimmen considers it to be a trap for Moscow, a resolution which under a specious appearance is really a wrecking motion, not a "compromise," but a defeat of the British and the Russians. On the other hand a more favorable opinion has been expressed on this side, that it is really a half-way house resolution.

The Right Wing Interpretation.

In such a case it is best to turn to those who backed the motion, who carried it and who presumably were acutely aware of its implications. Here we find at once that the right wing of Amsterdam have treated the resolution as a very smart piece of work, a satisfactory solution that gives them a victory over the Russian trade unions. Vorwarts, for instance, contained an article on Feb. 11, in which under the chuckling headline, "Moscow's Turn to Speak," they put forward the following interpretation:

> The decision of the general council of the I. F. T. U. to invite the Russians to a general conference, if they previously are ready to join the I. F. T. U., is a shrewd blow at the Bolshevik split-brothers. The entry of the Russian trade unions into the Amsterdam International must be preceded by their exit from the R. I. L. U.—which means the end of that body.

How do the French look upon it? Here we find that Jouhaux, chairman of one—and not the largest one—of the three Trade Union Confederations which divide the allegiance of the French workers, takes up a similar line to Vorwarts. In the course of a long article (in which he repeats the false report of the Bramley-Purcell attitude towards a world congress) he says:

> "The Russian trade unions have the opportunity to say in a concrete way whether or not they wish to enter the I. F. T. U.; they know that they must go out of the door of the R. I. L. U, and the question of a united front (which is behind the camouflage of the proposed world congress on unity) cannot be raised."

This attitude is put still more bluntly in the curt stipulation of Oudegeest (as reported in Vorwarts of Feb. 9):

> If they join the I. F. T. U., they must naturally leave the R. I. L. U.

Even more explicit is the interview given by Oudegeest to Het Volk on Feb. 9, where he sets forth his interpretation of the "compromise" resolution as follows (emphasis ours):

> I am heartily in favor of the Stenhuis proposal because the only alteration its acceptance would make to the position would be TO STRENGTHEN THE RESOLUTION OF THE VIENNA CONGRESS. The Congress of Vienna ordered us to enter into negotiations with the Russians on the basis of our statutes and principles. This, however, has been refused by the Russians who in its stead proposed with the backing of the English delegation—to have an unconditional conference. The answer given to that by the general council is, in short, the same as what has been proclaimed by us for years in speech and in writing, and what has also already been communicated to the American trade unions, namely: if you declare yourselves ready to affiliate with the I. F. T. U., then THERE IS A POSSIBILITY OF DISCUSSING WITH US THE REGULATING OF POSSIBLE POINTS OF DETAIL.
> So the general council has not only approved of the attitude of the bureau. It has taken a further move: either to reach unity THRU THE AFFILIATION OF THE RUSSIAN TRADE UNIONS TO THE I. F. T. U., OR TO MAKE AN END OF THESE FRUITLESS NEGOTIATIONS—fruitless till now thru no fault of ours—as I proposed in my opening speech.

Thus, to sum up, it is abundantly clear that to the right wing of Amsterdam the resolution of Feb. 7 is being interpreted—and presumably will be acted upon—as a return to the obdurate attitude of a year ago and as a snub to the unwholesome activities displayed by our Trade Union Congress in the cause of unity.

Decision of the British T. U. C. General Council.

The whole situation had to be discussed by the general council of the Trades Union Congress at its meeting of Feb. 25 and 27. Various alternative courses were open to them. Their own basic policy was clear. It had been laid down in Mr. Bramley's letter (quoted above) on Novembe. 17. There was no need for recrimination. The question was simply that of choosing the immediate steps that would eventually lead to the fulfilment in the most fruitful way of that basic policy.

After full discussion it was resolved to remit the whole question to the standing international committee of the general council, whose duty it would be to meet the representatives of the Russian Trades Union Congress, and discuss with them the difficulties arising out of the Stenhuis-Smit resolution.

Up to September, when the Trades Union Congress will be held, and the whole course of the unity negotiations since the Hull Congress will come under review, the progress of relations with Moscow and Amsterdam will now depend largely on the steps taken and the policy pursued by the ten representatives of the general council who, together with is officers, make up the international committee.

YOU can have this valuable material on world trade union unity, together with the summary of the report of the British trade union delegation to Russia in 1924, in one pamphlet for your files. This way you can always have ready for reference this important publication of the Labor Research Department of England.

Faust Last Opera Rendered by San Carlo Performers

By ALFRED V. FRANKENSTEIN.

The San Carlo Opera company wound up its week run at the Auditorium last Sunday night with a much slashed up performance of Faust, in the Gounod version. Two scenes, those of the cathedral and of the bracken, were cut out completely, and other scenes, such as the one in which occurs the chorus of soldiers, were reduced to only a fraction of their original length. And yet this had to be. For Faust was written to be given under Parisian conditions, where opera begins early and is over late, and not for production under Chicago Auditorium conditions, where opera begins late and is over comparatively early. At that last Sunday's performance was nearly three hours long.

The opera was excellently cast. There was a splendid sense of teamwork among the five principals. All the pricipals were good. Pietro de Biasi as Mephisto perhaps stood out a little more than the others. He has has large physique and the compelling and powerful voice for the part. Bianco Saroya has the voice of Marguerite, which part she sang, but the figure of a Brunnhilde. At that she is so graceful that when five-and-a half foot Marguerite fell into the arms of four-and-three-quarter-foot Siebel it did not look funny.

Mario Valle, a baritone with a voice that shakes buildings, made Valentine a man and not a demi-god. Great work! Demetrio Onofrei, who is a gifted tenor, somewhat over idealized the role of Faust.

It seems as if Gounod could not conceive of two principal tenors on the stage at the same time. So he made the part of Siebel, Faust's rival for Marguerite, a contralto role. Now nobody is ever fooled into believing that Siebel is a boy. Mary Kent, who did the part last Sunday, looked like a nice, pretty, little girl, and her singing of the flower song in the second act, next to Biasi's rendition of the "Song of the Golden Calf" was the best individual performance of the whole show.

There were some remarkable things in staging there. For instonce, in the first scene, old man Faust, the ascetic, the philosopher, wore a brown monk's robe and under it white kid shoes and white silk stockings! And the victorious army with which Valentine is associated must have numbered twenty.

Well, the San Carlo is gone. Their performances are good. Their singers are good. Let us hope that when they return next year they stay longer and play to better houses.

WOMAN'S PLACE WITH COMMUNISTS

By LEO KAMENEV.

TO be truly free, women must first of all be free from the trammels of household drudgery.

It is only as a full-fledged producer and fellow fighter within the ranks of the workers' army that women will win their complete emancipation. Therefore, women's place is in the only revolutionary party—the Communist Party.

AS WE S[illegible]

By T. J. O'FLAH[illegible]

LAST Sunday's issue [illegible] York Times gives Emm[illegible] three-quarters of a page t[illegible] spleen against Soviet Russia. No doubt Emma got well paid for her diatribe. Even in her youthful days, before she became corrupted by the good things the capitalist system can still offer its useful servants, she did not hold the money of the bourgeoisie in the same contempt she pretended to hold their goverament. She always lived in comfortable circumstances and most of her friends were from the upper and upper middle classes, who got an emotional kick out of her crazy rantings.

WHAT angers Goldman now more than anything else is the report made on present conditions in Russia by the British trade union delegates of which the responsible leader, A. A. Purcell, was chairman. Purcell is head of the British general council of trade unions. Their story does not suit the renegade anarchist, so she pours out a vicious torrent of abuse on the workers and peasants of Russia.

• • •

WHAT this intellectual prostitute says is not of much importance now. She had her day. But it is significant that the anarchists, capitalists, yellow socialists and labor fakers are now howling in chorus against the British trade unionists, who have discovered that the Communists of Russia are not the monsters pictured by the enemies of the working class but are sincere revolutionists and capable administrators who have refused to bow the knee to mammon or desert the cause of labor in face of the most tempting offers ever dangled before human eyes.

LET the Goldmans, Abramoviches and their new-found allies among the capitalist class, rave! The report of the British delegation indicates that the temporary successful campaign of lies waged against the Soviet government has now outrun its course. The gas bag of falsehood has been punctured. Where the shoddy intellectuals and the sex radicals saw only the incidental accompaniments to a great social upheaval, the trade union leaders saw the big fact of the workers coming into power, over one-sixth of the earth's surface.

THAT is the thing that counts, and while they did not find a Utopia in Russia, they found the workers cheerful and facing the future with undaunted courage, the kind that took them victoriously thru the greatest event in human history. Soviet Russia is on the way up, while the capitalist system and its myriad stoolpigeons are on the way down. Emma Goldman is on the same train.

IN the recent by-elections which took place in the south of Ireland or what is known as the Free State, the government won a substantial victory the republicans winning only two seats out of eight or nine. The labor party candidates were decisively defeated. In the northern government, however, the workers had better luck or perhaps more sense if electing labor party candidates can be considered good fortune. Belfast is the stronghold of tory reaction in Ireland. It is the home of the linen and ship building lords and of the whiskey barons.

THE final count in the elections shows that the unionists or orange faction secured 32 seats or seven less than in the previous elections; all other parties getting 20 mandates, including three labor candidates. The republicans won two seats. The significant thing in the elections is that this is the first time that the workers of Belfast elected a working class candidate on any kind of a labor ticket in a national election. When the Free State was created and Belfast was cut off from the rest of Ireland George Bernard Shaw predicted

REDS IN ITALY GAIN STRENGTH AMONG WORKERS

Print Newspapers in Spite of Violence

By CARL BRANNIN

(Federated Press)

MILAN, Italy, April 8.—While the Communist Party of Italy has not been outlawed by statute the repressive measures of the Mussolini government has resulted in its being driven underground to the extent that open headquarters are not maintained and all meetings are held surreptitiously and with picked members present.

The socialist parties (maximalist and reformist) still operate guardedly in the open but the Communist know that the party machinery would be broken up by the fascisti if they could get their hands on it. Communist papers are printed subject to the policy of frequent confiscation, which applies to a greater or less degree to all anti-fascist publications.

Communists Gain Strength

This is the situation as stated to the Federated Press by G. M. Serrati, editor of Il Sindacato Rosso, Communist weekly and M. Malatesta, editor of Unith, Communist daily.

"In spite of this bad state of affairs," said these workers, "there is an encouraging growth of Communist sentiment in working class circles. The waiters and wood workers are

HINDENBURG IN RACE FOR TEUT PRESIDENCY

Urged to Run by the Former Kaiser

HANOVER, Germany, April 8.—It was a private message from the fromer Kaiser Wilhelm that it was the "only way to save the nation" which influenced Field Marshal von Hindenburg to reconsider his decision and decide to become a candidate for the presidency April 26, it was said here today.

Added to this was said to be the insistent argument of Admiral von Tirpitz that Hindenburg was "the only man able to defeat Marx," the republican.

Tirpitz and Hindenburg.

Von Hindenburg's acceptance was announced following a conference between the veteran general and Admiral von Tirpitz, at Hanover. The monarchistic forces had persuaded Germany's "grand old butcher of the sea" to prevail upon the "grand old butcher of the army" to take the step it was believed would bring victory to the nationalists.

It was only with an effort that von Hindenburg was persuaded to enter the race. His refusal was first reported, then his reconsideration, then again his definite refusal. Even today, before his acceptance of the candidacy, he was reported to have told von Tirpitz:

"I am too old to accept such a difficult and responsible post."

Von Hindenburg will oppose Wilhelm Marx, former chancellor and candidate of the republican coalition.

Commenting on Hindenburg, the newspaper Boersen Zeitung said:

"Hindenburg was renowned for not harboring illusions concerning our strength during the war. How can any one believe he is going to dash headlong into military adventure the moment he becomes president of the republic? He knows too well that Germany is completely disarmed and might be overrun by France any moment, besides the French as heretofore control our armaments."

JACQUES SADOUL, FRENCH RED, IS ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF HIGH TREASON BY A MILITARY COURT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ORLEANS, France, April 8.—Captain Jacques Sadoul, French Communist, who was accused of high treason and desertion from the French army to the Soviet Russian forces, was acquitted by a court martial here today. The vote was four to three for acquittal.

Sadoul went to Russia in 1919, and objected to the counter-revolutionary plots of the French government against the workers and peasants of Russia. Sadoul protested against the French aid to the Polish army, and the French and British backing given the white guard generals.

Sadoul remained in Soviet Russia. The French declared him a deserter from the French army, and a military court sentenced him to death. Upon the recognition of Soviet Russia by the Herriot government. Sadoul returned to France at the same time that Krassin went to Paris as the Soviet ambassador to France. He was immediately arrested.

EXPULSION OF ROY FROM PARIS STIRS INDIANS

Communist Deported at British Demand

MADRAS, India, April 8.—The expulsion of the Indian Communist M N. Roy from France by the Herriot government, at the request to the British imperialists, has stirred the workers and peasants of India to protest.

The independent weekly Navayuga, published here, declares, "However much Chamberlain protests and asserts to the contrary, it is evident that he made representations to Herriot, and the latter, without the least scruple of conscience or prestige or national honor, served as a henchman of the British government, carrying out to the very letter the instructions given behind the scenes."

Intrigue of French-British

"It is disgraceful to see the shameful acts of the pseudo-socialist premier. Capitalism knows no morality or national honor, its octopus grip holds the whole world tightly."

The Indian press has widely commented on the expulsion of the Communist Roy from France. One dispatch to the London Daily Herald which was reprinted in the Navayuga and other papers advocating emancipation of India from British imperialism states:

More To Be Deported

Comrade Roy was expelled from France by an order issued on Jan. 3 by the French minister of the interior, without any reason being given for the expulsion. The order was significant, in view of the conference of Austen Chamberlain with Premier Herriot only a few days before. Other Indian's will be expelled from Paris, it is thought. Comrade Roy was conducted to the French frontier on Jan. 30.

Mrs. Roy, a daughter of the American, David Starr Jordan, will be expelled soon, it is thought. In the Cawnpore trial Mrs. Roy was referred to by the chief justice as "a woman believed to be of American nationality, and calling herself Evelyn Roy, who is living with this M. N. Roy and is understood to be his wife."

Mrs. Roy married M. N. Roy in California, nine years ago.

HERRIOT FACES CRISIS WHEN SENATE DENIES CONFIDENCE VOTE AND FINANCES COLLAPSE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 8.—The situation of the Herriot government was acute tonight.

The senate failed to give Premier Herriot a vote of confidence during a debate on the education budget. First tallies showed the vote to be 142 to 140 in favor of Herriot, but a recount established that the vote of confidence had failed to carry. An urgent meeting of the cabinet was called to decide what action should be taken by the government.

Bank of France Near Ruin.

The action of the senate was parallel with a declaration by the newspaper Liberte that the Bank of France was secretly inflated three billion, three hundred million francs over the legal limit of forty-one billion francs.

De Monzie "Law" Hid Up.

Senator Berenger was reported to have told the senate finance committee, which was considering the de Monzie proposal for a ten per cent voluntary or enforced levy on all wealth, that the bank has "emissioned more than two billion francs over the legal limit."

The committee was unable to reach an agreement to accept Finance Minister de Monzie's law and it recessed until Thursday.

Crisis Today.

A crisis is looked for today when the statement of the Bank of France must be published. It was reported that the bank regents had demanded that the government force thru a law legalizing an over emission of one and one-half billion francs.

False or Illegal.

When it became apparent that the bank's weekly statement tomorrow must be either false or illegal, it was said, the regents were reported to have threatened to resign. Finance

Painters Active on Their Picket Lines in Capital Strike

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Between 200 and 300 union painters took out traveling cards from the Washington local on the second day of their strike to establish the $10 daily wage. The Master Painters' association issued notice that it would hold the jobs open for two days only, and that it had an abundance of non-union labor ready to taken the places of the strikers if they did not quickly yield. Not a union man went to work, except for independent employers who agreed to pay the new scale.

In order to bring the fight to a head as quickly as possible, the union decided to place pickets at the railway station, to get in touch with would-be strikebreakers before they should begin work. Other pickets will talk to the men who are recruited locally.

COOLIDGE TO NAME FOUR NEW MINISTERS TO FOREIGN POSTS

WASHINGTON, April 8—(FP)—American ministers to Finland, Roumania, Siam and Albania are soon to be named, following recent resignations. A minister to China and one to Persia have been selected, thereby emphasizing the changes in posts near the Russian frontier.

SCHOOL TEACHER COUNCILS ENDED BY THE BOARD

The recommendation of Superintendent of Schools McAndrew putting the teachers' councils entirely under his control and eliminating the voice of the teachers in public school affairs was passed by the board of eductaion at its meeting yesterday. Only two board members voted against the proposal, which ends the long fight of the teachers for participation in control of the schools.

A recommendation to the legislature was made by the board that teachers be compelled to retire at the age of 70 on a small pension.

The recommendation was made by Superintendent of Schools McAndrew as an economy measure. McAndrew explained that there are 61 teachers 70 years old working in the public schools, two of whom are 83 years old.

The board members laughed at the idea that women as old as 70 years still work as teachers. The matter would have been tabled had not Miss Hefferan urged the board to recommend the move to the legislature at Springfield, and this was finally done, without enthusiasm, in order to get rid of the measure.

Vice-President of the board of education Grace Temple made the motion to approve McAndrew's plan, and Mrs. Jahanna Gregg seconded the motion. All the board members except James Mullenbach and J. Coath voted to abolish the power of the teachers' councils.

OHIO-PENNSYLVANIA OPERATORS DECLARE THEY WILL BREAK THE JACKSONVILLE AGREEMENT

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 8.—The long standing dispute between the United Mine Workers of America and coal operators over the so-called Jacksonville wage scale agreement flared into the open here this afternoon when operators representing the most powerful interests in the Ohio-Western Pennsylvania bituminous fields flatly announced their intentions of attempting to break the agreement.

Union Stands on Agreement.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 8—"The United Mine Workers of America will stand by the terms of the Jacksonville wage scale agreement and demand that other parties to the agreement do likewise," Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the miners' organization, declared this afternoon when informed of the reported intention of Ohio and western Pennsylvania operators of abrogating the agreement.

Further than this, Kennedy would make no statement as to what action would be taken by the miners' organization in the event of the operators breaking the agreement.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was out of the city.

Word of the operators' determinations came from officials of the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association and the Pittsburgh Coal company, and followed an earlier statement from Ohio and western Pennsylvania operators.

SOLDIER SENTENCED TO 26 YEARS AT HARD LABOR FOR RED IDEALS

HONOLULU, April 8—Private Walter Trumbull, 24 years old, of the 21st infantry band, was sentenced to 26 years at hard labor for being a Communist by a general court martial at Schofield Baracks, near here.

There were five "charges" against Trumbull, all of which were based on evidence that Trumbull defended Soviet Russia.

Private Paul Crouch was recently sentenced to forty years in prison for the same "offense."

Both soldiers were "dishonorably discharged" from the army.

MINE STRIKE IS NOW FIFTY PER CENT EFFECTIVE

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 8—The strike called by the United Mine Workers of America in the northern section of West Virginia as an effort to unionize all mines in this state has resulted in an approximate 50 per cent reduction in work, Van A. Bittner, personal representative of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in charge of strike operation, declared today.

Extending the Strike.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., April 8—Extending the West Virginia mine strike orders into the Pan Handle field, it was estimated today that eleven of thirty large non-union mines in the United Mine Workers of America sub-district extending from here to Wheeling were idle as a result of the strike called by Frank Ledvinka, president of the sub-district.

Mining company officials denied the strike has perilously hampered production but union statements claim it is one-third effective.

UNION LAWS ARE TORN TO SHREDS BY FARRINGTON

Rulings Changed to Suit His Purpose

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 8.—In order to build up their flimsy case against Sub-district President Freeman Thompson, usurping this position for one of his henchmen, District President Frank Farrington had to act directly contrary to rulings made incidental to miners' union elections two years ago.

This is clearly pointed out in a statement issued by John J. Watt, sub-district secretary-treasurer, in calling attention to the rulings that have been made in the present attack on Thompson.

Rulings Then and Now.

In the rulings regarding the elections two years ago it was held that the sub-district organization had jurisdiction in controversies over its own elections.

Thus District Executive Board Member Carl Wright in a written decision to J. E. Russell, of Harrisburg, Ill., March 12, 1923, declared that "any controversy arising over a sub-district election must be settled within the confines of the sub-district organization."

He declared, therefore, that he had no jurisdiction in this case. But now this same board member, Carl Wright, not only supports President Farrington in helping to take the present Sub-District No. 4 controversy out of the hands of the sub-district organization, but he actually accepted and acted as a member of the district subcommittee that considered this matter in violation of the laws of the organization.

Later when the Harrisburg, Ill., coal miners appealed from the decision of Board Member Wright, declaring he had no jurisdiction, the board upheld Wright, and it was President Farrington who signed the letter to Harrisburg miners stating that the district board had no jurisdiction. Here are Farrington's own words over his own signature:

> "I advise that I presented this appeal to the district board and that body decided that the state organization is without authority to in-

South Slavic Worker Arrested on Warrant of Deportation

Yesterday morning Stephen Zinich, a South Slavic worker of Chicago, was arrested upon a deportation warrant charging him with "illegal entry" into the United States, distributing leaflets and other offenses similar to the criminal syndicalism laws and the decrees of labor union bureaucrats.

Zinich was taken to the federal building, but was released later upon $1,000 bail furnished by the Labor Defense Council.

YELLOW SOCIALIST LEVIN GANG, BY TERRORIZING MEMBERS AND OFFICIAL PLOT, EXPELS SEVEN

In a packed hall packed particularly by the Levin gangsters who intimidated the great bulk of the 750 members attending until they did not dare to vote against the gang, and therefore did not vote at all, the Levin gang of Local 39 of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers put over the expulsion of seven leaders of the left wing, under the guise of an "indefinite suspension."

Expelled by "Indefinite Suspension."

The members thus expelled by "suspension" on purely political grounds, as admitted by Hyman Schneid, the chairman, are Philip Aronberg, Max

RED BAITING A. F. L. BUREAU IS CLOSED

No Longer Subsidized by Bosses

By LAWRENCE TODD
(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Its bureau of information and publicity is to be permanently closed by the American Federation of Labor on April 15, Secretary Morrison concedes. Chester M. Wright, who established the bureau some years ago, and whose resignation was accepted in March, is to be followed in retirement by Oliver Carruth and the secretarial staff. So ends—for the present at least—the organization created at federation headquarters to counteract the influence of the "extremist" press.

Funds for this bureau were contributed by international unions, and much of its work was done by employes of the federation. In its office, also, was done much of the work of the International Labor News Service, of which Matthew Woll was the official head. Where the I. L. N. S. will now be conducted, and how, is a matter with which federation officials in Washington say they know nothing about.

Wright a Paid Steel

At the time this service was launched there was active hostility to the Federated Press among certain officials of the federation, and it was thought that a semi-official news service, which could get its editorial work done free by salaried employes of the federation, would be a fine idea. The promoters remembered the generosity of the Wilson administration thru its secret propaganda fund voted by congress during the war, toward the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy. Wright had been a salaried official in that venture, which was launched to discredit the socialists and other pacifists and labor radicals. Government money had come easily and had been very welcome. Then it had stopped coming.

All Under Fire

After the war, industrial struggle soon wiped out the memory of these anti-radical efforts by the federation chiefs. Every labor group, however conservative, was under fire from organized business. The information and publicity service established under Wright's direction, in a room adjoining that of President Gompers, was maintained to give publicity to Mr. Gompers' pronouncements upon strikes, court decisions, political crises, wage movements, and frequently upon what he considered the crimes of Soviet Russia. Copies of these statements were sent to all newspaper correspondents in Washington. At the same time, digests of the news of the day were made up, and sent to all officers of international unions having offices in Washington.

It is pointed out at headquarters that henceforth President Green will issue statements to the press when he thinks it desirable, but he will do it directly and at less cost. Signs indicate that Green is not going to talk much, except from the platform.

Morgan Influences German Elections.

BERLIN, Germany, April 8—Gustave Stresseman continues to hold out against Gen. von Hindenburg as the candidate of the right coalition. Stresseman threatens to throw the support of the industrialists to Dr. Marx, candidate of the catholic-socialist alliance, if Hindenburg becomes a candidate on April 26.

Stresseman objected to Hindenburg on the ground that his candidacy would "create an unfavorable impression abroad." Stresseman is an upholder of the Morgan-Dawes plan.

Paris Chamber Gives Woman Rights

PARIS, April 8.—A bill passed by the chamber of deputies gives women the right to vote in municipal elections and to hold municipal office. A bill similar to this was passed by the chamber in 1919 but was defeated in the senate.

IRISH SPEAKER TO ADDRESS BIG FAMINE DEMONSTRATIONS IN NEW YORK, CLEVELAND AND CHICAGO

NEW YORK, April 8.—On Wednesday, April 15, at Central Opera House, 285 East 67th street, Jack McCarthy will tell the story of the starvation of the Irish workers and peasants. McCarthy is coming from the famine district, where 750,000 workers and peasants are suffering from the pangs of hunger. The capitalist press has no information on this terrible state of affairs. The British papers interested more in the crushing of the Irish rebels than in the stilling of the hungry stomachs, keeps silent. The Free State government interested more in exterminating every vestige of freedom on the part of the Irish workers and peasants, declares that the situation is not serious.

The hunger of 750,000 workers and peasants is not serious to the Free State government, which has just passed a "hanging bill," which will send to the gallows any worker who continues the fight for Irish freedom; which will send to prison for five years any workers who possess any information regarding a rebel and do not divulge it to the "Free" State government.

750,000 men, women and children are starving—and their American brothers and sisters must help. Workers of New York, attend this meeting which has been called by the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee, New York Section, 108 E. 14th St. The other speakers will be E. Gurley Flynn, Joseph Manley, Ben Gitlow. Collect funds in the shops and unions. Solicit among the fraternal organizations. Help must be sent at once—the need is very great.

In Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, April 8—John P. McCarthy, from County Kerry, Ireland, will be the principal speaker here on Sunday afternoon, 2:30, at an Irish famine relief demonstration which will be held in Laborers' Union Hall, 1028 Walnut street. Admission is free.

The Chicago Meeting.

The Chicago division of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee has arranged a meeting for Irish famine relief in North Side Turner hall, on the evening of May 8. John P. McCarthy, who has recently visited the famine region in the west of Ireland will be the principal speaker. McCarthy, who is a native of County Kerry, spent several months in that section of the country and can give a first hand story of the situation in Ireland at present.

Arbitrary Ratings of Government Wage Workers Stirs Union

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Luther Steward of the National Federation of Federal Employes led the denunciation of the present system of rating of federal employes, at the recent three-day session of the executive council of that union in Washington. Other members of the council, from distant parts of the country, joined in his demand that the new congress provide safeguards for the employes against the discriminatory rulings which affect especially the 60,000 clerks in Washington.

It is "vicious and unfair," Steward said, that instructions have been issued in various departments that not over three per cent of the employes shall be rated as high as 95 per cent, and only seven per cent of them be rated between 90 and 94.

While the union urges that the personnel board be abolished or stripped of its power, the head of the civil service commission has replied by declaring that the formation of a personnel division under his board, in charge of one man, is impossible. It does not want that authority, which the union wants it to accept at the hands of congress.

In the hostile attitude of the president of the commission is seen the influence of the White House, where unions of federal employes are most unpopular.

Copenhagen Docks Burn.

COPENHAGEN, April 8—Fire on the Guttenburg wharves today had destroyed twenty boats including several racing yachts.

MAY DAY MOVIE CELEBRATIONS

Many Workers Party branches and united front committees are making sure of mass attendance at their May celebrations, giving motoion pictures a prominent place on their program. Thus Denver is running "The Beauty and the Bolshevik"; Gleason, Wis., "Russia and Germany"; Bentleyville, Pa., "Polikushka"; and Milwaukee, Wis., "Prisoners for Progress," all on May Day, May first.

On April 30, Toledo, O., is running "The Beauty and the Bolshevik," and on May 2, Daisytown, Pa., is running "Polikushka."

"The Beauty and the Bolshevik" showing in Los Angeles has had to be postponed thru the action of the theater owner, it will be shown a few weeks later than originally announced. The show at Tacoma, Wash., announced for April 19, has also suffered postponement thru trouble with the censors.

However, this film will be shown for a second time in Chicago, at the Wicker Park Theater, 1139 Milwaukee Ave., on April 15. It will also be shown in Newark, N. J., on April 19.

"Polikushka" and its companion films will be shown in St. Louis, Mo., April 12, at Unity Hall, Grand and Page. A series of nine dates are being arranged in the Pittsburgh district.

"Russia and Germany" will be shown in Cincinnati, Ohio, on April 21, and in Sheboygen, Wis., on May 20.

Any working class organizations looking for a sure way to draw a record breaking crowd, should inquire about these pictures to the International Workers' Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Illinois.

COTTON MILL BARONS MEET AT CAPITAL TO GLOAT OVER OPEN SHOP

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Cotton mill barons, organized as the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, have met in convention in Washington to discuss their need for a higher tariff and their triumph in cutting wages, increasing the production per mill operative, and their success in defeating the child labor amendment to the federal constitution.

Minister de Monzie is said to have dissuaded them from resigning.

PARIS, April 8.—The socialist caucus today proposed not to support the de Monzie bill providing a capital levy or forced loan, as a means out of France's financial difficulties, until the socialist plan for a capital levy has been defeated by the finance committee of the chamber of deputies.

In fact, counter propositions and numerous proposed amendments to the new finance minister's measure threatened to delay debate in the chamber on it, originally scheduled for this afternoon, until Friday. The chamber finance committee met again at 3 p. m.

Digging for Gold.

Henry Pate's proposal to invoke the league of nations' aid in unearthing French capital invested in the United States and Great Britain occupied unofficial attention in chamber corridors today. There was no confirmation available for the report that lobby gossip severely criticized former Finance Minister Clementel for the crisis. It was reported that after Clementel rejected terms offered by J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York for a new French loan, as too disadvantageous, Speyer & Co., of New York offered France a loan on better terms.

According to the report, Clementel flatly refused to consider the Speyer offer.

Deny Report.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Representatives of the banking house of Speyer & Co., flatly denied that former Finance Minister Clementel of France had been offered a loan on any terms or for any purpose.

PARIS, April 8.—The chamber of deputies' financial committee was unable today to agree on the acceptance of Finance Minister de Monzie's plan for the financial relief of France and it adjourned until Thursday. Meantime a sub-committee will draw up a new plan based on the de Monzie proposal.

The financial committee's revised plan will be submitted to the Herriot cabinet Thursday night or Friday morning.

JOE WISE IS WORRYING OVER MEAL TICKET

Sees Sweet Pie Card Gone with I. L. N. S.

Joseph Wise, local correspondent for the International Labor News Service, fears that he may have to go to work. It is true, that "Joe" is now drawing a nifty salary, but it must not be assumed that he does any work in return. In fact, all his job calls for is that Joseph turns out his weekly quota of lies about the Communists and Soviet Russia and cash his check in the nearest soft drink parlor.

But the wise Mr. Wise may not be such a wise guy after all. He hitched on to Gompers' band when the old master was about to play his last tune. Chester Wright and the other older and more experienced stoolpigeons have made their pile, and can afford to take a vacation until "somethin' turns up" as Mr. Micawber would say. But Joe was only starting in, at the writing game.

Out on a Shovel.

Our readers are already aware of the action of President Green in getting his broom and shovel and cleaning out his predecessors' scribblers from the nice offices they occupied in Washington. Green is of the opinion that when he wants to express himself, he can do so more economically and perhaps more clearly, by direct messages from his headquarters than by letting the Gompers tools do the job for him. Green is getting rid of Gompers' stoolpigeons. He has his own boys to take care of.

Another Tornado.

A cyclone struck the old Gompers' hanger-on in Washington. Wright is out and Matthew Woll may have to attend to the business of looking after the interests of the photo engravers. The big wind is traveling in the direction of the Windy City.

Wise's latest feat was an interview with Abramovich arranged thru the Jewish Daily Forward's so-called labor editor Siskind. The buffoon wound up by asking the yellow socialist what assistance was rendered to him in his tour by Ruthenberg and Foster.

Joe May Go to Work.

There is something pathetic in seeing a faker worrying about his meal ticket. Of course, Joseph is a linotype operator and he once held down a job in the DAILY WORKER Publishing company's plant. He accepted Communist cash and didn't seem to be bothered. He may go back to the job of tickling the keys again. But it is tough, when he had such a nice sinecure where the use of brains was superfluous. And Joseph is shy on gray matter. He is now as disconsolate as Mungo Park in the Congo jungle without "a mother to bring him milk or a wife to grind his corn." Bet Joe is grinding his teeth.

LOCAL SECRETARY OF FASCIST PARTY WAS A COMMUNIST, POLICE SAY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, April 8.—Following a raid by fascist police at Boccheggiano, a mining center in the municipality of Montieri, Tuscany, the fascisti announced that Polando Bartolini, secretary of the local branch of the fascist party, has for a long time been secretly a member of the Communist Party.

MAGNUS JOHNSON SUES POLITICAL OPPONENT FOR CHARGING HIM WITH SUCCUMBING TO WILES OF BACCHUS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 8.—A. N. Jacobs, campaign manager for Senator Thomas D. Schall in the recent elections, was arraigned today on a criminal libel charge, sworn out by Magnus Johnson, former United States senator whom Schall beat in last fall's race. It involved charges that Johnson had been arrested, convicted and fined in Minneapolis two years ago for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

Edited Scandal Sheet.

Jacob it was said, admitted he was editor of the new magazine, Scandal—The Naked Truth, and author of the lead story in which Johnson was attacked.

"Magnus Johnson Steps Out," was the heading of the story. The story told of "sweet and unsophisticated innocence embarking on the tempestuous sea of life" and said that "poor Magnus, world-wise on his farm, was but a babe when once he nestled in the arms of that fair temptress, fate."

Wine, Women and Song.

It hinted at not only wine, but women, saying "It didn't take him long to learn the Nat Goodwin-Lou Tellegen tricks which made these gentlemen famous as the world's great lovers."

The story charged that Magnus was arrested May 7, 1923, while he was a candidate, and that the following day he pleaded guilty and was fined.

Jacobs demanded preliminary hearing, which was set for April 14.

Denies Drunkenness.

After the arraignment the ex-senator said:

"While I am astounded that Jacobs should publish such a libel about me now that the election is over I guess I shouldn't be surprised at anything from that crowd. That was the way they licked me last fall.

"The charge that I was arrested for being drunk is on a par with the charge made by Schall in the last campaign that I had accepted a bribe for advocating the world court and I was guilty of other crimes."

Robert Burns Poems Bring $8.365

LONDON, April 8.—A collection of poems which brot Robert Burns $95.60 was bought by the Rosenbach company of Philadelphia for $8,365. The collection is one of the finest existing copies of the Kilmarnock edition of poems and in Scottish dialect.

Times Change! A New Voice is Heard in the Assault on Capitalism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, there is no surprise registered when it is announced that Ida M. Tarbell, erstwhile crusader against Standard Oil, is to write a laudatory biography of Elbert H. Gary, head of the steel trust.

Trust busting was the sport of many magazines a score of years ago. It got circulation. The names of Ray Stannard Baker, Ida Tarbell, Charles Edward Russell and Lincoln Steffens became almost as popular as those of winning prize fighters and star ball players. Retribution was to be visited upon the malefactors of great wealth, so the masses were told. But what has happened?

• • • •

Look around on the news stands today. Where McClure's, Everybody's and Pearson's once appeared in great stacks, there are now to be found the latest movie magazines, the sex thrillers and the cheap fiction periodicals. You may run the whole gamut from "The Smart Set" to "Jim Jam Jems" and not find a single kick against conditions as they are today. All is meek and humble approval, in one jazz tune or another.

• • • •

That shows what money can do when it gets busy. Magazines that couldn't be crushed thru the withdrawal of advertising patronage, were purchased outright and then put to sleep forever.

Ida Tarbell says her change of front has been upheld by no less a body of judicial venditti than the United States supreme court. It upheld her attack on Rockefeller's trust by dissolving Standard Oil, and now she may write fulsome laudations of Gary because the same gang of capitalist law interpreters declared the United States Steel corporation was not a monopoly within the meaning of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Ida Tarbell would have unsuspecting readers of 1925 believe that the evils of monopoly under capitalism in 1902, when she attacked Standard Oil, had become the blessings of centralized industry and robbery under the U. S. Steel decision of the supreme court in 1920. But no such change took place.

Instead the power of the great trusts grew to such an extent that they not only gagged the magazines, but have a death-dealing clutch on the throat of the daily press as well. The American periodical press today, monthly, weekly and daily is but the echo of the voice of its master—Capitalism. Ida Tarbell, like the others, have accepted this development. They have not opposed it. When Ida Tarbell writes favorably of Gary today she sells herself to "the system" that she fought 23 years ago, when she attacked Rockefeller. "The system" hasn't changed, except to grow stronger, more vicious. Ida Tarbell has changed. She has gone the way of all petty bourgeois writers and politicians who do not understand "the system" they profess to hate. They end by falling in love with it, and openly, brazenly embracing it.

• • • •

McClure's Magazine is to be revived in May to give the Tarbell articles a fitting vehicle in which to appear. They will later be published in book form to help celebrate the 25th anniversary of the organization of the steel trust. Gary will be lauded as a man who rose from the farm to the head of a billion dollar corporation, and, in the words of the New York World, "permanently placed his name on the map of the United States at Gary, Indiana.

That word "permanently" takes in a long space of time. Ida Tarbell may write a lot of piffle today about Elbert H. Gary, head of the steel trust, who lives in his marble palace on Fifth Avenue, in New York City.

But there is today a Communist press in America growing in power that sears the Gary system, which is also the Rockefeller system, with the white hot iron of working class truth.

The fishermen of a French seacoast city recently renamed the open space in the center of their town—"Lenin Square." That is permanent. That French town has a Communist administration.

So "Gary, Indiana" will in time be renamed. The steel workers will not read Ida Tarbell's new book. But they are reading, in increasing numbers, the Communist DAILY WORKER, the Communist WORKERS MONTHLY, and a score of Communist publications in foreign languages.

Times change. The aimless attack, offering no solution, against capitalism a quarter of a century ago, is replaced today by the well organized, keenly directed assault, with a theoretical and practical program thoroly worked out, of the Workers (Communist) Party in America, and of the Communist International the world over.

The Tarbell-Gary propaganda today falls on deaf ears. The workers are awakening to the call of the social revolution.

Union Laws Are Torn to Shreds By Farrington

terfere in the matter and that it is one that must be settled within the confines of your sub-district organization."

President Farrington notified Secretary Greener Smith of Local Union No. 448, of Springfield, Ill., of a similar decision in a letter written April 23, 1923.

There Decisions Are Forgotten.

These decisions have now been forgotten. Farrington's district board not only took up the Sub-District No. 4 election controversy and made a decision unseating President Thompson and declaring John A. Walker elected, but in reaching that decision it refused to listen to the representatives of the local unions involved, any member of the sub-district board of tellers that officially declared President Thompson legally re-elected, or to President Thompson himself.

Thus the Farrington-Lewis regime in the miners' union tears the laws of the organization to pieces in order to achieve its own rotten purposes. In the face of such an attack President Thompson has refused to vacate his office, and is carrying his fight to the union membership in a great mass meeting to be held here at Reservoir Park this Sunday.

JAMES CRAIG, ORANGE LEADER, SUFFERS SEVERE SET BACK AT POLLS IN NORTH ERIN ELECTIONS

DUBLIN, Ireland April 8.— Latest returns from Friday's election compiled today gave the unionists thirty seats in parliament; independent unionists four; nationalists eight; republican two and labor two. Six constituencies are missing. Premier Sir James Craig lost seven of the sixteen Belfast seats.

Joseph Devlin, for years a nationalist leader, won the highest vote of any individual candidate. Colonel Woods, one of Craig's foremost opponents polled an unusually large vote.

OPEN SHOP WAR BEGINS IN CAL'S OWN BALLIWICK

40,000 Unionists in Fight at Capital

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Refusal of 30 members of the local union of stone cutters to work with a boss who has no union card has resulted in immediate dismissal of all members of the union, who were employed by the president of the local master masons' association, William McLeod. Officers of seven other building trades which have, like the stone cutters, demanded an increase in wages, believe they also may face a lockout. The stone cutters were told their union would no longer be recognized.

Dismissal of the stonecutters took place in violation of an agreement reached less than 24 hours earlier, at a meeting attended by over 100 speculative builders, subcontractors and financial and real estate men, that they should jointly resist any increase in building wages. A committee to carry out this ultimatum to the building trades unions was selected, after it was made clear that the meeting would not propose any other action against the unions than the resistance to higher wage scales.

Forty thousand men are involved in the impending struggle beginning with the painters. The steamfitters are asking a raise from $10 to $11, of date May 31. The plumbers ask the same raise for May 7. The rubble stone masons want the same figure for April 1, and the cut stone masons for April 6. The millworkers are also demanding a raise, as are the plasterers.

Threats were made some weeks ago that the speculative builders and subcontractors would be lined up with the bankers in a fight to break the building trades unions and depress the wage scale. This move was apparently hit upon as an alternative to the enactment of rent-control legislation, to impress upon government employes the interest of the administration and local business in their welfare.

that the orange workers of Belfast would take care of their orange leaders. The return of three labor candidates in this great industrial city means that the workers are coming to their senses. This is a welcome development which will no doubt be watched with keen interest by the workers in the south of Ireland.

SCOTLAND YARD has made another amazing discovery. The "Yard" can discover almost anything except a real crime. But it is expert in running down fake plots for the very good reason that 99 per cent of those originate in that institution. But the latest "discovery" of Scotland Yard is a colossal counterfeiting plot planned in Moscow to wreck the capitalist system by issuing hundreds of thousands worth of bogus bank notes. So far the Workers (Communist) Party of America has not been credited with receiving any of the money but perhaps the Federation News has been sleepier than usual of late.

THE purchasable scribes who lie for pay in the capitalist press never tire of telling us that the absence of commercial relations between the United States and Russia does not hinder trade between the two countries. But a news story in this same lying press confutes the contention. Captain I. Kulagin of the Soviet freighter, Watslaw Vorovsky, which recently docked at Savannah, Ga. had to pay a port surcharge of $2,672 to United States authorities because the United States refuses to officially recognize or have anything to do with the Soviet government. This is certainly not an inducement to trade.

THE T.U.E.L.

Represents the Left Wing of the Labor Movement. Its Purpose is to Strengthen the Labor Unions by Amalgamation of Existing Unions, Organization of the Unorganized, and by Replacing Reactionary and Class Collaboration Policies with a Unified Program for the Transformation of the Unions Into Organs of Revolutionary Class Struggle for the Overthrowal of Capitalism and the Establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government.

CAUSE AND KIND OF INTERNATIONAL LABOR UNIONISMS

Pre-War Internationals Did Not Act

By A. LOSOVSKY.

General Secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

The ideological difference which existed in the trade union movement and the factional struggle within it found their expression also within the organisational struggle, and the last, in its order, found its expression in the International which was created before the war. The careful study of these various factions within the trade union movement will give an explanation—why the beginning of war was also the beginning of bankruptcy of the world-wide union and socialist movement.

What is the difference between the labor movement and the other forms of social movements? First of all, it is an international movement. Capital played a big role in making it an international movement, if not by creating the same conditions of labor, as least by the same forms and methods of exploitation, which were the forerunners of the creation of international organisation for the working class. Thus, the necessity of creating international organisation—Internationals—was growing as long as capitalism was expanding into new countries. It was growing also because capitalism itself has been becoming more international and called forth as a power against itself the international labor organisation.

Capitalism Forces Internationalism.

What are the characteristics of the 19th and the beginning of the 20th centuries? In that time capitalism created new organization for better exploitation, it created new combines, trusts, syndicates, etc., in which it concentrated its power, thanks to which is was able to hold down the working masses. All that, and the development of capitalist exploitation beyond the border of the given nation, forced the working masses to such forms of unity which would also extend beyond the borders of the separate country, which would unite the workers independently of this belonging to one or the other nation or state.

Thus, the growth of capitalism, the growth of forms and methods of capitalist exploitation, the growth of the centralized state, the progress of technique, the means of communication, etc., all together forced the working class to seek new forms of connections in order to be able, by centralized effort in a united fight to compel consideration from the employers.

Internationals—But Not of Action.

But, notwithstanding the great necessity of a struggle in a united front, on an international scale, neither the international trade union movement nor the political movement had risen to united international action, altho they did create political and trade union internationals.

Hazleton Painters Strike.

HAZELTON, Pa., April 8—Hazelton union painters are striking for $1.12½ an hour. Bosses offered to renew the old agreement providing only one dollar hourly.

Brockton Bricklayers Raised.

BROCKTON, Mass., April 8.—Brockton bricklayers win an increase to $1.25 an hour from $1.12½ in a new agreement. Other building trades stand pat on old wages.

Painters May Join Strike of Building Workers in Boston

BOSTON, Mass., April 8.— Strikes of a thousand plumbers, lathers, electricians and gas fitters for $1.25 an hour to replace the $1.10 previously paid may be buttressed in the next few days by similar walkouts in other building crafts.

The painters' union, with its 2,200 members, will take the issue up at a special meeting. Building laborers membership will next be polled.

The painters would demand wages similar to those of the other crafts and the building laborers 80 and 90 cents an hour in place of the 65 and 70 cents previously paid.

VAN BITTNER LOST MANY MINERS' STRIKES

By ALEX REID

Evidence of the growing power of the left wing in the U. M. W. of A. is seen in the organizational gesture of Lewis, Murray and Bittner in West Virginia. A very feeble attempt at organizing is the method employed, "an advertisement in a capitalist newspaper calling on the workers to organize and strike for the provisions of the Jacksonville agreement." Van Bittner is on the ground—a forerunner of defeat if he is left there. It is safe to say that whatever Bittner has attempted as the lackey of Lewis, he has made a failure of, outside his "successful" campaign of expulsions.

The Alabama strike, under the direction of Bittner, petered out, a complete failure thru mismanagement by Bittner and the treachery of the Lewis gang. As a result, the conditions of the Alabama miners today are horrible and becoming worse.

Bittner's Kansas Record of Treachery

Bittner's infamous work in Kansas will long be a stench in the history of the American miners. Likewise, the dirty work in the Collinsville field of Pennsylvania.

And this same representative of the Lewis gang is once more among the miners, this time in West Virginia. Not because of any initiative or desire of Lewis or Bittner to organize, but solely because of the response to the appeal for organization by the Communists, progressives, and militants made directly to the miners in and around that field.

Progressives Encourage Rank and File

The work of the progressive miners in Pennsylvania, and the success of their program in spite of drastic opposition by the machine, has acted as a stimulus to the miners everyhere, who, in the face of monumental obstacles, are on the verge of revolt.

Ably supported and led by the progressive miners, Communists and militants, it promises to be a struggle of major importance, which may draw in the whole of West Virginia, Kentucky, and Alabama.

The progressive miners will attempt to broaden this battle front, and as the Jacksonville agreement is being violated and held in contempt and scorn on every hand by the operators who signed the same, it becomes the duty of Lewis to call out every union miner in America and lengthen the battle front across the nation and make the fight an intelligent one with a demand for nationalization of the mines with control by the workers, and no settlement until this is accomplished.

John L. Lewis, the campaign committeeman of the Wall Street candidate Coolidge, will not perform his duty in this respect to his class. No general strike for him. The miners must not interfere with the sacred "order" of capitalism. But the progressive miners, with the aid of the Communists and militants will fight on and eventually bring the struggle of the miners on a solid front to victory.

"FIGHT THE REDS" SAYS PACKER AS SLAVES LOSE PENSIONS; LET BOWLING, BOOZE KEEP 'EM TAME

By TOM MATTHEWS,

Member of Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen.

"Bolshevism has some supporters in this country. Let us watch ourselves that the red does not get a foothold here—that is our job today," General Manager E. S. Waterbury, of Armour and company, is quoted in the capitalist press as having told the Omaha concord club.

Waterbury's words are symbolic of the new policy of the meat packers. "Anything to keep 'em from getting militant," is the new slogan.

So we should not be surprised that no effort is made, on the packers' part, to clean up the bootleg joints and gambling dens which thrive off the workers in every great packing center, and in which loaf the stool-pigeons hired to keep watch over the thoughts of the wage slaves. Is not the slave safer "shooting craps" or swilling "corn" than he would be if meeting in his union hall to discuss his conditions of life?

Of course, not all the slaves spond their idle hours in such joints, so these must be provided with some equally effective stimulant. Bowling leagues, moving pictures, club rooms, sermons, baseball, or what have you?

Pensions Too Costly.

The pensioners of Morris and company have had the doubtful pleasure of losing their "rights" as the result of the recent Armour-Morris merger. If an old employe must be taken care of, is it not cheaper to let him tend door at half-pay?

The foremen and superintendents of the old Morris company were quite generally "taken care of" thru either their retention in the old plants or their transfer to Armour plants. No responsibility was recognized, however, toward the pensioners.

Hold of Skilled Workers Broken.

Altho skilled butchers are still sought for to some extent, they no longer have the strategic hold on the meat packing industry which they once enjoyed.

Division of labor on the "Ford system" as applied to the operations in butchering and preparing meats, has made it possible for the packer to get by when necessary, with comparatively unskilled labor. This was proved in the 1921-1922 strike when green farmer boys were given knives and placed on both killing and cutting floors. Teaching a single, specialized operation is a different proposition from apprenticeship in the entire science of butchering and preparing a beef or porker.

So in the strike, the packers pushed the foremen and straw bosses into the gangs along with the scabs, filling up on the less particular operations with unskilled workers whom they managed to get into the plants.

"Skill" is, of course, valuable and preferable, but the packer proved that in an emergency he can get along with very little of such.

The "Ford" System.

Meat butchering operations are strikingly like those in use in the Ford plants. The beef carcass, for example, moves along on rails by motive power from one worker to the next, each performing his particular operation. When the "beef" leaves the killing floor it is ready to ship out as halves and quarters or to be sent to the cutting floor where the same specialization is in evidence.

This specialization, with its resulting cost reduction, has sounded the death knell of the little "independent" packer. The last independent plant at Omaha, of any size, was but recently sold over the auction block.

The small plant cannot employ the specialized methods and machinery of the big packer; neither can he utilize the by-products as efficiently. Consequently, the output of the "independents" is becoming infinitesmal, except from those which are really owned or controlled by one or another of the "Big Four."

NOTE:—Subsequent articles will deal with the Negro in the meat packing industry, and other problems of organization.

Readers of the T. U. E. L. page who work in packing plants should write of conditions and organization possibilities.

A. F. of L. Leaders Drag Unions Into Insurance Business

NEW YORK, April 8.—The New York Central Trades and Labor Council has arranged a conference with Samuel Untermeyer on insurance administration, as the council intends to go into insurance business on a large scale, as per the order of the El Paso convention of the A. F. of L.

This like the labor banking, and the buying up of mines and other property by the various unions, is designed to increase the policy of class collaboration and to strengthen the power of the labor bureaucracy.

With the new offensive of the capitalists in this country the labor leaders who preach class collaboration, and submitting completely to the rule of the bosses and becoming their open allies, in their efforts to increase the exploitation of the American working class. Of course they chose the road that leads to their being called one hundred per cent Americans, and to membership in the Civic Federation.

Instead of the class struggle, they now enter into the banking and insurance business, as a further means of fooling the workers by new methods.

NEW YORK CITY BRICKLAYERS HAVE FAKERS

Officials Aid Scab Manufacturing

By UNION BRICKLAYER.

NEW YORK CITY—The executive board of the Bricklayers' Union of Greater New York is elected by groups or clans of different denominations, the Knights of Columbus leading, the smaller fish in the rear struggling after fallen crumbs.

The presiding officer protects their actions at all meetings because they are members of the different clans, hoping some day to become president of the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International Union of America, the position now occupied by the labor traitor, Mr. Bowen.

Gets Pay from Both Sides.

Next in line comes the walking delegates who do very little walking and not much talking either for or to the workers, only when they wish to use the workers for their personal interest. Of course they get their salary from the union for the faithful performance of their duty, and also another salary from the masters, for the faithful performance of seeing that the bosses have no trouble and placing fines on the disobedient workers.

The scale of wages is $1.50 per hour for a few men, the minority are apprentices, boys, and receive on an average 65 cents an hour—and the union officials see to it that the masters have plenty of boys.

The masters' organization, with the assistance of union officials, have manufactured seven thousand apprentices in the past three years and are clamoring for more, so they can cut the few $1.50 an hour men off, and make sure of success in the coming open shop drive they are going to make in the near future.

Scab Factory Aided by Union Officials.

For instance, during the month of March, a Mr. Mahoney, representing the apprentice manufacturing department of the masters' organization, canvassed the different local unions, asking the privilege in flowery speechs of getting "more good boys" for the masters.

He was given the right by our "worthy" officials, who took great pleasure in condemning any worker who attempted to ask any questions of the masters' stool pigeon while in this performance of his duties. That is a hot one, isn't it?

The rank and file in this union, as in others, must organize a strong and fighting left wing to make the union a real instrument of the class struggle. A bricklayers group of the Trade Union Educational League is badly needed.

Conservative Des Moines, Ia., to Hear Snyder

DES MOINES, Ia., April 8.— The Iowa Packing company will go over the auction block and no doubt will fall into the hands of one of the "big four." The Iowa, an independent house, recognized the Butcher Workmen as the employes' organization and continued to pay the war-time wage scales.

The onward march of trustification and amalgamation is hitting even into Des Moines, the "Mecca of little business."

The Des Moines unions are naturally strong and conservative, due to the prosperity of "little business."

The street car men have a splendid three story auditorium, where even the dog show is held, also the large conventions. The unions affiliated with the Trades and Labor Assembly are preparing to erect a new labor temple.

The building trades of Des Moines have just signed up for the previous or advanced wage scales and expect a busy season. Of course, not many far-seeing militants are to be found where the unions are in such fortunate circumstances.

J. E. Snyder believes, however, that education is of no harm to even the most conservative of unionists, so he has arranged to lecture at the Street Car Men's Auditorium, 109 West 8th street, on Sunday afternoon, April 26, at 2:30 p. m.

Admission will be free and all Des Moines unionists are urged to attend.

Scranton Painters Get Raise.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 8—Painters' Local No. 218 has won a dollar a day increase in the agreement negotiated with the master painters, bringing the wage to nine dollars a day.

SHOE WORKERS OF LYNN FIGHT FAKE UNION

"Boot and Shoe" Union Under Boss Control

By M. SHARAF.

LYNN, Mass.—The scab Boot and Shoe Workers' "Union" has definitely announced its coming to Lynn, in spite of its frequently reiterated promise not to attempt to do so unless the majority of the Lynn shoe workers expressed themselves in its favor thru a refrendum vote.

The present agreement between the Amalgamated and the manufacturers ends April 30. The Boot and Shoe Workers' "Union," in spite of the activities of its underlings in the ranks of the Amalgamated, did not get the required five locals to call a referendum vote.

Failing to secure a referendum, the locals favoring the B. & S. notified the Amalgamated and the manufacturers that those locals would not be party to any agreement drawn up by the Amalgamated.

Unity Against Reaction.

The militants within the ranks of the Amalgamated know that once the B. & S. gets into Lynn, it will mean the end of their common rights. These workers succeeded in forming a bloc including the stichers, cutters and edgemakers, to combat the B. & S., and the open shop drive.

The first gun was fired at the stitchers' mass meeting. Among the speakers were De Liberty, national organizer of the S. W. Protective Union, and O'Brien, former member of the B. & S., but now leader of the Brockton strike against the B. & S.

O'Brien is now a member of the International Amalgamation Committee of the shoe and leather industry.

Brockton Workers Oppose B. & S.

It was brot out at this meeting that the Brockton shoe workers (the stronghold of the B. & S.) are on the verge of another revolt against the latter organization.

If the Lynn shoe workers were to join the B. & S., their action would discourage and weaken the fighting groups both within and outside the B. & S.

The Forward Advertises the B. & S.

The advertisements in the Lynn Press and the yellow Forward by the B. & S. were ridiculed and severely scored. In the words of O'Brien, the only difference between the open shop and the B. & S. is the twenty-five cent weekly dues.

Your correspondent told De Liberty that the Protective made a serious mistake last year when they turned a deaf ear to the demands of the Lynn shoe workers to call a joint convention of their organization and the Amalgamated for the purpose of merging these two unions.

If that had taken place, Lynn would not be in its present predicament. As it is, both the Amalgamated and the Protective are in danger. This lack of co-operation has helped the cause of the B. & S. and discouraged the many Lynn shoe workers with attempts to get amalgamated.

The Protective's Opportunity.

Since the start of the fight between the Amalgamated and the B. & S. the vast majority of the latter organization has again been favoring a combination with the Protective. The Protective could save the situation, and help bring about the amalgamation of all shoe unions.

The locals in Lynn favoring the B. & S. have never been self-sustaining. The B. & S. would be taking on a liability instead of an asset by granting them charters.

Those acquainted with the make-up of these locals predict that it would not take long before the B. & S. would take away ther charters, and put them in the notorious "local zero."

Under the constitution of the B. & S. a local that cannot sustain itself may have its charter taken away, and have its business agent appointed by the fakers to run the business of the local.

The militants of Lynn are active in spreading the truth about the B. & S and are planning to call another mass meetinng under the auspices of the T. U. E. L.

Labor Movement in Great Falls to Fight Crooks

GREAT FALLS, Mont., April 8.—The Federal Labor Union is no longer affiliated with the Cascade county Trades and Labor Assembly as a result of the action taken by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in lifting the union's charter on recommendation of the stool pigeon Paul Smith.

This professional disrupter ordered the union to break up into several fragments and when the membership refused to do this the charter was revoked. In a letter to the central body, the Federal Labor Union gives official notification of the withdrawal of its delegates. The letter refers to the cordial relationship that existed between the federal union and the local assembly and regrets being compelled to sever the connection.

WEST VIRGINIA MINERS LOYAL TO THE UNION

But Don't Applaud the Labor Fakers

FAIRMOUNT W. Va., April 8.—It is rumored that John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers may come to the strike field in this district, according to reports circulated at the meeting of miners in Clarksburg. This, however, is scoffed at by some miners who say that Lewis never gets in sight of a strike when he can help it, and never stays longer than to make a speech and take the next train.

There is still conflicting news as to the number of men out in the strike area which is designated as the northern West Virginia field.

30,000 Men Employed in Field.

The northern West Virginia coal field comprises twelve counties with principal operations in Monongalia, Marion, Harrison and Taylor counties. Various estimates place the number of miners employed in the field at from 27,000 to 30,000.

Union leaders placed the total number of miners in the field at from 25,000 to 27,000 with the claim of 18,000 union miners. Operators' representatives gave an estimate of 30,000 miners in the field with a claim that 18,000 are non-union miners.

Scab Scale $3 Below Union.

Union mines have been operating under the Jacksonville agreement which provides $7.25 for day labor. Non-union mines have been operating under the so-called 1917 agreement which provides $4.56 for day labor, it was learned from operators' sources.

It was said that there were variations from that scale at the different operations. The scale, it was said, varied at the non-union operations but that generally it conformed to the 1917 scale.

While all union men are supposed to be out, the operators contend that no more than 4,500 are out in both union and non-union mines and their controlled sheets boast that the strike will increase the non-union tonnage produced and, in their words, "The rest of the field is expected to slowly turn non-union." Union representatives declare, none the less, that 95 per cent of the union men are out.

Union Loyalty Strong

However, the outpouring of masses of miners at Morgantown, Clarksburg and Fairmount illustrates the deep hold of unionism in the hearts of the West Virginia miners, who surely deserved something better than they received from William Green, president of the A. F. of L., Van Bittner, international organizer of infamous Kansas memory and the preacher who opened their meetings with prayer.

The meetings which celebrated the twenty-seventh anniversary of the eight-hour day in the coal mines, were addressed by the above "leaders", and the Morgantown stadium was packed with thousands of the rank and file of the union miners, their wives and children, while parades were held with banners flying. In one instance the American flag was carried upside down, which caused the patriots to report the matter to the police.

Loyal to Union—Not to Officials

The applause given to Green and Van Bittner was, however, rather weak, in spite of the spirit shown by the miners and their families, the largest applause being given Van Bittner only when he said that the United Mine Workers' Union is in the local coal region to stay. The enthusiasm of the miners is for the union, not for Bittner or Green.

The head of the A. F. of L., while speaking, blithely ignored the fact that the preamble of the U. M. W. of A. calls for the socialization of industry, and proceeded to contend that organized labor is as much if not more loyal to capitalism than are the coal operators. He said, in part:

Green's Bid for Class Collaboration

"We believe in giving the employers the right to own, manage and control their properties. We are not the enemies of capital or private enterprise because we are American to the core. We believe in American business, but we demand a fair and just consideration for organized labor." Green omitted to say who ought to set the standard of "fairness" and "justice" or how it could be enforced.

Van Bittner, in a speech fairly slobbering with "law and order" protested against the use of the horde of mine guards and company gunmen, but gave no suggestion of how to stop the system which is legalized by the control over sheriffs and all other law and authority by the coal companies. In fact the companies maintain sheriffs on their payroll and have their gunmen deputised in under that they may commit murder by legal mission.

Expects Government to Abolish

Bittner on this subject said, "I faith in the people and the gov ment of this state, and I feel ce that they will rise in their might forever abolish and obliterate the men in West Virginia."
The miners gave amazed audi to this interpretation of the gov ment which is controlled lock, s and barrel by the coal operators ing in its might" to overthrow mine guard system. And their pu ment increased when Bittner adv
as follows:

Bittner Says "Help the Sheriff."

"It shall be our ambition to a the sheriff and other officers to m tain law and order, and I trust the sheriff will tell the non-u operators that they cannot use ar gunmen to coerce and intimid striking miners or evict families f company houses without due pro of law."
This novel idea of expecting she who are paid by the coal compa
to arm and deputized their gun and lead them against strik aroused not one handclap from crowd of 5,000 miners and their milies, who too well recalled that only time the field was organize was at the muzzles of their W chesters.

DILERS PROTEST POLISH WHITE GUARD MURDERS

hiladelphia Masses Pack Big Hall

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 8—mmunists and sympathizers turn- out in full force at the protest eting called by the Workers Party d the I. W. A. against the white rror now reigning in Poland. The ge auditorium in the Grand Frater- y Hall was jammed with workers o came to hear the story of the Po- h white guard efforts to hang Com- de Lanzutsky and the outrageous urder of the two soldiers, Bag- sky and Wierczorkiewicz.

Walter Koniuszeski spoke in Polish d was loudly applauded when he nounced the Polish terror and de- anded that the workers of the world se in protest against the latest out- ges of the Polish government.

Comrade Ludwig Lore spoke in Eng- sh, outlining the background of the olish white terror and pointed out l the present and past adherents of e Second International who are ac- ively supporting and participating in hese outrageous efforts to murder the ommunist leaders of Poland. Lore specially stressed the point that hite terror is not confined to Po- and but is rampant thruout Europe, nd cited a number of cases in Ameri- a, among them the Michigan cases, he Mooney-Billings case, Sacco-Van- etti and numerous others.

After the speakers concluded, a orker from the audience introduced he following resolution which was carried unanimously by a thunderous ote.

Resolution Adopted.

"Whereas, the Polish white guard overnment, thru its bloody police guards has foully murdered two Com- munist prisoners, Baginsky and Wier- csorkiewicz, while they were on the way to be exchanged for two Polish spies captured in Sovjet Russia, and

"Whereas, the murder of these two Communists has been preceded by numerous arrests and murders of Communist leaders and is being followed up by a series of blood-thirsty persecutions, arrests and outright murders of workers who adhere to Communist principles, therefore be it

"Resolved, that this audience protest against the Polish white terror and call upon the organized workers of the world to demand the immediate release of all working class political prisoners in Poland."

Communists and Chinese in Joint Meeting.

Next Sunday, Israel Amter will speak on the far eastern situation, with a representative of the Kuomintang who will speak in the Chinese language. The meeting will be held in commemoration of the death of Sun Yat Sen, the leader of the Chinese revolutionary movement. The meeting will take place in the same hall.

The Workers Party in Action

THE WORKERS OF AMERICA

Should be the leaders, and the proud leaders, of the world's workers in celebration of May Day. The workers of America started the observance of May Day 39 years ago, when on the first of May in 1886 three hundred and fifty thousand workers struck work with a demand for the 8-hour day.

Thirty-nine years ago the workers of America struck against in- humanly long hours and miserable pay. Shall we, today, be less courage- ous? Shall we be slaves, submissive and cowardly, in the face of attacks by the capitalist class upon our wages, hours, and rights? Never!

The first of May is an international holiday of labor—the International Labor Day of all the workers of all the world. On the FIRST OF MAY workers of every race and language in every nation will join with the workers of America in demonstrations of power and in demands upon the capitalist class.

Convey this May Day message to the American workers. Distribute the May Day leaflet, "DOWN TOOLS ON MAY DAY." Order them from the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. Price: $3.00 per thousand. Do not wait until too late.

COMMUNISTS KILLED IN THE CAUCASUS MOURNED BY CHICAGO ARMENIANS

The Armenian Branch of local Chicago, Workers Party of America, mourns with profound sorrow the untimely accidental death of Comrade Alexander Miassnikian, former President of Soviet Armenia, late chairman of the presidium of the Federated Socialist Soviet Republic of Caucausus and secretary of the Caucasian Communist Party, and also expresses its great loss in the deaths of Comrades M. Otaleoff and M. Mokiofske, who, together with Comrade Miassnikian met their deaths on the 23rd of March, 1925, in an airplane accident at Tiflis, the capital of the Caucasus.

Cedar Rapids Workers to Hear W. P. Speakers at Two Big Meetings

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., April 8—J. E. Snyder and Tom Matthews will address two mass meetings in this city on the 22nd and 23rd of April.

The exploiters of labor are powerful here, packing house workers receiving 37½ cents, women as low as 16 cents. Special publicity efforts will be made to bring the workers to these meetings. The Wednesday, April 22 meeting will be held at Z. C. B. J. Hall, 1200 S. 3rd St., East, at 7:30 p. m. and the Thursday, April 23rd meeting at Labor Temple, 2nd St. and 1st Ave. at 8 p. m. Admission free.

Miners to Learn W. P. Program.

MORAN, Iowa, April 8.—The miners of Moran and vicinity will have an opportunity to learn the program and purpose of the Workers (Communist) Party, when J. E. Snyder and Tom Matthews speak here Saturday evening, April 25, in Merinech's Hall.

The miners of this locality are wide-awake and progressive and consequently a good sized audience is expected at this meeting. No admission will be charged. Bring your friends along.

Zeigler Branch Is Planning Big May Day Literature Drive

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

ZEIGLER, Ill., April 8.—The Zeigler branch has made arrangements to hold a May Day demonstration on May 1. We will distribute 2,000 leaflets, 500 copies of the DAILY WORKER and 200 May Day buttons. Our next meeting will be Sunday night, at 6:30 p. m., April 12. All members are requested to be present as some very important business has to be cared for.

There seems to be a better spirit here at this time. Several new members are being taken in. We are putting on a membership drive in which we hope to double our membership. A large task but not at all an impossible one. Let's all start now and bring in one new member each and the job is done.—Hy. Corbishley, Secretary.

Philadelphia Workers to Add Their Mite to Sacco-Vanzetti Defense

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 8.—The Sacco-Vanzetti committee of Philadelphia will give a grand symphonic operatic concert on Saturday, April 18, at Public Hall, 7th and Morris streets. The well-known Malizia's band of forty members and conducted by Dionisio Malizia have been engaged. Come and help defend Sacco and Vanzetti.

Dairy Commune in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—There is now being organized a Poultry and Dairy Co-operative in Los Angeles, the purpose of which is to go to Russia at some early date. All those interested will communicate with John Gibbs, 710 W. 28th Street.

Demonstration for Free Speech to Be Held in Wilkes Barre

WILKESBARRE, Pa., April 8.—The Workers (Communist) Party will hold a May Day demonstration in Wilkes Barre to again test the question of free speech for Communists, it was announced by Pat H. Toohey, subdistrict organizer of District No. 3.

After successfully winning the previous fight, and establishing the right of Communists to hold meetings, local Communists are forced to again fight for the freedom of speech in "democratic" America. Several weeks ago, the Wilkes Barre Russian branch arranged a mass meeting and secured a speaker from the Russian federation of the party. The meeting was interfered with, as was the previous Lenin memorial meeting, by police, and county detectives. The speaker was threatened with arrest, heckled by the police and other lackeys present until it was impossible to continue the meeting.

A few days after the meeting, a member of the Russian branch was arrested on the street by one of the policemen present at the meeting and fined $112 when hauled before the magistrate. The grave offense he was charged with was that "he said the American flag could go to hell; the red flag is my flag and I'm a Bolshevik from my feet up." The correct story is that the policeman stopped the comrade and in a provocative manner opened a quarrel.

May Day in Wilkes Barre, therefore promises to be a hot time for the Communists are determined not to tolerate the interference of the American legion, police and detective departments and other lackeys of the coal operators.

Paterson Strike Film to Be Shown in St. Louis, Mo.

As an added attraction to the big movie program to be given in St. Louis, Mo., on April 12, there will be pictures of the recent Paterson silk strike, one of the well known "DAILY WORKER Film Editions." The idle mills are shown with policeguards in front of them, then the strike meeting, the leaders, the picket line, the relief committee, as well as a glimpse of the conditions against which the workers went on strike.

The main feature of the program will be the famous Moscow Art Theater film, "Polikushka," starring Ivan Moskvin, and the two reel Russian slapstick comedy, "Soldier Ivan's Miracle." The show will be given at Unity Hall, Grand and Page, on April 12.

Workers' Movies Invade Sheboygan, Wisconsin

The active committee for International Workers' Aid of Milwaukee, Wis., is branching out into new territory nearby and expects thru a gala movie program at the Sheboygan Opera House on May 20th, to extend its activity to this bustling manufacturing city and farm center. In view of the large German element the film shown will be the eight reel topical "Tale of Two Republics"—"Russia and Germany," photographed by William F. Kruse in a 10,000 mile trip thru these two countries.

Weeks Gets Better

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Secretary of War Weeks, who suffered a slight stroke, "is showing continued improvement," his physicians announced today.

PRESENT CLASS WAR DRAMA AT INDIANA HARBOR, IND., APRIL 19

A performance, concert and dance will be given by the Workers Party, Local Indiana Harbor, Ind. Sunday, April 19, at Turner's Hall, 3809 Main St., Indiana Harbor, Ind. A drama of the class struggle "The Striker" by L. Rinehold will be staged. A good time is promised to all.

Comrade Peter Herd of the Young Workers League of America will speak. Dance starts at 5 p. m., performance at 7 p. m. Admission 50 cents.

PARTY AND Y. W. L. GENERAL MEMBERSHIP MEETING IN BRONX

NEW YORK, April 8.—A general membership meeting of party branches and of the Y. W. L. of Section Bronx will be held in Wednesday, April 15th at 8 p. m. sharp at the party headquarters, 1347 Boston Rd. This joint section meeting is of great importance. It is held for the purpose of organizing the party and Y. W. L. members who work in shops into shop nuclei.

Comrade Ben Gitlow as the shop nuclei organizer of District No. 2 will be at this meeting to give us a general presentation of the idea of shop nuclei and their application.

In addition to the reorganization work we shall have a discussion on the library and its inauguration by the section. Comrades, do not let the delay in holding this meeting interfere with your attendance. Please come on time and bring your party and Y. W. L. membership cards with you.

Jeannette Pearl to Lead Discussion on Family at Forum

NEW YORK, April 8.—One of the most interesting topics taken up at the Harlem Forum will be discussed this coming Sunday evening, April 12 at the Harlem section headquarters, 64 East 104th street. Jeanette Pearl will lead the discussion on "The Family—Past, Present and Future." Comrade Pearl who is especially interested in the woman question will treat the subject from that angle. As the question has many phases the discussion promises to be highly interesting.

The Harlem open forum is soon drawing to a close. There will be only two more discussion nights, Sunday, April 19—The Capitalist, Labor and Communist Press. Discussion led by Ludwig Lore; Sunday evening, April 26—Proletcult—discussion led by Eli Jacobson.

Ray Ragozin Will Teach in Harlem.

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Harlem section of Local New York, Workers Party, has been fortunate in securing the services of Ray Ragozin to teach a class in fundamentals of Communism, every Friday evening at eight, beginning with the coming Friday evening, April 10. Comrade Ragozin is a very able teacher of many years of experience. She is also a thorough student of Marx. Those attending this class will profit a great deal by it. The Harlem section which is doing extensive educational work gets only the best and most competent comrades to handle any subject.

Organizers Are Not Born They Are Made!

We Quote Wm. Z. Foster:

"... it is particularly appropriate to point out the field opened up to us by our English language daily paper for the development of organizers and for the organization of our party.

"Obviously one of the best ways to build the membership of the party is by building the circulation of the DAILY WORKER. In fact it is so obvious that in all too many instances this way of making the party grow has been overlooked altogether.

"But, although it is quite generally understood that by building the DAILY WORKER we are also building the Workers Party, it is not so generally understood that in extending the circulation of the DAILY WORKER there is an open road to the development of organizers for our party.

"Organizers are not born. They are made. They are products of active participation in the daily struggle. They are made in the process of doing real organization work.

"In our party we will develop the necessary organizers by putting the membership, so far as possible, systematically to work upon organizational tasks. There is no better school for organizers than in the building of the DAILY WORKER.

"This does not consist of filling the columns of the DAILY WORKER with theories of organization, but in putting effective theories into practice by the organized selling of DAILY WORKER subscriptions.

If you wish to immediately put "effective theories into practice"—send this brick to

MACHINISTS TO VOTE APRIL 30 ON NEW HEADS

Union versus Banking Is Issue

By LAWRENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

Balloting for general officers of the Intl. Assn. of Machinists is now in progress in local lodges thruout the United States and Canada. It will be completed on April 30, and the winners will begin the new two-year term on July 1. Hammered down by government opposition and by the railroad corporations and economic depression, the organization has today a membership of some 70,000 as contrasted with nearly 300,000 at the peak of the war-time inflation of the metal industries. Probably the total vote cast will be 30,000.

Serious Charges.

Vice-President J. F. Anderson, candidate for the presidency and Vice-President David Williams, candidate for editor, issuing circulars on behalf of the opposition ticket, accuse the Johnston-Davison administration with having neglected the affairs of the union for the banking venture, and they appear to doubt the wisdom of the B. & O. plan as a means of holding and increasing the union membership. They have charged that the Johnston group may not give a fair count of the vote, and they ask for a new and vigorous "fighting" policy—implying the policy their group would carry out.

Communists Raise Real Issues.

A lively element has been the Trade Union Educational League, speaking for the Communists. It ran a ticket in the primary nominating contest, and in the finals has supported the Anderson ticket with the purpose of building up opposition to the B. & O. plan, and in order to promote the idea of amalgamation of all metal trades unions as well as to safeguard Communists against expulsions such as those carried out in Toledo. The official journal of the union denounces this T. U. E. L. activity in a long editorial as being "an unwarranted interference."

Dr. Cook, Oil Swindler, Gets Soft Berth in Leavenworth Hospital

LEAVENTWORTH, Kan., April 8.—When guards went thru the corridors of the federal prison here at at 6:30 o'clock this morning, awakening prisoners, Number 23,118 a new-comer, turned over and got up.

Number 23,118 is Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer, who yesterday began serving sentence for frauds in the oil promotion game.

Dr. Cook, according to Warden W. A. Biddle, spent a quiet night. He will enter on his duties in the prison hospital the latter part of this week.

Reds in Italy Gain Strength

with us in large majority. Among the textile workers we are gaining strength every day and with the metal workers too. Our paper Il Sindacato Rosso advocating affiliation with the Red Trade Union International has a circulation of 15,000 weekly, which is one-third more than the official organ of the Confederation of Labor. We have 1,000 party members in Milan and the way they do the hard work of the party—meeting in small groups in homes, in church domes, in the woods—conducting propaganda—and all in danger of arrest and imprisonment is more inspiring than great mass meetings and enthusiastic addresses. There are 30,000 members in the International Red Aid here."

Many In Prison

As to the question sometimes raised by American workers as to why the Italians have endured Mussolini's repression so long Serrati replied:

"One must consider the terrific measures of suppression that have been used by the fascisti. Three or four thousand of our most militant workers are in prison. More are going in daily to remain for several months and then to be discharged with no charges preferred. More than 5,000 have been killed as ruthlessly as one would butcher cattle. Many thousands have fled the country to France and elsewhere. In many country districts a man suspected of anti-fascisti principles is informed not to leave his own house after dark. He knows what it means if he disobeys.

"There was a time when men exercised their right to defend themselves and their homes from attack but it was soon found that the law had no protection for them. They went to prison for long terms like common murderers. In the three years of fascist control, to quote figures from their own paper only 250 of their members have been killed. Under one of Mussolini's laws, men enlisting in the black shirt army have had their previous criminal records wiped clean. Thousands of criminals and hooligans seized this opportunity to take an immunity bath and to have a new pretext for their lawlessness.

Breakdown of Socialists

"Then we have had years of propaganda of social-democratic pacifism, with unions disrupted, co-operatives destroyed and all organization almost at a standstill, has left the worker with no guiding philosophy that fits this situation. To the clear thinking trade unionist and peasant in such a dilemma our program comes with compelling force."

Continuing, Serrati said, "The aventine block affords an example both of the incoherence of most of the anti-fascist opposition and of the trend in our direction. There you have a conglomeration of elements under various parties names, liberal, socialist, reformist, catholic, repu ican, social-democratic etc., only held together by their opposition to Mussolini. Many of these same elements welcomed the fascisti when they first came because they wanted labor curbed. When, in the days following the exposure of the Matteotti murder by the government, we withdrew from parliament with them as a gesture of horror and protest the aventinos were scandalized to have us among them.

"Now that our deputies (19) are back in the chamber, since we feel that abstention is childish, they breathe easier. They pride themselves on being strictly constitutional and not subversive. When we suggested calling upon the people to refuse to pay taxes in support of such a tyranny they threw up their hands in horror. As we expected, not all of the socialists would be satisfied with the aventino negative policy. The maximalists socialists with 22 deputies in parliament recently took a referendum on the question of joining with the aventine bloc in presenting candidates for election in the various districts. Of the 30,000 votes cast 15,000 were for co-operating with the aventinos in its opposition program up to the elections but presenting socialist candidates as usual in every possible district. 12,000 were against co-operating with the aventinos and 3,000 were against the aventinos and for alliance with the Communists. The reformist socialist (24 deputies) are co-operating fully in the aventine bloc."

Metal Strike Significant

According to Malatesta, the Communists are fully prepared to take advantage of the widespread dissatisfaction among the workers over the increase in the cost of living coupled with continued low wages. The strike of 100,000 metal workers in northern Italy called by the fascist union which promised to extend itself to other sections of the country and involve many thousands more was quite significant. A movement was under way even before the beginning of the strike to set up agitation committees in the factories supplementing the bona-fide trade unions. Where employers had declared themselves against recognizing either the fascist trade unions or the socialist unions, but in favor of dealing with their own employees direct an opportunity was given for building real militant shop committees.

Among the peasants, Malatesta said that it was the Communist program to organize a federation of the small proprietors, men tilling small patches of their own, whose interest lay in lower taxes and better prices and to organize a separate federation for wage earning landworkers who were at the mercy of the big landlords without organization. The two federations would be affiliated together for the solution of common problems.

RICH MEN AND POLICE BELONG TO VICE TRUST

Operate 4 Breweries in Chicago

Arrests of "vice kings," in many parts of the country, were predicted here today as the elaborate records of an alleged boose and vice trust, seized in a raid on the organisation's "business headquarters" here yesterday were checked over.

Loose-leaf ledgers, memorandum accouts, day books, filing cabinets and all the other devices of modern bookkeeping which kept an office force numbering more than 20 in regular employment, and which, it is said, give details of stupendous transactions in illicit booze running and distributing were seized. Police today were to attempt to get in touch with some of the persons whose names figure in the records.

Wealthy Families Involved.

These, it was said, include hundreds of wealthy Chicagoans, saloon keepers whose accounts for beer and liquor were kept in the same orderly fashion that department store might keep its records, policemen and prohibition agents bribed, inmates of disorderly houses, in which the "trust" is also believed to have trafficked and various items in the connection with the transportation of liquor from "tidewater" at Miami, New Orleans and New York to Chicago. One set of books, it was said, was given over to the business of four Chicago breweries which the "trust" is believed to have operated in almost open defiance of the dry laws.

Higher-Ups Still Free.

Eight men, all minor officials of the trust, who were arrested in the establishment, cloaked as a doctor's office on South Michigan Boulevard, will be given hearings today while an effort is being made to take the alleged "higher-ups" into custody.

Escaped Boy Caught.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 8.—Hiding in a small shirt box which was nailed up by a fellow prisoner, Frank Jervovide, 17, escaped from the Indiana reformatory at Pendleton, but was caught two hours later. He will serve a longer term as a result of his act. The boy's father lives in Detroit and is said to be wealthy.

BUILDERS AT WORK

DAILY WORKER AGENTS ARE COMMUNIST ORGANIZERS

For Instance Our Agent in Philadelphia

The matter of doing constructive Communist building of the movement and its official organ is a matter of capable, practical organizational ability.

It is not built on any fancy, novel ideas but on systematic, common sense, "next-step measures" born of an understanding of the needs of the situation.

Such organizers are being developed from the ranks of our DAILY WORKER agents and BUILDERS and a little note from one of them will give you an insight into their methods This note is from Comrade Lena Rosenberg of Philadelphia, one of the very best City Agents in the country and this note clearly explains why. The comrade writes:

> Almost all of our DAILY WORKER agents are doing something. They all get certain work to do and have to report on the results. If they fail to get a sub or renewal, they have to EXPLAIN WHY—and then if I or any other agent feels a mistake has been made, we discuss it and either I or somebody else is sent after the person again. Then if an agent does not show up to a meeting I go after the branch and the branch agent has to explain and that way every agent has to at least show that he or she is TRYING to do something. I have a few more agents but they failed to even show a willingness to do anything and so I am going after the branches when they meet next and GET SOMEONE ELSE ELECTED.

Now these are simple measures—but they are also extremely essential. It is just these measures that move the branch and local into action. These simple measures are also a matter of slow, painstaking and heart-breaking work—the kind that soon shows up the comrades of weak will and weaker understanding of the movement—but also the kind that by dint of work in the face of obstacles develops and makes possible the best type of a Communist organizer.

If you really want to learn how the workers think and speak and you want to really "go to the masses" with the Communist message—trying getting subs for the DAILY WORKER.

ON APRIL 7

These comrades did the kind of work that will build our movement and were successful in getting new subs for the Second Annual Sub Campaign. Some you will notice got more than one.

EMPLOYERS PLOT HUGE LOBBY TO REDUCE TAXES

Try to Buy Congress, Senator Warns

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Warning against a drive on the part of the chamber of commerce of the United States to raise a huge propaganda fund with which to bring about the repeal of inheritance tax laws, the repeal of publicity of income tax returns, the reduction of surtaxes on big incomes and the giving of Muscle Shoals and other natural resources to private monopolies, is issued by Senator Norris of Nebraska.

He has been informed, he says, that the chamber is trying to get 2,000,000 persons to contribute $7 each as membership fees, and that this sum of $14,000,000 will be used to influence federal legislation.

"That fund would be the most sinister influence for bad government in the whole history of our nation," he declared. "It savors of an attempt to buy out congress."

Officials of the chamber deny that they have any such plan under consideration. They are, however, trying to get individuals to pay $7.50 each for a three-year subscription to their magazine, in which the propaganda material of the organization is published. They have gone into the fight for untaxing the rich and for repeal of publicity of income tax returns. They are now about to send out a referendum to their thousands of members on the issue of repeal of inheritance taxes. Their stand in favor of leasing Muscle Shoals to private interests has been widely advertised.

SOVIET RUSSIA OFFERS LAND TO AMERICAN FARMERS WITH SPECIAL CREDIT AND TRAVEL PRIVILEGES

NEW YORK, April 8.— Farmers from America are invited to establish homesteads on 150,000 dessiatins of Russian government land, or 405,000 acres, in the Volga and north Caucasian regions.

Only competent farmers and stock breeders are eligible for these grants and, moreover, each settler is expected to bring with him $25 to $30 in and money or equipment for each dessiatin of land he is granted.

To Settle in Volga.

This offer is being made by the Russian government thru the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, which is located at 799 Broadway, New York City. The Technical Aid Society will distribute the settlers as follows: 12,500 to the North Caucasian lands; 5,000 to the Samara district; 2,500 to the Tzaritsin district and 3,000 to the Saratov district. The last three district are in what is popularly known as the Volga region.

The terms of this offer are considerably different from the conditions previously prescribed for settlers from America. The American settler in Russia need not go into a co-operative farming project if he prefers to undertake his farming independently. Land will be furnished for a twelve year lease to the amount of 50 dessiatins with the option of renewing the lease at the time of its expiration if the farmer has proven himself an efficient agriculturalist.

Low transportation on the government railways and other privileges, such as lumber at cheaper rates, seeds on credit and agricultural credits will be allowed these settlers.

To Rebuild Farms.

Officials of the Technical Aid Society state that "the Soviet-Union has two purposes in view in making this offer to American farmers. One of these is the rehabilitation of former Russians and the other is the development of modern farming methods in Russia. No applicants for this attractive offer will be accepted unless they can meet the requirements in experience and in capital to equip their farms in the most efficient and modern manner."

Coast Employers Entertain Their Wealth Protectors

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—Entertainment by San Francisco and Oakland businessmen of the 45,000 men of the combined Pacific and Atlantic fleets prior to their departure April 15 for a cruise in Far Pacific waters, got under full swing today.

Luncheons, dinners, boxing exhibitions and dances have been arranged for today, tonight and tomorrow. A luncheon was given in honor of the officers.

Coal Owners Declare War

The coal owners have come out openly in Ohio and western Pennsylvania against the Jacksonville agreement with the United Mine Workers. Because we have been telling the miners for weeks that a new open shop drive was in preparation, we have been accused of spreading alarmist reports by the officialdom.

Here is the proof of our contention that the united front between the coal owners and the officials of the union for the purpose of driving 200,000 miners out of the industry could have but one result—the weakening of the union and encouragement of the coal owners to declare war.

Now if ever the left wing in the United Mine Workers must get busy. They are the fighters and upon them is the responsibility of carrying the struggle that now confronts the union as an actuality.

The officials of the union have educated the miners to a worship of the "sacred contract," but here is evidence of just how "sacred" the contract is to the capitalists when they think the time is ripe to begin hostilities.

The United Mine Workers have a terrible struggle ahead of them. They will get nothing but troops and injunctions from the Coolidge administration which John L. Lewis supported.

In Illinois Farrington tries to oust Freeman Thompson, the best fighter in the district, just as the operators' declaration of war was being written.

For two years a campaign against the militants has been carried on by the Lewis machine, the union has suffered and now the attack comes.

The Communists will be in the front ranks of this struggle as they have been in the struggle to strengthen the union, organize the unorganized and give the union a fighting program.

"Departing, Dripping Slime"

—MILTON

The American Federation of Labor has closed the International Labor News Service bureau in Washington, D. C., and the reactionary trade union press, mostly privately owned organs with some kind of an "endorsement" from labor, will have to get their "red scare" stories and their inspired attacks on Soviet Russia, their lies about the Communists and their fantastic tales of heavy shipments of Bolshevik gold, from some other source.

The International Labor News Service, captained by Chester M. Wright and Matthew Woll, was the bastard offspring of the unnatural alliance between the labor movement and the House of Morgan-Wilson government.

It was born in betrayal, nursed on the bloody slime of imperialist war, diapered with the gory bandages torn from the bleeding bodies of American conscripts, cradled in the arms of the most disgusting band of mental prostitutes that ever cursed this country.

It flooded the labor press with slanderous denunciations of the workers' and peasants' government of Russia it vomited vilification of the left wing and the Communists in the labor movement; it denounced anything and everything that did not bear the Gompers stamp. It was from its inception far more shameless than even the capitalist press and in its last days it became the organ of the counter-revolutionary Russian emigres domiciled in the United States.

The International Labor News Service made war on the Federated Press, the only bonafide labor news service in America. It procured the blacklisting of Federated Press correspondents in Washington thru its governmental connections and campaigned for a nation-wide boycott by labor unions against it. The Federated Press, however, is still on the job and it is probably not without some justifiable satisfaction that it now chronicles the demise of the I. L. N. S.

It is unquestionable that the heads of the I. L. N. S. worked in the closest co-operation with the department of justice. It was their privilege to use documents seized in raids upon radical and revolutionary organizations by the spies of the secret service. On more than one occasion they and these stoolpigeons were found to be arm in arm. It could hardly be otherwise since during the war the Wilson administration debauched the whole labor movement and flooded it with spies. The army intelligence service enlisted the services of dozens of labor fakers and none were more active in proving their loyalty to the House of Morgan than the Wrights and Wolls.

Why has this adjunct of American imperialism been dropped?

Because its activities have become embarrassing and show little results. Its fulminations against the Communists have been published by dozens of so-called labor papers, but the left wing, organized around the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers (Communist) Party, continues to grow in strength.

More than that, the campaign against recognition of Soviet Russia now falls flat. There has been a change in the foreign policy of the national government, a change that has been forced by the recent developments in world politics, and the labor bureaucracy has in all probability been told to discontinue its insane attacks on the a revolutionary government that is now in the eighth year and that has compelled recognition from every great capitalist power except the United States.

Wright and Woll have become too putrid for a capitalist class that wants results. Their anti-working class propaganda could fool only workers who are unable to read and write and these they cannot reach.

The days of the $100,000,000 Wilson slush fund are gone. So is the foulest nest of vultures that ever fastened themselves on the labor movement.

A Union?

When is a union not a union?

This is a pertinent question in the light of some of the recent activities of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers disclosed in news items and press dispatches from many sources.

Exhibit A is a dispatch from a labor news service announcing that President Warren Stone of the Brotherhood has submitted an affidavit to sustain the contention of the D. and H. railway in their application for an injunction to restrain the interstate commerce commission from forcing them to install automatic safety train control devices. This affidavit states that "engineers generally believe that it is undesirable and unsafe to divide the control of trains between engineers and automatic devices."

Long before President Stone was born the steam locomotive was denounced as "unsafe." The same was true of the airbrake and other improvements in safety equipment which the railways stubbornly refused for a long time to introduce. This distrust of safety devices by railroad companies is in direct proportion to the cost in installation. The united front of Brother Stone and the railroad management is a little hard to explain, but is either one of those subtle schemes by which labor leaders of his type think the bosses can be fooled or a plain sell-out.

Exhibit B is a report of a meeting of 700 members of the Brotherhood in Pittsburgh at which the principal speaker was E. T. Whiter, vice-president of the central district of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Whiter told the engineers present that his road refused to deal with unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, because they stand for the closed shop, restriction of output and the sympathetic strike. "He pointed out that these items are not a part of the policy of the Brotherhood which does not endorse any one of them."

The news item further states:

> Following Mr. Whiter's address several Brotherhood officials and members took the occasion to compliment the Pennsylvania railroad on its manner of dealing with its employes thru the "employe representation plan."

The "employe representation plan" is the Pennsylvania company union.

The Brotherhood also operates a bank which is an integral part of the Empire Trust company, of which Charles Schwab is a director.

This bank in turn arranges European tours for the members of the union and such other affluent persons as care to participate. The publicity put out by the manager of this department is Exhibit C and certainly is a novel contribution to labor literature. It reads in part:

> What a real vacation that will be. Visiting the old world with its political, literary, social and artistic temperament; motoring along the shores of the beautiful lake district in England, visiting Paris' buildings, monuments, cathedrals, universities, and theaters; thru the heart of the grandeur of the Swiss Alps to Lucerne; three days in Rome, the mecca of the catholic world this year, visits to the vatican; seeing Florence with its memories of great men and books and the center of Italian art, and Venice, the queen of the Adriatic, with its interesting gondolas; a steamer down the Rhine past historic castles and cities to Cologne.
> Lecturers, couriers, and guides accompany the party in each foreign city.

We observe one slight mistake in the above blurb. There is a reference to "Rome, the mecca of the catholic world," but nothing about the birthplace of Martin Luther. Inasmuch as the membership of the Brotherhood is evenly divided between the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and the Knights of Columbus, this may cause some friction.

Finally, as our readers know, the Brotherhood members have invested about three million dollars in West Virginia coal mines which are run on a strictly open shop basis—just like the properties of Charles Schwab, co-director of big business with President Stone.

When is a union not a union?

When it becomes an adjunct of capitalism and shares in its profits.

The Sun Yat Sen Meetings

The meetings held by the Workers (Communist) Party jointly with representatives of Kuomingtang, the party of Sun Yat Sen, to commemorate the death of the great Chinese liberator are of the deepest significance. They mark the beginning of close contact of the advance guard of the workers and farmers of both nations, the beginning of a union for action against the common oppressor—imperialism.

It is the unity of the oppressed of all nations, regardless of color, in the class war—the unity which Lenin urged and whose importance he was the first to estimate. The Communist parties of all countries are becoming stronger, the workers more conscious and the colonial peoples more aggressive in response to the teachings of Lenin, carried to the four quarters of the globe by the Communist International.

RUSSIA IN 1924

The Official Report of the British Trade Union Delegation to Russia in November and December, 1924

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith, following the documents exposing the sabotage of world trade union unity by the right wing of Amsterdam, a short digest of the report of the British trade union delegation on conditions in Soviet Russia.

This report has accelerated the drive for world trade union unity and resulted in a close alliance of the Russian and British trade union movements.

This report, by the seven trade union delegates and the three advisory delegates, on the present conditions in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is the most remarkable enterprise ever undertaken by the Trade Union Congress, or, for that matter, by any trade union body in the world. In size, in completeness, in breadth of treatment, combined with attention to detail, in its capacity to draw far-reaching generalizations on a sure basis of ascertained fact, and finally in the vivid and arresting manner of presentation, this report is not equalled by anything previously written in this country. It only requires to be compared with the several hundreds of books and brochures that have been written about the Russian revolution in the last seven years to make its prominence clear. No doubt a broader sweep and a deeper insight is displayed by some of the Russians themselves, but to say this is not to detract in any way from the peculiar value that attaches to this report.

The delegates arrived in Moscow on November 11, and for the first week were present at the All-Russian Trade Union Congress, with which the report is not concerned. They journeyed to Kharkov, in the Ukraine, to the Don Basin, Rostov, the Caucasus, Baku and Tiflis. They returned via Leningrad and arrived back in London, December 19, 1924. Thruout every facility was afforded them for obtaining information, and this information was checked both by the presence of the three advisory delegates—men who had lived long in Russia and who were specially qualified for this work of investigation—and also by the means they possessed of getting into touch with opposition opinion. Each delegate, including the advisory delegates, was furnished with a free pass enabling him at any time to enter any government building, factory, club, hospital, police-court, prison or private house without any guide and without any previous notice. It is from these circumstances that the report derives its peculiar value.

The Object of the Report

It is not necessary, however, to imagine the delegation as a party of archangels, all-seeing but all-remote from ordinary preference and apprehensions. They had left this country immediately after an election in which just this question of the Russian revolution had been made use of to defeat the political party of which they were members. These events must have been fresh in their minds, and, consequently, we find it stated that the report has a definite object, viz.:—

> The object of this report it to enable the British electorate, in the first place to realize that the Russian revolution has no real relationship at all to the British evolution, and in the second place that the present results of the revolution are represented by a new state, already very powerful and likely to be very prosperous.

The Writers of the Report

The actual preparation of the reports has been carried thru by the advisory delegates, chiefly by Messrs. Young and McDonell. The preface is by the members of the delegation themselves, but all the reports embody the unanimous conclusions arrived at by the delegates before leaving Russia. The qualifications of the advisory delegates are as follows:—

> HAROLD G. GRENFELL.—Entered the Navy 1883, retired 1920 with the rank of captain; Admiralty Intelligence department, 1904-05; Governor of Hong Kong Naval Prison, 1907-07; Admiralty War Staff, 1910-11; Naval Attache British Embassy, St. Petersburg, April, 1912, to Nov. 1917; Head of Naval Mission to Finland, December, 1918, to June, 1919. He joined the Independent Labor Party, 1919. Member of Advisory Committee on Army, Navy and Pensions.
> A. R. McDONELL.—Educated at St. Paul's School, London; C. B. E. (Civil), Resident in Russia, 1902-1919; British Vice-Consul, Baku, South Russia, 1907-16; British military forces in Caucasus and North Russia, 1916-19 (temporary Major); Foreign Office temporary 1st Class Clerk, 1919-23.
> GEORGE YOUNG.—Educated at Eton and foreign Universities; M. V. O. Diplomatic Service (passing in Russian), 1896-1915; Admiralty Intelligence Department, 1915-18; volunteer in ranks, February, 1918, and commissioned R. M. A. August; Daily News correspondent through German Revolution, December, 1918—August, 1919; Professor of Portuguese, 1919-22, and examiner in Ottoman Law, London University. Joined the Labor Party, 1915, and accompanied the Delegation to Russia in 1920. Member of Advisory Council on International Affairs. Parliamentary candidate for South Bucks 1923 and 1924. Author of numerous works on foreign affairs.

The Character of the Report

The report is of a special character both in its outlook and in its style. This special character is due partly to design and partly to the accident of those responsible for its preparation. The design is stated very clearly at the end of the introduction:—

> In presenting these conclusions the delegation have endeavored to discount not only the atmosphere of cordiality and confidence which surrounded them from their arrival in Moscow, but also their own attitude of sympathy with and solidarity for their fellow workers in which they left London. They have earnestly endeavored to present a report such as any body of their fellow countrymen would have made had it had the same facilities.

The special style of the report emerges most clearly perhaps when it is compared with the style of the preface. The training and previous political education of the authors compels a style like that of the Manchester Guardian at its best. Their phraseology is in the cool and precise manner of the civil service; and behind this phraseology there is to be discerned a liberal philosophy (which need not, and in this case does not, mean membership of the liberal party). Thus the report is in no sense to be taken as a work of critical Marxism, or even as something written from the normal trade union outlook. But just for this reason it is likely to have a special appeal to large sections of middle class readers. With these explanations we may now proceed to a summary of the report.

Summary

The delegation set forth the results of their enquiries in two reports, one on General Conditions, and one on Labor Conditions, each of which is divided into two parts. There is also a report on Trans-Caucasia. Part I. of the report on General Conditions has the heading "Governmental," and contains chapters on the following subjects: Politics, Finance, Industry, Transport and Agriculture, Foreign Commerce, The Red Army the Judiciary.

Part II., under the heading Social, contains chapters on Social and Religious Conditions, Education, Press, Art, etc., Public Health Housing etc.

Of the report on Labor Conditions the first part has chapters in Trade Unions, Labor Regulation, Wages, Co-operation. The second part deals with Special Institutions and Industries under fifteen separate heads. This part contains only a selection of a vast amount of material collected by the delegation which is now lodged for inspection at the headquarters of the Trade Union Congress at Eccleston Square.

The report on Trans-Caucasia opens with a chapter giving a general survey of that Federated Republic as a whole, and with its constituent Republics of Georgia, Azerbaijan and Armenia. The second chapter deals with the vexed question of Georgia, and the third with Armenia, and the fourth with Baku. There is also a section on special industries.

Now, manifestly in a report of this size amounting to over 250 quarto pages it is impossible to give anything more than a series of snippets from each chapter or else to convey a false impression of covering the whole ground by means of a description of the general effect combined with apt quotations. The latter is the method adopted by the press. Both of these methods are unsatisfactory, and therefore, for the purpose of readers of the Monthly Circular, we propose to select one of the more important chapters and to present a summary of its contents. In further publications by the department it may be possible to follow this up by similar treatment of other chapters.

Levin Expels Seven Members of the Union

Dorfman, Helen Kaplan, T. Reznick, H. L. Kahn, Clara Shapiro and Sam Simonian. The "trial" was marked by a long and spirited battle by Aronberg, in which he took the offensive upon the issues raised by the left wing and forced the officials into falling back into dependence solely upon their power to intimidate the necessary number of votes to put their plan, arranged and agreed upon in advance, across.

Only Aronberg was allowed a sufficient time to make a defense, of the other six, four were allowed five minutes before the axe fell upon them. Aronberg and Dorfman were "suspended" under different charges than the other five members, who were charged with distributing the leaflet appeal of New York Local 5, made to the A. C. W. membership against the Hillman-Forward socialist gang rule and expulsions in New York.

The charge against Phil Aronberg was called "disloyalty." The specification being that he "had knowledge" of a leaflet issued during the union election in December, in which campaign Aronberg was a candidate for union office against Sam Levin, local leader of the yellow socialist Forward gang and manager of the joint board.

Expelled for Asking a Question.

Max Dorfman was victimized on a charge of having "encouraged the distribution of the Local 5 leaflet." The specification being that Dorfman has remarked to another union member, who was opposed to the Local 5 leaflet being distributed, but had not read it—"Why don't you read the leaflet before you oppose it?"

Chairman Schneid announced at the beginning of the farce that the "suspensions" recommended by the executive board provided that the victims be required to pay dues but that they "had no rights" in the union altho they were allowed to work at the trade. This contemptible hypocrisy is scoffed at by all the rank and file, who well know that these members were blacklisted and deprived of their jobs by the gangster control of the union employment office even when they still had their full "rights."

The Hypocrisy of "Right to Work."

How dishonest the statement is, may be seen in the fact that altho Aronberg has conformed to the union rule of asking employment thru the union for months, he has been given only 15 days work by the Levin machine since last September. And in addition, the other members now "suspended" were, by the orders of Levin, taken off their jobs and deprived of chance to earn their living at their trade. They are now supposed to have that "right" but no hope of it being materialized.

Aronberg, in his militant defense of the issues raised by the leaflet, pointed out the falsity of this official promise of being allowed to work, showing that the leaflet itself had truly stated that officials had juggled the handing out of jobs to members who met with their personal favor and the business agents had disposed of jobs privately.

A Defense Upon Issues.

Repeatedly interruption by gangsters who wanted to cut him off from stating the left wing issues, Aronberg mercilessly exposed the collaboration with the bosses by union officials which had resulted in unemployment and "readjustment" to lower wage rates and the speed up.

This collaboration and surrender to the bosses, he pointed out, led the officialdom into pretending to do something by devising petty insurance schemes of no value to the unemployed.

Against this sort of policy Aronberg held up the fighting program of the left wing proposed in the leaflet of which he was charged of "having knowledge," a charge which he said could be laid at the door of every member, since all had "knowledge" of it.

Class Struggle or Collaboration.

The issue was one of class struggle, proposed by the left wing against class collaboration, he stated. He agreed with the leaflet in its condemnation of the present secret diplomacy between officials and bosses, and its advocacy of direct negotiations by the workers thru a committee representative of locals.

He upheld week work as against piece work, the left wing proposal for a forty-hour week, shop committee control of the union to be recognized in the new agreement, and he condemned the present officialdom for allowing bosses to suspend members and the officials' fake "insurance." He proposed that the unemployed be given full maintenance at the expense of the bosses.

"If this is disloyalty," Aronberg said, "then every member ought to be disloyal!"

Admits Political Persecution.

This was admitted even by Chairman Schneid, who said, "If Aronberg is disloyal, ninety per cent of the members are also disloyal. But this is a purely political case. When you have power in the union you throw out your political opponent. When they have power they will throw us out."

This admission together with Aronberg's flaying of the yellow socialist Forward gang, exposed the real fight against the left wing who are looked upon as Communists and members of the Workers Party. In fact, Business Agent Weinstein directly attacked Aronberg as a Communist of the Workers Party, which he said sought to "dictate to the union from outside."

Yellow Socialist "Dictator."

Aronberg said, "But I remind you, the agents of the Hillman-Forward socialist party, that we already have dictation from the outside. That is, the Jewish daily Forward, organ of socialist counter revolution, insists that Wolf, Harry Cohen, and the rest of the petty grafters in New York stay in control of the union by force, even with the mass of members opposed to them and their disruption. This case, here and now, is plainly a case of political persecution dictated to the union by the yellow socialist 'outside' source of Abe Cahan, owner of the Forward. And, what is more, it benefits the bosses and not the workers."

Another business agent, Isovitch, tried a new tack, by claiming that in 1915 Aronberg had worked "during a strike." This charge was riddled when Aronberg said that everybody knew, including Isovitch, that his shop had, because of the pressure of the workers in it, settled before the rest of the shops did, and that he had, of course, been required to work there under the terms of the settlement and by explicit direction of the union, as all the other members in the shop. But he had given with the others, part of his wages as required by the union and had walked the picket line in the struck shops.

The Levin Family Skeleton.

"But," added Aronberg, "the 1915 strike has other recollections. There was Sam Levin, cousin of the Sam Levin, manager of the joint board. This cousin is now business agent. But in 1915 he demanded pay for being on strike or threatened to go to work in the settled shop, which he actually did, and deserted his fellow workers in his own shop on strike. He is not now 'disloyal.' On the contrary, he is a member of your gang and a business agent at that!"

That the whole program of expulsions was put over by a prearranged conspiracy among the officials, was clearly shown when, after Aronberg was "disposed of," the charges were read against the other six members. Business Agent Weinstein, alias Schalatnick, called at once for the previous question. Chairman Schneid observed that the defendants ought to get "five minutes" to state their case.

Schneid Admits Part in Conspiracy to Expel.

"But you agreed to go thru with it tonight," remonstrated Weinstein, letting the cat out of the bag.

"So I did," calmly confessed Schneid, "and we will go thru with it, but let us give them five minutes each in their defense."

This pious expression was later ignored, however, and Sam Simonian, who had had no hearing before the executive board, got no chance to defend himself on the local floor either, but was suspended without trial.

Half of Members Afraid to Vote.

When the vote was taken on Aronberg's case, in a hall with from 750 to 800 members present, his "suspension" carried by a vote of 120 to 300, again showing that hundreds of members were afraid to vote in his defense for fear of slugging or losing their jobs, so abstained from voting. "The fight of the left wing is just beginning," say the militant members of the Amalgamated.

WOMEN'S importance in the Communist movement is best seen in the time of acute crisis when women are particularly encouraging by their example and assistance.

I am convinced that events in the revolutionary struggles upon which we are entering will bear out this contention anew.

AS WE S

By T. J. O'FLA

LORD BALFOUR, nov[illegible] estine on an oily mi[illegible] British empire, was upset [illegible]rabs stoned the hotel in which the lord was staying. We should not be surprised. Neither must it be assumed that Balfour's surprise was lacking in genuineness. Like the typical British imperialist, he could not understand why the Arabs do not appreciate the beneficience of British rule and the self-sacrifice which prompts the boys of the bull dog breed "to shoulder the responsibilities of governing inferior peoples."

THIS lack of comprehension on the part of subject peoples is becoming a universal malady nowadays. We should not be surprised to see the much-abused foreign-born worker in the United States take a lesson from the Negro workers, who are begining to let the capitalists know that they have the numerical power to prevent persecution and discrimination if they only learn to use it. Race consciousness is coming before class-consciousness and the Negro bourgeoisie, like their white brothers, are not averse to cultivate this until it becomes dangerous to the Negro workers. But workers of any race or nationality who believe they are inferior to some other people, do not make good rebels until they get rid of the inferiority disease.

OF course, there is a big difference between the Negro problem and that of the white foreign-born worker, chiefly because of the race prejudice that makes the American worker such a useful tool of the capitalists. This sublime idiocity is not confined to hatred of the Negro. It operates against the foreign-born workers and particularly those who come from countries, who have been under the heel of some stronger power. It is not so very long ago that Irish workers were stoned in the streets by American workers and that prejudice had the effect of throwing the Irish workers into the arms of the bourgeoisie to a degree that is not true of any other national group in the United States with the possible exception of the Poles.

THIS country is a gigantic "Balkans." The numerous different racial groups here, make it comparatively easy for the bosses to keep the workers from uniting. Each national group has a set of leaders who have sold themselves to the bourgeoisie. Being very well acquainted with the Irish nationalist movement, I know how easily those capitalist lackeys become heroes in the eyes of the masses by posing as the defenders of the "race" from its alleged enemies. And all the other national groups have their "heroes" whose interests demand that the "persecution complex" persist.

WE have among the foreign-born workers who are not versed in working class history, the feeling that the sufferings they endure are due to their racial extraction and not to the fact that they are workers and exploited slaves. Their bourgeois leaders cultivate this delusion. Of course, Communist propaganda is eradicating this poison. But the tendency of even some radicals to make the foreign-born workers the butt of ridicule even when only in a bantering fashion, should be curbed. Such ill-fitting pleasantry should be left to the burlesque stage.

RADICAL workers with any political understanding cannot fail to appreciate the tremendous importance to the revolutionary movement of enjoying the confidence of the foreign-born workers and of the Negro workers. If the Negro masses are exceptionally sensitive, they have very good reasons for their sensitiveness. It is up to the radical white worker to break down this obstacle in the way of a real understanding between the colored and white workers, for the common fight against the common enemy of both black and white wage slaves.

THE stoning of the hotel in which Lord Balfour was staying, indicates that the colonial peoples are on the warpath against the white colonial imperialist powers. The Arabs are bronze-colored. Lord Balfour is

MACHINE RULE OPENS STEEL WORKERS' MEET

Tighe Fails to Unseat Left Winger

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 9.—The fight between the Mike Tighe machine and the large opposition bloc strongly influenced by the left wing ideas, began in the 47th annual convention here of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers with the effort by the machine to unseat a left wing delegate, James Strong, on the ground that he is a delegate from Canonsburg, while he works at Warren. The machine was beaten.

The machine has barred correspondents of the DAILY WORKER from the convention, altho the capitalist sheets manage to find entry easy enough to give their kind of poison "news."

Deportation Davis Appears.

An indication of the type of convention the Tighe machine is running is shown by the fact that Tighe had James Nutt, secretary of the Western Sheet Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association deliver a speech to the convention and yesterday brought on James J. Davis, the secretary of the deportation department (mis-named the labor department), who spent some time raving against the "reds" and exhorting the delegates to follow "true and tried" leaders.

"We must keep out the foreigners!" shouted Davis, and it must be said that he has done all he could, altho as he is foreign-born himself, the program would have been better liked had it been applied at the time Davis came over.

"Do More Work for Less Pay."

He was careful to remind the convention that he used to be a worker and boasted that he carried a union card in the A. A. of I. S. and T. W., then he begged on the basis of that fact, for more consideration for the employers. The poor boss, so he said, "sees an injustice in having to pay for a full day's work, when the actual job takes only an hour," and he advised the unions, "to ease up on strict rules and match the give and take spirit of the employers."

He said that the steel and iron bosses would not allow organization in the steel mills, because they feared jurisdictional disputes. He did not mention that the amalgamation program proposed by the Communists would quiet the fears of Judge Gary on this score by making an industrial union which is free from jurisdictional rows.

The "Co-operation" Bait.

But the key not of Davis' speech was class collaboration, called "co-operation" by him, which he said was "the new order, that has definitely taken the place of the old order of hostile employer and resentful union."

WALL STREET SENDS AN EXPERT TO CHINA TO BATTLE BRITISH AIMS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9.—John V. A. MacMurray, undersecretary of state, who was today appointed minister to China, has been acting as the adviser of the Coolidge administration on the activities of American capitalists in China.

MacMurray was the "expert" on Chinese matters at the Washington arms conference of world powers in 1921. It was his information that was used at the conference by Wall Street to battle British and French imperialism for a division of future spoils in China. MacMurray has been head of the Far Eastern department of the department of state, and was for some time in charge of the legation in China.

A war is looming up between American and British business interests over control of China's resources and markets, and Coolidge felt that he must put an expert in charge of the post.

LABOR FAKERS ROLL AROUND STATE CAPITOL IN COSTLY AUTOMOBILES AS UNEMPLOYMENT HITS WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 9.—If there is still any doubt in the minds of the organized workers in Illinois as to the policy of class collaboration or the "reward your friends" policy as suggested by the labor fakers it might easily be dispelled if one has time and the inclination to watch the farcical proceedings in the state capitol.

Looking out of the window last week at the corner of Fourth and Monroe streets, one could see the whole game exposed as if in a panorama. First we

RESIGNATION OF WAR SECRETARY WEEKS TO COME WITHIN 10 DAYS

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The resignation of John W. Weeks as secretary of war and the appointment of his successor, probably Charles D. Hilles, of New York, is expected with ten days, according to seemingly authentic reports in administration circles here today.

Secretary Weeks has notified President Coolidge that he cannot continue in his post, but his actual resignation is being held up until Mr. Coolidge is ready to announce his successor.

LETTERS BARE DEATH PLOT BY ZANKOV

Murderers Paid from Bulgarian Treasury

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

VIENNA, April 9.—Recent reports from Bulgaria indicate that while the white terror of the Zankov regime is being continued in all its brutality in Bulgaria and Macedonia it is not being confined to the homeland. Letters of government officials and agents brought to light lately expose a campaign of extermination being conducted by the Zankov government and its supporters on an international as well as a national scale.

Track Them Down Like Beasts

The most damning of the letters and evidence uncovered is a semi-official communication from one M. Stanchev, whose address is given as Phillip Makedensky-Gasso No. 32 Philoppel, Bulgaria. M. Stanchev is known as one who has been carrying out the murders of Communists and revolutionary peasants under orders from Zankow and his supporters. The letter is addressed to Dr. Stoilev, formerly Bulgarian ambassador to Vienna and at present attached to the Bulgarian embassy at Rome.

Plan Murders in Moscow

LORD BALFOUR, BRITISH OIL AMBASSADOR, GETS UPROARIOUS ATTENTION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DAMASCUS, Palestine, April 9.—Great demonstrations were held yesterday in the square near the Victoria Hotel, where Lord Balfour is staying. Police attacked the demonstrators and several Arabs were wounded. The Arabs are bitter against the British government and feel themselves insulted by the hypocritical pretense of sympathy with their customs which the cynical and bloody Balfour is simulating.

Several Arab leaders were arrested and the British officers have made arrangements to sneak Balfour out of the city at the first opportunity. Balfour's visit to Palestine has been almost as stormy as the American tour of Rafael Abramovich.

CAL REPLIES TO PERU'S PROTEST ON TACNA AWARD

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Coolidge thru the state department tody, delivered to the Peruvian embassy his reply to the note from Peru, in which the Peruvian government asked for certain modifications of his award as arbitrator in the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru.

The note was characterized by the state department as "rulings and findings of the arbitrator" and was not addressed to any individual. A covering note addressed to the Peruvian ambassador also was sent.

The note was signed by President Coolidge as arbitrator and countersigned by Secretary of State Kellogg.

It is understood that the note together with the original note from Peru will be given out for publication later.

A duplicate was sent to the Chilean embassy.

ZINICH, EDITOR OF RADNIK, IS ARRESTED

Communist Threatened by Deportation

A few days after the Labor Defense Council warned the workers against the methods of the department of labor of the United States in seizing and deporting foreign born workers on various pretexts, the immigration bureau here served a warrant on S. Zinich, editor of the Communist newspaper Radnik. Obviously informers, friends of white guard governments of Europe, are at work. Just as was the case with editors Vajtauer and Lassen.

Offenses Against Capitalism.

Zinich, who is now free on $1,000 bail and for whom the Labor Defense Council has engaged counsel, is charged (1) with entering without inspection, thru misrepresentation (2) violation of passport law, (3) likely to become a public charge, (4) disbelief in organized government, (5) advocating opposition to all organized government, (6) advocating overthrow by force and violence of the government of the United States.

The Labor Defense announces that it will fight to the limit for Zinich's freedom and calls upon all workers for support—for funds and for help in the struggle against the new deprtation bill, now before the senate, by which the bosses propose to make it easy for themselves to perpetrate wholesale deportations of foreign born workers and thus divide the workers and weaken their class strength.

Aid the Foreign Born.

Workers everywhere are reminded that in the last six months the government silently deported 4,448 foreign born workers, and that the 14,000,000 foreign born workers in America must have the support of all labor if the labor movement is not to be seriously weakened.

Plumbers on Range Win.

HIBBING, Minn., April 9—The plumbers' and steamfitters' union of Hibbing will enjoy the 44-hour week this summer, Saturday afternoon work to be paid double. Last year's scale of $1.16½ an hour remains. The local covers the Mesaba range which is almost 100 per cent organized.

HINDENBURG BIDS FOR PRESIDENCY OF GERMANY

Monarchist Backed by Kaiser and Capital

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BERLIN, April 9.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who signs himself in frequent letters to the kaiser as "Your devoted servant," is nominated as candidate of the nationalist party for president of German to succeed Fritz Ebert, the dead social democrat.

Kaiser's "Devoted Servant"

Gustave Stresemann, foreign minister and leader of the German peoples party resisted for some time the nomination of the kaiserist monarchist, fearing to lose support from republican followers who are asking how can an outspoken monarchist who says he is the "devoted servant" of the kaiser be a president and swear to uphold the republic.

It is becoming clearer that the monarchists, the big industrial interests and the reactionary agrarian groups are agreed upon an elecion program that will make an approach possible to reestablish the monarchy. Hindeburg's frequent rejection of the nomination is said to have been changed to an acceptance upon orders received from the kaiser.

Look to Crown Prince's Son

"For us all," say Hinderburg's friends among the nobility, "the son of the crown prince is the legal heir to the throne. The kaiser and crown prince officially resigned the throne, but when the young prince reaches his majority he will be the legal heir to the throne."

Prince William, the crown prince's eldest son, will be 21 in 1927. The nationalists thus frankly set the date when they expect the restoration.

BERLIN, Germany, April 9.— The candidacy in the coming presidential elections of Field Marshal von Hindenberg, close friend of the former kaizer, and one of the chief advocates of the restoration of the German monarchy means a military dictatorship, the Communist Party of Germany predicts.

COMMUNIST-FASCIST BATTLE RAGES IN STREETS OF BOLOGNA

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BOLOGNA, Italy, April 9.— The working class section of this city became a battle ground Tuesday night between black shirt fascist troops, armed with hand grenades, clubs and revolvers, and Communist workers, when the fascists tried to prevent Communists from posting party bulletins. Two are dead and fifteen wounded and the local newspapers are suppressed.

GENERAL STRIKE OF BOMBAY MILL WORKERS LOOMS

Textile Kings Start a Wage Cut Drive

BOMBAY, India, April 9.—The cotton mill owners here have instituted a drastic wage cut drive, and many of the workers have gone on strike. As soon as a general reduction in wages is put into effect a general strike will fellow, it is predicted. The paralysis of the mill industry, and disorganization of business is likely to prevail soon.

The three hundred spinners at the Birla mills have struck work as a sequel to wage reductions. The directors of the Petit mill, which employes 2,000 workers, have put up notices informing the men that the mills will be closed. The millowners blame the trade depression and the increased cotton prices as reasons for locking the workers out.

BRITISH LABOR PROTESTS POLISH REIGN OF TERROR

Offer Counsel to Aid Comrade Lanzutsky

VIENNA, April 9—On the same day Stanislaus Lansutsky was acquitted by the Przemysl court he was again turned over to the government terror by the Polish parliament, this time charged with the crime of advising the people not to pay taxes to the government.

Lansutsky was immediately thrown into jail after stepping out of the court a free man. It is clear that the Polish bourgeoisie are determined to take his life under one pretext or other.

The British labor party has protested to the Polish government against the persecution of Comrade Lansutsky and so has the General Council of Trade Unions. The labor party offered to provide Lansutsky with counsel but this was declined. A similar offer on the part of the Soviet government was turned down.

While Comrade Lansutsky was on trial in the Przemysl court, thousands of workers stood on the outside waiting for news of the proceedings. The trial was conducted inside closed doors, the prosecutor declaring that owing to the interest aroused by the case in other countries, publicity would be inimical to the interests of the Polish government, and would arouse the working class of Poland against the bourgeoisie.

Police Bill on Docket.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 9.—After lengthy debates in the senate today, the Barr highway police bill and the Sneed electricians' bill, requiring radio sets to be installed by master electricians were made a special order of business for Tuesday, April 14.

HERRIOT HANGS ON TO HIS JOB LIKE BULLDOG

Blames Financial Mess on Poincare

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, April 9—Premier Herriot dramatically shifted responsibility for France's financial chaos from his government to the national party which was in power after the war, when he appealed this afternoon before the chamber of deputies and declared the time had come for frankness and that he "would no longer participate in a conspiracy of silence." He added that secret inflation had been going on under the Poincare government.

According to the weekly balance of the Bank of France today the present total paper francs is 43,100,000,000, or more than two billion over the legal limit.

"If I am being attacked now," declared Herriot, "it is because I have been too discreet."

He asserted that the national government after the war had borrowed more money than the entire war had cost France.

"France's internal debt alone is a crushing burden," he continued. "First there is a perpetual debt of 149 billion francs; secondly, short term loans of 37 billion francs; thirdly, a floating debt of 91 billion francs."

"With the aid of the Morgan and the internal loans, I reimbursed the Bank of Frace 1,200 million francs since November, 1924," Herriot said.

"I handed over the entire Morgan loan to the Bank of France, showing that I placed the interest of my country over the interests of my party and my government. I could have manipulated the Morgan loan so as to produce one of those artificial balances we all know."

The correct Bank of France statement, according to the Temps, shows that outstanding paper francs total 43,004,762,185. This is an increase since last week's statement of 2,100,896,650 francs.

The statement shows that the Bank of France, according to Temps, has hitherto camouflaged paper curency inflation beyond the legal limit.

Wall Street Owns Germany.

Referring to Germany, Herriot said:

"Despite the stable currency now possessed by certain countries, you have all seen the influence of foreign loans on these countries. France must take care she doesn't fall into the same situation, which is likely if she comes under the influence of foreign money."

Heriot said that during 1925 France had paid the United States 59,000,000 on its commercial debt.

Herriot Refuses to Quit.

PARIS, France, April 9.—Premier Herriot, altho defeated on a vote of confidence in the senate, has decided not to resign unless his financial project, which would tighten the grip of foreign capitalists on the government, is defeated.

Japan Says It Is Willing for More "Disarmament" Talk

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TOKIO, April 9—The Japanese government thru an unofficial interview, declares that Japan's attitude toward a second disarmament conference is the same as before the declaration of France against any such conference.

The position of Japan is said to be that stated by Admiral Takarabe, minister of the navy earlier in the year, which was that Japan, "given a fair ratio and sufficient guarantees for requirements of defense and proper observance of the methods of procedure, is ready for new conferences."

COMMUNISM VERSUS CAPITALISM AND ITS AGENTS IN THE UNION NOW THE ISSUE IN THE A. C. W.

By H. K.

On Tuesday April 7th, Hillman's machine and henchmen carried out his bidding in Local 39, and expelled seven militant members. Hillman, pretender and hypocrite, who posed as a "progressive" and at the same time hobnobbed with the yellow Forward gang, has shown his colors clearly. There is no more doubt in any honest worker's mind as to Hillman's services to the bosses.

The decisions or rulings on the expulsion of the seven left wingers of Local 39, is as vague and unclear as all other Hillman decisions. It is and it is not. But for the militants—"It is."

The Right to Be Blacklisted.

The ruling deprives the expelled members, or as the fakers say the "suspended" members from participating in union activities, deprives them

It is in- eresting to observe that the leaflets sued by the citizens' committee urg- ng the approval of the infamous trac- ion deal quoted the indorsement mong other of: "Mayor Hoan, T. M. R. R. & L. Co. (street car company) Directors and stockholders. Wm. E. Black, attorney and member of executive committee of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. L. H. Olson, vice-president American Appraisal Co., J. J. Handley, secretary State Federation of Labor and Federated Trades Council, Milwaukee real estate board and several politicians of the old capitalist parties."

It is strongly rumored in the city that during the campaign carried on by Berger, the advertising manager of the street car company was writing most of the material for his advertising campaign. It is quite possible that at this time Berger and Co. repaid the trust for their kind assistance.

Berger Endorses Capitalist Judges.

It is also interesting that in this campaign the socialist party left unopposed a number of judicial offices and openly supported the capitalist candidates for judges. At this time they have openly and without any apologies openly allied themselves with the capitalist parties and followed the policy of rewarding friends and punishing enemies.

The returns indicate that the socialist party is slipping very fast, there is no doubt that if the Communist Party will organize an energetic campaign in 1926 that the majority of the socialists now holding offices will be defeated, since their victories have been carried by a very small margin. To build up in the state of Wisconsin, the stronghold of reformism, a powerful organization is an important task facing the Workers' (Communist) Party of America.

Tikhon, Once Head of Russian Church, Dies at Moscow

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MOSCOW, April 9—Patriarch Tikhon, once head of the Russian state church, died of angina pectoris yesterday after being ill three days.

In 1922 Tikon was arrested for inciting and leading armed uprisings against the Soviet power when the Soviet government declared that the gold and jewels in the churches should be used to buy food to feed the famine sufferers who were dying by the thousands in drought-stricken regions of the southeast. He later acknowledged his crime, declared himself loyal to the Soviet power and was released.

Communism versus Capitalism of the right to attend shop meetings and they must not be elected to any union office.

If the militants please, they can pay their dues. They also lose their former jobs and can register in the employment department. . . . Maybe they will get a job a few years from now!

It is great sport for the A. C. W. machine to keep militants out of jobs for years thru their control of the employment bureau. In reality, the employment office is supposed to register all vacancies and distribute jobs according to rotation among the unemployed workers. But the business agents and other fakers never bother about rules, they use these jobs as rewards to their lick spittles and sluggers.

A Good System—For Fakers.

To come to Local 39 and listen to the speeches of the real estate agents, or business agents as they call themselves, remembering that the union is a side line with these fakers, is like attending a rotary club or kiwanis banquet. After the Babbitts fill their stomachs, they start a heresy hunt for Communists.

These Amalgamated bureaucrats showed their stupidity and ignorance of the labor movement which they are supposed to lead. They ignorantly attacked Soviet Russia, Communism and dragged the red herring all around the world, finishing with declaring the necessity and value of capitalism as a system. And it is a good system for these pot-bellied ignoramuses who live at the expense of the workers.

Aronberg Upholds Leaflet.

The first one to be charged was Philip Aronberg, a long standing member of the A. C. W. and one of the staunchest defenders of the working class. Aronberg was charged with "disloyalty." Aronberg stands for everything contained in a leaflet issued by the left wing in the last Amalgamated election in Chicago. A secondary charge concerned the statement—a true statement—appearing in the DAILY WORKER, that accused the Hillman-Levin machine with slugging and intimidation of the workers the members of the union.

These charges are, however, only a smoke screen to conceal the bigger issues that divide the Hillman fakers from the left wing. Aronberg, in his defense, proved that. He showed that Hillman and Levin want to expel the militants in order that they may continue to betray the workers without opposition.

Left Wingers Retract Not a Word

The left wing stands both for the contents of the leaflet and the statement in the DAILY WORKER. The leaflet expressed the manifold needs of the workers in the industry. Needs to which Hillman himself gave lip service until his unmasking. Needs which were endorsed at two conventions of the Amalgamated but sabotaged by the officialdom.

A few of the items are: a forty-hour week, control of the union by shop committees, genuine unemployment relief at the expense of the bosses, abolition of piece work and no collaboration with the bosses.

Militants "Disloyal" to Capitalism

And this is "disloyalty" according to the fakers! The left wing accepts the charge. "We, the militants, will always be 'disloyal' to our class enemies, whether they be the bosses or the agents of the bosses!"

The charge about the statement in the DAILY WORKER did not need much explanation. The membership of the Amalgamated know that statement to be true. One of the militants brought out the fact that when she came before the local executive, Charlie Weinstein, acknowledged slugger and puppet of Levin, said:

"If I catch you participating in any activity of the left wing, I will be the first one to split your head with a blackjack!" This is not an uncommon thing now in the Amalgmated. Every member knows it.

After Aronberg's defense, there was no doubt in any worker's mind as to the issues between the fakers and the Communists. He proved that the militants and Hillman are divided because of greater issues than those he was being charged with.

The Deeper Issue.

Hillman, the fake radical, the pretender, is now a friend of the manufacturers and upholds capitalism as a whole. The Communists, the whole left wing, are enemies of the manufacturers and enemies of capitalism and its defenders. This is the issue.

The left wing also shattered the arguments of the bureaucrats concerning the "disloyity" charge for distributing the leaflet of Local 5. They challenged the fakers to prove since when it is wrong or "disloyal" to express solidarity with your fellow workers in another city belonging to the same union. We help our fellow workers in other cities during strikes and struggles against the employers, both financially and otherwise, and now we will help them by solidarity within the union against the fakers that are ruining and disrupting the union.

Clara Shapiro, Helen Kaplan, H. L. Kahn, Sam Simonian, Tillie Resnick and Max Dorfman were not allowed to adequately defend themselves. The fakers threw aside their mask of legality and wanted an immediate decision without any discussion whatever.

But Chairman Hyman Schneid said: "We will give the accused five minutes to state their case and we will get thru with these cases tonight as was agreed." Agreed by whom?

The bureaucrats were prepared. The wide mass of membership did not know tht these cases were coming before the local. Out of a membership of 12,000 in Local 39, only 800 attended and most of these were fixed in advance or threatened with loss of their job if they voted with the left wing. Other were promised a good reward if they voted the way the fakers did. Thus they gained a temporary victory.

A Temporary Victory.

It is temporary because by isolating these few workers from their union, they will not isolate their activities nor still their fighting spirit in behalf of the rank and file members.

The Communists and other left wing members have faith in the membership of the A. C. W. They know that the rank and file will ultimately have its say, and no amount of force and falsehood will save the rottenly corrupt Hillman-Levin machine. The future belongs to the left wing.

white. But Lord Balfour's heart is black as ink. The red blood of humany flows thru the veins of the Arabs. Lord Balfour is the enemy of the workers everywhere. The Arabs who stoned the Victoria Hotel in Damascus are the comrades of the working class of the world. Imperialist propaganda may try to arouse the prejudices of the white workers against the swarthy faced Arabs. That is a real danger.

THIS is only an isolated case. But the imperialists know how to work up race feeling. They are now busy trying to inflame the minds of the American workers against the Japanese, because one of those days they will engage in a deadly quarrel with the Japanese bourgeoisie for possession of the Chinese markets and other good and valuable considerations in the orient. The Japanese are doing the same with the Japanese workers. We must meet this damnable propaganda, with superior proganda. Not with the poison of race hatred but with the unifying message of international comradeship regardless of race, creed or color.

THE capitalists would only be too glad if they could incite the Negro workers against the white workers. They like race riots. It deepens the gulf separating their slaves. The more blood there is spilt in clashes between the workers of different color, the harder it is to unite them in the common struggle. The Negro workers must be told that only by militancy will they ever gain their rights. But they must be told that this militancy must be directed against the capitalists and not against the white workers who, tho prejudiced and ignorant, are also the victims of capitalist miseducation. This is no easy task, but there are no short cuts on the road to working class emancipation.

THE Workers (Communist) Party of America has a program for the problem of the foreign-born workers and also for the Negro question. The Negro question looms large on the political horizon as one of the most knotty and dangerous problems confronting the American working class in their titanic struggle against the most powerful ruling class that the world has even known. How they will meet and solve that problem, may determine whether the Negro workers may fight on our side or on he side of the enemy.

SPLENDID PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR CHICAGO MAY DAY MEETING

The Chicago May Day committee announces its program for the big May Day celebration to be held at Temple Hall, Marshfield Ave. and Van Buren St., at 8 p. m. Admission is to be 25 cents. Tickets are now on sale at every Workers Party branch, at meetings, and in the city office of the Workers Party, 19 South Lincoln St.

All arrangements have been made to make this celebration an inspiring and educational event.

Musical entertainment and inspiration will be furnished by the Freiheit Singing and Mandolin Societies, the Scandinavian Singing Society, and the Young Workers League Orchestra.

The speakers will be James P. Cannon, C. E. Ruthenberg, Max Shachtman and Martin Abern.

Every Communist and every class conscious worker in Chicago should make it his job between now and May 1 to help make this year's May Day celebration a genuine demonstration of the solidarity of the workers all over the world, a challenge to capitalist reaction in the United States that will echo and re-echo thruout the world.

YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE HOLDING MINING MEET

Young Coal Diggers Fight Wage Cuts

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 9.—The conference of young miners to be held here Sunday, by the Young Workers' League will be of first importance to the youth in the industry. The conference comes at a time when operators representing the most powerful interests in the Ohio-Western Pennsylvania bituminous fields announce their intentions of smashing the so-called Jacksonville agreement.

Young Miners' Hardest Hit.

With the breaking of the Jacksonville wage scale, the young miners will find themselves the hardest hit by the consequent wage cuts. With the U. M. W. A. refusing to accept this wage cut scheme of the bosses, and the militant miners fighting against the cut under the leadership of the left wing, the operators will find it necessary to try and smash the union before they can force the miners to continue work at the 1917 wage scale. If the miners are forced to resume work at this scale, it means a 25 per cent wage cut for all miners.

Young Miners Fight With Left Wing

The young miners are opposing the wage cuts militantly and are fighting actively against them under the leadership of the left wing. The Young Workers' League conference for all young workers in the industry which will be held at Labor Lyceum, Pittsburgh, Sunday, April 12, at 2 p. m., will take up the many serious problems facing the young miners at the present time as well as laying plans for a more intensive struggle against the wage cuts and for certain demands especially effecting the interests of the young miners.

Special Youth Demands.

At a previous conference of young miners special demands were drawn up for the Young Workers' League campaign among the mining youth. Besides the work of supporting the general program of the International Progressive Committee, the Young Workers' League has the task of spreading these demands more extensively among the mining youth in America. This conference will discuss the ways and means of further compaign among the broad masses of young miners in the industry.

The demands are as follows:

1. No contract shall be drawn up by the union containing discriminating clauses against the young miners, such as "boys' wages" clauses, etc.
2. No entrance fee for all young workers under 21 years of age.
3. The enforcement of the objective of the union which calls for the abolition of employment for all children under 16 years of age.
4. Young miners under 21 to pay 50 per cent of the regular dues.
5. Establishment of a special section in the publication of the union, devoted to the interests of the young miners to which the youth can contribute their views without censorship.
6. Abolition of all employment for the youth in dangerous occupations in and around the mines.
7. Immediate establishment of a day and night school under the supervision and control of the miners themselves.
8. The six-hour day and five-day week for all young miners.

These demands will be spread broadcast thruout the mine districts. Support them!

A HARD DAY'S WORK FOR THE POLITICIANS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 9.—The state legislature, thoroly capitalistic can see no other parasites to abolish but the humble mosquito, and the committee on municipalities authorized the creation of "mosquito abatement districts," yesterday.

Other profoundly important matters recommended by committees were to limit horse racing to thirty days per year, and to license slot vending machines. The committee on judiciary in a lucid interval tabled a bill forbidding circulation of information on birth control.

Equal Rights in Graveyard.

Bills of supposed vital interest which were introduced include one to give the state supreme court more power, to make "Illinois" the official song of the state and a bill "to add cemeteries to the list of places where all citizens are given equal rights."

Senator Barbour managed to get the tax to support tuberculous sanitaria reduced one-half, cutting down the support $750,000. In the house the judiciary committee postponed action on the "one day rest in seven" bill and on old age pension bill.

Off to the Not-So-Blind Pig.

With these arduous labors the capitalist legislators called it a day.

COOLIDGE AWARD TO CHILE A BID FOR NITRATE TRADE WHICH WALL STREET WOULD WREST FROM JAPAN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Feeling against the state department is again evident among Latin American diplomats in Washington, since Peru has challenged the Hughes-Coolidge award of the Tacna-Arica nitrate region to Chile under the pretext of a prebescite. While they dare not come into the open with an attack on the motives of the Washington government, these spokesmen of the financial colonies of Wall Street are sending out hints that the smell of nitrates is on the award.

Suggestion is offered that Japan has been buying large quantities of Chilean nitrates, and that the United States—or American business interests speaking thru the government—want to get full conrol of the industry. An award to Chile would predispose the Chilean government to consider terms of lease or sale, which American capital might propose. An award to Peru would make a deal wtih Chile for the nitrate beds south of the disputed region an impossibility.

'CAL' APPOINTS ONLY ONE LABOR MAN TO POWWOW

All Others Represent the Employing Class

WASHINGTON, April 9.—One labor spokesman is to be found among the nine delegates whom President Coolidge has selected to attend the 4th international congress of the building industry and public works, at Paris, June 15-21, on behalf of the United States. I. N. Naughton, Toledo, the chairman, is president of an elevator company. John W. Harris is treasurer of the Hegeman-Harris Co., New York. William Doyle is the head of a construction firm patronized by the Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia. Walter Snow, secretary-treasurer of the International Elevator Constructors' Union is the labor member. Noble F. Hoggson, New York, is described as an authority "on apprenticeship training, improvement of housing, and stabilization of employment." Walter Stabler is comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., New York. E. C. Marshall, Jr., is general manager of the Associated General Contractors of America. Eugene C. Lewis represents the Detroit House Financing corporation. J. C. Nichols is an investment company promoter from Kansas City, Mo.

MOBILIZES TURK ARMY TO FIGHT FOR MOSUL OIL

England Backs Kurds, Is Claim

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 9.—That British imperialist interests are behind the Kurdistan rebellion is rather openly admitted by the speech of General Ismet Pasha, premier of Turkey, in his request for complete mobilization of the Turkish army. The desire of Britain for the Mosul oil fields has led, so it is intimated, to the incitement by English agents of the Kurdish tribes against the Angora government in a holy war.

Complete mobilization was ordered not alone on account of the Kurds, altho their revolt was conceded by Ismet Pasha to be more serious than had been previously revealed, but at "other dangers to which the country is exposed." This is felt to have been aimed at England.

The Turkish army is said to have captured a Kurdish leader and to have killed 1,000 Kurds in battles reported yesterday. The Kurds are continuing the struggle.

LETTERS BARE DEATH PLOT

London two weeks ago in order to get rid of Krstju."

These cold-blooded observations were for the information of Dr. Steilov. Vlachov and Charlakov are two Macedonian revolutionaries who were marked by Zankov. The Kolarov referred to is a member of the central committee of the Bulgarian Communists Party and the executive committee of the Communist International. "Krstju," is christian Rakovsky, emissary of the Soviet government in London who advocated Macedonian independence and who exposed the game of the Zankovites regarding the cause of the Macedonians. Lazareff is General Lazareff, commander of the Sofia garrison and one of the chief butchers of the Zankov government.

No Worry About Money

The conspirators appear to be well supplied with funds. The letter ends, "You need not trouble about money. Everything will be paid. I send you 8,00 lire for January and February for the purpose of carrying on the work."

This work of assassination abroad is merely supplementary to the murders perpetrated almost daily in Bulgaria itself. The cruelties of the military governments of Horthy, Mussolini and Primo de Rivera are as nothing compared to the extremeties resorted to by the bloody Zankovites.

36 Political Murders.

In the last few months 36 openly political murders and 151 other murders is the record of the reactionary Bulgarian regime. The Zankov white guard government pushed to power in a military putsch in June, 1923, over the bodies of thousands of workers and peasants who had elected the peasant Stambulisky by an overwhelming majority. Together with Stambulisky practically every peasant leader was murdered. The Communist Party and the peasants' league were then declared illegal and precipitated a revolt in September of 1923. Advantage was taken of this to massacre thousands more in prisons without trial, many of whom took no part in the revolt.

Workers Shot Down in Streets.

The terror continues unabated. Communists and peasants are shot down in the street in open daylight. There is not one Communist deputy remaining alive. The last one, Haralambi Stojanov, was murdered on the 6th of March as he was returning home from parliament.

The Zankov government holds itself in power only by such means. It is the most unpopular in the world. But the threat of immediate murder hangs over the head of him who raises his voice in protest. The prisons of the country are filled to overflowing with thousands of workers and peasants who have never been brought to trial. Murders within the prison walls are of everyday occurrence.

The International Red Aid has undertaken the cause of the Bulgarian workers and peasants. Thousands of dollars are being raised by the I. R. A. in every country in the world to assist the families of imprisoned and murdered revolutionaries in Bulgaria. Send all contributions to George Maurer, secretary International Red Aid, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

Hindenburgh Bids for Presidency of German Nation

tial candidacy means military dictatorship."

If Hindenburg is elected president, Germany will witness the farce of her most rabid monarchist taking his oath of allegiance to the German republic.

Bitterly Fought.

It was predicted the election would be one of the most bitterly fought contests in German history.

The chances of Hindenburg have been greatly improved by the withdrawal of Ludendorff, politicians said.

Overnight the German political situation has developed from apathy to tension. Millions of partisans who did not vote at the first election either thru indifference or objection to the field of candidates, suddenly have become intensely interested.

Political observers emphasize that Germany is too defenceless to attempt to restore the monarchy and that such effort would undoubtedly result in an attack by a united front of all of the former enemies of Germany.

Not Personally Hostile.

The democrats and socialists are not assailing Hindenburg personally. Their attacks are directed against the party leaders behind him. The socialists, leaders, in fact, like Hindenburg.

These Hindenburg leaders are accused by the opposition of "ruthless pursuance of selfish party aims under the disguise of party candidate."

Some republican newspapers refer to the Hindenburg candidacy as the "biggest fraud." They declare the former field marshal is the "helpless victim of the shrewdest politicians."

The Vorwarts said "this is our political catastrophe. Hindenburg means restoration of the monarchy within a measurable time. The German republic is discredited abroad."

OHIO GOVERNOR'S SON STOLE GIRL, WARRANT SAYS

Admits Girl "Vanished" at His Request

BULLETIN.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, April 9.—Hal Donahey, 17-year-old son of Governor A. V. Donahey, today was found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of Lillian Vogel, 15-year-old school girl and ward of the juvenile court, by Judge Clarence Graham.

The finding of the court followed a brief hearing, at which a number of witnesses, including the girl, were examined.

Judge Graham fined Donahey $100 and made him a ward of the Muskingum county juvenile court until he reaches the age of 21 years.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, April 9.—Hal Donahey, 17-year-old son of Gov. A. V. Donahey, of Columbus, appeared in juvenile court here today to answer to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of Lillian Vogel, 15-year-old school girl, and ward of the court, following his confession at the executive mansion in Columbus yesterday, that he had taken the girl from Zanesville to Columbus Sunday night.

Ward of Court.

The warrant against young Donahey was sworn to yesterday by probation officer Bernard Roll. The Vogel girl, whose parents have separated, has been a ward of the court for two years.

If found guilty of the charge, young Donahey faces a maximum sentence of six months in jail, and a maximum fine of $1,000.

Took Her to Columbus.

Developments came quickly yesterday after the Vogel girl was found in a Columbus roominghouse by Mrs. Donahey, the boy's mother. Retracting his former assertion that he knew nothing of Miss Vogel's disappearance, Young Donahey under the grilling of his father admitted that he had taken Miss Vogel to Columbus Sunday night, but declared emphatically that there was "nothing wrong" in their relations.

NAMES OF RICH FOUND IN RAID NOT DIVULGED

Booze and Vice Trust Lawyers Score

CHICAGO, April 9—Fighting the forces of law with their own weapons, Chicago's alleged "crime trust" thru its attorneys today succeeded in securing an impounding order for the books and records seized in its headquarters here on grounds that the police raid in which they were taken was carried out without a search warrant and that the removal of the office equipment constituted nothing but "ordinary thievery."

Keeping Names Hidden.

The court order, which places the records temporarily in the court's custody prevented any of the expected sensational revelations regarding the "trusts" alleged operations in the field of rum running and dispensing and white-slavery which their carefully kept books are said to have revealed netted them a profit of about $10,000 weekly.

The records were brot into court on subpoenas sworn out by attorneys for the five men arrested in the raid. Following the court order, the state was granted a continuance until April 23.

Counsel for the defendant also filed an affidavit charging that a $1,000 check seized by police is missing.

Flaming Sword Gets Rusty as Founder of Klan Goes Broke

ATLANTA, Ga., April 9. — The knights of the flaming sword, organized by Colonel Wm. Joseph Simmons, organizer, founder and former imperial wizard of the ku klux klan, was thrown into temporary receivership in superior court here today when Judge George L. Bell granted a request of T. O. Tuttle, and Rev. J. P. Wiley, of Eldorado, Kans., and three employes of the order in headquarters here.

The petitioners, charging Col. Simmons is "the whole order," allege him to be indebted to them in the sum of $1,800.

WORKERS' SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT, SATURDAY, APRIL 11

The Workers' School will hold a gala spring entertainment and dance on Saturday evening, April 11, at 108 East 14th street. This is the first affair arranged by the school at the new headquarters and promises to be a prize event at our workers' house.

Among the many interesting features of the evening will be an exhibition of Armenian folk dances by Varya Stepanian, well-known Armenian dancer.

Music will be furnished by the orchestra of the English Williamsburg branch, the fame of which has spread among our ranks thruout the length and breadth of the city.

Make no other arrangements for the evening of April 11.

NEGRO MINERS STAND SOLIDLY WITH LEFT WING

Reject Race Appeal Made by Fakers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 9.—The disruptive tactics of District No. 5 officials are thwarted by the miners, in vindicating Tom Ray, a progressive fighter, from charges of dualism, at the last meeting of the Primrose local. The first attempt by the "gang" in the district to carry out their policy of expulsion threatened in a communication sent to all locals in the district, was started in Local 2012 at Primrose, Pa., by the district officials.

Race Prejudice Fails

A large portion of the membership in that local is composed of colored miners. So the district officials secured one of the colored miners to prefer the charges thereby expecting to create race prejudice, but they failed miserably in the attempt.

All of the miners both white and colored know Ray for his activity in the union, the part he took in building the miners' organisation, his consistent fight for progressive measures within the union and against reaction as well as against any attempt made by the operators to lower wages or destroy working condition. And now he is fighting for the release of the 12 miners incarcerated in the Moundsville penitentiary.

The charge prefered was "attending a meeting" in the sense that it was advised against by the district officials. The meeting in question was a conference held in Pittsburgh on Mar. 15 for the defense of the Moundsville prisoners, but the officialdom have a gag law resolution worse than any state criminal syndicalist or sedition laws in the country which they try to shove down the miners' throats.

Negro Miners Solid against Fakers

Two organisers, Flood and Baseralia, were given the job to see that the expulsion was put over. The sentiment against the officialdom's expulsion policy was so strong that they did not even take the floor. As a last resort to prevent their defeat the gang had one of its sluggers make an attempt to break up the meeting.

In the vote, the 200 miners attending the meeting overwhelmingly and definitely vindicated Ray of the charges. Not one of the colored miners voted for the expulsion, this shows that the officialdom miserably failed in the attempt to carry out their disruptive tactics by trying to create race prejudice.

HAITI RULED BY AMERICAN CLUBS WRITER CHARGES

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 9—A letter has been received by Secretary of State Kellogg from Joseph Mirault, correspondent of the Haitian Courier, protesting against the rule of American imperialism over the people of Haiti.

Countless American Crimes.

"During the last ten years that there has been an American occupation in Haiti," says the letter, "Countless crimes have been committed in the name of the American people. The poor people in the country are sometimes forced to disguise themselves as cannibals and to suffer themselves thus to be photographed."

Close 25 Schools.

"Twenty-five high schools have been closed, and the press gagged to such an extent that a journalist who dares to raise his voice to denounce misappropriation of public funds or exactions of any kind, will be thrown into jail where he will be subjected to all kinds of suffering and humiliation."

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

WESTERN ELECTRIC WORKER TELLS HOW SLAVES RUIN HEALTH AMID SPIES AND BOSSES FOR SMALL PAY

By WESTERN ELECTRIC SLAVE

The Western Electric Co., one of the largest manufacturing concerns in the middle west, is taking advantage of the present unemployment situation to force unendurable conditions on a great number of employes.

One might suppose from the amount of red tape to be gone thru and the rigid physical examination one has to pass to secure employment that a position well worth while was in view instead of the low priced slavery that exists.

Never Get Raise.

The average wage scale is from forty-one to forty-seven cents an hour with an increase of from three to five cents after a period of six months, "providing one's work merits it." It is needless to say that few of the workers "merit the raise," according to the company's estimation. Of course there are a few favored by the bosses who fare better.

Overcrowded Conditions.

The majority of the dressing rooms if they can be called such are uncomfortably over-crowded, there being as many as three men assigned to one of the half size lockers. A man may purchase a lock to put on his locker so that his belongings may be safe while working and the following day may find it broken, not by his brother workers, but by officials of the company so that a new employe may be crowded sardine-like in the toy locker.

Slow Poisoning.

The foremen and straw bosses of the department in which the writer is employed are domineering and overbearing and keep the workers docile by intimidation. The work is hard and dangerous and the hours are overlong. When speaking of danger the writer means not only the loss of fingers or eyes, as often happens but anyone who has ever worked with copper and the chemicals used in treating it knows that they are poisonous and therefore dangerous to health. Many men are today going around in this particular department with arms, hands and face bandaged as a result of a rash caused by the aforementioned poisonous copper.

Discharged for Seeking Raise.

As a protest against the small pay and long hours some of the men recently went to the chief of department with a request for an increase in pay. These men were working under impossible conditions, hard work in intense heat from ten to twelve hours, some of them without even a lunch hour. These men, some of them with familes, struggling to eke out an existence under such conditions, were regarded as rebels and anarchists, were accused of being agitators and as such were discharged.

These same men are now probably walking the streets, jobless, increasing the great pitiful army of unemployed, all because they wanted a living wage and healthful working conditions and had the courage to ask for them.

Long Hours.

The working day is supposed to be eight and three-quarters hours but the writer himself has had as high as seventy-two hours in one week. The employe isn't forced to work overtime, but if he desires to go home to his family at five instead of seven or nine he may find himself reading the "help wanted ads" in the papers next day.

Some of the jobs pay a premium as an inducement to the workers to speed up production and if a man toils long and hard enuf he may earn as high as eighty cents premium in a week. One man was even known to have earned as high as one dollar and sixty-three cents premium in one week and was the talk of the shop thereafter.

Lose Eyes and Fingers.

The foremen went around telling the men that such and such a worker earned a premium the mentioned week and it would be well for them to do likewise and be rewarded likewise, but there was a notable absence of any one going around telling the men what was paid to the workers who the week before, suffered, one the loss of an eye and the other a finger.

The company according to its newspaper advertisements boasts of being the largest manufacturers of electrical equipment in the world. Think of the immense profits of such a corporation and then ask yourself where these profits come from. Out of the mouths of women and babes. Food and comforts denied them so that the corporation may increase its billions. This company boasts of its contented workers and probably considers it a joke.

Need Organization.

It is hoped that soon the workers of the Western Electric Co. will become enlightened and organise themselves on a good sound basis and put a stop to this slavery and tyranny and work towards their own betterment so that a living wage may be had without slaving and toiling ten and twelve hours a day.

GARMENT BOSSES GET BIG PROFIT AS WAGES DROP

Made $200 Net on Each Worker

WASHINGTON, April 9.— Manufacturers of women's clothing (not including contractors) operating 5,456 plants in 1923 have reported to the federal census of manufacturers that in that year they paid out for wages $150,885,907 to an average of 112,132 wage workers, and that the value added to their goods thru manufacture was $556,971,917. Salaries of officers, bosses and firm members are not included in the wage total, but the proportion of new value created to the wages paid is about twice as much as in most industries reporting thru this federal census.

Total value of products was $1,361,272,646, and the cost of materials, containers and fuel was $804,300,729.

Wage Cut 6.1 Per Cent

As compared with the year 1921, when 5,471 plants reported, the number of wage workers is reduced 9.9 per cent, the average wage is cut 6.1 per cent, and the value added by manufacture is increased 34.3 per cent.

A similar report from 1,590 contract shops producing women's garments shows, for 1923, that 24,462 persons were engaged, of whom 21,063 were wage workers. The total wages paid were $25,656,152. Salaried employes had jumped since 1921 in these plants from 855 to 1,286, and their total pay from $1,397,108 to $2,038,969.

Reap Millions.

Wages were only 5.1 per cent more in total than in 1921, and the number of wage workers 3.4 per cent more. Value added by manufacture in these contract shops in 1923 was $40,173,526 which was 0.2 per cent more than in 1921. That left the contractors a gross profit, beside their own salaries, of about $12,480,000 for the year, or a little less than $200 profit on each of the 21,000 wage workers.

Labor Fakers Don't Care for Unemployed

saw John L. Lewis drive along in his big Cadillac sedan car (V63) liesurely smoking a big cigar. Lewis as president of the United Mine Workers enjoying life to the full while over a hundred thousand miners are out of work and many of them in dire straits. An extra assessment was recently placed to keep up the expense while the official family play the part of kings or royal nabobs living on the best there is while some one else pays the freight.

Has Private Secretary.

Next we see Victor Olander come along sporting a cane accompanied by his "private" secretary on his weekly visit to the state house where he goes thru the mock ceremony of lobbying for labor bills with guilty knowledge of the fact that in ten years he has not secured enough beneficial legislation to pay for the price of a cancelled postage stamp. Olander is growing corpulent on the job and why he should have a "private secretary" with him at all times is a mystery to the natives of Springfield. It is presumed Olander thinks this adds dignity to his position. Perhaps it does but it does not add anything to the chances of the miner out of work to see this fat parasite mock his misery.

The Weeping Willow

In a few minutes we see John H. Walker strut across the street accompanied by some of the stand pat republican members of the house "friends of labor" no doubt. Walker has successfully dodged hard work for many years and now since he is on easy street with a nice salary and permitted to fix his own expense account he renounces his former "socialist" ideas and lines up with the chamber of commerce, Len Small, and is considered safe and sane as a "labor leader" and entitled to the paludits of the press. If all the money Walker has received from labor were placed in a pile it would make a nice "jack-pot." Put along side of what he has accomplished it would be as a mountain to a mole hill.

Farrington in Scab Taxi

Then a yellow cab cames along and we are reminded that Frank Farrington the self appointed perpetual president of the remains of the Miners' Union of Illinois has just returned from another trip for his health. Farringon rests most of the time and only shows up when a board meeting is to be held to take action against some "red" or other who has the courage to oppose the efforts of this stool pigeon of the coal operators of Illinois. He has now carried out the mandate of the operators of the Springfield district in using his officials position in an effort to remove Freeman Thompson from his position as sub-district president to which Thompson was duly elected, because the coal operators don't like Thompson.

Farrington has never been elected legally but he keeps an aggregation of appointees on hand to see that the votes are properly stolen and he is retained as chief generalissimo in charge of carrying out the mandates of the coal operators who in turn support Farrington.

Costly Luxuries

Now what does this all cost the workers? First, Lewis gets some eight thousand dollars a year and fixes his own expense account. Olander gets his five thousand a year and such expenses as he feels like incurring. Walker is getting fat at the expense of the workers out of his five thousand per year and extras. Farrington gets whatever he wants to take and takes plenty but under the miners' rules he is expected to get four hundred eighty-six and two-thirds dollars a month, but judging from his expense account he evidently makes the job pay him a thousand dollars a month in addition to whatever the coal companies care to donate in the matter of stock etc., in return for favors freely given.

What does the worker get? He gets the grand and glorious privilege of carrying a card and paying the freight. If he kicks he is a "red" and getting orders from Moscow. Not a single effort is being made to provide for the present tremendous problem of unemployment. The chamber of commerce has more influence with the so-called "leaders" than the ones who pay the per-capita. A'int it a grand and glorious feeling?

POPE ANNOUNCES MUSSOLINI WILL DODGE ELECTIONS FOR YEAR "SO AS NOT TO DISTURB HOLY JUBILEE"

ROME, Italy, April 9.—The announcement of the vatican today that the Mussolini government has deferred the elections until April 26, 1926, "so as not to disturb the holy year jubilee," adds further proof that the pope is lending his fullest support to the fascisti.

The elections were to held next month, according to the understanding that prevailed in parliament following the passage of Mussolini's electoral bill, which disfranchised thousands of workers and peasants.

Mussolini has made use of the vatican to prevent his crusade of violence and murder from coming before the workers of Italy in an election campaign.

HILLMAN'S CIRCUS HAS TROUPE OF ACROBATIC CLOWNS FOR WHICH THE MEMBERSHIP PAYS

By SAM LIPTZIN.

In every local of the Amalgamated, as well is in the general labor press, there is much excitement over the struggle of Local No. 5 of New York.

But the truth of the matter is that the issue is not Local No. 5. The incident of Local No. 5 is only a result of the great struggle of the broad masses of the membership in New York and the other cities against irresponsibility, corruption and misleadership in the Amalgamated. The Hillman machine created the Local No. 5 situation to divert attention from these issues, to localise the struggle and so that instead of attacking the rottenness and corruption in the Amalgamated, the discussion should concentrate on saving Local No. 5, and begging Hillman not to issue another charter to replace that of Local 5, not to dissolve the present executive board, not to suspend any more members, to cease throwing workers out of their jobs for expressing opinions favorable to Local No. 5.

This wily politician and cheap demagogue learned his tricks very well, for which purpose professors, doctors and all sorts of brain and pen slaves were hired, who are being paid hundreds of dollars out of the dues of the membership to plan political maneuvers to enhance the reputation of the Hillman circus and to belittle the struggle carried on in the interests of the workers.

Here is one incident. The chief clown of the Hillman circus was afraid that his comedians might surpass him; that they might get more applause than he does and this circus boss feels that his assistants should perform for him, while he should receive the applause. So he began to minimize the skill of his clowns, Wolf, Harry Cohen, and company.

The membership was more than satisfied, knowing well who this gang was, knowing well their work, every sincere union man helped in the struggle and they were removed.

But Hillman could not conduct the circus without them, and especially when the other comedians began to threaten him with joining the rival circus of the United Garment Workers. So he made peace with them, and he presented them on the stage. And they performed their tricks for the tailors, promising to get back the bundles from the country towns, establish the union in New York, reorganize the joint board, establish economy in the financial department, stop the reductions, not to permit scabbing of one local on the other, take steps to help the unemployed; in short, rejuvenate the union. The membership applauded and hurrahed. These promises had to be made because the membership knew that something had to be done to rectify this financial and moral bankruptcy.

Disrupt Union.

So they established themselves in the organization, but instead of all these promised reforms they continued throwing workers out of their jobs, inciting worker against worker, in order to establish their machine. They told the tailors that they cannot get the work back to New York because Chicago, Rochester and other towns compete with New York and the only way to meet the competition is to accept reductions.

The membership protested. Again began the terror of the Hillman machine, shouting that "this is a Communist conspiracy against the Amalgamated," that criticism and writing of leaflets is a crime, and that for the distribution of leaflets members should lose their bread, and their women and children should starve.

And then this circus boss came to the joint board with this terroristic order. I opposed him and showed by a copy of the first leaflet issued by the T. U. E. L. that it was written and paid for in the general office. But Hillman thot that we are only organized to criticise his opponents and that he could put over anything he pleased without criticism. Well, he was mistaken.

The Struggles in New York.

At present our struggle in New York is for their program, the program that they have promised the membership. We do not deviate from the line that they indicated. They attempt to wiggle out by creating the issue of Local 5, scaring the bosses with Communism in order to obtain their co-operation. This will not help them. The membership watches the steps of those who have trampled the soul of the Amalgamated under their feet.

Not the gangsters, police nor yellow and black press will vanquish the growing rebellion of the tailors in every city all over the country.

Better conditions for the workers, loyal leadership and confidence in the power of the masses, only this can bring back to life the great past of the Amalgamated.

Wood Family Passing Out of Woolen Rule But Retains Stealings

BOSTON, Mass., Apr. 9.—The Wood family, notorious fighters against the textile unions and leaders of the woolen industry, are passing out of management in that field. Cornelius A. Wood, son of William M. Wood, former president of American Woolen, now retires from all directorates of this company and its subsidiaries.

BARBERS' UNION CHIEF DECLINES TO CENSURE KLAN

Business Agent Claims K.K.K. Threatened Him

The K. K. K. is now planning to get rid of Chicago barbers' union officials if the report brot in by the officials at the last union meeting is true. F. A. Ackerman, a business agent, read a letter he claims to have received from the kluxers wherein he is ordered in no uncertain terms to "beat it" out of Chicago. At a certain point in the letter the writers say, "Leave and live; Stay and die." Ackerman hinted that the kluxers were members of the local barbers' union. After making a statement concerning his bravery, and to the effect that no K. K. K., American Legionaire or Communist was able to frighten him, he challenged any one to chase him out of the union.

Slander Resented.

The statement linking the Communists with the American Legion thugs, and the wearers of the night-shirts, was very much resented by the Communists present, and Joseph Giganti and A. D. Albright getting the floor repudiated as Communists any such connections with the murderers of workers. They pointed out that altho they were opposed to the officials in matters of principle, they would at all times stand behind them whenever enemies of the workers threatened their union leaders.

A. D. Albright wanted to present a resolution condemning the ku klux klan, but it was promptly ruled out of order by the chairman.

The meeting adjourned after the members present were informed that the Communists had no interests aside from the working class, and that they would oppose anything that would tend to disrupt and demoralize an organization of workers.

WAR ON THE WORKERS

"By capitalists, aided by Coolidge, the strike breaker, and Dawes, the Open Shopper."

"Today, the capitalist employers, are cutting the wages of hundreds of thousands. Today, the bosses are beginning a new assault upon the unions, throwing great armies of workers into unemployment in an effort to use them as scabs against the employed, to speed up the workers beyond endurance, lengthening the hours and jailing the Communists, who lead the struggle of the working class.

"On the First of May the toiling masses must rise and carry forward the banner of implacable struggle against the capitalist class. On the First of May the workers of America from coast to coast must answer with united voice the arrogant bosses. To the greedy capitalists and their ruthless government, the united working class must throw down the challenge of a general strike."

EDITOR OF SPANISH COMMUNIST PAPER WRITES FROM PRISON OF TREASON AND THE PARTY LIFE

The following letter received by the Acting Executive Secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party of America, gives in a unique way, as incidental to the subjects discussed, the picture of the lives of our revolutionary comrades under the military dictatorship of General Primo de Rivera. The attack of the bourgeoisie upon the Communist Party, the treason of party members unable to stand persecution, the use the class enemy makes of them, the mention of repeated and mass imprisonment, the threat of death over leading comrades, the fraternity of internationalism known only to Communists, the interest in foreign news, and even the extremely busy life of the editor in jail, all are typical of a revolutionary party under fire. The letter follows:

• • • •

Cellular Prison,
Madrid, Spain, Feb. 28, 1925.

Earl R. Browder,
Chicago, U. S. A.,
Dear Comrade:-

I have been wanting to write you for some time to thank you for your thoughtfulness in sending me the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly. In the solitude of prison it is a great satisfaction to us to be able to follow the activities of our American brothers.

However, my main purpose in writing these lines is to inform you of the following:

In the DAILY WORKER of Feb. 9 there appears a story devoted to the world-wide campaign on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, in which a letter is referred to written by Merino Gracia, who is spoken of as "leader of the Spanish Communist Party." It is no more than natural that this cur should be spoken of in such terms by comrades who do not know very much about his recent act of betrayal. In fact, up to three months ago he was a member of the party and occupied important posts. But for the last three months he has been a despicable traitor.

Notwithstanding his prominence he had managed to escape all persecution. Finally, in May, 1924 he was arrested. He was not able to resist eight months of prison. (The majority of the leading members of the Communist party of Spain have been in jail for many months indeed. Since 1920 I myself have been imprisoned nine times and have known jails and jails.) This fellow wanted to regain his liberty. And how! Together with Angel Pumarega, our delegate to the third congress of the Communist International, and Francisco Vall, delegate to the third congress of the R. I. L. U., he addressed a letter to the military governor of Barcelona, recanting his Communist principles, attacking them in cowardly fashion and declaring his withdrawal from all activity.

I need not tell you the campaign that opened up in the press against our party. All the newspapers hastened to deal a death blow to the party. The incident was very easy for the bourgeoisie to exploit, because of the great prominence which the three renegades had enjoyed in our party and in view of the fact that they had been delegates to congresses of the C. I. And this treason was committed when every responsible member of the party is in prison, while Comrades Maurin, Arlandes, Tilles and Benedi are menaced with death.

If this individual should write to you again you will know how to treat him. With regard to the aforementioned news story in the DAILY WORKER, I shall write an article about it in the forthcoming issue of our central organ La Antorcha.

The Communist Party of Spain has from the very beginning taken a good deal of interest in the Sacco-Vanzetti campaign. When the political situation permitted, we have held Sacco-Vanzetti meetings and our press has given frequent attention to the affair. Recently, as a result of an article in the DAILY WORKER on the subject of Sacco's family, which we translated, La Antorocha issued an appeal on behalf of the two Italian comrades.

I shall be very greatly obliged if you will continue to send me your publications. They are of great interest for me. If you read our organ, La Antorcha, you will see that we frequently reprint articles from the DAILY WORKER and we often allude to it.

It has for us a double interest: the U. S. is the typical country of economic imperialism and its organ gives an illuminating Marxist analysis of all political events. Moreover, we are very much interested in the movement in Central and South Africa. Begging the pardon of some of those good comrades, we must recognise that their press is decidedly weak and does not study well the development of American (Yankee) capitalism. On the other hand the DAILY WORKER is excellently informed. And it thus happens that your paper gives us better material on the politics of Central and South America than the organs of the parties in those countries themselves. We treat American politics thru the medium of the DAILY WORKER.

In return for your kindness, I should like to send you an article but even though a prisoner I have not had time. The prison regime in Spain concedes a considerable amount of liberty—and the fact is that I am editing our central organ from my prison cell, and writing for various foreign publications. In any case, I intend to send you an article.

Will you be so kind as to tell me if the DAILY WORKER has a correspondent in Spain? And if it has, I should like to know if your news source is bourgeois or working class.

Do you receive La Antorcha?

Excuse the nuisance of this long letter. Communist greetings,

(Signed) Juan Andrade

New York Bankers Buy Norway

OSLO, Norway, April 9.—The eight million dollar loan negotiated by the Oslo municipality with Kuhn, Loeb and company, New York bankers, has caused much opposition among the workers here.

They pointed out that the New York bankers, by buying up municipal bonds of Norway's principal cities on the New York exchange, has given the American capitalists a strong hold on Norway.

Klan Wins Herrin Election

HERRING, Ill., April 9.—The ku klux klan stood victorious today in Herrin's township election.

The klan, allied with the "good government league," emerged victorious over a so-called non-partisan ticket supported by democrats and klan-opposed republicans. The city election two weeks ago brought a similar result.

New Party Branch

McKEES ROCKS, Pa., April 9.—Last night in our city, was a mass meeting of Russian and Ukrainian workers. Speaker were Com. Chramoff, editor of Russian daily Novy Mir. At this meeting Comrade Chramoff organized a new branch of the Workers Party, Russian section, and sold Communist literature for $18.00.

The Workers Party in Action

MAY DAY CALL ISSUED BY REDS IN MILWAUKEE

Urge United Front for Celebration

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 9.—Local Milwaukee of the Workers (Communist) Party has sent to all labor unions and labor fraternal organizations a call for a united front conference to make arrangements for the celebration of May Day.

The slogans and issues as a basis for the united front, as outlined in the communication sent to the various organizations are as follows:

a) Down with wage cuts, open shop drives, and child labor. Answer the capitalist attack with strikes. Strengthen your union thru amalgamation and the building up of the shop committees.

b) Down with criminal syndicalist laws. Demand the immediate release of all class war prisoners. Demand release of Mooney, Billings, Ford, Suhr, Sacco and Vanzetti and others.

c) Down with the Dawes' plan.

d) Down with discrimination against the Negro race.

e) Fight for the recognition and support of Soviet Russia.

f) Down with imperialism, militarism and war.

g) Fight for world trade union unity by supporting the Anglo-Russian unity committee.

The Workers Party of America, Local Milwaukee call upon your organization to join it in the united front demonstration for these demands by sending delegates to the conference on April 14, 1925.

Demonstrate to protect your wages your hours and your rights! Down with capitalism!

Onward to the workers' and farmers' government!

Fraternally yours,
G. S. SHKLAR, Sec'y.

LABOR DEFENSE AND RELIEF COUNCIL MEETS FRIDAY AT GREEK HALL

The next full meeting of the Chicago Council for Labor Defense and Relief will meet Friday, April 10, at Greek Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave. Two important new campaigns are to be undertaken so all delegates should be present and on time.

PHILADELPHIA Party Activities

PHILADELPHIA, April 9—The party of Lenin, the Workers Party, and the party of Sun Yat Sen, the Kuomintang, will co-operate in holding memorial meetings for Doctor Sun Yat Sen in Philadelphia on Sunday, April 12.

The Workers Party has arranged to hold a memorial meeting in the Grand Fraternity Hall, 1626 Arch St., April 12 at 8 p. m. with I. Amter as the principal speaker and John Raape of Richmond, Virginia, who will speak in the name of the Kuomintang.

Comrade Amter will deal with the Far Eastern policy of the Soviet government and the latest developments in that region and will point out the close co-operation between the Russian government and the Chinese revolutionary party, the Kuomintang and its well known leader, Sun Yat Sen.

The local Kuomintang will hold memorial services for Doctor Sun Yat Sen on the same day in the Dumont's Theater at 9th and Arch streets at 2 p. m., at which a number of Chinese speakers will be present together with Comrade I. Amter who will represent the Workers Party and speak in the English language. A large orchestra will be a part of the program at the afternoon meeting.

MOVIES TO SHOW RED PROTEST AT POLISH CONSULS

At Wicker Theatre April 15

The workers who demonstrated in front of the Polish consulate in Chicago in protest against the threatened execution of Stanislav Lanzutsky, will have a chance to see themselves in the movies that were taken at that time.

These pictures will be shown for the first time in the DAILY WORKER Film Edition No. 6, at the Wicker Park Theater, 1539 Milwaukee Ave., on April 15.

The feature of the program will be a return engagement of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls."

There is no guarantee that there will be further repeat performances, so all who expect to see this Russian feature film should come early to the Wicker Park Theater.

Milwaukee to Show Workers' Films in Nearby Communities

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 9.—The active Committee for International Workers' Aid of Milwaukee, Wis., is branching out into new territory nearby and expects thru a gala movie program at the Sheboygan Opera House on May 20th, to extend its activity to this bustling manufacturing city and farm center.

In view of the large German element the film shown will be the eight reel topical "Tale of Two Republics"—"Russia and Germany," photographed by William F. Kruse in a 10,000 mile trip thru these two countries.

The differences between Soviet Republican Russia and reformist republican Germany are shown in the film far clearer than any speaker could describe them. It is expected that the motion pictures will be used to bring the message of workers' solidarity to the other cities in this part of Wisconsin.

Bronx English Branch No. 1 of the Workers (Communist) Party has arranged an anti-nationalistic concert and dance on Saturday evening, April 11, 1925, at Workers' Hall, 1347 Boston Road, Bronx, N. Y. All anti-nationalists must be there.

Brownsville Open Forum

Comrade William Weinstone will deliver a lecture on "The Fraud of Class Collaboration," on Sunday eve., April 12, at the headquarters of the Workers Party, 1701 Pitkin avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

DAILY WORKER FILM FEATURE OF ST. LOUIS WORKERS' AID SHOW

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 9.—As an added attraction to the big movie program to be given in St. Louis, Mo., on April 12, there will be pictures of the recent Paterson silk strike, one of the well known DAILY WORKER Film Editions.

The idle mills are shown with police guards in front of them, then the strike meeting, the leaders, the picket line, the relief committee, as well as a glimpse of the conditions against which the workers went on strike.

The main feature of the program will be the famous Moscow Art Theater film, "Polikushka," starring Ivan Moskvin, and the two reel of Russian slapstick comedy, "Soldier Ivan's Miracle." The show will be given at Unity Hall, Grand and Page, on April 12.

Number One--

Is a task of no small importance.

Getting a sub for the DAILY WORKER from your shop-mate or member of your union is a task for the very best kind of a Communist organizer.

You must state, prove, convince—you must place before the uninformed worker every argument as to why he should subscribe to The DAILY WORKER—and to the Communist principles it advocates.

But it is the task of every Communist.

This is the field in which are found not only the future members of the Workers (Communist) Party, but also—

This is the field and work in which are developed the highest type of Communist Organizers.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub is a task of no small importance! Try it on your shop-mate—it will make a better Communist of you!

Number Two--

Is just as important—but it's easier.

The second task that is asked of every Communist—in or out of the Workers (Communist) Party—in the Second Annual Sub Campaign is very much easier.

You have no doubt tried to convince; you have surely stated the Communist principles and program to many workers you have met.

You did this as the task of a Communist.

But where you may have not as yet succeeded—let the DAILY WORKER do it; you can do it better with "Our Daily."

Pay for a subscription out of your own pocket (if you can) to the worker whom you want to convince.

FAKE LAW DENIES WORKERS PAY FOR TRADE DISEASES

Capitalist Lawmakers Kill Compensation

NEW YORK, April 9.—Leading medical experts thruout the country, among whom are Professors Winslow and Henderson of Yale University, Dr. Alice Hamilton of Harvard, Dr. Emerp Hayhurst of Ohio, and Dr. Haven Emersod of Columbia are co-operating with organized labor in New York in a final endeavor to get Governor Smith to veto the Miller-Truman amendment to the Workmen's Compensation law, passed in spite of their protest.

Hundreds of Thousands Affected.

According to the State Federation of Labor, which has been leading the fight against the bill whose full title is the Miller-Truman pneumonoconiosis (originally silicosis) amendment, hundreds of thousands of factory workers exposed to solicosis are denied relief by restricting compensation to a limited number of trades under conditions "which have no precedent in the compensation laws of New York or any other state in the country."

Silicosis is a disease of the lungs caused by breathing cuarts dust. Workers subject to this occupational disease are: quarry workers, stone cutters, emery grinders, sand blasters, polishers, buffers, rock drillers, miners and potters.

A Fake Bill Put Over.

The passage of this bill will forestall really effective action to protect workers whose lungs are now being destroyed by silicosis. Under the Miller-Truman amendment a worker must be employed five years continuously in one of the listed trades before he can claim compensation for Silicosis. Workers once refused employment or discharged by employers' physicians may never again claim compensation for this disease.

SPEEDING UP OF TRAIN CREWS INCREASES PROFITS GOING TO STOCKHOLDERS IN RAILWAYS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Bigger railroad profits due to train crews handling more tons of freight at greater speed are outstanding features of the statistics for the first two months of 1925. Railroad net income for January was $65,842,000 and for February $64,910,210 or a total of $130,752,210 for railroad owners so far this year. In the same period of 1924 net profits were $122,578,764.

More Work Done by Each Crew.

Operating statistics for January show that the average train crew handled a train load of 709 net tons at a speed of 11.4 miles an hour in 1925 compared with 666 net tons at 11 miles in 1924 and 692 net tons at 10.6 miles an hour in January, 1923. Each crew produced 8,060 net ton miles for the railroads for each hour for which they were paid in 1925 compared with 7,350 in 1924 and 7,220 in 1923.

This increase in efficiency meant a saving of about 600,000 train hours in January, 1925 compared with January 1923 with a consequent saving to the railroads in wages to train crews.

More Profits to Stockholders.

Railroad profits for the entire year 1924 gave some railroad stockholders as high as $18.20 on each $100 share. There are 17 leading railroads in the list with profits of more than 10 per cent on common stock. These include:

1924 Profit	Per cent on common
Santa Fe	15.3
Atlantic Coast Line	18.2
Chesapeake & Ohio	16.8
Delaware & Hudson	13.4
D. L. & W.	18.0
Illinois Central	13.6
New York Central	13.6
Nickel Plate	13.9
Reading	17.0
Southern Pacific	10.8
Southern	12.3
Union Pacific	15.2

Returns for the stockholders of other big carriers were Baltimore & Ohio 9.2 per cent, Chicago & Northwestern 4.2 per cent, Rock Island 4.4 per cent, Colorado & Southern 9 per cent, Erie 6 per cent, Great Northerr 7.2 per cent, Lehigh Valley 12 per cent, Louisville & Nashville 12 per cent, Northern Pacific 6 per cent, Pennsylvania 8.2 per cent, St. Louis-San Francisco 12.1 per cent and St. Louis-Southwestern 7.9 per cent.

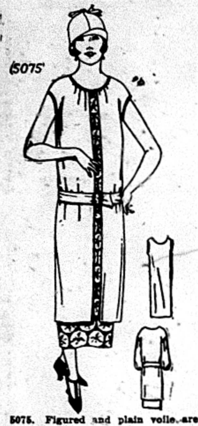
OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A PLEASING MODEL IN TUNIC STYLE.



5075. Figured and plain voile are here combined. The model is attractive for other combinations. Faille and satin, plaid and plain flannel, or gingham and voile would be attractive. The peasant sleeve may be omitted. The width at the foot is 56 inches.

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. To make the style as illustrated for a 38-inch size in the large view, will require 3⅛ yards of 40 inch figured material and 2⅞ yards of plain material. With long sleeves 3½ yards of plain material is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

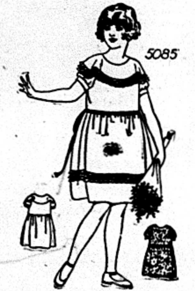
FASHION BOOK NOTICE!

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our up-to-date Spring and Summer 1925 Book of Fashions, showing color plates and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses', and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

A PRETTY PARTY DRESS



5085. Crepe de chine, chiffon or organdy would be very atractive for this model. It is also good for cretonne, gingham or crepe. The bertha may be omitted.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. An 8-year size requires 2⅝ yards of 32-inch material if made with the bertha. Without the bertha 2¼ yards will be required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

MILLIONS ARE SPENT BY BRITAIN TO KEEP THE IRAK OIL FIELDS

LONDON, England, April 9.—The estimated cost to Britain of the occupation of Irak for the past 12 months was £4,711,500, said Mr. Ormsby-Gore, in parliament.

He added, in reply to a question, that it was with the object of examining into the question of the evacuation of Irak that the colonial secretary and the air minister had left for Bagdad.

WORKERS FACE SEVERE CRISIS IN AUSTRALIA

Jobs Scarce, Prices Soar, Wages Decrease

SYDNEY, Australia, April 8.—The rule of the conservative nationalist party of New South Wales, headed by Premier Sir George Fuller, has witnessed a 30 per cent increase in unemployment, a sharp decrease in wages, and an increase in the cost of living.

Since March, 1922, when Fuller took over the government from the labor party, the average nominal weekly wage for male city workers has dropped from 95 shillings, four pence to 93 shillings, 10 pence.

Big Drop in Rural Wages.

The wages of rural workers, in the same period, have dropped from 2 pounds, 2 shillings per week, with keep, to 20 shillings per week and keep.

Since March, 1922, the number of hours worked in all industries, increased from an average of 45¼ per week to 46¾ per week.

In March, 1922, the average rate of unemployment was 11.1, and today is 14.3 per cent, which is a 30 per cent increase in unemployment.

Living Cost Goes Up.

The cost of living has increased in this period 4½ per cent.

The loss to the workers of New South Wales in the past three years, figuring the increase in living costs, the reduction in wages, the lengthening of hours and the increase in unemployment, has been computed at 14,000 pounds per annum.

German-French Trade Treaty Negotiations in Hopeless Collapse

PARIS, April 9.—The negotiations for a commerical treaty between France and Germany came to another halt when M. Raynaldy, minister of commerce, and Herr Poose, head of the German delegation, failed to settle a disagreement over the number of articles which the Germans desired to bar from the benefits of the most-favored-nation clause.

A compromise appeared unlikely, and unless the German delegates get new instructions from Berlin, it is thought the negotiations will be called off.

The French were assured by the Germans that they would be accorded the most-favored-nation treatment except on a very limited list of articles. When the list was submitted, however, it was found to comprise about half the French exports to Germany. M. Raynaldy then said he could go no further, but decided to make another effort to keep the negotiations open.

It was said in official circles that nothing had come of the talk between the French minister and Herr Poose.

ALEX HOWAT TO SPEAK SUNDAY AT KANSAS CITY

Leaves Mine to Urge Labor Defense

(Special to The Daily Worker)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 9.—Alex Howat, fighting leader of the militant Kansas miners, will speak here at the Musicians' Hall, 1017 Washington street, on Sunday afternoon, April 12, at 2 p. m. Together with Howat, Caroline A. Lowe, the woman attorney who has taken part in the defense of persecuted I. W. W. and other unionists for many years, will deal with the subject of the evening, "Labor's Prisoners."

Garment Workers' Faker Against Howat.

An interesting incident, illustrating the united front of labor fakerdom in opposition to the revolutionary rank and file movement in the unions directed by the Trade Union Educational League, is the action of J. L. Hines, an officer of the Garment Workers Union, in forbidding members of that union from announcing Howat's meeting or selling tickets, because—"Howat is a rebel."

However, the garment workers' rank and file have just as little regard for their international fakers as have the rank and file of the miners for the Lewis gang—and 500 leaflets were distributed just the same and tickets are being sold.

Howat Working in the Mines

Howat, it will be remembered, is now a member of the U. M. W. of A. in spite of his illegal removal, he having been necessarily inducted into the union because he went back to work in the mines digging coal alongside the men who have supported him thru thick and thin for many years. The meeting is held on a Sunday to allow Howat to get back to his coal pick in the mine on Monday.

The speech of Alex Howat will deal with the cause and consequences of the persecution of Communists in Michigan. This will show the connection between the prosecution of the Communists and their industrial program of the transformation of the unions into instruments of class struggle. All workers are invited to attend.

BUILDERS AT WORK

LOCAL MILWAUKEE GOES ON RECORD!

Here Is a Program of Action for Your Local

This letter gives sufficient reasons why local Milwaukee is already near the top of the list in the Second Annual Sub Campaign and why no doubt it will soon fill its quota. Your local could put this program into action!

Milwaukee, Wis., April 7, 1925.

The DAILY WORKER.
Dear Comrades:

The question of the DAILY WORKER was the principal matter taken up at the General Membership meeting in Milwaukee.

The meeting was fully conscious of the fact that the Daily Communist paper counstitutes the most effective weapon of the Communist movement and the greatest force in building up a real mass Communist Party, a Party of action.

Recognizing this fact the general membership meeting decided upon the following measures for increasing the circulation of the paper in this city:

1. That the entire strength of the local movement will be devoted to support the Second Annual DAILY WORKER Sub Campaign with a pledge to get at least two new subscribers for each party member.
2. That every member of the party should become a subscriber to the paper.
3. That special house to house canvass will be organized during the last week in April to be devoted for the work of building up the DAILY WORKER by soliciting monthly subscriptions and organizing if possible the daily newsboys routes.
4. That every member of party should order at least ten copies of the paper, to be provided free of charge by the DAILY WORKER, for the purpose of distrubuting the paper every day for the period of one week to the same houses, to be visited by a committee at the end of the week.
5. That each member will be given a list of sympathizers to be visited for the purpose of securing subscriptions to the paper.

It is expect that the measures adopted at the general membership meeting will be the means of building up a real movement in this city. Fraternally yours,

G. S. SHKLAR, Secretary.

This is the program of action fit for your local and good for any local in the country. This program IN ACTION will put your local right among the leaders in the Second Annual Sub Campaign and without question, this program will BUILD YOUR LOCAL.

BUILDING UNIONS THAT VOTED FOR COOLIDGE GET LOCKOUT IN WASHINGTON, D. C., AS REWARD

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Geo. F. Hedrick, president of the building trades department, American Federation of Labor, and former international president of the Painters' Brotherhood, is holding a series of conferences at Washington headquarters with officers of unions threatened by the local combination of speculative builders and their bankers who have defied the wage demands of the building trades.

He announces that the executives of all building trades organizations will meet April 13 in Cleveland, and that if a lockout shall meanwhile have developed in Washington they will at that time discuss methods of joint defensive action.

Michael Mitchell, president of the International Stonecutter's Union, is the first of the executives to come to Washington in answer to the lockout of members of his union. Painters' Union officers have talked over their situation with Hedrick, who endorses their claim that Washington is one of the very few large cities in which their wage is not yet $10 a day—the amount they are demanding.

The purpose of the Cleveland meeting on April 13 is to secure agreement on a merger of the two rival councils of building trades there.

While the carpenters remain outside the building trades department affiliation, Hedrick has been invited to attend the installation of newly elected international officers of the carpenters, April 4, at Indianapolis. He has accepted.

COTTON DEALER CHEATED FARMER TO MAKE PROFITS

Tells How He Bought Seat on Exchange

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

TEXARKANA, Texas, April 9.—The cotton dealers are making enormous profits out of the farmers, a multi-millionaire cotton merchant admitted in a statement to a sales agency here.

"I have made my profits off the farmers," the multi-millionaire said in an interview published in the Farm-Labor Union News. This cotton dealer is rated at millions. He bought a seat in the New York exchange, purchased at the cost of $90,000.

"I have made as high as $130 profit off of one bale of cotton," he continued. "I made it partly, by buying on the basis of one inch staple and selling it on the basis of one and one-eighth inch staple. The farmers from whom my agent bought the cotton knew nothing of that product altho they had several years of experience in raising it. As long as this ignorance of their own product prevails money making is easy.

When the average farmer puts his bale of cotton on the market what does he know about the grade and staple or the demand for that particular cotton he may have? Nothing at all. That is why he is broke."

BAN ON DEADLY LEAD GASOLINE LIFTED IN EAST

Standard Oil-Morgan to Open Campaign

NEW YORK, April 9.—Even though the question of the harm tetra ethyl lead treated gasoline fumes may do to the public is still undetermined, Professor Yandell Henderson of Yale, former consulting physiologist of the United States bureau of mines, says that the danger to garage workers is much greater.

Dr. David L. Edsall and Dr. Cecil K. Drinker of the Harvard Medical School have published their belief that the recent bureau of mines report prononuncing automobile fuel known as ethyl gasoline not harmful to the public is inadequate. Prof. Henderson supports the Harvard professors' view. Largely due to the protest of organized labor in New York the sale of lead treated gasoline is forbidden in the city.

The doubtful product is sold, however, according to S. D. Kirkpatrick of the Ethyl Gasoline corporation, subsidiary of Standard Oil and General Motors, in 28 states and a national advertising campaign is to be launched to increase its use. New Jersey forbade the use of the lead gasoline after the death of five workers at the Bayway, N. J. plant of Standard where the gas was being made.

Upon receipt of the bureau of mines report the prohibition was removed.

British Military Films.

NEW ORLEANS, April 9—News films in the motion picture houses depict how the British retain control of the natives—by a show of military strength. We do it different in free America. The labor spy and capitalistic newspapers do the trick more effectively and cheaply.

Unity on Cossack Bill

Some days ago we commented on the result of the compromise tactics of the Illinois labor officialdom in the fight on the state constabulary bill. Their support of Small has resulted logically in their support of the state police measure endorsed by Small and known as the Barr bill.

We said then that the employers' association and other anti-labor organizations would be able to accept the compromise measure and make it serve them.

The Chicago Tribune is out openly for the Barr bill and it voices the opinion of the big capitalist interests of Illinois. It says editorially:

> We believe that a better force of state police would be obtained under the Dunlap bill, but Small will not accept that, and it is opposed by some labor unions who fear the misuse of the force in strikes. The Barr bill specifies that the highway police shall enforce the motor vehicle law, patrol public highways and rural districts, and shall have all the powers possessed by policemen in cities and sheriffs. Such a force can be good or worthless according to the direction and discipline it receives. . . . . .
> Citizens who want the Dunlap bill say the governor will play politics with the force established under the Barr bill. Probably he will, but we do not believe that the state should reject what it can get as a beginning of state police. The present governor may make a political machine out of the highway police, but administrations change. A start at rural highway protection is a start, even if not the best. City police efficiency varies with various administrations, but we'd not do without a police force because any certain mayor might misuse it.
> We do not believe that the supporters of state police should try to defeat the scheme the present governor will accept if that scheme is the best which can be had. There'll be some good in it and it can be made better. If the Barr bill can take the hurdles which have tripped the Dunlap bill in various sessions of the legislature it will be the bill which will give the state highway police.

The labor officialdom now finds itself supporting the same bill that the capitalists accept. There is nothing very novel about this, it happens quite often in the American labor movement, but seldom in questions that the rank and file of organized labor can readily understand.

The labor fakers supported Small because, they said, he was against a state constabulary. Small makes a few changes in the measure proposed by the bosses calls it a highway police bill and the fakers still trail along.

The state constabulary will be formed, it will club and shoot striking workers and the statute legalizing these atrocities will have received the endorsement of organized labor.

The labor officials have not even put up a fight against the state police bill, no widespread agitation has been carried on by them, no program of action was laid out for the unions—the defeat has been taken lying down.

Only the district organization of the Workers (Communist) Party really fought the bill. All the unions were circularized, special articles were carried by the DAILY WORKER, the Communists in the unions made the police bill an issue with those workers they could reach.

One good purpose has been served. The fakers have added another clause to our indictment of them as inefficient, incompetent, cowardly, when they are not actually treacherous.

Supporting the candidates of the capitalists carries its own penalty. The first step to the establishment of a force of state cossacks was the endorsement of Small, the Coolidge supporter, by the labor officials.

The Coal Miners Face a Fight

The mine owners' ultimatum to the United Mine Workers of America is: "Downward revision of the Jacksonville agreement, a return to the 1917 wage scale, or we shut down our properties."

What the revisions proposed by the operators mean to the working miners is shown by the wage cuts of $2.25 per day already handed out in the unorganized Fayette and Connellsville fields. The non-union miners' paychecks in West Virginia and Kentucky also afford a basis for estimating the extent of the reduction in the miners' (not the owners') standard of living, that the coal operators' association has in mind.

To wait for the wholesale closing of mines is, for the miners, slow suicide. The way to fight the coal barons is for the miners to close the mines themselves in every union field.

This method has the merit of putting the operators on the defensive and of bringing the whole union into action rather than letting it die a shameful death. The inroads already made in the union by the operators must be repaired as speedily as possible, a counter-offensive of organization must be started in the non-union fields, the war on the left wing must stop. The union must solidify itself for a long, hard struggle.

Results of the Traction Election

Early in the traction fight in Chicago we set forth the position of the Communists. We told the workers that the plan was a gigantic looting scheme and that those who opposed the Dever plan were simply, for the most part, crooks of a more timid type.

The opposition to the Dever plan used only the increasing hostility among the masses towards the banks and that this issue alone was sufficient to defeat the plan is striking evidence of the strength of this resentment.

The only clean-cut alternative to the Dever plan came from the Communists. The party said to the workers:

"We stand for the confiscation of the transportation properties in the name of the community and their operation by the unions with the advice of experts who, however, are subordinate to the transportation unions.

"Get rid of the capitalist politicians and parasites, make the transportation system serve the masses who use it, who have paid for it and to whom it belongs."

Not the least interesting phase of the attempted steal was the depths of corruption revealed in the labor movement. Those unions which have been the most bitter in their attack on the Communists and most pliable in the hands of the bosses showed that their connection runs straight to the finance-capitalists. Every gunman and gangster labor official, with a few exceptions, was for the traction steal. The list of those who endorsed the Dever plan is also a list of the labor fakers who have endorsed the Landis award and made war on the left wing. As we say, there are exceptions, but in general this holds good.

The political bankruptcy of even the most honest section of the Chicago labor movement has been plainly shown.

The non-partisan political policy followed by the American Federation of Labor hamstrings the unions and renders their efforts on questions of this kind confused and ineffective. The result is that most of the labor unions whose officials are of the type called "progressive" follow a middle-class leadership composed of doctors, lawyers and petty businessmen and manifest the hesitation characteristic of this class.

When labor rejects the non-partisan policy and forms its own fighting party it will need no longer to tolerate in its ranks the semi-criminal type of labor leader and the professional middle-class politician who fears the big capitalist, but hates the workers' organizations.

The Steel Workers' Convention

Reaction rides high at the opening of the annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in Pittsburgh. The steel trust secretary of labor, James J. Davis, avowed enemy of the foreign-born workers, was its honored guest.

The union is forty-seven years old, it reached the height of its power in 1891-92 in the Homestead strikes. Professor Commons in his history of the American labor movement, credits it with being the strongest union of that period.

In the steel organization campaign of 1919-20 the officialdom of this union betrayed those workers over whom it had jurisdiction as well as the members of other unions. It profited financially from the campaign, but its officials deserted the strike.

Since that time, under the headship of Michael Tighe, the union, altho it has an industial charter and with the display of a little militancy and organizational ability could again become a power, has been on the downgrade.

In the present convention there is a rather large bloc in opposition to the Tighe administration. It is not yet ready to adopt and fight for the full program of the Trade Educational League, but it will have to or surrender completely.

The Communists in the union are the backbone of the left wing and before the convention is over there will be put before it a program for the union that will form the basis for real activity.

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers is a key union. The bosses its members work for are the most powerful in the United States and an organization campaign in the industry, based on shop committees, and carried on vigorously, will have a stimulating effect on the whole labor movement.

Sadoul Acquitted

Captain Jacques Sadoul has been acquitted by a French court martial on a charge of treason growing out of his support of the workers' and peasants' government of Russia.

For four years he has had a price on his head. Recently he returned to France from Russia and demanded a trial. The capitalist press promptly branded this as another Bolshevist plot, as creating an opportunity for the French Communist Party to hold meetings and campaign against the government.

For once the capitalist press was right. Such a storm was stirred up by the Communists and the masses of workers who accept the Communist program that the court martial was forced to acquit him.

The fact that Sadoul became a Russian citizen and went to trial with the backing of the full power of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics after the conclusion of the Franco-Russian treaty undoubtedly had some influence on his prosecutors.

In Europe, if not in America, it is no longer possible to rally the masses for an attack on Soviet Russia or its sympathizers. The Sadoul trial shows very clearly, by reason of the tremendous outpouring of popular sympathy for him, that Soviet Russia has in all nations an outer line of defense—the working class.

The Finances of the U. S. S. R.

CZARDOM—WAR COMMUNISM—N. E. P.

THE chapter on finance occupies nearly one-tenth of the whole report and is the first intelligible statement of czarist and revolutionary finance that has appeared in this country. It opens with the statement:

> The Russian national bankruptcy was not, as is generally supposed, a consequence but rather a cause of the revolution. The fiscal relationship of czarism to the Russian taxpayer and its financial relationship to the foreign creditor had become almost as bad as that which results from similar recourse to money lenders by oriental despotisms of Turkey, Egypt and Morocco. Czarism was approaching bankruptcy before the war, tho foreign credit abroad was still maintained by foreign financial groups who promoted Russian loans and passed on the liability to a public ignorant of the political instability and financial unsoundness of the empire. A process which would in Russia, as elsewhere, have ended before long in the foreign creditor losing most of his investment and in the Russian taxpayer being put under a foreign receivership to pay for the folly of his rulers.

This unsound position was accentuated by currency inflation (as well as addition loans) during the war by which paper money was inflated from 1,317 millions in 1914 to 16,403 millions at the date of the revolution; by which time the currency had been depreciated by nine-tenths. Russia before the revolution was not merely bankrupt by its debts, but economically paralyzed by currency depreciation.

With a revolution, things are bound to be worse before they are better. But apart from other factors, such as imperialist war, interventionist war, etc., etc., a peculiar additional factor in Soviet Russia was the attempt of the rulers of Russia to destroy, not only the influence of money over the social system, but also the institution of money itself. Under the period of war Communism, from 1918 to the beginning of 1921, an attempt was made to reconstruct the national economy as one great co-operative association of consumers and producers, and by doing away with "free exchange" to eliminate the use of money and substitute a system of bookkeeping, thru central clearing houses. The best means to end money appeared to be to let it depreciate itself out of existence altogether. The new moneyless mechanism, however, never got to the point of functioning completely.

FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY

We publish herewith, following the documents exposing the sabotage of world trade union unity by the right wing of Amsterdam, a short digest of the report of the British trade union delegation on conditions in Soviet Russia.

This report has accelerated the drive for world trade union unity and resulted in a close alliance of the Russian and British trade union movements.

With the coming of the new economic policy in 1921 and the re-establishment of exchange money became necessary once more as a medium of exchange. The whole financial and fiscal system had to be rebuilt on fresh foundations—a severe test of the ability and authority of the leaders of the revolution. For a time depreciation actually got worse, but after the middle of 1922 there was a turn for the better. The total figures of currency issued were astronomical, "but the paper chase in Russia never became quite such a wild goose chase as in Germany."

The recovery of a stable currency was on similar (tho earlier) lines to that followed in Germany. But with this difference. That it was done by a strong government without any outside help. The gold standard was restored and the tschervonetz worth ten roubles or a little more than £1 (sterling) became the new unit. Finally in 1924 all previous currencies were put out of circulation and silver and copper coinage minted.

The restoration of the budget is described very clearly. The progress towards balancing is summarized as follows by showing the budget's decreasing deficit of each year of the N. E. P.

	Deficit as percentage of revenue
1921	86.9
1921-22	83.1
1922-23	40.0
1923-24	25.9
1924-25	less than 10

It should be noted that the ordinary budget balances. The deficit occurs only in the extraordinary budget, which consists in the financing of industry and is covered by loans.

The present budget is nearly two-thirds of the pre-war budget. The Red Army expenditure is one-fifth of czarist army expenditure. State expenditure as a whole is one-fourth.

The successful campaign carried on by Communism against corruption is included in this chapter as one of the main savings of the revolution.

Taxexa.

The taxes are:

Direct: Income tax, industrial tax (on profits of all enterprises), rural tax on peasants.

Indirect: Excises on sugar, tobacco, wine and beer; customs and various duties.

> The general conclusion that would be came to in respect of the U. S. S. R. finance by any impartial inquiry is that not only is it now on the right lines, but is a long way ahead of continental countries which are at present profiting by the confidence of the foreign investor.

Altogether this is a confidence-creating chapter, both for those investors who require to be convinced of the soundness of the Anglo-Soviet treaty and for the working class, who are naturally interested in the solutions found for these problems by the fellow-workers in Russia.

Reception of the Report in the Capitalist Press.

The report was published on Friday, February 27, and was reported and commented upon in the Saturday and Sunday newspapers. With the exception of the Daily Herald, the reports or comments were hostile. More remarkable, however, than the hostility of the editorials was the falsification of the contents of the report by misleading headlines, summaries, subheads, etc. For instance, the Daily News, the organ of "pure" liberalism, owned by the wealthy Quaker chocolate makers called Cadbury, gave the following headlines:

> The Communist Dictatorship.
> No Place for Democracy in Russian Rule.
> Killing Family Life.
> British Labor Delegates' Conclusions.

The Times gave a straightforward report, balanced, of course, by the attack in its leading article, but in this it was not imitated by the journalists of the Manchester Guardian, who substituted for a proper account of the contents a little essay by M. Farbman. Nearly all the other papers, following a similar line to the Manchester Guardian and the Daily News, abandoned their own canons of journalistic rectitude and gave a news treatment that was highly tendencious.

The Sunday press went one better. In seven out of ten papers all mention of the report was quietly suppressed. In the Observer Garvin fired off his broadside against the report, repeated the suggestion of the "Patiomkin Villages" (dealt with on an earlier page of this supplement) and affected to treat the whole 250 pages as a subject for ridicule.

Thus, in every way, by suggestion of what was false, by omission of what was true, by complete suppression where that seemed most convenient, the British daily press combined to mislead its public about the report of the trade union delegation on "Russia in 1924."

One feature of the report eagerly seized upon by the Fleet street journalists was the absence in Russia of "freedom of the press." The British delegation had recorded this: and they condemned it. By a stroke of irony their own report was itself the subject of just such treatment in the press as was described by Lenin in the words:

> "What the capitalists call 'liberty' has always meant liberty for the wealthy to accumulate more wealth, liberty for the poor to starve. What the capitalists call 'freedom of the press' is freedom for the rich to bribe the press, freedom to use their wealth for the fabrication and adulteration of so-called public opinion."

YOU can have this valuable material on world trade union unity, together with the summary of the report of the British trade union delegation to Russia in 1924, in one pamphlet for your files. This way you can always have ready for reference this important publication of the Labor Research Department of England.

Session of the Enlarged Executive of the C.I.

(By Inprecorr from Moscow.)

COMRADE GESCHKE, presiding. Comrade Dombsky (Poland) honors the memory of the dead Comrades Vladimirov, Atarbekov, Miassnikov and Mochilevsky; also that of Comrade Marchlevsky who was one of the first fighters for Communism in Germany, Poland and Russia.

Upon motion of Comrade Semard, the enlarged executive expresses its sympathies to the C. P. R. and C. P. P.

A delegation from a peasant village from the Chomolev province presents a banner to the enlarged executive, for which Comrade Semard thanks the delegation in the name of the executive.

GREETED with a storm of applause, and after the singing of the International, Comrade Zinoviev begins his report:

The Report.

Leninism as the Marxism of today shows us the way; but the question of tempo and tactics of the proletarian revolution can be answered only by the experience of the revolution. Experience teaches us that we must treat the question of speed and our conception of time very carefully. Even Marx and Lenin made mistakes in this respect. As to the direction and the political geography of the world revolution, we at first expected the world revolution to march from Russia thru Germany onwards. At the Third Congress Lenin could foretell that the development would not be in a straight line but rather zigzag, and that the question of tempo and direction were more complex than we had at first thot.

THE Fifth World Congress analyzed the world economic situation as well as the world political situation correctly; it also analyzed and characterized the democratic pacifist era, fascism, the social-democracy as the third party of the bourgeoisie, as well as the trade union and peasant questions correctly.

SINCE the Fifth Congress the world economic situation has changed but little. The prophets of the collapse of capitalism proved to be just as wrong as the fetishists of stabilization. Only the Fifth Congress was correct in its analysis when it said that, historically speaking, the bourgeoisie has gained a breathing space, tho it may be of short duration.

IN some respects the economic situation has improved in some countries. With the exception of France, Italy, Japan and Roumania, the currency has been established at the expense of the workers and peasants who have to bear four-fifths or three-quarters of the whole burden.

The restoration of international credits can also be noticed. The United States have granted loans to an amount exceeding one milliard. The world prices and the international combines constitute the beginning of a unified world economy. An improvement in general trade can also be noticed. In short, capitalism has convalesced in certain countries, in some respects. However, numerous recent signs tend to show the instability of the present situation. Even bourgeois economists consider the present Mid-European stabilization as insecure. For the first time in a decade France is beginning to suffer from unemployment. In England—chronic unemployment; in Germany—a crisis in coal production; in Poland, Austria and Hungary—crises.

THE position of the working class is characterized by this unemployment. In America—2,000,000; in England—2,000,000; in Germany—1,000,000 unemployed. The lowering of the real wage, except in Soviet Russia has become a world phenomenon. In Germany the Dawes plan has until now been displaying its so-called good sides.

The struggle for markets and the internal conflicts of capitalism are becoming ever sharper. The question as to whether the world war and the first Bolshevik revolution have delivered a fatal blow to capitalism or not, must be answered in the affirmative. Capitalism has been wounded fatally.

THE most important factor in the world political situation are the relations of the U. S. A. to England. The opportunists who see everything in the enemy's camp in rosy colors, and everything in their own camp in gloomy colors, believe that America will and can "put Europe on rations," and rule over her, whereby they lose sight of the conflict of interests between the U. S. A. and England. They seem to forget that America is playing off the European states one against the other.

THE rapproachement between America and England is an historical fact, but, altho these two countries are socially related, and tho both are headed by conservative governments—there exist between these two countries (because America is the creditor nation of the world) serious conflicting interests; so on the question of world domination, that of Canada, Australia, Mexico, the naptha question, that of disarmament, debts, raw materials, and even in the interpretation of the Dawes plan.

Parallel and simultaneous with the rapproachement, can be noticed an intensification of the conflicting interests. It suffices to point to Canada which is gradually being Americanised, and which is slipping out of British hands.

IN Japan the situation is characterized by the demonstrations, the peasant movement and the activities of the intellegentsia. In Japan the bourgeois revolution is on the threshold.

The Eastern problem is maturing with unexpected speed. The united front of the U. S. S. R. with China is an event of world historical significance. As early as 1911, Lenin spoke of "backward Europe and progressive Asia."

ZINOVIEV then points to the unequivocal strengthening of the Soviet Union. Last year's opposition in the C. P. R. had prophesied a budget deficit. But in reality we have a surplus (Applause). The workers' wage is constantly rising. The most important question is the peasant question. The alliance of peasants and workers is growing stronger.

All this does not mean however, that there is no danger. It is just this fact of the strengthening of the Soviet Union that may lead the world bourgeoisie to attempt new attacks against us.

THE British Empire is threefold undermined; firstly thru the dominion problem; secondly by its Eastern question; and thirdly thru its internal situation. English liberalism is being crushed between the working class and the conservatives. The most important facts concerning England are: the differentiation of the labor party forces, and the growth of the left wing within the labor party.

The situation in England is not yet consolidated; it is revolutionized.

In France the Herriot government is politically bankrupt.

The Balkans are being revolutionized by three factors: the peasant movement; the nationality problem, and the workers' movement.

THE German working class still looks upon the Dawes plan from the bright side. But the class conflicts will grow more intense. Comrade Zinoviev warns against any misunderstanding of the thesis that at the present time there is no acute revolutionary situation. The class struggle with its episodes of civil war, has not ceased. The German street collisions prove this.

In Poland there is a strong nation-peasant movement, a strong nationality movement, a strong peasant movement, and quite a strong proletarian movement. The situation in Poland is objectively revolutionary.

IN Italy fascism has not yet been overcome, but there too the situation is unstable.

In Czecho-Slovakia the labor movement is stronger than in the other countries.

In Scandinavia the idyll of socialist government is at an end.

THE attractive power of the Soviet Union is growing. The social-democratic workers are instinctively feeling that they have been laboring under illustions; they are beginning to realize that in Soviet Russia, socialist reconstruction has actually begun. Taking everything into consideration, we may say that the world situation remains revolutionary, and that the idea of the world revolution has taken deeper root. Our tactics must be such as will enable us to be prepared for a slower as well as quicker tempo of the revolution.

THOSE who base their hopes on a rapproachement between England and America are threatened by the danger of a revision of Leninism in the question of imperialism. These comrades are aprpoaching the Kautskian theory of ultra-imperialism. These weak attempts to revise Leninism must be definitely rejected.

THERE were in the Comintern differences of opinion on the question of the so-called democratic-pasifist era. Events have proven that we are passing thru an era of imperialism and not one of pacifism; that the petty bourgeoisie cannot rule independently; that MacDonald was forced against his will to work for us; and that the process of differentiation within the British working class is progressing well.

The democratic-pacifist era was but an episode in the age of imperialism. There are but two great factors: the working class and the imperialist bourgeoisie.

Morgan War Debts Crush French Reform Rule As Herriot Cabinet Tumbles

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 10.—Government of the republic of France by the radical socialist (reformist) party ended tonight when Premier Edouard Herriot, the social-pacifist, and his cabinet resigned.

The direct cause of the resignation was the financial chaos into which the nation was plunged by its repeated borrowings, begun by former Premier Poincare, after the world war and the inability of the Herriot government to extricate the country from its fiscal predicament.

AS WE SEE

By T. J. O'FLAHER

IN the state of Virginia, which supplies its quota to that part of the American population which gloats over its "Americanism" ten per cent of the people are in receipt of public charity. The state takes care of 200,000 of them, but it should be stated that it spends only about $30 on each pauper. Major LeRoy Hodges, managing director of the state chamber of commerce felt quite keenly over this condition and suggested that those unfortunates, instead of being a drain on the taxpayers should become an asset thru the development of prison and reformatory industries.

HERE is another splendid example of the inhumanity of the capitalist system. Not content with wrecking the bodies of the working class it pursues them into the hell holes where they are confined when they are no longer able to take care of themselves, and pounces upon what is left of them, in order to coin the last bit of marrow in their bones and the last drop of blood in their veins into profit. And yet some workers do not understand why Communists are so bitter against this damnable system and so intent on putting an end to it.

MORE capitalist brutality! Private Crouch of the American army, stationed in Honolulu, Hawaii, a country grabbed by violence by Wall Street, was given the terrible sentence of 40 years with hard labor for writing a letter to a local paper correcting the anti-Soviet diatribe of a mentally defective editor, whose ignorance of Russia was so great that he confused the Kremlin with one of Leon Trotsky's political opponents. For daring to exercise his right as an American citizen, Private Crouch is sentenced to hell for forty years, or until death charitably puts an end to his misery.

THIS is appaling. And yet how many of those who exuded waves of sympathy over the sufferings of Collins who was caught in a sand cave, will ignore the savage sentence imposed on a splendid type of worker who had the courage to brave the wrath of the military machine of Wall Street? Private Crouch was not the only one to feel the iron fist of American militarism. Private Walter Trumbull got twenty-six years and several others are due for similar sentences. This is the land of the free indeed!

• • •

THE bourgeois wolves who have howled to heaven over the defensive measures adopted by the Russian workers and peasants to protect their revolution against the angry capitalist coyotes that surrounded them on all sides, will justify the sentence imposed on the private soldiers in Honolulu. Yes, Communism is dangerous anywhere but supremely so in the army. The army is the first line of defense of the predatory ruling class that own and control this country. The personnel of that army must be segregated from revolutionary associations, and when one is dis-

SINCLAIR SORE AT SOVIET; GETS NO AID OFF CAL

State Department Deaf to Complaint

By LAURENCE TODD,
(Federated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 10.— Harry Sinclair, having lost his oil concessions in Russian Saghalien thru a decision of the Moscow court that he has failed to fulfill his contract, is raising a storm in the big business press.

He claims that the Japanese, who drove him out of Saghalien so that he could not keep his agreement to develop that field, have secured a monopoly concession under the terms of protocol B of the Russo-Japanese treaty which was signed at Pekin on Jan. 20.

This Japanese monopoly of Saghalien oil, according to the argument of Sinclair's friends, is a violation of the pledge made to the American state department during the Washington conference in the spring of 1922, when Baron Shidehara, on behalf of Japan, assured Secretary Hughes that Japan would not use her military occupation of the Russian far east to secure any exclusive economic or commercial privileges.

Sinclair Out of Luck.

This protest against the Russian concession of oil in Saghalien to the Japanese calls attention to the fact that since the United States does not recognize the Soviet Union, it has no means of discussing the oil concession with Moscow. Discussion with Japan will not help, because the Japanese can say that this was a free gift from the Soviets to their Japanese friends, and has nothing to do with the fact that Japanese troops were in Russian Saghalien and the Russian Far East.

As to the charge that a monopoly privilege has been secured, they point out that the concession covers only the alternate squares in a checkerboard survey of the known oil fields.

There may be as much oil in fields yet undiscovered, as in the ones now known. State department officials, who are anxious to prove that nonrecognition of Russia is doing no harm to American business, agree that Japan has not violated her compact with them, and that Sinclair is simply in hard luck.

Plutes Sore at Japan.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, however, smiles grimly at this alibi. He says it is clear that Japan has broken her promise to Hughes, and that the reason she has broken it, and the reason why Japan thereby has grabbed a rich oil field in Russian Saghalien, is that the Harding-Coolidge administration has refused to recognize the Soviet Union.

Former Secretary of State Lansing, who seems to represent all the royalist and reactionary Russian elements, as well as other foes of the Soviets, joins in the outcry against the Japanese. He agrees with Hughes that the Soviets should not be recognized,

UNITED FRONT COMMITTE CALLS TEXTILE WORKERS OF LAWRENCE TO UNITE AGAINST WAGE CUTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 10.—The following letters were sent out by the United Front Committee of Textile Workers of Lawrence. The first letter was sent to all labor organizations of Lawrence and is to be backed by personal visits of the members of the committee. The second letter asking for delegates to join the United Front Committee was sent to all the textile unions in Lawrence.

To All Labor in Lawrence

"The United Front Committee of Textile Workers of Lawrence has begun an intensive campaign among the textile workers to stiffen their resistance against the dastardly wage cuts and inhuman speeding up and doubling up of work that the textile bosses have forced. The workers must fight the fake shop and mill committees of the mill owners.

"In order to carry out this campaign the textile workers must organize and amalgamate all of their forces for the fight. We must not allow the three hundred and fifty thousand textile workers in this district to be with-

Jardine to Decide Soon on Legality of Packing Trust

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The Armour-Morris packing combine case, which has been bitterly contested for more than two years will be in the hands of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine Saturday.

Due to an unexpected press of business, Jardine cancelled part of a scheduled all-day hearing and allotted additional time tomorrow and Saturday for argument.

BANKRUPTCIES SHOW HIGHEST FIGURES SINCE 1922 AND 1915

NEW YORK, April 10.—Commercial failures in the United States in the first quarter of 1925 aggregated 5,969, an increase of 8.4 per cent over the same period last year, R. G. Dun and company reported today.

With the exception of 1922 and 1915, when 7,517 and 7,216 defaults respectively, were shown, the year's first quarterly total is the largest in the history of the country.

Total of the first quarter's liabilities is $128,481,780, an increase of 14.[illegible] per cent over the last quarter of 1924. Returns for the month of March show [illegible] defaults for $34,004,731.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT IN PLOT WITH TURKS FOR OUSTING OF BRITISH

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 10—The French government, thru its agent, Henri Franklin-Bouillon, is endeavoring to secure a treaty with the Turkish government whereby Turkey and France unite their interests in the near east against the aims of British imperialism.

Turkey, according to the proposed treaty, would guarantee Syria to France, in return for which Turkey would be given fuller control of the Bagdad railway.

MANY SPEAKERS BILLED FOR BIG IRISH MEETING

Capitalist Parties Ignore Famine

NEW YORK, April 10—The situation in Ireland is getting worse. The Free State government is doing nothing to relieve the famine. Provision for work for 750,000—with an assignment of $5,000,000—is ridiculous when men, women and children are starving. Help is needed at once—not in the form of work alone but in the form of food and clothing. The capitalists and the capitalist press are doing nothing—quite obviously for the Irish workers and peasants. The workers are the only ones who may be looked to to help their Irish comrades.

The International Workers' Aid, the international working class organization, is rushing aid to the assistance of the Irish famine-stricken. The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee has been organized in this country to carry on the work of relief.

On Wednesday, April 15, at 8 p. m., at Central Opera House, Jack McCarthy who is returning from the Irish famine district, will tell the story of the suffering of the Irish workers and peasants. He will narrate the misery and torments of these hunger-stricken. Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Joseph Manley, Ben Gitlow, and P. Cosgrove will also speak.

Workers of New York, come to this meeting and do your part. Tell the workers in the shops and unions. Solicit contributions in the fraternal organizations. Send your funds to the New York Section, 108 E. 14th St.

Davis for Employers.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 10—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, in a speech here before the convention of the Amalgamated Steel, Iron and Tin Workers' Union, urged the workers not to go on strike. He compared the relations between the employers and the workers to the relations between the members of the board of directors of a business firm, and urged no fighting. "Ease up on your strict rules," he told the unions.

Holland and U. S. Arbitrate.

THE HAGUE, Holland, April 10.—The United States and Holland have agreed to arbitrate their claims to the Islands of Palms, in the Philippines it was announced today.

Earthquake Shock in Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE.— A panicky population left their homes for safety in the open spaces today when a powerful earthquake shock was felt at Konia in Turkestan.

Argue Tax Publicity Next Week.

WASHINGTON, April 10. — The right of newspapers under the 1924 revenue tax law to publish individual income tax returns will be argued before the United States supreme court next week.

UNION CONGRESS DEMANDS SOVIET BRITISH TRADE

Full Recognition by England Asked

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

LONDON, April 9—A meeting of the general council of the Trades Union Congress after considering the present position of the relations between the United Kingdom and Russia, carried the following resolution:

Restore Trade.

"That in view of the abnormal and prolonged unemployment now existent in the United Kingdom, and the impossibility of restoring its pre-war foreign trade so long as Russia is not admitted to the comity of nations, this general council calls upon the British government to reopen immediately negotiations with the government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, with the following objects:

"(1) Complete diplomatic recognition of the Soviet government of Russia;

"(2) The encouragement and support of trade relations with Russia by the application of the trade facilities acts and the overseas trade acts to Russian trade.

Full Recognition.

"The council also desires to emphasize the importance of including Russia in the family of nations as a means of more firmly establishing the possibility of peace in Eastern countries, and declares that thru Russia, as part of the confederation of nations, a powerful influence in this direction will be secured."

A vote of sympathy was passed with the Russian government and the Russian trade union movement in the deaths of the prominent leaders of Russian labor Narsimanoff Miasnihoff, Mogilevski, and Alarbekoff, the last three of which met their deaths in an airplane accident.

Immigration Quota Runs Low.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Only six countries, at last report to the state department, have as much as 1,000 of their 1924-25 immigration quota unfilled. These are Germany with 12,772, Britain with 7,590, Irish Free State with 7,536, Italy with 2,037, Poland with 1,731 and France with 1,212. Sweden has 901 and Norway 883 places left.

SPRINGFIELD MINERS HOLD DEMONSTRATION IN FIGHT ON REACTION

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 10.—Final preparations were being made here today for the mass demonstration Sunday afternoon, at Reservoir Park, of coal miners protesting against the effort of the Lewis-Farrington machine to depose Freeman Thompson, re-elected as president of sub-district four.

All the high officials of the Illinois Miners' District Union, including Pres. Frank Farrington, Vice-president Harry Fishwick and Secretary-treasurer Walter Nesbit have been invited to attend the mass meeting and present their case to an open meeting of the miners. It is not likely that they will take advantage of the invitation.

The Lewis-Farrington machine is trying to put John A. Walker in Thompson's place. Walker, who previously had been parading as a "progressive" and denouncing the Farrington machine, came out two years ago as a supporter of the reactionaries in the miners' union, and was put up as stalking horse to defeat Joe Tumulty, a militant, and elect John J. Young, a Farrington man, as district board member. Since then Walker has been a loyal servant of the reaction in the coal miners' union.

TWO DIE UNDER GUN FIRE OF GENDARMES WHO WOUND 20 TO MAKE SAFE EXIT FOR LORD BALFOUR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DAMASCUS, Syria, April 10.—Quiet returned to Damascus today following the departure of Lord Balfour, British exponent of Jewish colonization in Palestine, for Beirut, after demonstrations which gave fear for his safety.

Two persons were killed and 20 were wounded when a crowd of 10,000 gathered before his hotel in the third demonstration. Gendarmes, consisting of Syrian police and Algerian troops, were called on and fired on the demonstration before it was dispersed.

After prayers in connection with the Ramadian festival, a crowd of 6,000 marched toward the Victoria Hotel, where Lord Balfour was staying.

Syrian police atempted to check the demonstrators but were stoned. Fierce fighting ensued, and Algerian troops were summoned to the aid of the police.

There were disturbances also in the Jewish quarter.

This was the most serious disorder marking the visit of the Earl of Balfour to the Holy Land.

FRENCH SENATE VOTES AGAINST HERRIOT RULE

New Cabinet Crisis by Vote of 132 to 156

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, April 10.—A cabinet crisis was precipitated this evening when the French senate, by a vote of 132 to 156, refused a vote of confidence to Premier Herriot. It was expected that Herriot would resign immediately.

Herriot went immediately to Quai d' Orsay and it was announced a few minutes later that the cabinet was drafting its letter of resignation.

The failure of the senate to give Herriot and his government a vote of confidence followed the appearance of Herriot and Poincare, former premier, before the senate to explain the causes leading up to the financial chaos in which France has found itself.

Faithful to His Friends.

Closing his remarks, Herriot said: "I have been faithful to my political friends, but at the same time I retain my own political independence. The time for sleeping is past. I [illegible] the senate at least to [illegible] I tried to do my full duty."

His supporters gave him an ovation when he finished.

"It is unjust," Poincare said, "for any Frenchman to attribute to another Frenchman responsibility for a financial condition which is exclusively Germany's fault.

Says Victors Pay War Costs.

"France's enormous public debt is due to the Versailles treaty leaving the victors to pay all the war costs. Germany's defaults obliged us to call on the victors to pay the war costs. Germany's defaults obliged us to call on the French people to sacrifice their savings."

Poincare asserted that "only persistent efforts of my government made it possible to balance the 1925 budget."

Herriot Puts the Vote.

Herriot himself put the vote of confidence to the senate, determined, as he had told his supporters, that he should know as soon as possible whether it would be feasible to put thru the chamber of deputies and the senate the proposal submitted by the new minister of finance, de Monzie. The proposal contemplated a voluntary levy of ten per cent on all wealth in France, but the de Monzie bill provided if the contribution was not made voluntarily then it would be enforced.

While the vote was being taken, Herriot's parliamentarian said:

May Dissolve the Chamber.

"The senate's repudiation of Herriot means the probable dissolution of the chamber of deputies.

"Normally, President Doumergue should request either Francois-Marsal or Poincare to form a cabinet, in the event Herriot resigns, but it is likely there would be sufficient opposition in the chamber of deputies to block this."

Blast Kills Three.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 10.—Explosion of dynamite in a quarry killed three men at Hagersville, Ontario, according to word received here today. Two men were blown to atoms, the third died of injuries. The men were Frank Critelli and Giovanni Donati, of Hagersville and Charles Ackerter, of Fenelon Falls, Ontario.

OUSTED COMMUNIST DELEGATE IS RE-ELECTED BY HIS LOCAL UNION

SEATTLE, April 10.—Paul K. Mohr, delegate from the Bakers' Union to the Central Labor Council, was re-elected to that body by his organization after being unseated by the reactionaries. The fakers in control of the council are expected to refuse his credentials.

ROOFING WORKERS RISK LIVES FOR MEAGER WAGES

Work in Hot Tar for 40 Cents an Hour

The workers in Chicago's roofing factories, working in cement dust, in constant danger of slipping on the slimy floors, and falling to certain death in the hot tar, receive only 40 cents an hour for their work.

Conditions are bad in the Barrett, Bird, Beaver and Richards roofing factories, but at the Lehon company, 14th and Oakley Ave, the slave driving system is seen its worst.

No Organization

"Why don't the unions do some organizing in the factory where I work"? writes one Lehon company employe to the DAILY WORKER. "We work ten hours a day, six days a week, with no higher rates for overtime, Sunday or holiday work. If we refuse to work overtime we are immediately fired."

"We work in cement dust, with hot tar, and many men get hurt. The boss has pushed the speed so high that one man does as much now as three men used to."

Forty Cents an Hour

"We get 40 cents an hour for dirty, hard work and the boss has four autos and buys a new one every two months."

"Why don't union roofers stop using scab roofing? Then we would get a little help in organizing."

America Enters League Confab.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—President Coolidge appointed five delegates to attend the league of nations conference at Geneva to discuss regulations of traffic in arms.

SMALL'S COSSACK BILL MAY PASS SENATE TUESDAY

Would Create Anti-Strike Police

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 10.—The senate of the Illinois legislature is now debating on which state police bill shall be passed, the Dunlap bill, which would establish a state police force similar to that which prevails in other states of the Barr bill, backed by Len Small. The Barr bill and the Dunlap bill, it was admitted in the senate debate, are practically identical.

Both measures provide an ample force to be used by the Illinois manufacturers to do strikebreaking duty. The Barr bill would create an unlimited force of state police, with full power of arrest under the direct orders of Governor Small.

The discussion on the two cossack bills will be resumed next Tuesday. It is likely that Small's bill will pass as he has so far been able to control a majority of the members of the legislature.

FEDERAL LAND BANKS PLASTER MORTGAGES ON 60,000,000 ACRES; FARMERS SHOW THEY'RE BROKE

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Agricultural loans by federal land banks have totaled more than $1,000,000,000, secured by mortgages on about 60,000,000 acres of real estate, the federal reserve board announced today, in a statement on the farm situation.

Outstanding loans for tobacco culture headed the list on March 15 with $22,875,000, a million dollar increase over February 15. Cotton loans were $6,884,000 March 15 and wheat $1,518,000.

OPEN SHOP AND WAGE CUT WHIP ALBERTA MINERS

Officials Do Nothing to Stop Tragedy

HILLCREST, Alta., Canada, April 6 (By Mail)—The situation here has gotten worse. Blairmore and Bellevue have decided to accept the new wage scale, giving till today, a chance for Hillcrest and Coleman to come with them.

As the latter two camps have no other choice now but to go, they have, at least my own camp, elected committees to meet the operators to negotiate.

Dissolution.

We will meet them as U. M. W. A. men, when it is over chances are we'll be nothing. It will be put to a vote, and even if the vote of Hillcrest and Coleman defeats it, the other two camps will take it anyway.

The strike call that the sub-district asked for, for the whole district, was turned down by our district officials. They have been useless to us in the present crisis.

Fighting Leaders Needed.

What we lack is good leaders. If we had them I'm sure the present situation wouldn't have come to us. The drive appears to be to smash the union, and I'm afraid it will succeed around here.

The rank and file have convinced themselves of the coming cut and there was no one to say anything to the contrary. If the union does go, the chances are the active members will be blacklisted; if so, the conditions of these camps will be worse than before.

Workers' Monthly Strikes Bull's-eye.

I have just received today the Workers' Monthly, and the double page cartoon, "The Company Union Holds a Meeting," sure shows what is liable to happen here in a few days. I have posted this up in the miners' club.

Will let you know the outcome of the negotiations with the operators. The rate will be about 20c or 30c higher than what Hillcrest Collieries offered.

Tonight, Saturday, April 11, is the Bunco Party and dance given by the Y. W. L., Area Branch No. 5, at 1902 W. Division St. Admission is only 25 cents. Are you coming? Don't forget, at 8 p. m.

MASS MEETINGS PROTEST POLISH WHITE TERROR; DETROIT AND CLEVELAND TO HEAR RADWANSKI

Prompt response attends the action of the American section of the International Red Aid and the Conference to Aid Political Prisoners in Poland in arranging the tour of Comrade T. Radwanski to rally the American workers in protest against government terrorism in Poland.

Detroit and Cleveland—Take Note!

The Detroit committee has organized the first meeting for Sunday afternoon, at 1 o'clock at 3014 Yemans St., Hamtramck. The Cleveland committee has organized meetings for Monday evening at Pulaski Hall, 6628 Chambers Ave., and Tuesday evening at Korneys Hall, 2335 W. 11th St. Speakers in English, Polish and Ukrainian. Wednesday evening, April 15, 7:30 p. m. Comrade Radwanski will speak in Erie, Pa. at Nagorski's Hall, corner 10th and Parade Sts., and Thursday. April 16, 7:30 p. m. in Niagara Falls at the Polish National Hall, E. Falls and 27 St. Meetings are being arranged in twenty to twenty-five cities and industrial centers.

The executive committee of the International Red Aid has called upon all workers' organizations and meetings to send resolutions and letters of protests to the Polish embassy, also to send greetings to Deputy Lanzutsky, Prjemisk (prison) Poland. Copies of such resolutions, etc., should be sent to George Maurer, 19 S. Lincoln St., or B. K. Gebert, 1113 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill.—In sending funds for Red Aid for Poland to the above secretaries, indicate that it is for the aid of political prisoners and their families in Poland.

Slogans of the Campaign

Some of the slogans issued by the executive committee, of the I. R. A., are:

Down with the terror of the bourgeoisie and social traitors!

Release Comrade Lanzutsky!

Long Live the revolutionary struggle of the Polish workers and peasants!

Stop the oppression of the national minorities in Poland!

Long Live the International Red Aid!

Mussolini Nabs War Ministry, Defying Senate on Army Law

ROME, April 10—Premier Mussolini today took over the ministry of war, made vacant by the resignation of Minister Di Giorgio when the senate disapproved his army reform bill. In a message to the, he said:

"I intend to dedicate my constant energy to making the army a more decisive instrument of Italian power."

The premier also holds the portfolio of foreign minister.

Don't let the Tobacco Trust bunco you. Get your tobacco direct from the farm and SAVE MONEY

You workers and we farmers can join hands and beat the capitalistic tobacco trust at their own game.

Do you know WHY you have had to pay so much for your tobacco? We used to have to sell to the trust or they'd let our tobacco rot on our hands. They paid us next to nothing for our finest grades, sometimes mixed them with a lot of alfalfa and dope and sweepings, dolled them up in fancy bags or had starving sweat shop labor in stinking dungeons make unfit cigars—and charged you fancy prices—and made millions—that fat trust! But those days are gone forever. The U. S. Government now lets us farmers sell direct to you without paying the heavy revenue tax on tobacco which the trust has to pay.

Save Your Money and Help Us BUST the TRUST!

by ordering your tobacco direct from this association of nervy, trust-busting, hard-working farmers. We farmers who raise the best leaf tobacco in the world will send you the choice extra selected leaf tobacco—the kind we smoke and chew ourselves. Don't send any money. We'll trust you with THREE pounds for only $2. That's enough for 125 cigars, or a whole wash boiler almost full of the finest pipe tobacco you ever smoked. All you have to do is to roll it into a cigar, crumble it into your pipe or twist it into shape for chewing.

Free Tobacco Book

tells exactly how and as you've got plenty of sense you can do it as it's easy anyhow. Safely tucked in the heart of each package we'll ship FREE a bottle of our famous Kentucky Flavoring Mixture to improve your tobacco. No, we ain't selling it for beverage purposes and it's strictly legal for flavoring tobacco.

SEND NO MONEY

WE FARMERS WILL TRUST YOU. Send no money. Just send the coupon. We will send you THREE POUNDS of this wonderful, first quality, selected natural leaf Tobacco and we will include, free, that bottle of famous Kentucky Flavoring Mixture, a "MODEL" Cigar Wrapper, and our Free Tobacco Book. When the package arrives you simply pay the postman $2. That's all. Send no money. Just send the coupon. You take no risk.

covered who has broken thru the cordon, woe unto him. But also, woe unto the American capitalist class. Their day is coming and there will be thousands upon thousands of working class Crouches and Trumbulls ready to take the place of those doomed to the foul prisons of the master class!

SECRETARY OF LABOR, James J. Davis, speaking at the convention of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, prophesied that the time would come in industry when strikes would be considered silly. Yes, that time will come when the workers own the industries. Perhaps, the time is a little bit in the distance, and perhaps not. One should not indulge in prophesy with a time limit nowadays. But let us hope that the day is not far distant when it will be considered silly, yes and treasonable for a tool of the capitalist class, like James J. Davis to be invited to speak at a working class convention.

HINDENBURG is running for president on the nationalist ticket in Germany. His most serious opponent will be Marx, on the catholic ticket. Hindenburg will have the support of all the monarchist elements. Marx will be backed by the socialists and the so-called democrats. The only working class candidate in the field is Thaelmann, the Communist. Fine situation in Germany, six years after the revolution. Monarchists so powerful that they can run one of the kaiser's closest friends for the highest office in the "republic." What a splendid commentary on the treachery of the socialists! No chance of such a phenomenon taking place across the frontier in Soviet Russia. At least the czar is not in a position to be anybody's political adviser.

THE traction scheme supported by Mayor Dever, the Chicago Tribune, The Daily News, the bankers and divers labor fakers was buried here on April 7. It was defeated by the Thompson and Hearst political machine for purely political reasons Not that it shouldn't be beaten. It should. The point is however, that its opponents have no plan to offer that means any more to the working class than the one drowned in the flood of popular disapproval last Tuesday. The trouble is that two gangs of grafters are fighting for the spoils of the traction requirements of this city.

ANOTHER interesting traction fight took place in Milwaukee. There is a socialist mayor in Milwaukee. In fact that city was once, and is perhaps until today, the pride of the socialist party of America. The mayor, Daniel Hoan, conceived of a plan that found favor in the eyes of the traction barons of Milwaukee. It guaranteed them over 7 per cent profit, if the skies rained thistles. Naturally they would accept. But the voters, despite the frenzied exhortations of the Milwaukee Leader, defeated the proposition. Now, Hoan and Berger profess to believe the "people" are a lot of dumbells. Socialists in Milwaukee; democrats in Chicago. Both serve the capitalist class.

"BUT perhaps the Communists would not do any better if they got into office" some inquisitive reader may ask. And we say: Communists do not claim that the machinery of capitalist government can be utilized to serve the working class. If the Communists get into office, the best they can promise is to use their positions to build up the fighting power of the working class and to sound the toscin of class war to the end that the workers will seize the machinery of government and begin to reconstruct society on a socialist basis. This is what they are doing in Soviet Russia. They did away with the machinery of capitalist government and replaced it with their own institutions.

WHAT the socialists in Milwaukee are doing is helping the capitalists to run the city for the benefit of the capitalists, primarily. This is what the British, German and Swedish socialists did. In Russia, the capitalist has a dog's life, according to all reports while the worker is the king pin. No slave should lose any sleep over this change of positions. But the aim of the revolutionary movement is not to wreak vengeance on the robbers who have ground the workers under their heels, but to free the producers from the yoke of wage slavery, and incidentally to free the entire human race from the bondage in which it is held by capitalism.

BOARD HEAD IS PLEASED WITH OPEN SHOP RULE

Calls Superintendent Asset to Schools

Charles M. Moderwell, president of the board of education and owner of scab coal mines in West Virginia, in his report to Mayor Dever upon retiring from office calls the appointment of William McAndrew as superintendent one of the most important accomplishments of the board. The report is a resume of the board's achievements since Moderwell's appointment two years ago.

McAndrew's Councils.

The new council which was sanctioned by the board at its last meeting will be made up of one representative of every voluntary teachers' organization in the city. They will meet with the superintendent and other bosses on the educational staff. Meetings will be called by the superintendent at such times as he sees fit.

It is of course entirely different in character from the old councils which were in fact school shop meetings where the teachers in individual schools met to discuss problems arising in their particular school. What McAndrew's council will do it attend a meeting called by McAndrew to take McAndrew's orders pack to the teachers.

Miss Margaret Haley of the Teachers' Federation who sat thru the meeting said that her organization will not be represented on those councils.

A Bad Place to Look for Friends

Trustee J. Lewis Coath one of the trustees who voted against the new councils and who has been playing the "friend" of the Teachers' Federation was the one picked by the machine to get rid of the federation's letter to the board which requests the board to explain where the money for the raise will come from. Coath under the head of new business arose to make his motion but like a school boy about to say his piece was seemingly very much embarrassed. He finally walked up to the front of the platform where Moderwell sat and they shushed for a while. Then he returned to his place and said "I move that we refer the letter received from the Teachers' Federation to the finance committee."

Cost of Food Takes Big Upward Swing in Course of 12 Years

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10—The latest report from the U. S. department of labor completed for 20 cities out of the 51 included in the bureau's report shows a marked increase in the cost of food for the year period March 15, 1924 to March 15, 1925.

Out of the 20 cities, 19 show the following increases: Peoria, 9 per cent; Detroit, 7 per cent; Buffalo, Cleveland and Norfolk, 6 per cent; New York, Richmond, Scranton, and Washington, D. C. 5 per cent; Indianapolis, 4 per cent; Charleston, S. C., Columbus, Milwaukee and Portland, Me., 3 per cent; Boston, Bridgeport, Neward and New Haven, 2 per cent; and Providence 1 per cent. In Fall River there was a decrease of less than five-tenths of 1 per cent.

As compared with the average cost in the year 1913, the retail cost of food on March 15, 1925 was 59 per cent higher in Richmond, 58 per cent in Detroit, 57 per cent in Washington, D. C., 56 per cent in Buffalo, 55 per cent in New York and Scranton, 54 per cent in Charleston, S. C., 53 per cent in Milwaukee, 51 per cent in Cleveland, 49 per cent in Boston, 48 per cent in Providence, 47 per cent in New Haven, 45 per cent in Newark and 44 per cent in Fall River and Indianapolis. Prices were not obtained from Bridgeport, Columbus, Norfolk, Peoria, and Portland, Me., in 1913, hence no comparison for the 12-year period can be given for those cities.

Soviet Rule Hits Graft.

MOSCOW.—Nearly half of the government officials of Nakhitchevan, a republic of 20,000 in the Trans-Caucasus, were under arrest today on charges of graft and abuse of the power of arrest following the visit of A. Rykoff, president of the council of Soviet commissars. The officials were former nobles, for the most part.

Million for Tornado Sufferers.

Chicago's drive for funds for relief work in the tornado stricken area of southern Illinois officially ended today when a $50,000 donation sent the total over the $1,000,000 mark. The first appeal in this drive was broadcast by local radio stations the day after the disaster and the campaign has been virtually kept alive by this method.

Court Denies Shepherd's Plea.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 10.—The state supreme court today denied the petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Attorneys for William D. Shepherd, Chicago, held on an indictment charging him with the "typhoid murder" of his ward, William Nelson McClintock.

Thinking by Soldiers Is Great Threat to the Stability of Capitalism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the workers of the United States are beginning to learn, if they didn't know it before, that the army is an instrument of American imperialism, and that the "most important military post in American control," in the words of the Chicago Tribune, is the Schofield Barracks, in Hawaii.

Holding tightly to these facts, the capitalist press is beating the tom toms in favor of the outrageous sentences of 40 and 20 years' imprisonment imposed on the two soldiers Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, and the court-martialling of eight more.

• • • •

Soldiers in imperialist armies are not supposed to have ideas of their own. They must not question why they murder. All they are expected to do is blindly obey the order, "Forward to the slaughter!" They must not ask why they kill; only kill!

It appears that Crouch and Trumbull never questioned the orders of the imperialist army in which they served. But it was discovered that they had ideas of their own. They were not soldier-automatons. They had developed into thinking robot-soldiers.

They protested against misstatements regarding Soviet Russia appearing in a local newspaper, the Honolulu Advertiser. They sought to correct these misstatements. That is their crime.

• • • •

This is not the first time that American soldiers have been punished for looking favorably toward Soviet Rule in Russia. U. S. imperialism found it impossible to maintain an army on the Vladivostok front in the war against the Soviets in 1920. The soldiers deserted. They refused to fight. They committed petty offenses in order to be sent to the guard house. Many were sent back to the United States to serve long terms of imprisonment in the military prison on "Hell's Rock" in San Francisco Bay, and elsewhere on the Pacific coast. They were subjected to the most brutal treatment for their Soviet sympathies.

• • • •

One letter by a soldier to a capitalist newspaper now pinpricks the whole American capitalist state into hysterical action because Hawaii is its most important military outpost. It is not only a Heligoland looking toward the Philippines, and sitting astride the road to the East Indies; it is not only on the highway to China and a lookout towards Japan, but it also eyes Vladivostok, where flies the red flag of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the Pacific. Western European capitalism may build its cordon sanitaire thru the Baltic and the Balkan states against the Soviet realm in the west. But the sentences meted out to Crouch and Trumbull in the army is a confession that U. S. imperialism fears for its anti-Bolshevik blockade in the Pacific. It wasn't enough to withdraw the American army from Vladivostok. The Bolshevik germ already penetrates half way across the earth's broadest ocean.

• • • •

The military arm of American imperialism is no more impervious to Bolshevik infection than the armies of any other capitalist nation. A French court martial has just released Captain Jacques Sadoul charged with desertion from the army of imperialist France to the Soviet lines.

It isn't so easy to drum up an army nowadays to murder without thinking, not even in "democratic" America. British imperialism had to use Syrian gendarmes and mercenaries from Algiers to do its killing to protect its spokesman, Lord Balfour, in Damascus. But the robot soldiers from Syria and Algeria, like the soldiers of other nations, will learn their identity of interest with the soldiers and workers of all other lands.

• • • •

They will learn in time of the Red Army of Soviet Russia, composed of soldiers who do their own thinking, and who know why they fight.

The incident at the Schofield Barracks, in Hawaii, indicates that an idea, the Communist idea, even penetrates the armor of ignorance in which the American dollar government seeks to dress its fighting forces. There is nothing to prevent this armor from being pierced so effectively in the world struggle between capital and labor that it will be rendered absolutely useless.

INTENSIVE TWO WEEK COURSE OFFERED NEGRO WORKERS ON SOUTH SIDE; BEGINS APRIL 13

By Lovett Fort-Whiteman.

On Monday evening, 8 o'clock, April 13 will begin the first classes of the Workers Party school to take place at Community Center, 3201 S. Wabash Ave. The course has been outlined to embrace the following subjects: 1. Theses of the 2nd and 3rd Congress of the Communist International, nine lectures by William F. Dunne. 2. Negro History, nine lectures by Lovett Fort-Whiteman. 3. Party Organization, by Martin Ahern. 4. Public Speaking, by Thurber Lewis.

The classes will be held from eight until 10 each night during a period of two successive weeks. Direct appeal to South Side party members, applicants and friends to take advantage of this series of courses is made. It is the first time that the South Side Negro workers have had advantage of classes of this nature being brought to their immediate vicinity.

The important place the Negro worker holds today in the industrial life of America warrants a new knowledge of his relationship to the economic development of America. The prime aim of these classes is to bring a scientific understanding of the underlying causes of present day racial conflicts in American life. It is the hope to develop competent Negro leadership for the Negro working class movement, which day by day clearly promises to assume great importance in the near future. The classes are open to the general public free of charge.

Vanderbilt and Horthy Aided by Coolidge

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MONTREAL, April 10.—The muzzling censorship of the American state department which forbade Count Michael Karolyi, once president of the short-lived Hungarian republic, to say a word while visiting in the United States about the murderous Horthy dictatorship in Hungary, was dropped at the Canadian border and Karolyi opend up an attack on Horthy as having influenced his gagging by the American government.

Hungary One of Hoover's Conquests.

It must be remembered that Secretary Herbert Hoover and the American army officers and bankers were instrumental in plotting the bloody overthrowal of the Hungarian Soviet Republic by the white guardist dictatorship of Horthy in the period following the Karolyi regime. Hungary is practically a colony of Wall Street today and the American government openly supports the Horthy white guards in their butchery of thousands of workers.

Karolyi, tho far from being a revolutionist, and best described as a liberal, openly claims that Horthy brot influences to bear on the American government of Coolidge thru Count Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States, and husband of the former Gladys Vanderbilt.

A Practical Object.

That the gag rule enforced on him by Collidge's great "democracy" had a practical thing in view was shown by Karolyi's statement that the Horthy-Coolidge combine did not want him to make speeches which would prevent white guard Hungary from getting loans from the American investors.

Karolyi urged American investors not to buy Hungarian bonds. More loans from the United States would mean finance for a new war, he said.

The Late "Enemy."

"When the Horthy regime in Hungary says it wants to reestablish a kingdom in Hungary without mentioning what kind of a kingdom, it is camouflaging its aim to restore the Hapsburgs. And Hungary is but the stepping stone on which they want to rebuild not only the Austro-Hungarian monarchy but the alliance with imperialistic Germany."

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Countess Michael Karolyi, wife of the former president of Hungary, had a talk with W. R. Castle, Jr., chief of the state department division of western European affairs, when Secretary Kellogg refused to see her with reference to the removal of the gag placed upon her husband when he entered the United States. She denied to the press that she had asked anything from the department.

Double Supply of Electric Power for U. S. S. R. This Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—Official reports received from Moscow by the Russian Information Bureau here announce the completion during the present year of the first step in the program of doubling the supply of electric power in the Soviet Union. By October 1, the Soviet government will have spent the equivalent of $70,000,000 in the establishment of seven regional power stations and the rehabilitation of existing stations. The announcement was received in a special issue of the Gazette of Trade and Industry, the organ of the supreme council of national economy, dated March 7.

The regional stations will materially lower the price of electric current for the districts they serve. The Volkhov plant, near Leningrad, where water power is used, can produce power at a cost of two kopecks (one cent) per kilowatt hour, and the Shterov plant in the Don, running with small anthracite, can produce for 2.5 copecks per kilowatt hour, including provision for sinking fund.

TEXTILE MILLS IN SOUTH FIRE MANY WORKERS

Unions Struggle for Foothold

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 10.—James Starr, vice-president United Textile Workers, has come to Philadelphia for the 1925 union organization drive after a survey of southern textile conditions. "The south was hit as hard as the north," he says, dispelling the old myth of northern mill owners that southern mills take all the trade. "Mills have been working at 25 per cent and 50 per cent in North Carolina. Manville-Jenckes (big Rhode Island mill owners) have not made good by their move south."

The south will not be organized, Starr believes, until mill villages go. Ministers and teachers are paid at least partly by mill owners and dare not side with downtrodden workers. Fathers making $14 and $16 a week have wives working with them in the mills taking time off to nurse the youngest baby brought along while the rest of the family remains at home under care of the eldest child not working. Workers are afraid to come to union meetings and those who come have only work overalls and gingham dresses to wear. Spies and gunmen are not uncommon, Starr says, and the ignorance of the workers is heart-rending.

Unemployment At Capital

WASHINGTON, D. C. April 10.—There is a surplus of clerical help and labor, both skilled and unskilled, in this city, R. Pilkington, federal director of employment has announced.

What have you done for your local campaign quota?

BATTLESHIP AND AIRPLANE WAR IS RE-OPENED

Islands Lost to Secure New Appropriations

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The air service controversy, which has been smouldering since the demotion of Brigadier General William Mitchell, flared up anew today. The immediate case is the joint army navy war games to be held in Hawaiian waters.

Aircraft will play a minor role in the maneuvers, air service officers asserted. There are not enough army planes stationed in Hawaii, they said, to make even a sham battle interesting for the strong battle fleet and the navy airplanes that the "enemy" will send against them.

Officers of the Mitchell faction, who would not permit their names to be used for fear of discipline, vigorously criticised the statement of Major Gen. John L. Hines, chief of staff, that one of the prime purposes of the maneuvers was to determine whether the defending planes could cripple the attacking fleet.

"With the present air forces in Hawaii," they said, "there is no chance we will be able to do anything to the enemy fleet. Consequently, we will be licked—and then there will be another barrage of bunk about the battleship still being mightier than the airplanes."

The United States theoretically has lost the islands before the games begin, the flying officers assert, as the mastery of the air is concededly with the enemy and the maneuvers will not, therefore, show what may or may not be done under war conditions, despite war department announcements to the contrary.

Kleist, ex-Socialist and Klansman, Meets Defeat in Wisconsin Election

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 10.—John C. Kleist, a klansman, recently expelled from the socialist party, who was a candidate for justice of the supreme court was overwhelmingly defeated in the recent judicial elections. Reared in the opportunist tendencies of the socialist party, he quickly left the organization and allied himself with the klan as soon as he sensed that the socialist party did not guarantee him an immediate political future. Basically there is not much difference between the klansmen on the inside and on the outside of the socialist party. The socialist party of this city is fast drifting toward fascism and its organization is producing the true Mussolinis of the American type.

Christopher, Ill., Miners and Friends to Hold Big Dance

CHRISTOPHER, Ill., April 10.—All workers in and around Christopher are invited to come to the dance which will be given for the benefit of the T. U. E. L. at Moose Hall in Christopher, on the night of Wednesday, April 15th.

A social affair for the enjoyment of the militant miners and their families and friends is particularly in order, so that a grand get-acquainted feeling of fraternity may unite the fighters even more closely than ever.

CASH TO DEFEND SACCO AND VANZETTI RELAYED THRU LABOR DEFENSE

That the Labor Defense Council is aiding materially in assisting the gathering of contributions for Sacco and Vanzetti, the framed-up victims of the Massachusetts capitalist government, is shown by the following letter from the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, acknowledging donations sent thru the Labor Defense Council. This is merely one incident of many of the same kind. The letter follows:

"Boston, Mass., April 8, 1925.

"Labor Defense Council, 19 South Lincoln street, Chicago, Ill.

"Dear Comrades:—We are in receipt of your letter of April 6, enclosing checks covering contributions as follows:

"Greek branch, Workers Party, Pittsburgh, $12.25; Andrew Belf, Ironton, Minn., $5.00; L. M. P. S., Buffalo, N. Y., $5.00.

"Kindly accept our hearty thanks. Enclosed you will find receipt for above donations amounting to $22.25. As per your request, we are acknowledging receipt to the above contributors.

"Fraternally yours, Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee,

"A. Fabbri, Secretary."

See Yourself in Daily Worker Movie on Next Wednesday

The masses who demonstrated in front of the Polish consulate in Chicago in protest against the threatened execution of Stanislav Lanzutsky will have a chance to see themselves in the movies that were taken at that time. These pictures will be shown for the first time in the DAILY WORKER Film Edition No. 6, at the Wicker Park Theater, 1539 Milwaukee Ave., on April 15. The pictures are very clear and hundreds of well-known comrades can be recognized in the crowd.

The feature of the program will be a return engagement of "The Beauty and the Bolshevik" and "Russia in Overalls." So many could not get into the great Ashland Auditorium when it was shown the first time, that this second showing was made necessary. There is no guarantee that there will be further repeat performances, so all who expect to see this Russian feature film should come early to the Wicker Park Theater.

German Marks Now Worthless, Luckless Investors Are Told

WASHINGTON, April 10.—German marks representing a face value of millions of dollars are pouring into the department of commerce today from all parts of the United States.

Secretary Hoover's department has been asked to cash a pile of millions of marks.

"The American people have lost vast sums speculating in German marks," a department financial expert says.

"The department has been flooded with requests to exchange amounts varying from one thousand to millions of marks. None seem to comprehend that a mark can be worth as little as one forty millionth of a cent. But this is the case. It would not pay any one to present paper marks to the German reichsbank for redemption unless he possesses at least four trillion."

Four trillion marks are worth about a dollar exchange value—in 1913 a bundle of that dimension would have brought many billions of dollars.

The department has information that the number of paper marks sold in this country was simply stupendous. A figure representing the number would contain so many ciphers as to be incomprehensible, according to experts.

The reichsbank will not accept marks for redemption in less than ten billion mark packages.

The Workers Party in Action

YOUNG WORKERS ACTIVE IN I. W. A. WORK IN GOTHAM

Initiate New Campaign for Politicals

NEW YORK, April 10.—Anybody who has any doubt as to the activities of the Young Workers League and the Junior Groups of New York, might have been fully enlightened on the matter by the attendance of the Y. W. L. and junior delegates at the conference of the International Workers' Aid held on Monday, April 6. Half of the delegates present were of the Y. W. L. and the Junior Groups.

The conference dealt with the new campaigns that the I. W. A. is undertaking. There is to be a new campaign for political prisoners, a new contribution list having been issued. The campaign is to be carried into all trade unions, fraternal and other working class organizations. The branches and sections of the party and league were requested to hold an affair before the end of the season for the benefit of the I. W. A. and the Irish relief.

Conference To Be Held

The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee will be supported in every way by the I. W. A. Leaflets, contribution lists have been prepared and will go out to the organizations. A conference will be held in the near future—May 3,—at which it is intended to broaden the work of the Irish relief.

At the conference, it was reported that the I. W. A. and the Labor Defense Council are jointly planning an outing in the latter part of August, combined with athletic exhibitions and contests and an outdoor pantomine. The Workers' Sport Alliance and the Workers' Drama League are being asked to co-operate. In October there will be a ball and a hall has been procured for a joint bazaar next year in February.

The Workers Party members must get as active as the Y. W. L. and the Junior Groups. They must elect their dleegates to the I. W. A. conference and see to it that they attend. Let them take an example from the younger comrades who are beginning to do most active work in the I. W. A. Thus it was noted that at the Lansutsky demonstration in the Central Opera House, fully half of the audience was made up of Y. W. L. members. At the demonstration in front of the Polish consulate, the same ratio prevailed. Youth is in the vanguard—but the older comrades must not stand back.

Bunco Party Tonight; Only Costs 2 Bits

Area Branch 5 of the Young Workers' League has inflated the anticipation of the Communists of Chicago and vicinity worse than the French currency, in boosting the grand bunco party and dance which will be held tonight at 1902 W. Division street. The writer of this item was promised two dances by one of the sprightliest yowlettes in the citiy, as an inducement to pound out an attractive notice. Here it is! Under such conditions a full house is inevitable.

Bronx Readers Attention.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The class in the Principles and Tactics of the Third International, given by Comrade I. Stamler at No. 1347 Boston road, on Tuesday evenings, which was temporarily interrupted due to the Easter holidays, will be resumed on Tuesday, April 14. All students are requested to attend.

North Side Study Class Meets Monday Night.

The class of the North Side branch on the "A. B. C. of Communism" will meet on Monday evening, April 13, at 2406 N. Clark St., as usual.

All branch students are requested to attend this important session.

Party Activities in District Six

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT.

All thru the district the party members are realizing that it is the steady instead of the sporadic method that must be applied in all Communist tasks. Concentration upon each campaign, each undertaking, application to details and loyal adherance to Communist method and policy, will give every division of the party work sure growth. It is this steady application to our tasks that has given our movement a boost forward in the coal and steel regions. And altho there is still much to do to arrive at that point where all party members consecrate their time in and out of the shop and mine to Communism, still more and more comrades are being added to the active list in the district.

Cleveland Cops a Fortune.

As in all locals, money is a crying need. For many months the money-raising ventures never showed enough of a net surplus in cash to satisfy. However, the recent bazaar and costume ball threw a small fortune into the lap of the local. More than a thousand workers with their families attended and the net today is $600.

In Cleveland the T. U. E. L. work is showing new life. The pamphlet telling what's wrong in the carpenters' union is being sold by the progressive building trades workers. The needle trades section is distributing the Local 5 expulsion leaflet despite the opposition of a member of the G. E. B. of the Amalgamated, now in this city. Two large meetings are to be held protesting against the white terror in Poland, one the on east and one on the south side. Negotiations have been entered into with local Kuomintang officials to hold a meeting in commemoration of the death of Sun Yat Sen. A dance to secure funds for the relief of the Irish famine sufferers resulted successfully and the Building Laborers' Union has just donated its hall for a meeting on April 19, to be addressed by McCarthy on Irish relief.

To Invade Akron at Once.

Akron is the rubber tire center of the world. The workers are unorganised. The speed-up system operates here as no place else. Workers in the pits that used to run seven heats in a shift are now running 23 heats a shift with half the number of employes. In Akron a provisional national rubber workers' committee must be organized at once. Also, here we have an opportunity to establish two or three strong shop nuclei. Immediate steps to prosecute this work have already been taken.

Steel Workers Responding.

The Youngstown, Girard, Niles, Warren steel region in this district has felt the impact of Communist activity in these last weeks. The definite organisation of the party fraction in the left wing of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers is proceeding, the first meeting to bring about this organization having been held shortly with Wm. Dunne, Arne Swabeck and the district organizer of District 6 on the ground. The national convention of the steel and tin plate workers is now in session. Then also one steel mill nuclei has been organised and two or three more will follow shortly.

Miners Hear Communist Call.

The Sub-District 5 convention of the United Mine Workers adjourned a few days ago. Our comrades were there militantly upholding the progressive program as against the attacks upon Communists and progressives by the reactionary leadership. The threat to expel from the unions Communists and progressives only had the effect of throwing us immediately into the offensive, organizing a dozen meetings in the coal mining region, telling the miners who the progressives are and what they believe in, exposing the reactionaries. Comrade Max Salzman carried on this work for the party. Under the leadership of party members the progressives in the miners' union are now being mobilized into a more compact form so that the struggle can be carried on in a more centralised and effective manner.

The Potteries of East Liverpool

Though Mary G. Waters of the East Liverpool local has informed us that our industrial activities among the thousands of pottery workers, all fairly well organised, will confront us with many peculiar and new angles in relation to the party's work in the trade unions, yet pottery workers are workers and where workers are there we as Communists must busy ourselves. The East Liverpool local reports renewed activity in the T. U. E. L. work and a provisional national committee of pottery workers is not a distant possibility.

An Eye Upon the Law Shop.

The place where laws are manufactured, Columbus, has not been left out of eye. The ku klux klan and its compulsory bible reading bill for all school children has brought its reply from the party in the shape of a leaflet that is being given state-wide distribution. In this the Young Workers League is assisting commendably. The effort to foist a state military police upon the workers in this state, which everyone knows to be but another name for an army of strike-breaking cossacks, was met by the party with another leaflet, which has been distributed widely at factory and mine and in labor union meeting halls.

A Bit of Money Would Help a Lot.

The tasks before us are numerous. Good beginnings have been made and the party in the district can be built in proportion to our actual activities. These activities must be financed. Branches in the district must remit regularly their district tax. More than this, branches and members and sympathizers will be asked shortly to secure contributions for the Communist work upon lists which will be supplied by the national office. Forward to a large district treasury, not to keep but to spend to speed the revolution. Every comrade a steady worker in the shop, away from the shop, at every meeting, for the party.

Pro' Il Lavoratore in New York

A red revel to welcome the Il Lavoratore in New York is being held by the Italian Communists of New York and under the auspices of the Italian District No. 2 at the Cavallotti Hall, 600 Demott St., West Hoboken, N. J., Saturday, April 11, at 8 p. m.

Comrades, let it be a big affair. Let Il Lavoratore be daily again. All comrades of all federations should not miss this entertainment which could prove their solidarity with the Italian Communist press.

Number One--

Is a task of no small importance.

Getting a sub for the DAILY WORKER from your shop-mate or member of your union is a task for the very best kind of a Communist organizer.

You must state, prove, convince—you must place before the uninformed worker every argument as to why he should subscribe to The DAILY WORKER—and to the Communist principles it advocates.

But it is the task of every Communist.

This is the field in which are found not only the future members of the Workers (Communist) Party, but also—

This is the field and work in which are developed the highest type of Communist Organizers.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub is a task of no small importance! Try it on your shop-mate—it will make a better Communist of you!

Slipping It to a Sob Sister

The sob sisters of the capitalist press, the female Dr. Cranes who advises women on the thousand and one ills that the fair sex is heir to under capitalism, are devoting much attention to Soviet Russia of late. Indicative of their neurotic temperament, their themes are woven mostly around the subjects of love and religion.

It is hardly necessary to say that their articles on religion and marriage in Soviet Russia are just as venomous as those of their male colleagues. One Edna K. Wooley, who writes for the Cleveland News, and whose dissertations on Soviet Russia display unbelieveable ignorance of the subject, and is therefore entirely qualified to write about Russia, recently ran into a snag in the shape of a letter from a steel worker in Steubenville, Ohio.

This steel worker took Edna to task in a manner which brings three loud cheers from us and which succeeded in getting under the hide of the sob sister.

The steel worker enthusiastically endorses the separation of church and state in Soviet Russia and then announces cheerfully that he himself no longer believes in god. Then he asks the following pertinent question:

"Where is the god or christ to help the starving coal miners, steel workers and railroad workers in good old U. S. A.?"

When Edna tries to answer this simple question she drops the mask of humanitarianism and snarls like a she-wolf and descends to the mental plane where she belongs. "God," says Edna, "is inspiriting men to plan better in all lines of business so there may be steadier employment for every worker."

It is the ingratitude of the workingman which makes all these inspired plans come to naught. Says this sob sister:

> The truth is that here everybody has become accustomed to so good a scale of living that to do without certain comforts or necessities that once were considered luxuries, raises a growl of "starvation." Indeed, matters have so come about in the good old U. S. A. that practically no man wants to take a small or temporary job that isn't bringing the pay he thinks he should have. He'd rather loaf and live on his relatives or on charity, or "skip" and let charity take care of his family. He prefers to hang around in a city rather than go out in the country and do real work on a farm. He demands beefsteak and fresh white bread for his daily meals. And in nine cases out of ten he came to this country from a land where he was lucky if he got 30 cents for a long day's work, and hard, black bread was the chief part of his daily diet.

It is not hard to understand the hatred generated for the workers' and peasants' government of Russia and for the revolutionary and labor movement everywhere by this type of mind. It feels instinctively that something very unpleasant is going to happen to its physical envelope when the workers take power.

There is a blood relationship between the Ednas of America and the counter-revolutionary intelligentsia of Russia. They are united in their hatred of the working class. Both blame the foreigner, one for the revolution, the other for the pre-revolutionary discontent that exists in the United States.

The hangers-on of the Russian ruling class hated the Jews, the same type here hates "the Dago, the Dutchman, the Swede and the Coon, the Chink and the Jap, and the man in the moon."

Why do we devote so much space to the Ednas? Because working class women read their effusions and in the United States much of their stuff is looked upon as a dispassionate effort to reach the truth.

Chinese Textile Strikers Win

The Chinese textile workers won their strike in Shanghai.

Most of the strikes of the American textile workers have been lost.

There are two reasons why the Chinese workers won.

The first is that they struck as a unit, tied up the whole textile industry and recognized that a strike is war, those who desert their fellow workers traitors.

The second reason is that the Red International of Labor Unions sent a huge contribution to the strikers' relief fund and aided materially in relieving their distress.

The bosses were forced to meet the terms of the strikers altho in behalf of those properties owned by Japanese capitalists the Japanese government sent a number of threatening messages to the Chinese authorities.

The Chinese workers may be slow in getting into motion, but no one can deny that once they start they leave the American workers far behind in militancy and solidarity.

If the American working class does not get busy soon the Chinese workers will one day be referring to our "coolie standard of living."

The Passing of the Klan

The ku klux klan is passing.

With the sanctity of the home and the protection of American womanhood as two of its main slogans it has succeeded in gathering to its bosom the most perfect collection of degenerates ever placed on exhibition in America.

The quarrels over the cash proceeds of organizing campaigns has brought the klan into court times without number. It appears that the laws of the invisible empire are not of a nature that makes division of the loot a proceeding that can be settled outside the ordinary processes of law to which the horde of Jews, Negroes, Slavs and Irish outside the nightgowned ranks have to submit to for the present.

The lustre of the imperial diadem has been dimmed somewhat by these sordid sorties made upon the treasury.

To make matters worse, a number of grand dragons, kleagles and wizards have become involved in sexual adventures that have brought bitter disillusionment to many of the embattled morons whose tastes run to collective sadistic orgies rather than to individual expeditions in perversion.

The chief protector of the purity of American womanhood in Indianapolis is the latest victim of the pitfalls that make the path of a grand dragon a hard and thorny one.

It will be a little hard to explain to the faithful how the kidnaping, rape and subsequent poisoning of a young Indianapolis girl by the grand dragon, aided by a couple of local wizards, fits in with the crusade against the invasion of the 100 per cent American home by the alien cohorts.

Once upon a time klansmen, when apprehended in some particularly obscene anti-social act could plead that they were victims of an enemy plot, but this defense has lost its punch. Any literate person knows now that the klan is an organization of subnormal perverts with a sprinkling of clever politicians and professional elements that see in the klan the nucleus of an American fascist organization.

Even in the medieval south the klan is decaying. Its days as a political force are numbered.

World Solidarity

The international protest of the working class aroused by the threat of the Polish government to hang Stanislav Lanzutsky, Communist worker member of the diet, has assumed huge dimensions. It is without doubt the greatest exhibition of working class solidarity in defense of a class war prisoner that has yet been seen.

The British labor movement, more effectively than any other section of the working class outside of Soviet Russia, aided in staying the hands of the capitalist hangmen.

Those who are always lamenting the dissensions and divisions in the labor and revolutionary movement and who always see the weaknesses rather than the strength of labor should explain how it is that the British labor party and the general council of the Trades Union Congress both protested to the Polish government and offered to provide legal defense for the victim of the white guards.

Comrade Lanzutsky is held on another charge after his acquittal under the pressure of the masses in Poland and other nations, but his life has been saved for a time at least and the protests and demonstrations thruout the globe have been wonderful testimony to the strength of the Communist International whose call brought millions of workers to the defense of their Polish comrade.

A few years ago such unanimity of action would have been impossible. Today the spread of the capitalist terror into all nations together with the constant agitation and organization work of the sections of the Communist International is welding the world labor movement into a single massive weapon for the working class.

Fakers Fail to Fool Negro Miners

The labor fakers are not above appealing to the Negro members of the unions for support when it is a question of war on the militants. The officialdom of the United Mine Workers of western Pennsylvania went to the trouble of importing a Negro organizer to lead the fight on one of the militants in a union with a large number of Negro members.

But the attempt to line up the Negro miners behind the fakers failed. Our correspondent at the scene of the struggle reports that not a single Negro voted with the machine.

There are lots of similar incidents in the labor movement proving that many of the Negro workers understand the need for combatting the misleaders and traitors in the unions who are only too willing to follow the example set by the capitalists in playing one race against the other. The reason that more of these are not reported is that our worker correspondents are not yet numerous enough to cover the field thoroly and that to many workers there is nothing unusual in such exhibitions of solidarity.

When we refer to the "murder governments" of central, eastern and southeastern Europe, we mean exactly what we say.

If any of our readers doubt the accuracy of this term, they should read carefully our news story of the death plots of the Bulgarian government which we published yesterday. The revelations contained therein are unbelieveable—if we forget that human life since 1914 is the cheapest thing in the world.

CAL WANTS DEBT OF THE FRENCH BEFORE CRASH

Plutes Tear Hair as War Payment Fades

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Introduction of the capital levy scheme in the French parliament by the Herriot government has alarmed Secretary Mellon and the Coolidge following in Washington, since it proves the extremity to which French financial mismanagement has driven the politicians in Paris.

Chance of early collection of any part of the interest—much less the principal—due the United States on the war debt is now considered remote.

Bankruptcy was the alternative to a capital levy, unless France were again to try inflation or were to surrender her military position and admit herself a second-rate power. But Mellon and Coolidge had hoped that no step so disturbing to the whole financial structure of the world as a capital levy in a country of the importance of France would be attempted.

They look upon a forced loan as a confession of breakdown of power and as being likely to weaken the anti-radical lineup in central Europe and the Balkans.
